In the last analysis we see that it is the desire to "boss" that wrecks everything and it is high time we gave it up. But let us remember that this fact applies to us as well as to the other fellow. We can't put anything over on that score. Be seated while the Carillon peels its delicious music of peace and refinement but if you must fight let us have it out and be done with it and take care you don't get the worst of it—that you do not perish by the sword which ye took up. They attacked the Bible from a love of truth? No, a love of war. So long as they are having their own way they would keep Heaven itself in a ferment. They love war—so long as somebody else does the real fighting. My word! How they do fancy themselves! And that is not "The Message of the Carillon?"

Is the Peace of God always to pass all understanding? Does the earth belong to those who can hold it by force? Does Canada really belong to Canadians and Ireland to the Irish or have we just right to it, to the exclusion of all others? And if so why? If conquest is your answer then for the sake of shame stop preaching. The present Irish beat the previous Irish up and took Ireland from them. Where does their right come from?

Ailing Men and Women Need This Tonic

Poets sing of Spring, but practical-minded people, everywhere, turn at this time to the Doctor and the Druggist for help to build up run-down constitutions. And no better remedy can be taken than Buckley's TRU-BLOOD.

TRU-BLOOD, as its name implies, is a true blood tonic and a safe, sure, powerful corrective for all blood disorders, and rheumatic conditions as well.

But "TRU-BLOOD" is more than a blood purifier—its use eradicates the outward evidences of impoverished blood, such as pimples, boils, eczema, blotches and all other skin affections.

Buckley's OINTMENT, used in conjunction with Buckley's TRU-BLOOD, heals magically and leaves the skin smooth and soft.

Especially during the adolescent age, pimples and various forms of skin eruptions are likely to appear. They mar the complexion and cause untold anguish. The combined TRU-BLOOD and Buckley's OINTMENT treatment promptly corrects the condition and leaves the skin clear, smooth and colorful.

Most druggists can supply you with these proven Buckley products.

GEORGE STREET FATHERS DINE WITH THEIR BOYS

Successful Father and Son Banquet Held in Sunday School Hall.

HELPFUL ADDRESS.

Jim Finlay, of Ontario Boys' Work Board is Speaker of Evening.

A very enjoyable and well-attended Father and Son banquet was held in the Auditorium of George Street United Sunday School last evening at 6.30. The tables were very attractive, being decorated with blue and yellow fluted runner and vases of yellow daffodils. About two hundred and sixty fathers and sons sat down to a sumptuous meal and it was really an inspiring sight to see so many fathers enjoying themselves with their sons like a crowd of boys together.

J. F. H. Wallace acted as chairman and toastmaster in his usual pleasing manner. After "O Canada" had been sung with great vim, Rev. J. E. Todd led in prayer. Community singing of such old favorites as "It Isn't Any Trouble to Just to S-m-i-l-e" and "The Smoke went up the chimney." demonstrated by Dr. Middleton, enlivened the meal. Violin solo, Alex. Carlisle, accompanied by Miss Musa Cox.

Mr. Wallace proposed a toast to the King, which was responded to by singing "God Save the King."

The toast to "Our Fathers" was proposed by Delbert Gardner, in a humorous style. The boys then sang, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." This was responded to by H. G. Walker.

The toast to "Our Sons" was proposed by Douglas Carlisle, who spoke of the wonderful heritage handed to the boys of this generation.

This was responded to by Ronald Payne, who spoke of "Dads" as chums and advisers, and mentioned the sacrifices they made for their children.

A toast to "Our Sunday School" was proposed by Jack Bradshaw, who spoke of the beginning of Sunday schools by Robert Raikes. He told of the growth and what it is doing to-day and spoke of the future work of the Sunday School.

This was responded to by George Robertson, superintendent of the Sunday School, who spoke of the wonderful leadership and efficiency of the boy teachers of the school.

The speaker of the evening, "Jim" Finlay, secretary of the Boys' Work Board of Ontario, was then called on to address the meeting.

Mr. Finlay proved his ability for leadership from the first second he stepped on the platform, for he aroused all, even the tiny boys, by leading them in singing, "Little Peter Rabbit had a fly upon his ear," and telling several amusing stories. Becoming serious, he referred to the recollection of dad as leaving its imprint on boy life. If father is to live in the same world with his son, he must take an interest in what the son is interested in. He must be careful of his habits and of his speech, for boys love to imitate their dads.

"If we as a church, as a community, realize that there are one thousand and one influences to tear down home life we must think of our moral leadership, and not only be willing to give our money but to give ourselves. There are types of boys who like to live on froth on the surface, but I think there are more teen age boys thinking seriously than ever before. We need fathers and men who will share their lives with the boys and interpret the Master's life. This may seem a sacrifice but it brings far more than we give. What part have we in the game we call Father and Son?" he asked.

"Sometimes boys think dads are old fogies. Men let us be honest with ourselves. Did we not think the same at one time? Later we found out he knew a great deal more than we. What a great thing it means at home when you come to have an appreciation of each other. There is only one way to make your contribution. That is to be fired with ideals to make us true sons.

"Boys of to-day are living in a great generation but it won't make a great deal of difference in the realm of things that matter if boys do not rediscover Jesus Christ. The boyhood that I covet for the city of Peterborough is that which will stand for the things that are honest, upright, and true and that will make you men willing to live and die for others if need be."

Rev. J. E. Todd spoke a few words of appreciation of Mr. Finlay's words and said he thought life was not worth living if we are not making some contribution of human character in the life of our young people.

Charles Saunders and J. E. Smith also spoke in enthusiastic terms of Mr. Finlay's address and the ideas he had given them.

A vote of thanks to the ladies of the Sunday School was moved by J. E. Middleton and the Argos Class contributed a short poem as follows:

For men and boys, to eat their fill
Is something they do with right good will;
But to put this food in proper shape
Is a thing of art—make no mistake.

So that is where the ladies shine,
And they look to us, almost divine,
When we see the things they have prepared
With so much care, and nothing spared.

How could we then do aught but say
Our many thanks, for the dainty way,
That the board is spread, and the meal is set.

And now we'll add, as men and boys,
You've made our hearts just full of joy
So come again, as soon as you please,
We're never to full for one more squeeze.

During the evening the boys of several classes enlivened the proceedings with their class yells. Mr. Hamilton's class sang an original song which created much merriment. Harry Northrops presided at the piano.

The evening's entertainment was brought to a close by singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

More coal was mined in Canada last year than in any previous twelvemonth.

Down and Out with Asthma and Pneumonia

TANLAC Put Him on His Feet Again

"When Tanlac helped my little grand-daughter so wonderfully, I thought perhaps it would help me too. Since I have taken it, I am feeling so fine I can hardly find words to tell how happy I am", writes Mr. John Jones, 19 Sterling Street, London, Ont.

"I came here from Calgary because of Asthma. I was so badly run-down that I got a touch of Pneumonia which knocked me out completely. I could not get my strength back; had no appetite; was unable to work; and never knew what it was to have a good night's sleep. By the time I had taken three bottles of Tanlac, I was eating three meals a day, sleeping like a log, and I have been on my job ever since. My asthma does not bother me so much now, and it is a race between me and my grand-daughter at mealtime for we both have splendid appetites."

Tanlac corrects Indigestion and Constipation—relieves gas, pain, nausea, dizziness and headaches. It tones up the whole system; brings back lost appetite; helps you digest your food; builds up health and strength.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs—only herbs, roots and barks—Nature's own medicines for the sick. The cost is less than 2c a dose; and your money will be refunded if you are not perfectly satisfied. Get a bottle today at your druggist's and give Tanlac a trial.

JACK MINER AND THE BIRDS

AND SOME THINGS ABOUT NATURE

CHAPTER XXI.

The Migration of Ducks.

Ever since I started tagging birds, my desire for this never-tiring sport has been constantly increasing, and to-day I have carloads of unsatisfied ambition flying all over America just because I cannot get my tag on them all. Altogether, I have tagged four hundred and forty ducks since starting, and I am well pleased with the amount of interest the sportsmen have displayed in writing me from different shooting grounds of America where these tagged birds have fallen.

It is remarkable how these letters differ in tone, how men will expose who they are by their hand-writing, stating how they captured the bird, or how it got caught in a muskrat trap; this, of course, is their Latin way of saying "I shot the duck out of season." But about the limit was when a gentleman wrote as follows: "I am an officer of the law, and the other night while on duty I was in pursuit of two whiskey smugglers crossing our river. I ordered them to stop, but they did not heed, so I fired my revolver in the air, and down came a wild duck with a tag on."

I would like to match this "officer of the law" against a "detective" we have in our town. This man had been duck hunting and next day when asked "What luck?" he replied, "Well, just middling; good and bad both. You know I had the old muzzle-loader, and I got up at Cedar Creek just daybreak; looked, and saw the largest flock of ducks on earth coming right towards me. So I squatted in the rushes, and when they came over I rose up, taking steady aim where they were the thickest, pressed the trigger, and both barrels snapped, but down came twenty-seven ducks. Really if the gun had gone off I know I would have killed a thousand!"

Another letter states, "I wish I could get more of the ducks. I was out all morning and got only twenty-four. The one with the tag on was amongst them. How is the shooting down your way?"

Worst of all was a well-educated man who never wrote at all, but the duck was seen by a friend of mine who reported it; then I wrote the doctor the second time, enclosing a self-addressed postal card before I got a short acknowledgment.

But like all other things in my life, the good that has been blown my way has completely drifted the undesirable under. I have received some of the most beautiful letters that ever were written by God-fearing and loving hands.

One man explains, "I received the message you put on the duck's leg, and it is so personal it makes me love you for sending it. Will you please let me keep it?" His request was cheerfully granted, for the message read: "He careth for you. Peter 5:7."

A lady writes, "My boy shot the duck. Thank you for the message; it makes us friends."

"A soldier boy writes, "Uncle Sam has called me to the colors and I must respond. Should I live to return I will be pleased to come and see you. You will find enclosed the tag I took from the duck's leg. Good-bye." On looking at the tag which this duck had carried for over a year and finally delivered to this young soldier, out for his last day's recreation before leaving for the battlefield, already soaked with human blood, I found that the message read: "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. Philippians 1:21."

The following is a letter from Dr. Axby in reply to my printed pamphlet requesting him to return the tag. I know the Doctor will pardon my reproducing his letter, as I have dozens similar to it, but his was the first I came to.

January 1st, 1919.

Mr. Jack Miner.

I am in receipt of your interesting letter, and assure you we are glad there are such men as you in the world, and shall endeavor to remember your interest in game life and govern ourselves in accord with your wishes.

Here wishing you a Happy, Prosperous, Peaceful 1920, and more to come.

Enclosed find your tag.

Yours truly,
(Dr.) J. L. Axby.

The following letter would cause one to believe that there are States that have not yet been visited by Billy Sunday, particularly as the entire Bible verse was stamped on the tag:

May 3, 1920.

Box 48, Kingsville, Ont.

Dear Unseen Friend,—

On the aluminum plate bent around a wild duck's leg bore these words: Jude 1-21. I can't make out the meaning.

Wishing to hear from you,

Yours truly,
C. .....H.
Holly Grove, Ark.,
Feby. 28th, 1920.

Box 48, Kingsville, Ontario

The mallard drake on which you placed the aluminum tag bearing the following inscription on one side, "Write Box 48, Kingsville, Ontario," and on the other side, "With God all things are possible, Mark 10:27," was killed near this place a few days ago. We had notice put in the Arks. 'Democrat,' published in Little Rock, Arks.

About the 1st of October of each year these ducks begin to come into this country, and they feed on rice and acorns and other seeds. Some years they are very numerous. We also have a few geese. They begin to go away from now on to the latter part of March. None remains except those which have been wounded too badly to make the long flight.

Will you please write me when you put the tag on this duck, and how old was he when you put it on? Do they stay in your country during the summer months? Write me any information concerning them.

Several years ago what we called the Sandhill Cranes came over here in large flocks, passing further south. I never saw but one light. It was about six feet tall, and was a brownish color. They have not flown over for several years. Do they belong to your country; if so, what has become of them?

Very truly,
T. G. Trice.

Then a lady from the South gives a laughable account of what happened down there over one of the colored preachers getting a message in this most unexpected way:

Dear Mr. Miner,—

I think you will be interested in knowing about some of your geese and ducks. While I was in Mississippi last winter I visited in Louisiana and Arkansas. Along the last of November some of the negroes on the plantation went over on the sandbar to hunt for wild geese, and they got several ducks and two big grey geese, and on one of the legs was a tin tag with a Bible inscription on it. The old darky that happened to get it was a great preacher; could not read a word, but was gifted with lots of gab and exhorted quite a lot. He thought the message came down from heaven and they had quite a revival over it. I heard him one night and he said: "This am the message of the Lord. I saw Him descending with this fowl in His arms, and it flew right at me. And now am the Judgment coming, and we are the elected, and am going straight to His arms."

I don't remember just what verse it was, but I remember it was your address and think perhaps this will interest you.

Yours truly,

The following are the names and post office addresses given me of each person who has killed or reported the ducks. And fully seventy-five per cent. of the tags reported have been returned and are in my possession.

No Substitute for "Fruit-a-tives"

Ordinary laxatives merely goad the system into action; then, weakened by harsh treatment, the body lapses into worse condition than ever.

While relieving constipation Fruit-a-tives builds up general health. Made of juices of fresh fruit and tonics, for 24 years it has been aiding people to positively overcome constipation. Try it yourself. 25c and 50c a box.

SELLING A MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF TIRES EVERY 16 DAYS

...and the direct advantages it has for YOU

EVERY 19 days in the year Goodyear turns over its stock of raw materials.

Every 28 days in the year Goodyear turns over its stock of finished products.

Rapid turnover of product reduces costs. Turnover makes economies. Turn a stock once a year—costs are high. Turn it twice a year—three times a year—costs are lower. Goodyear's very rapid turnover provides millions for extra quality—yet leaves fair profit.

The world's greatest preference in tires makes this remarkable Goodyear turnover possible. Savings are enormous. And these great savings make possible the quality of Goodyear Tires.

The same efficiency carries down through Goodyear's selling—the time-proven Goodyear Selected Dealer plan.

For the Goodyear Selected Dealer is efficient. He specializes on Goodyear Tires. He turns his stock rapidly. He can operate on a narrow profit—make money—and give you service a less efficient dealer can never give.

RADIO STATION IS SUSPENDED

HAD BEEN CAUTIONED.

WASHINGTON, April 17. — For the first time since the government has controlled radio a broadcasting station has been taken off the air for being off its frequency.

The Radio Commission has notified WNBA, Forest Park, Illinois, 'to discontinue operation until further notice,' for 'wabbling.'

Michael T. Raffert, of Station WNBA has been notified that 'due to your consistent violation of Commission's general order No. 7, specifying maximum deviation from frequency assignments, you are hereby ordered to discontinue operation until further notice.'

Offense Repeated.

While the Commission has several times threatened to use 'strong arm' methods if stations did not stay with in a reasonable distance of their frequency, this is the first instance in which the threat has been carried out, and it may be an indication that similar methods will be used in the future.

Complaints against the station have been coming in to the Commission for a long time, it is understood. It first went on the air in February, 1927, with a permit to use from 3000 to 5000 watts power, and on June 15, 1927, it was cut to 200 watts. It operates on 1440 kilocycles.

Interfered with Programs.

The Radio Supervisor at Chicago is said to have cautioned the station several times for being off its wavelength, the deviation having been as much as 500 cycles.

Commisioner Sam Pickard who is in charge of the Chicago zone was told that this station was continually interfering with good programs.'

Get Flesh On Your "Skinny" Body

New, Tasteless Yeast and Iron Builds Weight in Few Weeks—or Pay Nothing

"Put On 12 Lbs.; Cleared Skin"

"I was always thin, pale and sallow, and nothing seemed to help me. Then a few weeks ago a friend recommended Ironized Yeast. After taking it just a short time I gained 12 pounds and my skin is lovely and smooth and fresh-looking. I am so happy I am telling all my friends."—Miss E. R., Toronto.

Don't Envy the Graceful, Well-Rounded Form Learn How to Have One

Women and men are amazed at the magic benefits of IRONIZED YEAST. Thin, weak bodies are brought up in weight and strength. Flesh is made round and firm. Hollows filled out. Skin made satiny smooth with the glow of girlhood. How is this done?

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value. So it is natural that after taking IRONIZED YEAST in a single course treatment you will notice an amazing improvement in your health, appearance and spirits. The skin loses its sallow, pimply, blotchy look, pounds of good flesh are taken on.

So don't have a skinny, weak body that looks as though it had never been fed enough. Don't go around with an ugly skin. Go to your druggist today, and get a generous test treatment of IRONIZED YEAST — pleasant, tasty tablets in a handy bottle. They do not cause gas or bloating and are safe for everybody—contain no harmful drugs.

Try it on "Money-Back" Offer

Go today to any drug store and get a full size treatment. If, after this generous trial, you are not delighted with effects, ask for your money back. It will be refunded immediately. If inconvenient to buy from druggist, send $1.25 direct to the Canadian Ironized Yeast Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., Desk 149-C.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion, and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having weight increased to normal.—©C.I.Y. Co., Ltd.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Rev. Mr. Holling, of Lindsay, Speaks at Thank Offering Service.

The Easter Thankoffering meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held in the church parlor on Tuesday afternoon, April 17, and was largely attended. The opening devotional period and business session were followed by responsive reading of the Easter message led by Mrs. Porteous. Mrs. E. Kitney was present and delighted the members with a vocal solo. A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of a life membership to Mrs. M. Wilgar, who for a number of years very faithfully fulfilled the duties of pianist for the Society. The presentation was made by Mrs. J. John. The principal speaker of the afternoon was the Rev. Mr. Holling of Lindsay whose address, "The Charter of a Woman's Missionary Society", based on Luke, 13th chapter, 16th verse, was most effective and stirring, bringing before the members their duty to the women and children of the non-christian countries. Mrs. A. H. Allen, on behalf of the Society, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

New Light on the Fuel Question

House heating has been made cheaper, easier and more healthful by Hamilton By-Product Coke.

CHEAPER—It reduces the average fuel bill a full third because of its lower first cost and its greater heat value.

EASIER—because there are so few ashes.

MORE HEALTHFUL—because it burns without smoke, gas fumes or dust.

Hamilton By-Product Coke is not ordinary coke. It is a steady burning coke made especially for domestic heating. Picks up with amazing speed yet holds its fire with little attention when checked off.

Take advantage of this up-to-date fuel. It's particularly convenient in changeable weather.

Order next winter's fuel now at summer prices.

HASTINGS MAN RAISING CHICKS

BUYS NEW INCUBATOR.

HASTINGS, April 19. — William Whitred had a large hatch of bred-to-lay chickens on Monday. Seventy-five per cent. of the eggs incubated became chicks. Every week he has a hatch and hopes to have one thousand out on April 25. These are all sold before they are hatched.

Mr. Whitred started in a small way to raise poultry of general use some few years ago. He found it very profitable, and as a sideline went into raising baby chicks. These chicks are from his own flocks which lay at the rate of seventy per cent., which he checks by trap nesting. He has two hundred and seventy-five breeders now and each day collects on an average of one hundred and ninety eggs.

This year he had to install a mammoth incubator with a capacity of 1,650 eggs, to keep ahead of the demand.

OBITUARY

Mrs. J. J. Reynolds

Another of the links in the chain forged to unite Eastern and Western Canada was served in the passing of Eliza Linton, widow of the late J. J. Reynolds.

Mrs. Reynolds died at the home of her son, William in Gainstown, Sask. at the advanced age of eighty-seven years two months and ten days. She was born in 1840 near Cobourg Ont. where she spent her early years, after her marriage in 1864 to Mr. Reynolds she moved to Cavan township, Durham County. Fifty-seven years ago they heard the call of the West and travelled to St. Paul by train and thence to Fort Garry (now Winnipeg) by wagon. In a few months Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds became convinced that the prospects for a future in the west were not the best and went back to the old home in Ontario. Twelve years later, however, they returned to the prairies and took up a homestead in Winlaw district. After sixteen years on the farm Mr. Reynolds was called to his reward. Mrs. Reynolds then made her home with her son Thomas, and remained with him till he left for Idaho, nine years ago. Since that time she has lived with her son William who farmed at Claremont until this winter when he moved to Gainsboro and brought his mother with him.

Being among the pioneers, Mrs. Reynolds was well known by settlers far and near in the South Eastern corner of Saskatchewan, none were more highly respected in the district. She took an active interest in the religious and social life of the community Many of the land seekers and homesteaders, made her home their stopping place, on the long trips first to Brandon and later to Deloraine. It was a home for all who had occasion to stop as they passed that way. Students Missionaries called there not so much to give as to receive the encouragement and inspiration that was essential to carry on their work of building up the Kingdom of Jesus Christ, in the new land. None will ever know how much those early Missionaries' success was due to the kindly words of encouragement by Mrs. Reynolds, whose home was theirs in those early days. Mrs. Reynolds was predeceased by her husband, two daughters and two sons. She is survived by two sons, William of Gainsboro, and Thomas of Idaho and one sister Mrs. Rosevear of Cobourg Ont. Mrs. Reynolds funeral proceeded from the home of her son William, to the United Church, which was filled to overflowing by friends and neighbors wishing to pay their farewell tribute to one of the best beloved poineers of this West land. The body was laid to rest in the family plot at Winlaw Cemetry.

Many beautiful floral tributes bore silent testimony to the respect and esteem in which the departed was held by a wide circle of friends.

The pallbearers were all old neighbors who have resided in the district for over forty years. Messrs. James and William Shiel, William Shearer, D. J. McClung, James Cole and William Coney.

PRESENTATION MADE.

Matthew Todd Given Presentation By Royal Black Preceptory No. 945.

MILLBROOK, April 19—The Royal Black Preceptory, No. 945, held a special meeting in the L.O.L. Hall on Monday evening, in honor of Past Preceptor, Brother Matthew Todd, who is leaving the village this month, and will in future reside at Napanee. The Sir Knights turned out in practically full force for the gathering.

The special feature of the meeting was the presentation of a handsome case of pipes to Mr. Todd, the treasurer of R.B.P. No. 945, Worshipful Sir Knight Nathaniel Belch reading the address, and Past Preceptor Worshipful Sir Knight James H. Paul offering the gift. The address was signed by Sir Knight E. L. Morden, Worshipful Preceptor of the Lodge, and Worshipful Sir Knight L. C. Russell, Registrar, on behalf of their brother members.

Mr. Todd made suitable acknowledgment of the gift, and among those who spoke briefly were Sir Knights James Roddy and F. Lewers of the Peterborough Preceptory; F. P. Stinson, Rev. P. C. Howard, chaplain of the local Preceptory; Reeve G. H. Hootan; Stuart Fallis, Deputy-Reeve R. J. McKnight, and others.

The general tenor of the addresses emphasized Mr. Todd's faithfulness and efficiency in connection with his duties as an official in the Preceptory; and also expressed the general regret felt because of his removal, and the difficulty that will be experienced in filling his place.

The social side of the evening found expression when the guests had gathered about the supper tables and as a fitting conclusion, all joined hands and sang, "Auld Lang Sang," followed by the National Anthem.

This was the second social evening held in Mr. Todd's honor, a large gathering in the town hall last Friday night being of a community nature, with guests from the entire countryside. Mr. and Mrs. Todd were the guests of honor on that occasion.

Plowing Started

Wilbert Larmer started plowing on his farm, Seventh Line, Cavan, with two afternoon's work the last of the week. Farmers, generally, report the frost practically all out of the ground now, the fall wheat and clover coming through the winter exceptionally well. The high temperature on Good Friday and preceding days, started some growth, and recent frosty night with warm sun in the day time have given rise to some fear lest the grain be injured.

"SALADA" TEA

Two hundred years ago a tea like "SALADA" would have cost $50.00 a pound—but such tea was then unknown—today millions enjoy the fragrance and satisfaction of "SALADA" for a small fraction of that cost.

TILLEY CALLS REGAN'S ACTION

2,276, and when the time comes for Mr. Hall reading this another battle of minds is expected. After meeting with failure more and more, Mr. Regan turned to His Lordship and said: "What position am I going to be in?" The Court casually replied, "I do not know."

The Examination for Discovery.

In the reading of the examination for discovery by Mr. Hall, the jury has been given an insight into war conditions and how wars are managed that would never be had any other place. Mr. Regan had conducted a thorough examination, and Sir Arthur Currie was asked many questions whose answers gave a thorough insight into conditions on the Canadian front. War maps, charts, and official records, telegraph, telephone, and wireless messages were produced, and up to the present thirty-eight exhibits have been entered, many of them records of battalions, companies, and divisions during the last three days of the war.

Sir Arthur Currie, in his examination for discovery, told of the taking of Mons. On the night of November 10, 1918, a successful attempt was made to capture the city. His orders had been to take the city, provided there was not undue loss of life, and to continue fighting until eleven o'clock on the morning of November 11. The fighting, according to General Currie in the examination, was not difficult, and the city was captured without loss of life.

Mr. Regan: "You said no loss of life."

Witness: "I said Mons was captured without the loss of a single man on November 11."

At 4.15 on November 11 General Currie entered the city, and there he received a great ovation from the Belgian people, and he signed his name in the golden book.

General Currie was then questioned at great length on the advisability of taking Mons; from whom did he get his orders how it was taken and the discretion of a general.

He explained that the capture of Mons was part of the plan laid down, before the armistice was signed, by the commander-in-chief of the allied armies, and he was merely acting as he had been ordered.

Q: As commander of the Canadian corps, could you not use any discretion of your own?

A: Yes.

Q: If you believed an order you received was wrong, what would you do?

A: I would immediately consult my commanding officer.

Q: But if you did not have time?

A: I would do what I believed was best.

Sir Arthur then was asked as to when he heard that the armistice was signed.

A: At 6.45 a.m., on Nov. 11.

Q: When was it signed?

A: At 5.00 a.m.

Q: Can you give any reason why hostilities did not stop then?

A: Marshall Foch wanted to be sure everybody got the word and he also wanted the allied forces to establish a definite line.

Q: Why did you not order a stop?

A: If all had stopped the Germans might have retreated to the Meuse, and made a stand.

Q: When first did you hear of peace discussed?

A: I heard on the fifth of November that there was a reasonable hope that peace might not be far away.

Q: Did you receive any orders through if they came with a white flag.

Q: Did you learn the terms of peace Marshall Foch was going to give them?

A: No.

Q: What word did you receive?

A: The Germans had been given terms and were given 48 hours to accept them. In the meantime we were not to cease hostilities or re-release pressure.

Q: What would have happened if you had stopped fighting?

A: If we had not continued fighting I would not have obeyed my orders and we would not have been true to the force on my right.

Q: Were the Canadians known as shock troops?

A. Yes; on account of their ability to fight well and the manner in which we kept our ranks up to full strength.

Q: What army did they belong to?

A: First the fourth and again the first.

Q: Under whose command?

A: Field Marshall French and late Field Marshall Douglas Haig. In April 1918, Marshall Foch took command of the allied armies. Marshall Foch originated the commands and and those that affected the British were passed on to Sir Douglas Haig.

Then Mr. Hall came to the question of the late Sir Sam Hughes' statement in the Houes of Commons. Mr. Tilley objected to it being read, but Mr. Hall had completed before Mr. Tilley's objection was read. General Currie claimed he had denied it on a dozen platforms throughout Canada.

Then followed questions of Sir Arthur's private life before 1914, and his promotion to commander of the Canadian corps in 1917.

General Currie was offered command of a Canadian brigade in '914 by Sir Sam Hughes. He had the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel and had taken a course in staff work in Victoria B.C., during the winter of 1912 and 1913.

A: I was appointed in command of Second Infantry Brigade of the First Contingent. We trained at Valcartier and later in England. When the Canadian troops were made into a division I was made commander and when they were incorporated into a corps I took command in June, 1917, when Gen. Byng resigned command.

Q: How many men were under your command?

A: I have had as high as 105,000.

in each section. The essays from the High School are due this week.

The report of two parlor meetings was given by Mrs. R. Bristol, one being held at the lake, where a splendid address was given by Mrs. Breach, a Canadian author, on "Suitable Reading for Our Boys and Girls.' Mrs. Johnson ,of Boston, a strong temperance worker, spoke briefly on the union cause in general, and her work as a W.C.T.U. president. The other meeting was addressed by the the High School principal, Mr. D. Brown, on "How Can Mothers Help the Work of the School?"

The press report, given by Mrs. P. Dafoe, reported four temperance periodicals taken by the members and also meetings reported in two or three papers besides the local reports.

The travellers' aid report given by Mrs. A. Milne reported the visit of Dr. Detwiller, who gave a very interesting address on that subject.

The citizenship report was given by the president, and reported letters of appreciation to the Council for their stand regarding the liquor store for Madoc, and to Mr. Hough, manager of the High School hockey team, on the high standard of training attained under his leadership. The Council were also petitioned to find out where the minors were securing cigarettes. The report covered the one on anti-narcotics as well.

The flower, fruit, and delicacy department was also active, and many gifts were taken to the sick and many visits made.

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation to two charter members, Mrs. W. Mackintosh and Mrs. John Tucker, of county life memberships.

After thanking the members for their loyal support and assistance during the year, the president announced the election of officers as follows:

President, Mrs. J. McCaffrey; vice-presidents, Mrs. George Huffman and Mrs. F. Jenkins; recording secretary, Mrs. T. L. Nickle; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. Dafoe; treasurer, Mrs. George West; supt. parlor meetings, Mrs. S. Ashley; supt. citizenship, Miss E. Saunderson; supt. travellers' aid, Mrs. Milne; supt. white ribboners, Mrs. Blair; supt. flower and fruit, Mrs. Fair; supt. temperance in S.S., Mrs. Ludbrook; supt. anti-narcotics, Mrs. D. Brown; supt. scientific temperance, Mrs. Rivers; supt. soap wrappers, Mrs. C. Whytock.

Western delegates saw too much similarity between the draft constitution which they characterized as "extremely complicated," and that of the National Council of Women. The influence of the west was to simplify, clarify and democratize the constitution.

Receive Advice.

The Women's Confederation will receive the benefit of the advice of the men under the following clause:

"There shall be a small advisory committee of prominent and experienced men and women, who may be called upon to act in an advisory capacity at any time."

Westerners objected. It was put to the vote. But the east and central carried the assembly on this point.

A veteran woman politician remarked:

"One understands now what clubs went through in trying after the ancient dynasty was overthrown to set up a new constitution."

Excitement increased rather than subsided as the clauses one after another were brought up

Join Provincial Body.

Mrs. May L. Odell of Montreal, seeing a weak spot in the bulward of the organization and being as she stated Tuesday above all "a good fighting worker" made a motion from the floor to fill the breech. This motion was to the effect that every local organization be obliged to join the provincial body. The motion was carried.

"Bring the regiment under the authority of the General, as it were," remarked a delegate.

Before a further motion coming from the west, the proposal for a sub-amendment was swept away.

"All for simplification," said a member from Winnipeg.

After three hours' discussion the constitution was adopted.

The Assembly refrained from defining any fixed political policy as yet, but adopted the following resolution.

"That in expressing appreciation of the honour conferred upon Canada in her election to one of the non-permanent seats on the Council of the League of Nations, we urge the whole-hearted support of the League by the Government and by the individual citizens of Canada as the most hopeful and effective means of averting war from the world and developing the spirit and habit of international co-operation and good will."

When the protein part of the evening meal is to be supplied by a roast, it is possible to figure out just what size roast will be entirely used by the family, whether that family is composed of two or ten persons. First, you must get away from thinking of a roast in terms of from three to six pounds, for it is quite easy to secure and properly roast a very small piece of meat, which makes it possible for the smallest family or even just one person to enjoy a different roast whenever they wish. However, to the average housewife the word "roast" means a large piece of meat, with the inevitable left-overs. So until you get the knack of roasting or baking a sufficiently small piece of meat for the needs of your family, whether beef, mutton, pork or veal, use it up the next day as follows:

*Meat Loaf: Grind through a food grinder only the lean portions of the left-over roast; discarding all fat and gristle. Mix in the desired amount of chopped celery and any other non-starchy vegetable you may wish. Scatter through the mixture a generous number of ripe olives, moisten with a little hot water and form into a loaf. Bake in a tightly covered pan for fifteen or twenty minutes, removing cover and allowing to brown under the broiler flamefor a few minutes. Serve garnished with parsley and a few ripe olives.

Note.—My weekly menus give a variety of meats to teach you their proper combination with other foods. You will learn, with a little careful study, that it is never necessary to discard good food in the way of "left-overs." For instance, if you have left-overs from a roast beef, it is perfectly all right to use it up the next day, as suggested above, in place of the roast pork that may be given in the menu of that particular day.

Questions and Answers.

Question—Mrs. J. H. writes: "I have been to two different eye specialists and they both claim I have patches in back of the eyeball and that nothing can be done unless we find out what it is caused from. They claim it isn't the eye itself, but due to something wrong in my physical condition. What do you think could be the cause? Tests show that urine, kidneys, blood and teeth are O.K."

Answer—The eye is a very delicate organ and easily affected by toxins in the blood. The tests you have had do not necessarily show such poisons but they must be there or your eyes would not be affected in that manner. Send for my special article called "A Cleansing Diet" which will tell you how to take a short fast following by a cleansing diet that will surely be helpful to you in getting rid of the poisons which are causing your eye trouble.

Question—T. W. B. asks: "What is the cause of one's teeth getting on edge when eating acid fruits, and is there a preventive remedy?"

Answer—Those whose teeth are sensitive to acid fruits usually have some crack in the enamel of their teeth, or the enamel is worn off so that the dentine is exposed. A perfectly healthy tooth would not be sensitive to acid fruits.

Question—K. A. S. asks: "Will you kindly give a name for the complaint of shortness of breath, clutching at the throat and pain down the left arm, shoulder and hand at the same time, when walking, or at the least exertion or nervousness?"

Answer—Angina Pectoris is probably the name of the complaint which you ask about in your condition.

DRESS By MARY MARSHALL

Costume slips are often made with a square of the skirt material finished off to be used as a neck scarf. A pleated figured silk slip is then worn with a plain colored overblouse—with the neck square to give the ensemble effect. Still a newer trick is to save some of the skirt material to use to make into bows. Finish strips of the skirt material off into five or six-inch strips like ribbon with a narrow hem along the edge. One of these bows may be used at the front, another at the hips and bows from narrower strips may be tied to give ornament to the cuffs of the overblouse.

Front bows, you know, are decidedly smart and often they are made of ribbon. A figured silk frock may be ornamented with a front bow of plain colored ribbon. For warm weather wear you may have a simple sport frock of white silk crepe or pongee. Then you may have a hat of very thin white felt or natural colored straw. Select two or three different colored ribbons—green, rose, yellow, for instance. From each of these chosen ribbons have a band and bow made for the hat, and a front neck bow for the frock. The hat ribbon may be attached by means of tiny snappers or tacked into position with needle and thread if you prefer. The idea, you see, is to have three different possible color schemes for each frock and hat.

The front of the blouse—at the v of the neckline—may be provided with two, inch-long up and down slits possibly an inch apart—possibly less. The ribbon bow is then slipped through these slits—so that no pin or clasp is necessary.

LYRICS OF LIFE

DARK DAYS

Dark days, they come, I know they do,
Dark days, with skies no longer blue,
Dark days, when robins sing no more,
Dark days, when trouble's at the door.
But let's keep looking for the sun
Dark days as on some brighter one,
And let's keep singing in the heart,
Until the dark, dark days depart.

Dark days, they come, we know not when,
Dark days, and clouds and rain again,
Dark days, and harder days to smile,
Dark days, and shadows for awhile.
But let's remember some old song,
Dark days, to help our hearts along,
And let's imagine days ahead
To follow when dark days are fled.

Dark days, they come, of course they will,
Dark days, the hill a harder hill,
Dark days, without a sun or star,
Dark days, to show us what we are.
But let's remember I and you,
Dark days and all our days, are true,
And let's remember brighter ways,
And we won't mind about dark days!

How many dollars can you save between the clothes hamper ? and the mending pile

DOESN'T it sometimes seem that the mending pile is big beyond belief? Didn't you ever wonder why?

Even your most delicate underclothes shouldn't go to pieces if you give them fair treatment. Have you looked in the washtub for the reason? It may lie there.

These dainty clothes that modern women wear are more difficult to wash than grandmother's calico. And wrong laundering means weakened fabric, faded colour, frayed edges.

If it isn't the mending basket, it's the scrap basket they're headed for. It all depends on the soap.

SURPRISE A PURE HARD SOAP

Surprise Soap was first made in St. Stephen, N.B., 44 years ago, on the policy that Quality should be the first consideration.

This policy has never been altered and quality has improved with advancing knowledge, keeping pace with modern requirements.

Faggoting Is the Latest Trimming Vogue

AS we have been telling you, faggoting is in high vogue.

Here are diagrams and directions for several ways of using it. And the sketch of a frock suggesting how it may be used very effectively. You will see from the frock that you can embellish any simple frock for which you have a pattern by just marking it with lines which are to be faggoted.

If you are faggoting together two strips of material, then cut a strip of stiff paper, mark it off in straight ruled lines, and then baste the strips of material—which have been blind stitched as a bias or straight fold—neatly and firmly on it, a quarter inch apart, more or less as you want. Then work your faggoting stitches. If you are faggoting a frock in the manner suggested in the sketch, then place a piece of stiff paper under the part you are faggoting, baste it in position, cut along the frock on lines marked by French chalk, turn under the two raw edges thus exposed in a neat little hem, and baste flat to the paper. Press, and put in the faggoting stitches, and after unbasting the paper, turn the frock wrong side out and blind stitch or hem down the material on the wrong side.

Number 1 is simple faggoting. Bring the thread up at the left side of the opening between the two pieces of material, bring it down a little, and put the needle through from the under side. Now take the thread back to the left strip of material, passing the needle under the stitch already made. Bring it up from the under side and down again to the right, passing the needle under the stitch just made. You can understand just how to do this by looking at the diagram, which shows the thread much enlarged.

Number 2 is a more elaborate stitch. The thread is carried from right to left, and then buttonholed back. You can make the buttonhole stitches close together or far apart. The result is a pretty sort of laddering.

Number 4 is a very simple stitch. You take a stitch from left to right and start back again, making two buttonhole stitches, rather loose, a third of the way over, and two more another third of the way. Then catch your stitch on the left-hand margin, run your thread along under the fold a quarter of an inch, more or less, and start again.

Number 5 is similar. You bring the thread up at the left margin, make a loose loop across to the right margin, run the needle through the hem fold for a quarter of an inch, bring it up, and then take five, or more, loose buttonhole stitches over the other thread, then complete the stitch back to the left-hand margin.

You will find these stitches interesting, not too difficult, and very smart and decorative.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate, 1928)

FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 20, 1928.

Conflicting planetary influences again are read in the day's horoscope. Astrologers find the aspects disturbing to human serenity.

The early morning is conducive to discontent and the sort of nervousness that makes quarrels common.

Self control should be practiced and the mind should be turned away from self.

All the seers agree that egotism in its worst forms is responsible for much of the discontent of the present.

Industry may be slightly affected by the fomenting of dis-satisfaction through political agitation, astrologers declare.

Mars is in a place making for strife and criticism in which established laws are assailed.

The lunation of this date falls with violent fixed stars and seems to presage strange murders and atrocities.

Fires are foretold as the spring advances and forests will be destroyed in many parts of the country.

Stringent enforcement of laws restricting careless smokers and campers is urged by astrologers.

There is a sign read as vaguely suggesting for this country intense interest in armament.

The navy comes under scrutiny that may be unfavorable to those who advocate airships and modern policies.

Children born on this day are likely to have supreme talents and may rise to extraordinary heights of success.

UNIFORMS OF MANILA PUPILS

In compliance with the new Students' Uniform Law, all pupils of public school in Manila, P.I., must wear a uniform. The committee appointed to choose the type of apparel favors white sport shirts and white trousers for the boys, and something similar for the girls. The move is along the lines of equality and economy for pupils and parents.

AUXILIARY HOLDS EASTER SERVICE

St. James' Church Ladies Make Thank Offering at Meeting.

Easter was commemorated in a special service in St. James' Auxiliary on Wednesday evening in Wesley Hall, when an unusually large number were in attendance.

Mrs. E. L. Woodley, the Auxiliary President, was in the chair and conducted the opening devotional exercises. An Easter hymn was followed by a season of prayer in which several members took part.

After the routine was completed, Mrs. F. D. Armstrong, leader of Group 3, took charge of the beautiful Easter service which followed. The responsive reading, which was interspersed with appropriate music, was very interesting, and a forceful reminder of the first Easter.

Mrs. T. E. Curvin and Mrs. H. A. Bonney sang very sweetly their duet, "The True Easter," their voices blending perfectly.

"As I Have Left You" was the title of the Easter message given in a reading by Mrs. R. B. English, in which she pointed the comparison between the "Christian Church" and "Heathendom" at Easter.

Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, pastor of the church, gave a splendid address, which placed him at once as being deeply interested in the spirit of missions, and as an earnest friend of the Woman's Missionary Society.

The Thank offering was received and the report of the treasurer, Mrs. Bonney, for the quarter ending March was very gratifying to the Auxiliary.

This profitable and interesting meeting was closed with prayer offered by Mr. Kent.

YOUTH CONFESSES KILLING COMPANION

Quebec Boy Aged 19 Admits That He Took Friend's Money and Fled.

MONTREAL, April 19 (Canadian Press)—Brought back here from Vermont as a material witness, a 19-year-old youth of St. Armand, Que., has confessed he killed Harvey Dupont, aged 23, of the same place, on October 28 last, Provincial police announced last night. The self-confessed murderer, whose name is withheld until the reopening of the coroner's inquest at St. Armand to-day, says he slew his companion with a monkay wrench and then stole $42 and a gold watch from his pocket.

Young Dupont's body was discovered in a ditch near St. Armand on Wednesday of last week, almost six months from the time of the murder. The alleged murderer fled from the village two days after the killing and has been in Vermont ever since. Detective Dalpe, of the Provincial Police, secured a slender clue, and made the trip to the United States town. He arrested the youth last Monday and the latter consented to cross the border without the formalities of extradition proceedings.

In his confession the young man said he had been drinking with Dupont for several days previous to the crime. On October 28, he said, both he and Dupont had become intoxicated and decided to visit a friend in an automobile. Half-way to their destination the fan belt of the motor got out of order. The self-confessed murderer said he had advised Dupont to repair it. When Dupont bent over the hood of the car, he hit him with a wrench. He later removed all money and valuables from the body.

DISTRICT CHURCHES.

OMEMEE UNITED CHURCH.

OMEMEE, April 19.—On the invitation of the Pulpit Supply committee, the Rev. A. J. Terrell, of Consecon, occupied the pulpit in Trinity United church on Sunday morning and evening. Mr. Terrell is an able speaker and his addresses were listened to with pleasure. In the morning his text was found in John 1:40, "One of the two which heard John speak and followed him was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother," while in the evening he chose the words found in xxi Isaiah, 11-2, "Watchmen, what of the night? watchmen, what of the night? The morning cometh and also the night."

The Young People's Union of Trinity church was in charge of Miss Mamie Hickson on Monday evening. Following the opening exercises the scriptural lesson from the xiii Psalm was head by Fred Weir. Irvine Connell, the secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and business arising out of these was transacted along with the new business, which included the decision of the Union to be responsible for the cost of placing on top earth and levelling the church lawn.

Wilbert Moncrief had charge of the topic and took for his subject, "Five Principles in Rational Living." Each essential was briefly dealt with by the speaker and those present were afforded much food for thought. Each principal should be cultivated and practised in every day life.

A pleasing vocal solo was given by Doris Vaughan and a piano duet by Mrs. F. W. Rowland and son Lloyd comprised the musical numbers.

Farmers in Politics.

WOMAN ASSAULTS HON. G. S. HENRY

Hits Him With Cane After Losing Damage Suit Against Him.

TORONTO, April 19.—With all the force that a woman of 150 pounds could put behind it, a stout walking stick of the utilitarian sort that grandpa used to lean on, descended yesterday upon the unsuspecting head of Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Public Works and Highways.

Unsuspecting, indeed, was Hon. Mr. Henry. He had just heard Mr. Justice Wright dismiss with costs the $10,000 action which Miss Elizabeth Plummer, 54-year-old Lansing dressmaker, had brought against him in consequence of a fall which she suffered in his country home at Agincourt in August, 1926.

He arose from the table and was chatting with his counsel, T. Herbert Lennox, K.C., M.P. Simultaneously, Miss Plummer arose from her seat in an unoccupied jury box. Lame, she limped the few yards that separated her from her late opponent in law. She raised her arm, spectators and attendants gulped, and down came the cane with a mighty thud on Mr. Henry's head.

Court attendants tried to quiet Miss Plummer as she shouted remarks at the Cabinet Minister and his family. In the commotion they lost sight of her for a moment. She hobbled over to where Mrs. Henry was standing and aimed at her a swishing blow. Mrs. Henry dodged out of harm's way, however.

"Those dirty murderers!" she cried. "These people half murdered me. It is only through their influence that they won this case. I don't care what you do to me! Those dirty murderers!"

Over and over again, as court attendants led her through the courtroom and corridors to the Crown Attorney's office, she sobbed, "There's no justice for the poor."

To Face Women's Court.

Meanwhile, Hon. Mr. Henry stood rubbing a rising lump on the back of his head, a little above and behind the left ear. "Poor woman," he said. "She is over-excited. There is no use doing anything about it."

Crown authorities, however took no such view of the incident. The sobbing dressmaker was formally charged with having committed a gross assault in court, when she reached the Crown Attorney's office, and although this was later reduced to one of causing bodily harm, no bail was set. She spent last night in Court Street police station, and will appear this morning in Women's Police Court.

Tired, Burning Feet

Tender feet—tired, aching, burning and swollen feet! The minute you put them into a "Tiz" bath you can feel the pain being drawn out and glorious comfort being restored.

"Tiz" draws out the poisons and acids that cause your feet to ache, swell and burn. It also takes the soreness out of corns, calluses and bunions. Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store and have real foot comfort at last. Costs only a few cents.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE LIKE TO SHOCK PEOPLE.

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

City people are said to take great delight in scandalizing small town natives. Frequently people are eager to get a reputation even for looseness of morals that they do not deserve simply for the thrill of shocking people. The motive for this conduct is to get rid of the repressions of long standing.

Quite apart from this there is a definite urge to shock people. All of us take pleasure in doing startling things. This accounts for a lot of our fibs that have to do with showing off. We like to appear sophisticated and wise. We like to shock people also as a means of expressing our contempt for them and their ideas.

Another motive back of our desire to shock people is, to be envied by them. However, much they may pretend to be scandalized we know that secretly they envy us for our boldness and ability to flout conventions. They have not the courage to do what we say we are doing. Neither have we. It is a form of swaggering and bravado.

We like to shock people because it makes them situp and take notice. They get a thrill out of it and so do we. It is a fair exchange. We have made an impression.

It takes a fellow of some spunk and originality to do something out of the ordinary. We like to be that fellow. Shocking people is one way of getting recognition.

We hear Ourselves!

—as others hear us—is the verdict of the famous Victor Artists who sing and play, so that you too may hear them on the new Orthophonic Victrola

Naturalness is precisely what you get in Orthophonic Victrola music at home, whether it is the "Sextette from Lucia" or "Cohen on the Telephone". It is amazingly real, whether a solo voice, clear and pure, or a chorus of a thousand voices extending from soprano to bass;—a saxaphone solo or a symphony concert. The new Orthophonic Victrola gives you the "feel" of the performance, and you get this, above all in your own home, at the time you select.

These wonderful performances of music come to you only because "Matched Impedance", brings them to you. In more popular words the Victor controlled principle which applies "smooth flow of sound" to every Orthophonic Victrola.

To play you music so fine, you may have cabinets of rare beauty, smart designs, carefully selected woods. Electric drive, if you wish, at slight additional cost. All instruments self-stopping. Prices from $1400 to as low as $115, on convenient payments at any His Master's Voice dealers. Hear them play —today. Arrange for a home demonstration.

New York Prices Rise; Exchange Taking Day Off

NEW YORK, April 19.—(Canadian Press.)—With Wall Street apparently convinced that no immediate increase in the Federal reserve rediscount rates was likely and general expectations of a sharp reduction in broker's loans this week, speculators for the advance had little difficulty to-day in bringing about a sharp rise in prices. Early gains in scores of active issues ranged from two to nearly fifteen points when trading in fairly heavy volume. The lowering of the renewal rate on call money from 4¾ to 4½ per cent also helped to stimulate bullish enthusiasm. Buying orders were spread over a broad list, more than a score of issues reaching new high ground by early afternoon. In order to give stock exchange members time to catch up with the accumulation of work occasioned by the recent string of 4,000,000 share sessions, the board of governors voted to-day to close the exchange on Saturday.

Toronto Market Dull With Trend Upwards

TORONTO, April 19 (Canadian Press). — Dullness again prevailed on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, with prices generally tending upwards. International Nickel, after slumping as low as 87 yesterday, jumped to 89¼ and closed at noon for ¼ gain. International Utilities B led the market in trading and sold up to 10¾ for a ½ point gain. Massey-Harris and Page Hersey were fractionally lower at 42½ an d103¾ respectively. Brazilian, British Columbia Fishing, and Mackay made slight fractional gains in light trading. Hiram Walker was a strong spot in the unlisted section, advancing 1¼ to 63 and Northern Bakeries in heavy trading gained ¾ at 44. Distillers Seagrams continued its upward trend with a ¾ point gain at 22¾.

The banks were generally firm with Commerce, Dominion, and Royal making gains of from one to five points. Toronto suffered a three-point loss at 322.

Mine Trading Heavy With Gains Numerous

TORONTO, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Heavy trading featured the opening of the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange this morning. Lake Shore was one of the strong spots of the market, selling up to 23.75 for a gain of 75. Noranda opened strong at 17.50, and at the close recorded a 40-point gain. Sherritt Gordon opened at 615 in heavy trading and closed at 6.50 for a gain of 35. Hudson Bay and Pend Oreille continued their upward trend, selling up 30 and 10 points respectively. Towagmac, Wright Hargreaves, Vipond, Howey, and Hollinger Consolidated recorded gains of from five to fifteen points. Amulet was twelve points stronger at 328, after opening at 325.

Wheat Opens Higher, And Other Grains Gain

CHICAGO, April 19 (Canadian Press).—In a general buying rush today, wheat, rye, corn, and oats promptly outbid new high price records that were less than twenty-four hours old. Continued unfavorable weather brought about a flood of orders to purchase and tended to make offerings scarce. Opening 1½ to 2¾ cents higher, wheat reacted somewhat and then fluctuated fast. Corn started ¾ to 1¾ cents up, but subsequently lost considerable of the gain. Oats at times were relatively stronger than corn.

CELEBRATING THE THREE QUARTER CENTURY MARK

Frequent Stirring Up Features Grafton's Twelve Month Event.

Grafton & Company, Limited, are in the midst of a whole year's celebration of their 75th anniversary. The business, started first in Dundas, where headquarters still are, has spread until it touches the heart of numerous splendid districts throughout Ontario, with Peterboro as the most easterly point. The management are allowing no stagnation of the rapid movement of men's and boys' clothing at any time during 1928. Recently two remarkable 3-day sales were staged in Peterboro, and were extremely popular, due to the unprecedented low prices, a feature that is never half done by the Grafton management. This week, another of those three days of bargain giving was announced in yesterday's paper, with the inducements fully as attractive as on the former occasions.

It takes nerve in a big corporation to face such a huge write off as a sale with such low cut prices assuredly means, and "it takes quick action on the part of the citizens to fully profit by the event when it comes. Tomorrow is the last day of this 3-day event, which is saying enough to economy buyers.—Advt.

IN POLICE COURT

No less than four cases were on the docket when Magistrate O. A. Langley opened police court this morning at ten o'clock. He imposed a $15 fine plus costs, upon a local man who had been arrested on a charge of intoxication, and raising a row in a Peterboorugh house.

Charged with the theft of a mouth organ and bicycle parts from a house in Otonabee township, a 22-year-old resident of that township appeared, pleading guilty. There was no previous record against him, and he appeared to be in straitened circumstances, and in need of some one to look after him. His case was remanded for one week during which time it is thought relatives may take him in charge.

Bonded to keep the peace, to have his liquor permit cancelled, and to return to his work in order to keep his family, Thomas Stazicker left the court room after his counsel, J. A. O'Brien, had outlined the circumstances of the case in which Stazicker faced a charge of assaulting and beating his wife. During his address to Magistrate Langley, Mr. O'Brien referred to the effects on the accused of overseas service, to his previous record, and to his desire to make amends, after contemplating the matter while in custody during the last nine or ten days. The fact that several responsible citizens has offered to vouch for his future good conduct was also taken into consideration, and Stazicker was granted another chance. He must report to the Chief of Police every two weeks, remain within the jurisdiction of the court for two year except with the consent of his wife, and, as stated above, refrain from all intoxicants.

A local man appeared without counsel, charged with having assaulted a young girl. He stated that he believed the charge withdrawn and had not engaged legal advice. The magistrate adjourned the case until next Monday morning at ten o'clock.

While British Army estimates for 1928 show a decrease of $2,575,000 from those of last year, the amount required for salaries and similar expenses will jump from $44,140,000 to $45,115,000.

ARMISTICE DAY FIGHT JUSTIFIED

rule that this evidence is not relevant by the issue of this case."

Mr. Tilley: "My friend is making all these statements for the jury."

Duguid Again Called

Col. Archie Duguid was the first witness called by Mr. Regan this morning. He was asked if he had the original of two cuts that had appeared in The Toronto Star. Col. Duguid replied that he had the messages, but not the originals.

The message was marked "UOP" (Urgent Operations Priority) and was issued by the Canadian headquarters about the cessation of hostilities to the 2nd and 3rd Canadian Divisions. The time of the message was 6.45 a.m.

Q.—Have you in your record any message sent out prior to 6.45 a.m. by the Canadian Corps?

A. Yes.

Col. Duguid then produced a message sent out at 6.40 and declared it to be the earliest sent out by the Canadian Corps.

Mr. Tilley cleared up the matter when he asked Col. Duguid if he had the original of a message signed by a man named "Caldow" as printed in The Toronto Star. The witness replied in the negative.

Mr. Tilley asked the witness who was Mr. McGee in the service in November, 1918.

A.—He was a general staff officer.

Q.—Have you in your files any message signed by Caldow?

A.—I have not.

Q.Will you read the message sent out at 6.45?

A.—"Hostilities will cease at 11 o'clock. Troops will stand fast at the line reached at that hour, which will be reported to the headquarters. Defensive precautions will be maintained. There will be no intercourse of any description with the enemy, and further instructions follow." There is a notation at the end of the message, "To be repeated to all concerned."

Mr. Regan asked Col. Duguid why the UOP message was not sent to the Machine Gun Corps.

A.—That corps would take its orders from the infantry unit to which they were attached. The Engineers would also do the same.

His Lordship: "What is the relevancy in all this evidence?"

Mr. Regan: "I am trying to show that the time the department got the order is not correct as given in the evidence."

R. Worberton, a newspaper reporter from Kingston, was asked by Mr. Regan if he had the documents from which The Star's pictures were taken.

A.—I have not, but I took snaps of men and have the negatives.

Q.—How did you see them?

A.—A friend of mine who was with the 2nd Garrison Artillery overseas showed them to me.

Q.—Will you give me his name?

A.—He is still with the permanent force, and the documents were shown to me in confidence. He is not supposed to have them.

Q.—Was he a private or an officer?

A.—He was an officer in the 2nd Garrison Artillery.

Q.—What is the name of the man; I must have him here?

Witness asked His Lordship if his friend could have the protection of the court.

His Lordship: "I can give him no protection. I will not order witness to give the name."

Mr. Regan argued at some length, but His Lordship was adamant, as he maintained the documents were only copies of the originals.

Mr. Preston argued that these documents and the holder should be ordered to appear in court, as there had been enough evidence to show that much depends on them.

Mr. Tilley: "This, my Lord, is getting to be a very expensive trial."

Mr. Regan: "I will tender this now," referring to the picture in The Toronto Etar.

Robert Hill.

Robert Hill, Port Hope who served in the 2nd Battalion of the Canadian Machine Gun Corps, said he was at Mons on the morning of November 11. His unit had advanced and reached the outskirts of the city at daybreak. No one in his unit was killed as far as he knew but he saw two or three dead Canadians of the Third Division in Mons on November 11. These were on the western outskirts of the city.

"What were your feelings when you heard the armistice was signed?

A.—I was joyful, naturally.

Q.—What did you think of further fighting?

A.—I leave that to your own imagination. After fighting for two or three years and hearing of the armistice at 7.30 I did not want to go on until 11 o'clock.

Mr. Regan—"Sir Arthur is going to tell us in the box."

His Lordship impatiently— "Please stop making those statements about what is going to be said."

Q.—What were your feelings about fighting until 11 o'clock?

A.—You ask me about my feelings. Well, a fellow who fought for two years in the war had no feelings.

Mr. Tilley was asked by Mr. Regan for Col. Caldow's adress. He said, "Here is his office and home address. His telephone home number, his business number, his firm's name and his full name."

Mr. Regan—I appreciate that information.

Mr. Tilley, very dryly, 'I doubt that.'

BOY SHOOTS DOGS WHICH CHASED COW

Strange Animals Drove Beast Into Hollow, Where She Drowned.

At the home of John Guthrie, Harvey Township, two strange dogs were shot which had run a cow till she fell on her back in a hollow containing enough water to drown her. They were first seen standing barking at the cow which was down. Clifford Guthrie ran and got the gun. He had no trouble in shooting them as they made toward him, looking very vicious. The cow had taken in too much water for anything to be done to save her.

RENFREW JUDGE ON LIQUOR BOARD

John M. McNamara Succeeds Hon. R. J. Manion, M.P., as Commissioner.

TORONTO, April 19.—His Honor John M. McNamara, county judge of Renfrew, will succeed Hon. R. J. Manion, M.P., on the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, resigning from the bench for that purpose, at the solicitation of Premier Ferguson. He is to visit the board to-day and afterwards will arrange with Dr. Manion as to when he will enter upon his new duties.

The Government feels particularly fortunate in inducing Judge McNamara to respond to this call to public service," the Prime Minister said last evening, in announcing the appointment. "It was only by an appeal on that ground that he was willing to give the matter consideration at all. His temperament, his wide knowledge of public affairs and people, and his sound judgment, are an assurance that he will give splendid public service.

"This will be welcome news, I have no doubt, to the people of the North, because I know he is highly regarded, and they will feel that their great district is having proper representation.

Thanks to Dr. Manion

"I would like to express, on behalf of the Government, as well as the people of the province, our sense of indebtedness to Dr. Manion, M.P. It was a struggle to secure Dr. Manion's services, and it was only his desire to assist in improving conditions in the province and to uphold the law that he undertook the task. Even then, he refused to give assurance that he would serve longer than one year. He is deservedly popular with the general public, and holds their confidence in a very high degree."

Legion Notes

The regular monthly meeting of the Canadian Legion was held on Monday last, with a good number of members in attendance. Several changes in administration were effected, among them being the appointment of Comrade Whatley as secretary of the local Pension Board, besides the looking after the building and other duties.

Comrade W. Swanger will fill the position as treasurer, with effect from May 1st, and Comrade N. E. Crowe will assume the duties of recording secretary from the same date. The effect of these changes will be to co-ordinate the work and make it lighter.

The euchre season is now completed, and activities along that line will cease until next September.

The annual church parade will take place on Sunday next, the service to be held at St. James' United Church. The program for the day will be published on Saturday.

Arrangements are under way to hold a monster picnic for returned soldiers and their families. This will be probably held on some holiday during the coming summer. It is expected that by the middle of next month full particulars will be ready for publication.

Newark Defeats Maple Leafs in Opening Game

MAMAUX HOLDS TORONTO LEAFS

SCORE 6 TO 0.

NEWARK, N.J., April 19 (Canadian Press. — The International League got off to a good start yesterday afternoon and the headline event, the Newark-Toronto game, drew over 18,000 fans A crowd of 20,000 had been predicted, but the weather was cold and the score of six to nothing was not the only hint of a football afternoon.

It was a great day for the Newark veterans, Al Mamaux pitching a very good game to score a shut-out. The first thirteen batters to face him were retired in order.

Jimmy Walker, Mayor of New York, was on hand. He came in on time, too, being in his box before the game was under way.

John Conway Toole, president of the Internationa League was present. Lawrence Solman, president, and Jim Dunn, vice president, of the Toronto club, were in the parade to the centre, along with Toole and the New York owner, Paul Block, and his club president, Jimmy Sinnott.

There were seven bands in the park, three on the field. Huge bouquets were presented to the Newark club.

Teh game was broadcast and Jimmy Walker said a few words over the air to Walter Johnson, manager of the Newark Club, who is in a hospital at Washington.

It was one of the biggest days in Newark baseball and forecasts a big season.

Belanger and Durand For Canadian Title

TORONTO, April 19.—Odds are strongly in favor of a Canadian flyweight championship bout being held in Toronto at the Arena Gardens April 27. When the train pulled out for Montreal yesterday Matchmaker Playfair Brown of the Shamrock A. C. was aboard with a contract in his pocket binding "Frenchy" Belanger, former world's champion, to box any Canadian of Brown's selection. Brown is visiting Montreal for the purpose of securing Clovis Durand of that city for a bout with Belanger for the Canadian title. With championship honors at stake it is expected that Durand will come to terms although his manager, Raoul Godbout, asked an excessive amount over the telephone. If Belanger and Durand come together it will be the hardest hitting battle any promoter could arrange between two flyweights. Both men have knockout power behind their blows and in addition are accurate punchers. Belanger, whose rise to the very top of the class, was probably the biggest boxing sensation developed in Toronto in years, is in form again.

HIT HURLERS FOR 10-7 WIN

New York Yankees Defeat Red Sox in Free Hitting Contest.

WILLIAMS GETS HOMER.

NEW YORK, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Hammering Bradley and Russell for ten runs in the first five innings of yesterday's game at Boston, the New York Yankees defeated the Red Sox 10 to 7 in a free-hitting contest. After the first two Boston pitchers were batted out, Simmons and Morris held the Yankees safe through the last four innings. Hoyt was hit hard but went the route for New York in his first start.

Ken Williams hit the only home run of the game.

Washington continued to play winning ball at Philadelphia yesterday, and the Athletics dropped their fourth straight game to the invaders, 11 to 6. Quinn, who started for the home team, was driven from the box in the second inning when Washington hammered in seven runs.

The Athletics hit Zachary hard, but did not bunch their blows effectively until the eighth, when they made five runs.

Carroll's masterful pitching enabled the Detroit Tigers to defeat the reconstructed Browns in their opening game at St. Louis this season, 4 to 1.

Easterling in the ninth hit a home run, which was the longest ever seen at Sportsman's Park. The ball hit the roof of the pavilion near the bleachers and bounced into Grand Avenue.

The Cleveland Indians defeated Chicago 7 to 1 in the opening game of the American League season at Dunn Field yesterday.

The Tribe put the game on ice in the fifth inning when they drove Adkins from the box with an onslaught of six hits.

Rochester Defeats Jersey City 3 to 1

JERSEY CITY, N.J., April 19 (Canadian Press).—Rochester defeated Jersey City here yesterday 3 to 1 in twelve innings, Rochester scored in the fourth inning on Hurst's single. Smith's saerifice and Gelbert singled.

Jersey City tied the score in the eighth when Pinch Hitter Eddie Kunesh, batting for Thormahlen, doubled along the left field foul line with one out. Gilhooley put out an infield hit, Kunesh holding second, but he scored when Lawry's hard grounder went through Brown at second.

VIEWS ON SPORTS

A special appeal is made to those interested in City League baseball to take hold of the helm and help guide this league through to a successful season.

The boys from St. Peter's parish, from ages of 14 to 20, are asked to attend a baseball meeting to be held in the Holy Name Rooms, on Friday night at 7 o'clock. Players for the three teams—bantam, juvenile, and junior—will be picked, and it is absolutely necessary that those who are interested should be in attendance.

• • • • • •

Supplying of balls for each game and the nominations of officers were the principal topics of discussion at the City Baseball League meeting held last night. Owing to the inclement weather of late, little interest has been shown in junior baseball, and a poor representation was made at the meeting; but now with the heat waves from Old Sol beginning to warm the air, enabling the youngsters to get a few practice games under their belts, the players and club representatives interested in baseball should make it a point to attend the next meeting of the league, which is slated for some time next week. A large attendance is necessary to help boost the league through the coming season.

The Central Ontario Baseball League with Deloro admitted to full rights of membership now consists of Oshawa, Kingston, Belleville, Peterborough, and Deloro. A triple schedule will be drawn up, and winners must be declared by August 25. The season is opened in Oshawa on May 24. The certificate committee appointed at the recent Belleville meeting consists of Harold Luke, Oshawa, Mayor M. P. Duff, Belleville, and W. M. Kennedy, Kingston, and will meet in Belleville on May 5. Two umpires, base and plate, will be appointed from each city represented in the league. The league appears to be headed for the best session in its career, and President McFadden, of Belleville, in his address at the meeting, expressed high hopes for its future.—Oshawa Daily Times.

BRITISH RUNNER RECAPTURES LEAD

Andrew Payne Resumes Steady Jogging in Cross-Country Marathon.

MIAMI, Okla., April 19 (Canadian Press).—Having satisfied the home town folks Tuesday by spurting along to recapture the lead in the cross-country marathon run, Andrew Payne resumed his steady jogging yesterday and allowed Peter Gavuzzi, of Southampton, England, to almost recapture the leadership. The Britisher finished first in the 52-mile grind from Chelsea, Okla., in 7:48:23, bringing his elapsed time for the 1,721.1 miles to 287:55:38.

Although Payne did not come in until fifth, when he finished with Ed. Gardner, Seattle negro, in a dead heat in 8:31:30, his elapsed time of 287:42:22 gave him a thirteen minute advantage over his most persistent rival. The lead has seesawed back and forth between the two for ten days, while the runners traversed Oklahoma.

John Salo, Passaic, N.J., forced out temporarily Tuesday with stomach trouble, made up his time yesterday and finished second with an elapsed time of 308:14:47, that keeps him in third place. He said he virtually had recovered from the illness.

Olli Wantinnen, of New York, finished third in 7:56:30, his elapsed time being 335:00:05.

Louis Perella, Albany, N.Y., finished fourth in 8:16:37, elapsed time being 334:38:00. Gardner's elapsed time was 325:25:17.

The runners cross the southeastern corner of Kansas to-day and enter Missouri, pausing at Joplin overnight.

That Sydney has men with more physique than can be found in any other city of its size in the world, was the statement of Sir Robert Horne, of England, on a recent visit to the Australian city.

VANCE GETS SECOND WIN

CUBS LOSE OUT 9-6.

NEW YORK, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Although outhit 9 to 8 by the Boston Braves at Brooklyn yesterday, the Robins won the rubber game of the series, 10 to 5. Dazzy Vance pitched steady ball in registering his second victory of the season, while the Robins took advantage of the uncertainty of the Boston pitchers and their sieve-like defence. Vance weakened in the eighth, when Boston scored three runs, but a double play took him out of the hole.

The Chicago Cubs opened their home season yesterday with a defeat, losing to Cincinnati 9 to 6, when the Reds staged a four-run ninth inning rally to overcome a 6 to 5 lead.

Two home runs by Frank "Lefty" O'Doul enabled the Giants to score an easy victory over the Phillies 5 to 1 here yesterday, and to take the odd game of the three-game series. O'Doul opened with a home run with one on in the first, and repeated in the third with the bases empty. Walsh was pitching for Philadelphia.

Larry Benton made his second start and registered his second victory of the season.

LARGE FIELD IN MARATHON

Almost Three Hundred Entries For To-day's Big Event.

DEMAR TOP FAVORITE.

BOSTON, Mass., April 19. Canadian Press. — The largest field of Marathon runners ever assembled in this country, 285 of them, is slated to be on the starting line at Hopkinton to-day at noon to attempt the Boston Athletic Association's 32nd annual race, which this year serves as the final American Olympic tryout.

Out of this vast throng last night an even dozen favorites stood out, with Clarence H. Demar, five times winner of the classic, on top. Demar holds the record for the 26 mile 385 yard course, 2 hours 40 minutes 22 1-5 seconds, which he set a year ago. This year he has set two hours 30 minutes as his goal.

Demar is considered the greatest judge of pace in the Marathon game, and in previous y ars he has predicted his time almost to the second. He will break his old mark by better than ten minutes, he said, if the field proves fast enough to make him exert himself.

With four other previous winners in the race it appeared that Demar would have plenty of experienced pace setters.

Officials said that Bill Kennedy, who won in 1927, Edouard Fabre of Montreal, the 1915 winner, Carl Linder, who won in 1919, and Frank Zuna, the 1921 victor, would all strive to gain a long lead during the early stage of the race and thus force Demar to keep up with them.

Others who appeared to have a chance for victory were Whitey Nicholson, of the Melrose A.A., New York, his team mate Harvey Frick; Jimmy Hennigan, the Boston veteran; Joie Ray once America's greatest milers, and the rugged Canadians, Billy Reynolds, Billy Taylor and Major Ramsdale.

Dark Horses.

The history of the classic, however, is filled with dark horses who have run the hearts out of the favorites on the steep Newton Hills, and then plodded on to victory. Close followers of Marathon racing would not be surprised if one of the 273 others should run the favorites into the ground.

Outside of Demar, "Chesty" Joie Ray, one of the most confident runners that ever stepped on a track, is perhaps the most interesting entry. Ray, ever since he broke into the track game back in 1910 as a ten mile runner, never started a race doubting the outcome until this year. His success as a Marathoner, he said, hinges on two "ifs." Joie expects to win "if" his feet hold out, and "if" to-day is a good day.

Most of the knowing ones refuse to concede Ray the slightest chance. They predict that he will give out on the Newton Hills. Joie, who knows almost as much about pace as Demar, plans to remain at the heels of the favorite most of the way and then display the famous Ray sprint in the home stretch.

The Marathon course is fairly easy for the first 18 miles to Wellesley; then come the Newton Hills, the graveyard of the hopes of a thousand ambitious runners.

To-day will be the tenth trip over the hills for Demar and Bill Kennedy, and most of the other favorites in competition.

Bill Kennedy was third Linder fifth and Fabre sixth.

Karl Koski, who finished second, has been called back to Finland to train for the Olympic Marathon, and Carl Bricker, the Canadian who was fourth a year ago, was ordered to remain out this year. Bricker and Johnny Miles, 1926 winner of the Boston Marathon, will carry the Canadian hopes in the Marathon at Amsterdam

Used "Glue Ball" Against the Robins

TORONTO, April 19.—Manager Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn has sent a protest to John A. Heydler, National League president, on the 3 to 2 victory of the Braves on Monday. Robinson complained that Pitcher Charley Robertson of Boston had used a "glue" ball on the Robins. The Brooklyn pilot declared Robertson was allowed to continue in the game after the umpire ordered the glove with the "glue" discarded. Robinson said he wanted to know why Robertson was not put out of the game instead of continuing with another glove.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

"EAST SIDE, WEST SIDE."

George O'Brien and Virginia Valli Have Excellent Support in Fox Adaptation of Novel By Felix Riesenberg.

George O'Brien, Virginia Valli and J. Farrell Macdonald play the leading roles in Allan Dwan's picture based on Felix Riesenberg's novel, "East Side, West Side," which opens an engagement of three days at the Regent Theatre to-night.

All of New York's celebrated sections have a part in the story, the Bowery, East Side, West Side, Hell's Kitchen, Gas House district, Red Hook Point, the Bronx, Washington Heights, Park and Fifth Avenues.

The leading role is a natural one for George O'Brien and couldn't have fitted his talents any better if the author had had him in mind when writing.

O'Brien has never before visited the Big Town. He is a California Native Son, having been born in San Francisco where his father, Dan O'Brien, is chief of police. He was educated at Santa Clara University, in his native state. Even while doing his bit in the U. S. Navy during the war the young star never got into eastern waters. All of his time was spent in the Pacific where he won the heavyweight boxing championship of the fleet.

Both of O'Brien's travelling companions are familiar with New York, Miss Valli makes it a point to pay it a visit every so often, if for nothing also but to replenish her hosiery supply. Macdonald is a native of New London, Conn., and the first time he ran away from home, at the tender age of fourteen, he landed in New York. He renewed his acquaintance every now and then and once stayed long enough to be made a sheriff in the Bronx. He was a director of pictures of the old Vitagraph studio in Brooklyn and at the Universal studio in the Bronx.

TICKET 24 WINS.

Draw For Quilt Made at Desbarats Bazaar—Tickets Held Locally.

The Anglican bazaar was held in Desbarats recently. The drawing of the numbers on the quilt on which a number of people in Peterborough, Lakefield and Omemee bought chances, took place. The lucky number was 24, which was held by Mrs. Melton, the post office mistress.

WAS VERY WEAK NERVOUS AND MELANCHOLY

Mrs. Geo. McKenzie, Campbellford, Ont., writes:—"A short time ago I was troubled very badly with my heart and nerves, the cause of it, I think, was my going through the change of life.

"I was very weak and melancholy, and so nervous I could hardly bear to hear a clock ticking, and I did not sleep well.

"I was advised to try MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS so I sent at once for a box; took them and got another, and before they were all gone I felt good, my nerves are fine, I do not mind any noise, and I can sleep well. I cannot recommend them too highly to those suffering as I did."

Price 50c. a box at all druggists and dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CITY LEAGUE MEETING HELD

Year's Financial Statement Read at Annual Meeting of League.

NOMINATIONS MADE.

The city league baseball association held a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce last night. Vincent O'Connel, secretary-treasurer of the league was unanimously chosen to act as chairman.

The meeting was poorly supported, only two teams being represented, the Kiwanis and the Royals of All Saints. Several junior ball players attended the meeting. The financial statement was given by Vincent O'Connel and showed a balance of a few dollars.

The possibility of each team supplying the balls for the games, was discussed and it was also proposed that the Bantam teams be allowed to enter the League without paying an entry fee.

L. LeBarr, Sr., F. D. Craig, Bill Prindible, Max Swanton, Jack McCarney were nominated for the presidency for the coming season and it was decided to leave the nominations open until next week.

Honorary presidents nominated were: Doctor Craig, Jack Sullivan, Harry Boyle, Hon. G. N. Gordon, and E. A. Peck, M. P.

These nominations will be voted upon at the next meeting which will take place some time next week.

HEALS ECZEMA IN 7 DAYS OR LESS

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by pharmacists at trifling cost, that will do more towards helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin diseases than anything you've ever used.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds, but boils, abcesses and ulcers that are discharging are almost immediately relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases its action is little less than magical. The itching of eczema is instantly stopped; the eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barbers' itch, salt rheum and other irritating and unsightly skin troubles.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil in the original bottle at any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is next to impossible. Bond's Drug Store, C. M. Moncur, Bert McLeod, McDermid Drug Co. Ltd., and McDermid & Jury can supply you at any time.

FIFIELD HOLDS TITLE.

Defeats Johnny Morris, of Montreal Without Much Difficulty.

MONTREAL, Que., April 19 (Canadian Press)—Fighting a well-planned battle which gave him a decided edge in the majority of the twelve rounds, George Fifield, welterweight champion of Canada, had little difficulty in defending his crown here last night against the challenge of Johnny Morris, colored, of Montreal, Morris, who had considerable difficulty in making the limit weight, fought below his usual form.

Fifield fought cautiously in the opening rounds and took no chances. Then the champion cut loose and carried the fight to his opponent at all stages of the last eight rounds. He never let up and Morris was forced to withstand a barrage of lefts and rights. Showing marked gameness, Morris took his punishment and fought on to the end without dropping into a clinch.

In the twelfth round Morris staged a short rally and landed several right hooks to Fifield's mouth and jaw and had the titleholder bleeding from mouth and nose when the gong sounded for the expiration of the final round.

STUDENT SUES TEACHER.

Claims $25,000 For Injuries Received When Hit By His Car.

TORONTO, April 19.—Miss Ida Van Camp, 18-year-old dietetics student at the Central Technical School, is the plaintiff, and J. C. Anderson, a teacher in the same institution, is co-defendant, in a $25,000 action which was opened yesterday before Chief Justice Meredith and an Assizes jury.

The young woman appeared in court on crutches, her right leg having been amputated as a result of the injuries she received on October 6 last when Anderson's car, after colliding with another driven by J. E. Carter, a Bloor street florist, crushed her against a hydrant on Harbord street, near Borden.

She was smartly dressed in a light fawn fur coat, with a green hat. She is suing Anderson and Carter jointly and alleges that both were negligent.

A jury was empanelled, but the taking of evidence was left until after His Lordship has charged the Brooks jury this morning. Gideon Grant, K.C., counsel for Miss Van Camp, outlining the case to the jurors, stated that her injuries had caused her much pain and suffering and had lessened considerably her chances of marrying.

Cricket

A general meeting of the Peterborough Cricket Club will be held in the Paragon Tea-Rooms on Friday evening, April 20th, at 8 o'clock sharp. All members are urged to be present, also any others interested in the game.

PILE SUFFERERS

You can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Nothing but an internal remedy can do this—that's why cutting and salves fail. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, is guaranteed to quickly and safely banish any form of Pile misery or money back. McDermid & Jury, Bond's Drug Store, and druggists everywhere sell it with this guarantee.

TWENTY YEARS OF BUSINESS GROWTH

Home Furnishing Co. Put On Anniversary Celebration Sale.

Established in 1908 the Home-Furnishing Company, 208 Charlotte Street, has experienced gratifying business expansion. Nine years ago, Harry Florence assumed control and public approval of his management has found expression in an ever-growing list of satisfied customers. Square dealing, to-day, to-morrow and always has won for this firm a measure full of public confidence that all merchandise is exactly as represented—in quality and value. And Mr. Florence pledges himself to continue to merit that public confidence upon which his business is built.

This store carries the latest productions in furniture, floor covering, beds, bedding, stoves and baby carriages; and to use Mr. Florence's own words "We pare our prices, and prune our profits preferring to sell as low as we can rather than as high as we might.

Pardonably proud of his firm's history in the growth of Peterborough City, Mr. Florence is celebrating the Home Furnishing Co's 20th anniversary by staging an eight days' sale, starting to-morrow, and, as advertised elsewhere in this issue, all regular prices have been cut one-third. Undoubtedly, both city and country housewives will find timely interest in this event, and a visit to this store should prove one of profit and pleasure.

This furniture company's confidential credit plan has also won the confidence and appreciation of the public, and many citizens are enjoying the use of "home comfort" furnishing while they pay for it. "Our business relations in this respect are always mutually pleasant and satisfactory," asserts Mr. Florence, "for we believe in our customers, and they believe in us."

LONG NON-STOP RUN PLANNED

Changing the crew while the train is speeding is the latest idea in the non-stop craze that has hit British railroads. One line is having constructed a locomotive tender containing a corridor so that the new engineer and fireman may take their places without stopping the train. If the experiment proves successful, the 392 miles between London and Edinburgh will be made without a stop.

DOG RACERS HANDICAPPED

Handicapping racing dogs by machinery is being tried by use of a starting box that has just been invented by R. Wallace of London. The apparatus is controlled by a dial that is surrounded by plug switches, by which the gates of the kennels are opened as desired. As the hare passes a certain point it automatically switches on the current connecting the gates and thus releases the canines at the handicapped times.

What CAN a Man Believe?

By BRUCE BARTON

Author of "The Book Nobody Knows," "The Man Nobody Knows"

XXVIII—Mohammed

THERE is a legend that a Persian prince once taunted an Arab, saying that his people were inferior to every other race. The Arab demanded, in reply, what nation could be put before the Arabs for strength, beauty, piety, courage, munificence, wisdom, fidelity, pride or hospitality.

They only, of the neighbors of the Persians, had maintained their independence. Their fortresses were the backs of their horses. Their beds were the earth. Their roof was the sky. Other nations had need to entrench themselves behind walls of stone and brick, but the Arab trusted in his sword and his courage.

Other nations were able to trace their pedigree but a few generations; the Arabs could trace theirs back to Adam, the father of the human race. The Arab was so liberal he would slaughter his camel, his sole weath, to give a meal to a stranger.

No other nation had so elaborate a literature, such noble poetry. Theirs were the finest horses, the most beautiful and most chaste women. No distance was too great for their camels. So sacred was their word that a sign or a look was a binding covenant. So hospitable were they that a guest was protected at the risk of the life of his host.

Every Man a King

To the Arabs belonged splendid raiment; theirs were mountains filled with gold and silver and gems. Other nations obeyed kings, but they paid no tribute to a central government; every man among them was fit to be a king.

This catalogue of fine qualities is subject to some discount, yet it sets forth the elements of national vitality in which the Arab takes justifiable pride. From such a proud race Mohammed and his religion sprang.

He was born in August 570, a few days after his father's death. His mother died when he was six years old, so that we can not be certain that he ever learned to read and write, though it seems probable that he did.

Writing the Koran

There is, to be sure, a tradition that he wrote the Koran on the breastbones of sheep and as fast as they were filled with words threw them into a chest. The various passages are badly enough arranged to give some substance to the story, but the truth seems to be that the book was really composed and assembled by his followers, and an untidy job they made of it.

Mohammed's boyhood, like that of the other great religious teachers, is largely hidden from us. We are told that he accompanied his Uncle Zubair on a campaign, carrying arrows for the battle. If this be so, his experience seems to have been of considerable value to him later when he had to engage in fighting on his own account.

Somewhere he learned that military success should be followed up promptly, before the defeated foe has opportunity to recover its organization and regain its fighting spirit. And that in battle there is no profit in giving the enemy advantage through a mistaken sense of generosity. These lessons he practised faithfully in his after life.

As manager of a caravan from Mecca to Bostra and back in 594 A. D., he showed some of the qualities essential to success. He took good care of his horses and camels; he had his men under control; he defended his camp against robbers; he was able to dispose of his loads advantageously in Bostra and purchase other cargoes for resale in Mecca. He returned to his home with a profit and increased confidence.

Was No Beauty

Mohammed was no beauty but he was worth looking at, and his employer, a woman named Khadidjah, a few years older than himself, looked him over thoughtfully.

He was of middle height, with black hair, a thick beard, and big, rather clumsy hands and feet. His eyes, which were tinged with red, were large. He was stolidly built, a broad-shouldered man who could be depended upon. He had ability to discern an opportunity and initiative to take advantage of it.

Khadidjah decided that he would make a good third husband, and so she married him. Backed by her money, he rose to be a merchant of no mean rank. He continued to travel and trade, his journeys taking him to Syria and Palestine, where he mingled not only with Jews but also with Christians, but for the next ten years we have little record of him.

Turned to Thought

When he was almost thirty-five he settled a dispute among three sheiks as to how the historic black stone should be replaced in the reconstruction of the Kaaba. The respect with which his decision was received led him to consider his power as a possible teacher of religion.

When he was forty he gave his mind to contemplation, and if he were indeed subject to epileptic fits, as has so often been charged, this may have had a share in his supposedly supernatural experiences.

Tomorrow—Mohammed Receives His Call.

Rice Pudding

Here's a Tastier Recipe

1 cup boiled rice
½ cup Eagle Brand Condensed Milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
½ cup water
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg

Mix Eagle Brand and water together thoroughly. Beat egg and blend with the milk and vanilla. Add this mixture to the rice (boiled) and mix well. Pour into buttered pan and sprinkle top with the nutmeg. Place pan in a dish of water (as for a custard) and bake in a slow oven until a golden brown.

Serve hot or cold.

NOTE Eagle Brand creams and sugars your coffee deliciously at half the usual cost.

HOWARD CLEGG IS PRIZE-WINNER

Peterborough Man Wins $3 in Contest Held By Postum Company.

Among the winners of the 1001 cash prizes in the great $10,000 contest conducted by the Postum Company is Henry Clegg, 323 King Street, Peterboro, who has been awarded a $3.00 prize. Mr. Clegg chose as his subject, "What the 30 days' test of Postum has done for me."

The contest was one of the greatest ever held. More than 114,000 letters were received from persons throughout the United States, Canada, and the Hawaiian Islands.

Evidence of the widespread interest in the contest was shown by the fact that nearly all sections of the United States and Canada are represented in the prize-winning list.

The ten thousand dollars in 1,001 cash awards was offered by the Postum Company for the best letters on three subjects concerning Postum, the famous cereal beverage. Three first prizes of $1,000 were reserved for the best letters on these subjects and other substantial awards for other groups of winners.

Rules governing the contest were as simple as it was possible to make them to insure clear understanding and fairness to all of the thousands of entrants. Contestants were asked to write a letter on one or all of the three following subjects:

1. What the 30 days' test of Postum has done for me.
2. Why I think Instant Postum made with milk is the best hot drink for boys and girls.
3. How I make Postum—and why I like it best made my way.

The contest began September 1, 1927, and closed at five o'clock on the afternoon of December 31, 1927. It was featured in the advertisements in thirty-five national magazines as well as newspapers, which carried an announcement and full information about the contest during the months of September, October, November and December. More than ninety million advertisements appeared, while information of the contest was carried to thousands through window and other displays by grocers and other retail merchants throughout the country. The results of this campaign were attested by the tremendous response of the public in entering the contest.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 19 (Canadian Press).—Southern Bulgaria was panic-stricken to-day after a series of earthquakes which have been shaking the region since Saturday. Details are lacking but it is believed that the tremors last night were more disastrous than those which resulted in 26 deaths on Saturday.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, wither thou goest. For the living know that they shall die, but the dead know not anything."—Ecc. 9-5-10.

In the glad resurrection morning poor blinded, bewildered, beguiled, deceived, and misguided man will look with repugnance, methinks, upon the Satanic inherent-human-immortality-theory lie, preached by the "reverends."

Think of the silly statements the noted preacher, C. H. Spurgeon, who claimed that at death, the so-called immortal soul, would be tormented alone; but at the resurrection "the body will be joined to thy soul, and then thou wilt have twin hells, thy soul sweating drops of blood, and thy body suffused with agony. In fire exactly like that we have on earth, thy body will lie asbestos-like forever unconsumed." The above absurd statements by this "reverend", are similar to what is handed out from time to time to long suffering audiences.

Would it not be a sensible act for church goers, to do as the Boreans did in the days of the Apostle Paul, namely, search the Scriptures daily to see and determine whether the things which the preachers are telling them are true?

It is claimed that 11,394 churches in the United States last year failed to add a single convert to their ranks. This aforesaid number represents about thirty-two per cent. of all the Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist churches in the United States. This looks as if these church systems were losing prestige. Is it any wonder that this is the case, when we consider what is preached and taught?

WEDDING BELLS

ELMHIRST--BORLAND.

A pretty wedding took place yesterday at one o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Borland, of Indian River, when their second daughter, Phyllis, became the bride of Stuart Elmhirst, son of Arthur Elmhirst of Indian River, and the late Mrs. Elmhirst. The ceremony was performed by the Rev J. H. Sutcliffe pastor of the Murray street Baptist church. Attendants were Miss Robena Carter and William Elmhirst, both of Indian River. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Gavin Shearer, Junior, of Indian River.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a Chanel necklace, to the bridesmaid and pianist bar pins, and to the best man a pair of gold cuff links.

SAYS GOVERNMENT OF CANADA FIRMLY REFUSED TO RECOGNIZE DIVERSION IN SLIGHTEST DEGREE

Hon. Charles Stewart Tables Correspondence Between Two Governments in House.

CHICAGO WATER DIVERSION.

Against Entire Principle of Abstracting Water From Lakes To Another Watershed.

OTTAWA, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, related to the House last night the story of correspondence with the United States Government on the Chicago water diversion from Lake Michigan. "The Government of Canada," he declared, "has consistently refused to recognize the diversion in the slightest measure, and will continue to present the Canadian viewpoint with all possible firmness to the United States against the entire principle of abstracting water from the Great Lakes to another watershed."

The correspondence tabled last night covers notes exchanged between the two governments since February 24, 1925, when Mr. Stewart last tabled correspondence.

In his review, Mr. Stewart mentioned a specific inquiry sent by the Canadian to the United States Government, asking what progress had been attained by Chicago in the curtailment measures called for by the permit of the United States Secretary for War. It is under this permit that diversion of water is now being made.

Would Prepare Plans.

The United States replied that detail plans, it was expected, would be prepared during the ensuing year for the installation of control works at the intake to the Sanitary Canal; that progress made by Chicago in carrying out installation of sewage treatment works was satisfactory; that installation of water meters would, it was expected, result in a reduction of domestic consumption in the near future.

From these statements, Mr. Stewart continued, "We would be warranted in assuming that the United States Government was satisfied that the progressive reduction which was anticipated on November 25, 1925, would be realized."

The United States suggested a discussion of the practical question of providing compensatory works. The Canadian Government replied, Mr. Stewart went on, that "while recognizing the marked advantages which may be gained by the construction of suitable compensating works, Canada would not be prepared to enter upon a discussion of any plans for the construction of such works if this course involved an assumption that the present abstraction through the Chicago Sanitary Canal is to continue."

Another United States note inferred that the apportionment of water for power purposes under which Canada receives 16,000 cubic feet more per second than the United States, "was in compensation for the abstraction of water at Chicago."

"It is hardly necessary to state," Mr. Stewart commented, "that the Canadian Government does not concur in this viewpoint, and that all Canadian Governments have consistently taken the stand, in all protests to the United States Government, since the initiation of the abstraction of the water that no compensation has anywhere or at any time been made for the Chicago withdrawal."

Mr. Stewart's statement and the correspondence follow:

On February 3, 1926, Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to Washington, wrote Hon. Frank B Kellogg, secretary of state of the United States as follows

"Sir,—With reference to your note of November 24th last I have the honor to inform you that the government of Canada has given careful consideration to your statements in regard to the permit issued to the sanitary district of Chicago by the secretary of war on March 3rd, 1925, for the diversion of water from Lake Michigan.

"The Canadian government desires to express its appreciation of the clarity and definiteness of the interpretation of the current permit contained in your notes of June 15th and November 24th. It is understood that the 8,500 cubic second feet which the sanitary district is authorized to withdraw includes the reversed flow of the Chicago and Calumet rivers, but is exclusive of the 1,200 cubic second feet drawn from Lake Michigan for domestic purposes by the city of Chicago and eventually passing through the sanitary canal. The Canadian government agrees that although, so interpreted the permit does not effect any immediate reduction of the amount of water withdrawn, on the other hand it doss not authorize— as there has been some ground for believing—an increase in the withdrawal beyond the amount previously in fact abstracted. It is further noted that it is the belief of the government of the United States that the installation of sewage work and the metering of water supply and other measures will result by December 31st, 1929, in a reduction of the present total of 9,700 cubic second feet to a figure between 8,000 and 6,700 cubic second feet, and by 1935 or earlier to 4,167 cubic second feet.

"In the situation which has resulted from the policy of the sani-

Telegraph Wires Out Reporters Are Worried

(By Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, April 20. — A panic developed amongst the pressmen at the Sir Arthur Currie-Preston-Wilson libel suit yesterday. Telegraph companies were having trouble with their wires all morning, and after dinner two C.N.R. wires went out. The Examiner could not reach Peterborough, and when they tried over C.P.R. wires the reports had to be sent via Toronto, as that company was in trouble also. City and telegraph editors all over the country were wanting to know what was wrong with the copy, and the reporters were rushing around trying to find a way of sending it out. The telegraph officials did their best, and endeavored to help the reporters out in every way possible.

MOVEMENTS OF CANADIAN UNITS EXPLAINED AT HEARING TO-DAY

Police Officers Must Uncover In Court

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, April 20. — Even police officers must doff their hats in court. Yesterday, Chief of Police Ruse entered the court and stood in full uniform with his hat on in a moment of forgetfulness. Sheriff Nesbitt, with his ever-vigilant eye, was not long in noticing the Chief, and immediately motioned to him to remove his hat. Off came the cap, but the Chief, not liking the admonition, walked over to the Sheriff in a disgusted manner, but no one will ever know what was said.

Sheriff Nesbitt later would not say what he said to the Chief, and asked if he admonished him, he smiled and said, "Maybe I did.

Col. Orde, of Department of National Defence, in Box Over Three Hours.

LEGAL BICKERING.

Preston Declares He Had No Intention of Charging Falsification of Records.

(By Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, Ont., April 20 (Canadian Press).—Col. Orde, Department of National Defence, Ottawa, was in the witness box for three hours and a half this morning at the Sir Arthur Currie-Preston-Wilson $50,000 libel suit before the Hon. Mr. Justice Rose.

Col. Orde was called by F. Regan, counsel for Mr. Wilson, but W. N. Tilley, KC., counsel for the plaintiff, took the opportunity of getting a great deal of evidence concerning the casualties and movements of Canadian troops on the last three days of the Great War.

His Lordship asked Mr. Regan during the hearing to define the issue being tried, after Mr. Regan had made charges of falsification of the records for the purpose of aiding the plaintiff. The court asked him if he could find such charges in the newspaper article as it appeared in The Port Hope Guide or where such a charge occurred in the plea of the defendant. Then followed protests, objections and legal technicalities by both lawyers. Mr. Regan evaded His Lordships question for a period. Mr. Tilley wanted the position the defendant was taking and the course Mr. Preston was going to follow. Mr. Preston, one of the defendants, declared he would keep such course in his own confidence until the proper time.

His Lordship pressed for an answer from Mr. Regan, and then Mr. Preston addressed the court, saying, as writer of the article, that no such falsifications were charged and that he had never thought of such a thing as the records being falsified to aid the plaintiff. Mr. Regan, after consultation with his client and other counsel took the same stand.

Col. Orde was the first witness called for the defence this morning. Questioned by Mr. Regan he testified that the reports for Nov. 11, 1918, showed one man killed, none died of wounds, fifteen wounded. The man killed was Number 256255 Private George Price, 28th Can. Inf. Bat. This was the man killed by a sniper about four miles west of Mons at three minutes to eleven.

The returns, Col. Orde explained, are made up from noon one day to noon the next day. Thus the diary is not a true reflection, of the actual number of casualites. The exact number would be given in the daily casualty wire.

Some casualties would not be known immediately to the unit. They would be picked up on the field and taken to dressing stations and not be reported to the unit for several days. They would be checked at the base. There was no attempt made to falsify the reports.

Mr. Regan and Col. Orde entered dispute as to how and when the war diary shoud be written. Mr. Regan claimed it should have been written daily ,according to regulations. Col. Orde said conditions governed the wirting and the diary could wait for three or four days if operations demanded. The diary was, Col. Orde claimed, a true report according to information at the disposal of the writer.

Mr. Regan: "We say there was a a deliberate attempt by the men who would be affected."

His Lordship: "Here, here, I will not. The jury has come here to try the issue joined between points and bring in a verdict on that issue. When you get off on something that is not relative it does not throw any light on the issue and tends to obscure it and make it difficult for the jury to perform their duty. The last thing I want to do is to exclude relative matter. But a strictly general statement you make that some persons unknown wanted to deliberately falsify records perhaps should be tried somewhere, but not here."

Mr. Regan: 'My view of issue is this article say there was an attack on Mons and in this attack there

CANADA'S PART IN WAR RETOLD

REGRETS LIBEL TROUBLE.

"It is a matter of regret that since the war men have attempted to detract from the worthy reputation of at least one Canadian" declared Jack Dewart M.C., referring to the Currie libel action, while addressing the Kiwanis club at the luncheon held in the Empress hotel to-day. Mr. Dewart was introduced by John R. Heron, and his address was in keeping with the fifteenth anniversary of the second Battle of Ypres, Sunday, April 22. His subject was the part played by the Canadians in the Great War. So well composed and so eloquently delivered was the address that it will appear in full detail in Saturday's issue.

Art Reynolds presided at to-day's luncheon and he kept things going in fine style. He announced Charlie Cook as the booster.

Miss Jessie Pattison of St. Pauls church was the soloist of the day, contributing two splendid numbers, accompanied by M. Chenhall.

Among the guests present were W. E. Lockuline and E. O. L. Johnston of Toronto, Major H. Dodds, R. M. Glover and J. Turnbull of Peterborough, and L. Montgomery and Harrington Adams, of Chicago.

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Montgomery, who is here in connection with the Kiwanis show, spoke to the members on matters pertaining to it. A committee comprising J MacNabb, J. Grey and J. R. Heron, was appointed to arrange for an entertainment for the cast.

This concluded the business of the day, and the singing of O Canada brought the meeting to a close.

OUT-OF-TOWN MEN COMING TO BANQUET

Members of Chambers in Other Towns Wish To Hear A. M. Dollar.

President Dutton, of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce is issuing invitations to the various Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade in the district to send representatives to the annual banquet of the local chamber, which is to be held in the Empress Hotel here on April 26. As this is likely to be the only opportunity of hearing the President of the Canadian Chamber for some time, a large number of out-of-town guests are expected

RELIEF PLANE SEEN OVER CITY

Big Monoplane From Detroit Flies High and Fast To East.

AVIATORS FAMOUS.

Peterborough caught a fleeting glimpse of the Bremen relief expedition this morning shortly after 10.30 o'clock, when the huge tri-motored monoplane piloted by Bernt Balchen and Floyd Bennett en route from Detroit to Murray Bay, Que., and thence to Greenly Island, with spare parts for the damaged Junkers plane, passed over this city.

The big aircraf., a veritable liner of the air, was flying so high that its markings could scarcely be read, and it travelled over Peterborough at a high rate of speed, rapidly disappearing out of sight.

The pilots in charge of the monoplane are two of the most famous airmen in the world. Balchen was a member of the crew accompanying Commander Byrd in his sensational trans-atlantic flight, while Bennett was Byrd's companion when he flew over the North Pole. Both will accompany Commander Byrd in his South Pole adventure.

The passing of the relief airship was reported by several citizens today Alpine McNabb and Lorne Northey being the first two to inform The Examiner.

FLORISTS HOLD MEETING HERE

MEET LOCAL MEN.

Arriving by bus on Thursday afternoon some thirty-five Toronto members of the Florists' Telegraph Association, as well as members from Cobourg and other places en route, sat down to a banquet in the Empress Hotel at 7.30 last evening. Peterborough had been chosen as the meeting place rather than following the usual custom of holding the meeting in Toronto.

The Peterborough Floral Company and Jordan Brothers were also represented at the gathering, while His Worship Mayor Denne represented the city. He it was who welcomed the visiting florists.

Following community singing and music by the Logan's orchestra, a business meeting of the members was held, and all boarded the eleven o'clock bus returning to Toronto.

OLD ESTABLISHMENT TO BE DISCONTINUED

Alex Gibson Retiring From Business After Forty Years Of It.

The announcement that Alex Gibson, whose jewelry establishment has been a well known part of Peterboro's business activities for so long, was retiring from business, came as a surprise to hundreds of his friends, old and new. Mr Gibson has been in business in this city for forty years, and feels that he has earned a respite from the constant worry and work necessary to carry on properly a business of the importance his has attained. Forty years of reliability and fair dealing have established Mr. Gibson firmly in the confidence and respect of the citizens who have formed the habit of dropping in to his store for their wants both in jewelry and repairs. Mr. Gibson learned his trade as watchmaker with Charles Stephen, of Peterhead, Scotland, coming to Canada as a young man in 1884—Mr. Gibson is retiring at a middle-age that leaves him, in all likelihood, a long peroid of time in which to enjoy his relazation from active work.

The store, at present, is full of the usual high class stock of jewelry, watches, clocks, silverware, cut glass, etc., which is to be sold out at retail, as quickly as possible, the usual inducements of greatly reduced prices being relied upon as the best means to that end—Announcements will appear regularly in the Examiner but naturally, first selection is bound to be the best.

THE WEATHER

In decided contrast to the conditions prevailing last year at this date, the weather continues quite cold. This morning the temperature was down to 18 degrees. The gale which passed over here yesterday brought snow in Eastern Ontario and rain in the Maritime provinces. A foot of snow has fallen in northern Ontario. On this date last year the temperature here in Peterborough was 71, and for several days previous ranged up to 78 degrees.—W. P.

HARVEY COUPLE ALLOWED TO GO

FOR SUICIDE ATTEMPT.

Declining to enter evidence substantiating a charge of attempted murder against James Albert Reynard, the Crown placed a new charge in that of attempted suicide similar to that faced by Mrs. Reynard Remanded from last Tuesday, the couple, residents of Harvey township, near Bobcaygeon, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley in police court this morning. They were represented by J. A. O'Brien. After hearing Mr. O'Brien and Crown Attorney Hatton, the magistrate allowed the two to go on suspended sentence, bound over to keep the peace.

Beatrice Reynard elected to be tried summarily by the magistrate on a charge of attempted suicide in the township of Harvey. She pleaded guilty to the charges.

J. A. O'Brien, her counsel, stated that from the report of the doctors, she is sane. She and her husband were married some six weeks ago. She had lived with him and his aged mother at the home in Harvey township. Her husband, a farm laborer, had owned considerable equity in the home. The married couple had become despondent over financial difficulties and had entered into what almost approached a suicide pact. The husband bore a good reputation and presumably so had the wife. The big problem was apparently the finances. The wife, while sane, was not as bright as she might have been, and so, foolishly, rather than maliciously, she had gotten into this difficulty. The girl, in her 20's, had married a man in his 40's. This may have made a difference.

"Since seeing her here, I believe the girl has come to a desire to return to her home and go on with her quiet life. I am going to ask your Worship to send this girl back and give her another chance to fulfill her duties as a wife and daughter-in-law. There is the aged mother to be cared for," he concluded.

Mr. Hatton stated that the young woman, as he had been advised, is more or less mentally deficient. She had apparently come to think her husband's financial position hopeless and had become more or less hysterical, threatening to take her life. Her husband had been promised by her that she would not do this. She had later used the razor on her wrist. Returning and finding her in that condition, he had apparently tried to commit suicide himself.

Mr. Hatton had two medical men observe these people to decide upon their sanity. Their report was that they are mentally deficient, but not insane.

The matter was allowed to stand while the husband, Albert Reynard, was called.

James Albert Reynard, charged with attempted murder, was ready to proceed with the preliminary. The Crown presented no evidence and counsel for defence asked for a dismissal. The charge was dismissed.

He was then charged with attempting to commit suicide on April 2 and consented to be tried summarily by the magistrate. He pleaded guilty.

Mr. O'Brien drew attention to the fact that the man was some 43 years of age, sole support of his young wife and aged mother. He referred to the financal worries which had caused the wife to threaten to take her life and the distressing effect on the husband who bore a good reputation in the country. In conclusion, Mr. O'Brien urged a second chance for Reynard, that the two might make a fresh start.

Mr. Hatton, after discussing the matter saw little to be gained in having the two in jail.

The magistrate felt that both were cases for suspended sentence, the Reeve of the township and another resident of Harvey, Messrs. Parker and Watson, putting up bonds that they would help keep the peace for two years.

Magistrate Langley addressed the couple at some length, pointing out the foolishness of their recent act. He gave them some advice before dismissing them.

ATTEMPT TO CUT TIME OF TRIAL BRINGS DEBATE ON LIVES LOST

Plaintiff's Counsel Admits That Many Died Unnecessarily During War.

MISTAKES MADE.

Regan Says Mons Could Have Been Captured Without Loss of Life, as Was Valenciennes.

(By Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, April 20. — The only fireworks of the Currie libel hearing yesterday occurred when the plaintiff's counsel endeavored to shorten the reading of the examination for discovery by ruling out a series of questions relating to some of the battles previous to Mons, which itself by "relentless pressure" exerted made "the enemy sign the Armistice," General Currie declared.

"I am not objecting to question 974, but there are 25 pages following that which go over all the battles of the war. I submit they are not relevant," said W. N. Tilley, K.C., counsel for Sir Arthur Currie.

Justice Rose: "I thought I had ruled on that in a question in connection with a witness" (referring to Col. Currie).

Mr. Tilley: "There are about 25 pages of reading, and I submit that it is not necessary to go through all the titles of the war. Your Lordship sees that Mr. Regan has already got that from a witness."

Mr. Justice Rose: "I thought your admission went this far—that there was loss of lives which should not have taken place. That is to say, that if all officers had been perfectly wise and had known everything that is known, the losses suffered could have been avoided . You went that far, didn't you?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Tilley.

Mr. Justice Rose: "That being so, that general statement in the first two lines of the article are admitted. I don't see how there could be any relevancy in discussing particular incidents in which there may or may not have been that kind of losses."

Mr. Tilley: "It would lead to the discussion of all the other actions."

Mr. Regan: "In view of my friend's submission there were instances of enormous loss of life on the part of Sir Arthur Currie."

Mr. Justice Rose: "That is what I say is not relevant."

Mr. Regan: "No one knows the man who is 100 per cent efficient. Human nature is liable to err. It is not that type of error we are dealing with."

Mr. Justice Rose: "I think he's admitting the first two lines of the article."

Mr. Regan: "That statement is issued without provocation. I hope he is speaking for himself, not for his country."

Mr. Tilley: "For his country."

Mr. Justice Rose: "The statement that there was much waste of human lives and enormous loss of lives in the war which never should have taken place is admitted."

Mr. Tilley: "Yes."

Mr. Regan: "That is perfectly fair, but I would endeavor to prove that the practise followed in other engagements should have been adopted at Mons, then that place could have been taken without loss of life. The question I have in mind is number 1230, and it refers to Valenciennes."

Justice Rose: "I have read the question and a good meny others following it, and I don't see that they possess any relevancy to the case."

Mr. Regan: "Can I explain more clearly?"

Justice Rose: "I think I can grasp it now all right."

"We propose to argue that if the methods followed at Valenciennes had been followed at Mons, there would have been no loss of life whatever," explained Mr. Regan.

CHERBOURG, April 20 (Canadian Press). — The liner Leviathan established a high speed record of 30 knots an hour during yesterday's sailing. The pace was maintained for several hours.

Joker Has Citizens Call Up Phone 100

Fire Chief Gimblett is very indignant over the actions of some would-be joker who, during the past few days has been calling up by phone, many local business men and leaving the number 100 for them to call on returning to their offices. As 'phone number 100 is strictly for fire calls, this act is causing much confusion at the fire hall, and business men are urged to avoid calling that number unless they have a fire to report.

T. D. JOHNSON IS NEW JAILER

Appointment of Former Member of Provincial House Confirmed.

TAKES OFFICE MAY 1.

Confirmation of the appointment of Lt.-Col. Thomas Dalton Johnston, ex-M.P.P., as jailer of the county jail was received this morning by Sheriff F. J. A. Hall The appointment was made some time ago by Sheriff Hall, but had to be confirmed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and takes effect May 1.

Col. Johnston, who is in his thirty-ninth year, is commanding officer of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons. He served overseas, leaving Canada as a lieutenant in the 8th C.M.R. From 1923 to 1926 he represented East Peterborough in the Provincial Legislature. In 1926 he was defeated by W. A. Anderson, Liberal-Prohibitionist, in the riding of Peterborough County, formed by the Redistribution Act. He has farmed in Otonabee for a number of years.

YE OLD TYME VILLAGE QUARTETTE

Second Appearance in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Tuesday Evening, April 24th—Give a Delightful Program.

Those who were present at the Concert given last year by Ye Olde Tyme Village Quartette in St Paul's Presbyterian Church are sure to be pleased with the announcement that they are to appear in Peterborough again at St. Paul's Church on Tuesday evening, April 24th.

This quartette was organized a number of years ago in Toronto to assist in a church choir concert without any thought of it becoming a permanent organization.

But such was the success of its first appearance that this entertainment was repeated a number of times, and each time with equal success. The manager of the Canadian National Exhibition Music Day Festivities engaged it for Music Day to sing at several stations on the grounds during the day. Next, the radio department of the Canadian National Railways (CNRT) engaged it to sing exclusively for them. So numerous were the applause letters from every province in Canada, and from California in the west and Florida in the south, that their contract was renewed for another year. Step by step the quartette has progressed, until to-day it is probably Canada's most popular quartette. The artists all appear in mid-Victorian costumes of soft shades and make a striking picture in bibs, tuckers, hoops and frills. Associated with the quartette are a number of associate artists who assist in their programs.

REGAN AGAIN TRIES TO GET DUGOUT EVIDENCE INCLUDED BUT JUSTICE RULES IT OUT

Judge and Sheriff Nearly Lose Hats

COBOURG, April 20 (Special to The Examiner).—High winds blowing directly off Lake Ontario have no respect for law and order. When returning to court after the noon recess, Mr. Justice Rose, in company with Sheriff D. J. Nesbitt, narrowly escaped the indignity of being suddenly being thrown on their silk hats when an unexpected gust of wind almost flicked the "stove pipes" from their heads. Only adept, lightning-swift movements of the "hands of the law" averted this catastrophe.

Tilley's Objection Sustained After Judge Consults Authorities On Both Sides.

EXAMINATION READ.

Mr. Justice Rose Urges Lawyers To Move Faster As Trial Is Becoming Very Expensive.

(By Staff Reporters)

COBOURG, April 20.—Frank Regan, counsel for F. W. Wilson, proprietor of The Port Hope Guide, made another unsuccessful attempt late yesterday afternoon to submit evidence to the jury on the now famous "dug-out" episode, at the Second Battle of Ypres and made public by Sir Sam Hughes in the House of Commons.

Thomas F. Hall, K.C., associate counsel for Mr. Wilson, was reading the examination for discovery to the jury, and when he came to the questions relevant to the "dug-out" episode, W. N. Tilley, K.C., lawyer for the plaintiff, jumped to his feet and asked for a ruling from the bench on these questions and answers, and those which County Judge O'Connor had ordered the plaintiff to answer. Mr. Tilley submitted authorities to strengthen his claim.

Mr. Regan claimed the questions were most relevant. His Lordship, after reading the authorities submitted by the two lawyers most carefully, ruled the questions out, and the reading of the examination for discovery which has taken more than a day was brought to a close.

A continuous effort was made by defense counsel all through the reading of the examination to show that the fighting of Mons after word was received of the signing of the armistice was not justified.

His Lordship, at the close of yesterday's sessions, told the lawyers that more progress must be made, as the trial was becoming very expensive both to those concerned and the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham. More progress is expected to-day, as Mr. Regan has signified that he will call three more witnesses, and it is expected W. T. R. Preston will take the stand in his own behalf.

Col. Caldow, artillery officer, of Toronto, appeared in Court in the afternoon, but was not called by Mr. Regan. He was subpoenaed in the morning when it was made known that his name was signed to a "cease fire" despatch photographed by the Toronto Star.

The officer in Kingston, whose name was not divulged in the Court, will probably appear also, as Mr. Regan announced that his commander has given him permission to appear if ordered to come. This officer, it was alleged by Ald. F. A. Warburton, reporter on the Kingston Whig-Standard, had shown him a copy of the "cease fire" message, and he had taken a photo of it. Ald. Warburton refused to divulge the officer's name in Court, but promised to endeavor to get the message.

Mr. Regan said he would also call F. W. Wilson to give evidence.

Every day brings more of the clan of "Old Sweats" to this town, and from indications manw of the Canadian headquarters staff will be called to the witness box by Mr. Tilley.

Officers to Be Called.

Among the former military men who are here are: Brig.-General Hugh M. Dyer, who has been watching proceedings very closely, Brig.-General John A. Clarke, Brig.-General R. P. Clarke, Colonel Royal Ewing, of the 42nd Montreal Highlanders, who entered Mons, Major Paul Hutchinson and Captain Allan McGee, also of that unit, and Captain Findlay of the Princess Pats. Colonel Bart Hopper and Major Harry Hatch, officers of the 19th and 20th Battalions, are also expected.

Sir Arthur Currie in his examination was asked if he would say there were no casualties in the attack on Mons?

A—I say there is nothing on file to show that there were casualties on Nov. 11.

General Currie' orders were to take the ground east of Mons and to do this he claimed he had to go through this city.

Questioned on the shelling of Mons Sir Arthur Currie said that shells did not fall in Mons but on the outskirts of the city. He also explained that shelling a city and putting shells in a city were two very different things in military language.

Q—Was there any shelling of Mons?

Q—You as officer commanding the Canadian corps, ordered the shelling of Mons, where innocent people lived?

A—Mons was not shelled.

Q—What do you know about the German envoys?

A—I knew that they asked for 48 hours cessation of hostilities while they were discussing the armistice terms with the own headquarters' staff, and that Marshall Foch refused to cease fighting.

Q—When did you hear that the armistice was signed?

A—At 6.45 a.m. on Nov. 11.

SOUTH POLE FLIERS TO PILOT RELIEF PLANE TO GREENLY ISLE

Bennett and Balchen To Carry Supplies To Stranded German Fliers.

START TO-DAY.

Plan To Make Non-Stop Flight From Ford Airport To Murray Bay.

DETROIT, April 20. Canadian Press. — A relief plane was groomed last night at the Ford Airport for a take-off at dawn to-day to carry supplies and repairs to the trans-atlantic German plane Bremen, disabled and stranded on Greenly Island.

The relief plane, a tri-motored airship is to be piloted by Floyd Bennett and Bernt Balchen, who were to be accompanied by Thomas Mulroy and Charles J. V. Murphy, the latter a representative of the New York World, through which the North American Newspaper Alliance is sponsoring the expedition.

The fliers planned to make a non-stop flight to Murray Bay, Quebec, and thence to Greenly Island to deliver parts needed for repairs on the Bremen to enable it to complete its trip to New York city.

If they are unable to prepare the Bremen to take the air the rescuers plan to take the plane's stranded crew, Major James Fitzmaurice, Captain Hermann Koehl and Baron von Huenefeld, to New York.

Will Pick up Mechanic.

The expedition was to be met at Murray Bay by Herta Junkers, the daughter of the builder of the Bremen, who is arranging with Major Fitzmaurice for repair parts. The two German airmen are still on the isolated island. A German mechanic is to be picked up at Murray Bay, according to Balchen, who said that Miss Junkers may also fly with them to the island.

The plane, the same airship in which Mrs. Evangeline L. L. Lindbergh flew to Mexico City last Christmas, will carry approximately 500 gallons of gasoline when it leaves port.

It had been planned to equip the plane with the gasoline tanks used by the Josephine Ford, which Commander Richard Byrd piloted in his flight to the North Pole, but this plan later was abandoned. The plane will be ski-equipped at Murray Bay.

Bennett and Balchen, who flew here Wednesday from New York, had hoped to take off for Murray Bay yesterday, but were unable to make the necessary adjustments on the plane in time to hop off. The weather conditions were also unfavorable and both pilots are suffering from heavy colds.

Byrd Not Connected.

NEW YORK April 20. — Canadian Press.—Although both the men who will fly a Ford relief plane to Greenly Island to-day from Detroit are pilots for Commander Richard E. Byrd, Commander Byrd has no connection with the flight officials of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition announced yesterday.

They said that Commander Byrd had considered organizing a relief expedition, but because the equipment was not at hand, and because the press of business in connection with arrangements for the South Pole flight was so great, he had to abandon the plan.

At that time, however, he told Floyd Bennett and Bernt Balchen, his two pilots, that he would release them from their duties for him for a few days if they cared to participate in any relief expedition officially sanctioned by the City of New York. Such an expedition was arranged and Bennett and Balchen undertook to man the plane, not as representatives of Commander Byrd, but entirely as individuals.

Bradley Byne Appeal Dismissed By Court

LONDON, April 20.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The court of appeal yesterday dismissed the appeal of Mrs. Bradley Dyne from the judgment in a case brought against her by the brokerage firm of Ironmonger and Company for £39,000 due on franc speculations. Through the original hearing of the case this year the gambling in francs of J. D. Gregory assistant under-secretary for foreign affairs, and other officials in the foreign office became known, resulting in Gregory's dismissal and the censure of the other officials. Mrs. Dyne was Gregory's private secretary at the time.

Lord Justice Scrutton, in giving his judgment yesterday, declared that the people who indulged in the speculations were beneath contempt. They were utterly selfish and regardless of the enormous injury they inflicted on the legitimate trade of the country in whose exchange they speculated.

Taught Safety In Westmount Schools

WESTMOUNT, Quebec, April 20. —Canadian Press. — Pupils of the schools in Westmount are being instructed through the medium of lectures and a moving picture, along the lines of "safety first" by Arthur Gaboury, secretary general of the Province of Quebec Safety League, with the co-operation of the safety section of the Children's Welfare Association, and of the Montreal Playgrounds Association. The first lecture was given recently in Argyle School and was illustrated by a moving picture under title of 'Knights of the Road."

The pupils of the school were marched into the largest hall of the school and there heard an interesting talk by the secretary-general of the Quebec Safety League.

The picture in which school children are the principal actors, aided by real policemen and real firemen, shows the dangers of the street, and how to overcome them. The methods used by the safety patrols are depicted vividly and the picture illustrates how the young children upon leaving school districts are cared for by the older pupils. The Westmount children received the pictures with enthusiasm and listened to the lecture with interest.

Revision Worthy Of a Great Church

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, April 20 (Canadian Press via Reuter's). — Addressing the New Zealand Synod on the subject of prayer book revision, Right Rev. A. W. Averill, Archbishop of Auckland, declared that the revision as a whole was fully worthy of a great Church. That it was accepted thankfully by a large majority of representative churches in England was a tribute to its general excellence and suitability.

Its weaknesses, the Archbishop continued, were, firstly, in the retention of the ornament rubric, secondly, in providing alternative services for administration of the Sacraments, and thirdly, in permitting continuous reservation. Whatever the fate of the measure in England, he would be sorry, the Archbishop said, to see the church of New Zealand accept it as it stood.

HEAR TALK ON WHITE ANT

F. S. Pearce Addresses Bi-Monthly Meeting of Marmora Library Society.

SCOUT DANCE HELD.

MARMORA April 20.—Using one of Maurice Maeterlink's works as reference F. S. Pearce gave an interesting talk on the life of the termite or white ant at the bi-monthly meeting of the Marmora Literary and Social Society held on Wednesday evening. April 30th was decided upon as the tentative date for the holding of the oratorical contest which is being sponsored by the society. The contest is open to senior scholars of Marmora Public and Seperate schools in addition to pupils of the Continuation School. The three principals of these schools are being asked to form a committee with Mrs. D. L. Curtis and A. R. Millar, of the society to draw up the program, while the Rev. C. J. Beckleyand, the Rev. A. B. Caldwell, and Father J. J. O'Reilly are being asked to act as judges.

Bridge and Dance Held

A very successful dance and bridge party was held by the 1st. Deloro Boy Scout Troop on Tuesday evening. Prizes for ticket selling went to Ray Loveless and Will Simmons.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hunter and G. Thompson were responsible for the music, and a splendid lunch was served to about one hundred and forty persons.

Personals

Mr. M. W. Emmorey and family, moved from Marmora on Tuesday into the residence at Deloro recently vacated by Mr. Alex Moon.

Messrs. Cecil Holland and Wesley Knox spent Tuesday evening in Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. James Shaw motored to Halloway on Tuesday.

Mr. Charles Gordenier moved on Wednesday into the residence recently vacated by Percey Gray.

Mrs. Kenny, of Madoc, is spending a few days in town.

STEAM MORE VALUE THAN ELECTRICITY

Zion League Debating Team Puts Check on Proposed Power System.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, April 20 —Plane for the proposed new power system on the English Line, received a sudden check on Tuesday night when the debating team from Zion League invaded the home of the Tabernacle League, and successfully proved to the English Liners that steam is of more value to humanity than is electricity. The local couple, Earl Fairman and Miss Nellie Bennett, upholding the affirmative or steam side of the debate, were in splendid form and brought out strong points which the casual observer of the subject would not have found. The negative, of electricity side, was ably handled by the Line team, Sam Peake and Miss Lillian Locke.

The speakers all showed remarkable platform ability, with great clearness in the expression of thought and very little hesitation in delivery. Each one took the full time of ten minutes and each appeared to be able to carry on longer had time been allowed. Special mention ought to be made of the unique manner in second part of the affirmative. Adopting a somewhat satirical and humous vein of attack Miss Bennett, tore the arguments for electricity into shreds before the speakers had a chance to frame them and so left only weak points for her opponents.

Thomas Wetherill as critic was in rare form and gave a real constructive criticism. He stated that he considered the debate a good one and one that had given him pleasure to listen to. The affirmative too although winners got a fair share of criticism which should be of value when they meet the Campbellford, St. John's team in the second round of the conference debating series.

The Rev. C. D. Daniel acted as chairman for the evening, and Fred Barnun as time keeper. The judges were: Mrs. J. H. Bell, of Campbellford, Mrs. E. Mitchell, Tabernacle League, and E. L. Anderson, Zion League.

As the Tabernacle League held its regular meeting on the same evening the ordinary business and roll call preceded the debate. The attendance contest which closed with this meeting showed that the group driving the Hudson car were the winners, and they will be banqueted by the rest of the League in the near future.

Nova Scotia Miners Approve of Contract

SYDNEY, N.S., April 20 (Canadian Press). — A referendum vote of Nova Scotia miners yesterday approved with an overwhelming majority the basis for agreement on a profit-bearing plan of a new wage and working contract, presented by the new owners of the British Empire Steel Corporation some time ago during negotiations carried on to formulate a contract to replace that which expired on January 31 last.

Famous Flier Guest At Breezy Party, But Lindy Neither Drank Nor Gambled

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., April 20 (United Press).—Colonel Charles A Lindbergh slept late yesterday, recovering from the experiences of an eventful night, which included a public appearance at the all-America aircraft show and a visit later to Blossom Heath, fashionable roadhouse on the shores of Lake St. Claire in Macomb County.

Arriving from St Louis at 7 p.m., Lindbergh and his St. Louis assistants, joined Edsel Ford and Major Thomas G. Lanphier at dinner. Then they went to the aircraft show.

Edsel Ford left the party, but some others joined it, and near midnight the party appeared at Blossom Heath. The night's hilarity was at its height. The guests were in evening clothes.

A NEAR PANIC

The abrupt entrance of the large party of men suggested, somehow, the entrance a month ago of another party of men, who it developed, were state police. They precipitated a near panic when they searched the patrons for liquor and seized $5,000 worth of gambling paraphernalia, including a Klondyke table and three roulette wheels. The place also was raided with similar results early in 1927.

DIDN'T PARTICIPATE

But the kind of panic created by Lindbergh was different. Necks craned and every one watched attentively to see if he would take a drink He did not, and neither did he gamble. He enjoyed the music of the novelty orchestra.

At an early hour the party left. Lindbergh and Lanphier went to the officers' quarters at Selfridge Field.

MEETING HELD OF CHEESE FACTORY

Fred Crowe Elected Secretary-Treasurer of Warsaw Factory.

WARSAW, April 20.—Fred Crowe was appointed secretary-treasurer of the Warsaw Cheese factory at the annual meeting held recently, with Jeremaih Maloney in the chair. Charles Foster led a discussion on the business prospects for 1928. Whey will be disposed to patrons at fifteen cents a barrel. The feeding of turnips and rape to milch cows by cheese factory patrons is prohibited, according to a motion already on the books.

The secretary gave the following report for last season: number of pounds of milk received for cheese, 1,339,930; number of pounds received to separate 128,000; number of pounds of butter fat 52,861.81; pounds of cheese, 119,911; number of pounds of butter fat sold in crease, 5,790.53; cash received for cheese sold, $23,-113.12; for cream sold $1,359.12; for whey sold $453.47; total receipts, $24,925.71; paid to patrons, $21,485.45; paid for manufacturing, $3,273.69; current expenses $166.57; total $24,925-71.

Farm News

The continued cold is causing a little uneasiness about fall grains and meadows especially as the afternoon sun has melted the snow. In spots where the sun does not strike the ground has remained frozen since last week.

The Dummer road is fairly good, but there are still some exceedingly bad places. The boundary is bad on Gordon Payne's hill. This is the first time in many years that the hill has broken.

The stage reaches Warsaw so late that the couriers cannot deliver the mail in the evening. This is the first time that this condition has existed since the rural mail delivery started in Warsaw.

Flocks of wild geese are still seen.

Buds on the trees have been at a stand still for more than two weeks, while the work in the sugar bushes has been far from steady.

COLD WEATHER DELAYS PLANS

REPAIR PARTS ARRIVE.

LAKE STE. AGNES, Que., April 20. —(Canadian Press.)—While a wintry storm blanketed most of Quebec province under a white mantle yesterday, plans to carry relief to the German members of the crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen at Greenly Island moved slowly.

Airplanes assembled here in preparation for flights to Greenly Island remained on the ground yesterday though the first consignments of repair parts and fuel for the Bremen arrived at the relief base.

Major James Fitzmaurice, Irish member of the Bremen crew, who arrived here from Greenly Island Wednesday, tested yesterday and continued his discussions with representatives of the Junkers firm, builders of the Bremen.

He declared, however, that he hoped that the repair parts for the Bremen would be shipped to Greenly Island within twenty-four hours and that within three days of the arrival of the parts at Greenly Island the Bremen would be ready to take off on the continuation of its flight to New York City.

Miss Herta Junkers, who came here from New York to confer with Fitzmaurice continued her efforts to assemble relief parts for the Bremen here.

Continue Flight Together.

Plans are for the members of the Bremen crew to be re-united here and to continue the flight to New York together from this airport. The Bremen is expected to make the flight to Lake Ste. Agnes from Greenly Island in one hop.

A new propeller to replace the Bremen's, which was damaged in landing, arrived yesterday along with several hundred gallons of special fuel required for the Bremen engine.

A newspaper plane which Wednesday flew to Greenly Island was reported at Clarke City, near Seven Islands, last night, and is expected back here to-day. The plane carried a pilot, a cameraman and a reporter.

Downeyville

DOWNEYVILLE, April 20.—The Misses O'Neills have returned to Toronto after a week's holiday with their parents.

CHILD CAUGHT COLD; —PNEUMONIA FEARED

SOON BACK AT SCHOOL FEELING WELL AS EVER!

No longer is it necessary to stand by helplessly when children's colds bring fear of pneumonia. For hospital physicians now recommend to mothers a pleasant home method to end head colds, coughs or chest colds—and hundreds of Peterborough children have been given the same quick, sure relief that came to the little daughter of Mrs. R. H. Gordon.

Little Estelle caught a severe cold while out riding a week ago Sunday. Nothing her mother used kept the cold from spreading from her nose passages to her chest. On the third day the child coughed so deep Mrs. Gordon called the doctor, who gave her double doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a pleasantly flavored mixture of wild cherry, white pine and other ingredients which have relieved even the most extreme children's cases in the hospital.

Relief began almost immediately. By night the child felt like playing with her Christmas dolls for the first time in several days. The next morning she looked more cheerful and like herself—and in a day or so, doctors report, all traces of the cold were gone.

Note: See other cases—all certified to this paper by a member of the hospital.

Even sick children love the pleasant taste of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Doctors recommend it because it is as safe as the purest food—made only of pure white cherry, white pine, glycerin, terpin hydrate and other ingredients which they have found to be the quickest and most dependable to stop coughing spells and break up the cold.

PITTSTON FEUD COMES TO FINISH

Four Persons Killed in Mine Dispute—Vote To Return To Work.

PITTSTON, Pa., April 20.—(United Press.)—The end of the bloody Pittston feud, which has claimed four lives, was seen yesterday when members of Local 1703 voted 600 to 40 to resume work.

The miners employed in the No. 6 colliery of the Pennsylvania Coal company here have been on strike since early in January, in protest against the contract system of mining.

Mine officials here claimed the vote was a victory for Rinaldo Cappellini district president, and a defeat for the insurgent forces, once headed by the late Alex. Campbell, wh owas slain during the Pittston feud.

While the marriage rate in England is rising, that country had the lowest birth-rate on record during the last quarter of 1927.

SILAS McLELLAN LEADS CANADIANS

First of Canuck Runners to Touch Tape in Tenth Place.

BOSTON, Mass., April 20.—(Canadian Bress.)—The failure of the Canadian marathon runners to place better than tenth in yesterday's Boston marathon race was one of the two surprises in this year's grind. The other surprise was the wonderful showing made by the once speedy Joie Ray, of Chicago, who finished third and won a place on the United States' Olympic marathon team. But six of the twenty-four Canadians finished in the first 37 places, all that were officialy recorded by race officials. Silas McLellan, of Windsor, N. S., led the wearers of the Maple Leaf to the tape, finishing in tenth place, almost sixteen minutes after Clarence H. Demar, the favorite, crossed the finish line for his sixth Boston Marathon victory.

Billy Reynolds, of Galt, Ont., was the second Canadian to finish. He was 13th and he came in about three minutes later than McLellan. Edouard Fabre, of Montreal, who won the race in 1915, finished 19th. He was the third Canadian to the tape. His team mate, Paul Quesnot, straggled to the finish line preceded by 24 others, and Hector Corium, of Lunenburg, N.S., was 28th. Donald Young, of Halifax, the sixth Canadian to finish, was in the 33rd place.

Many of the other 18 Canadian runners finished the race, but none of the officials were on hand to record their efforts. The failure of Billy Laylor, of Sydney Mines, N.S., and Major Ramsdale, of Florence, N.S., was unexpected by race followers. Both of these runners were included in list of a dozen pre-race favorites.

Reynolds yesterday made about the same time he registered in last year's race when he placed 10th. Canada, however was greatly weakened this year because its Olympic committee refused to permit Johnny Miles, who won in 1926, and Carl Brickner, who finished fuorth last year, to participate this year. Both men, who will carry Canadan hopes in the Olympic Marathon, were ordered to give up the Boston race and save themselves for the Olympic contest.

Canada put 15,747 new tractors from the United States to work last year.

SAYS GOVERNMENT OF CANADA

tary district in relying for sanitary purposes upon a diversion of water from the Great Lakes, the Canadian government appreciates the force of the view set forth in your note of the 25th November that the abstraction could not be entirely and immediately ended without imperilling in some degree the life and health of the citizens of the locality, but it has not been made acquainted with the considerations which have convinced the secretary of war that the whole of the present withdrawal is essential on these grounds, and it has been strongly represented to the Dominion government that a distinctly smaller flow would serve the sanitary needs of the district In any case, the fact remains that on every day that the diversion continues it carries most serious loss to Canada and to every community on the Great Lakes and on the St. Lawrence by reason of its effect in hindering navigation in increasing the cost of harbor and canal and river improvements and in reducing the Hydro-Electric power capable of development. The degree to which the considerations advanced as to the necessity of the diversions in the interests of the health of the cttizens of the sanitary district should carry weight would appear, further, to depend hereafter upon the degree of good will and effectiveness displayed in the carryin gout of the works which have been made a condition of the permit.

"The Dominion government cannot conceal the apprehension in this connection, aroused in Canada by certain proposals for the construction of an Illinois and Mississippi waterway proposals embodied in measures already introduced into congress during the present session, or reported as about to be introduced and which appear to be based and to depend upon the definite continuance of the abstraction of the water of the Great Lakes through the Chicago sanitary district canal and even upon the increase to 10,000 cubic feet per second of the amount abstracted It feels certain that the government of the United States will agree that whatever temporary and limited concessions might be made on the ground of the public health no other ground warrants the withdrawal of awter from the Great Lakes much less the extension of the present diversion. It believes it to be recognized principle of international practice that unless by joint consent no permanent diversion should be permitted to another watershed from any watershed naturally tributary to the waters forming the boundary between the two countries and in any case the decision of the United States' supreme court of Jan. 5, 1925, recognizes that in the present instance, the treaty of January 11th, 1909, expressly provides against uses affecting the natural level or flow of the boundary waters' without the authority of the United States or the Dominion of Canada within their respective jurisdictions and the approval of the international joint commission agreed upon therein."

In conclusion the government of Canada desires to express its appreciation of the evident desire of the government of the United States to find a solution of the problem fair to all interests and its hope that such a degree of progress will shortly be attained as will warrant those who now suffer from the diversion in counting upon its early termination. The Canadian government would, in this connection, appreciate any statement which you may find it possible to make as to the progress which has been attaiend by the sanitary district, and by the municipality of Chicago in the provision of the measures called for by the conditions of the current permit which will actually diminish the abstraction from the Great Lakes."

On April 28, 1926, Henry Chilton, charge d'affaires of Great Britain at Washington, wrote Mr. Kellogg as follows:

"Sir,—At the request of the government of Canada I have the honour to transmit to you herewith, in the hope that you will be so good as to communicate it without delay to the interested authorities of the United State' government, copy of a resolution adopted on the 7th instant by the legislative assembly of the province of Ontario, protesting against the enactment by the United States' congress of any legislation authorizing the diversion of water from the Great Lakes at Chicago in disregard of the vital interests of communities bordering upon the Great Lakes and particularly those of the province of Ontario."

Disturbing Factor.

On April 30, Mr. Chilton wrote Mr. Kellogg as follows:

"Immediate—

"Sir,—I beg leave to refer to Sir Esme Howard's note of February 5th last in regard to the permit issued to the sanitary district of Chicago by the Secretary of War on March 3, 1925, for the diversion of water from Lake Michigan and to inform you that the Government of Canada have been led by recent press reports to invite your attention again to the international aspect of projects now being pressed in Congress for the contruction of an Illinois-Michigan waterways which involves the withdrawal of water from the Great Lakes system through the Chicago sanitary district canal. The explicit or implicit authorization by the United States Congress of such withdrawal for navigation purposes would, as has previously been represented, introduce a further disturbing factor into the consideration of a situation already of much difficulty.

"The approaching report of the joint engineering board upon the proposed St. Lawrence waterway, including certain aspects of Lake levels, the probability of joint consideration at an early date of the Niagara situation, and the assurances contained in your note of No. 711, 4216-M58-52 of November 24, 1925, of progressive reduction of the present abstraction at Chicago would seem to provide bases for the discussion by the two countries of all outstanding waterway problems The discussion and settlement of these issues would be seriously complicated were the Chicago attraction to be confirmed by the enactments which would appear to add national to state approval and to recognize diversions for navigation purposes in addition to sanitary purposes which alone were stated in your note of November 24th, 1925, to be the basis of the present permit. The Government of Canada have, of course, no desire to express any opinion upon the purely United States phase of the projected waterway, but they cannot overlook its bearing upon the vital interests of Canada in the preservation of the Great Lakes system which Canada shares with the United States and of the national sections of the St. Lawrence waterway. Those common interests and the neighborly goodwill which has marked the settlement of boundary waterways problems reinforce the principles of international practice and the provisions of the boundary waterways treaty in the conclusion that no diversions from the Great Lakes involving a transfer of water from a common watershed to another should be effected or confirmed in either country, unless after joint consideration and by agreement.

"In furnishing you with these observations, I would express the earnest hope that the Government of the United States will agree that only through the recognition of this principle can a firm basis be secured for safeguarding the interests of both countries."

Ontario Protests.

On May 18, 1926, Mr. Kellogg wrote Sir Esme Howard as follows:

"Excellency.

"Sir,—I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your Embassy's note of April 28, 1926, and its enclosure, a copy of a resolution adopted on April 7 last by the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, protesting against the enactment by Congress of any legislation authorizing the diversion of water from the Great Lakes at Chicago in disregard of the vital interests of communities bordering upon the Great Lakes and particularly those of the Province of Ontario.

"Copies of your Embassy's note and the resolution are being transmitted to the interested authorities of this Government."

A copy of a resolution of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario passed on the seventh day of April, A.D. 1926, follows:

"On motion of Mr. Ferguson, seconded by Mr. Sinclair.

"Resolved, That in view of the application to the United States Congress for legislation to authorize a further diversion of water by the Chicago drainage canal from the Great Lakes system, this House desires to place on record the following facts and considerations:

"The sanitary district of Chicago has for some years been abstracting large quantities of water which is part of the watershed of the Great Lakes and diverting it to the Gulf of Mexico. The Province of Ontario, as joint owner with the neighboring states of the American Union has a direct and vital interest in this matter.

"There is in existence a treaty between Great Britain and the United States, dated January 11th, 1909, which governs international boundary waters.

"It has been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States that this treaty expressly provides against uses affecting the natural level and flow of boundary waters without the authority of the United States or the Dominion of Canada within their respective jurisdictions and the approval of the international commission.

"That the application to the United States Congress for legislation to sanction a further diversion at Chicago is in effect a proposal to violate this treaty.

"That legal actions have been brought by several of the States of the Union to have it declared that the United States Congress cannot pass any Act depriving those States of the advantage of the flow of the said water and that such actions are still pending.

"In view of these facts this Legislature is of the opinion that attempts to deal with this matter by way of legislation, without reference to Canada or its interests, are not in accord with the long established friendly relations that have existed between those two countries and ought to continue.

"That this Legislature, therefore, requests that proper steps be taken to represent to the Government of the United States, through diplomatic channels, the unneighborly character of the proposed legislation and the desirability of reaching an early adjustment of the matter by a mutual arrangement in accordance with the terms of the treaty."

"Excellency:—

"In your note of February 5, 1926, relating to the diversion of water from Lake Michigan by the sanitary district of Chicago, reference was made, among other matters, to the failure on the part of this government to state in its note of November 24 last, the considerations which convinced the Secretary of War that the whole of the amount of the withdrawal of water authorized by the permit which he issued on March 3, 1925, to the sanitary district, is essential to the protection of the life and health of the citizens of the locality and to the apprehension of the Canadian government that measures under consideration by Congress relating to the construction of an Illinois and Mississippi waterway are based upon or depend on the indefinite continuance of the abstraction of water of the Great Lakes through the Chicago drainage canal at the present rate of diversion or even upon the increase to 10,000 cubic feet per second of the amount of abstracted. You also stated that the Government of Canada would appreciate any statement which this government might find it possible to make as to the progress which has been attained by the sanitary district and by the municipality of Chicago in the provision of measures called for by the conditions of the permit of March 3, 1925, which will actually diminish the abstraction from the Great Lakes.

"In the embassy's undated note received by the department on May 1, 1926, reference again was made to the project before Congress for the construction of an Illinois-Mississippi waterway, and it was stated that the discussion by the United States and Canada of all outstanding waterways problems would be seriously complicated were the abstraction at Chicago confirmed by a legislative enactment by Congress which would recognize diversions for navigation purposes.

"With reference to the diversions limits, I may state that the limitations made by the War Department showed that those prescribed were the least consistent with due regard to the health of the large population affected by the matter. The material reduction inflow through the sanitary canal in 1925, when it averaged about 8,250 cubic feet per second, caused by low lake levels, developed dangerous sanitary conditions, and has conclusively shown that reduction below the amount named in the permit, cannot safely be required until the sewage treatment plants in the course of construction by the city, are further advanced. The authorizing of an instantaneous maximum not to exceed 11,000 cubic feet per second was due to the fact that at times the flood discharge of the Chicago River is as high as 10,000 cubic feet per second and that the flow through the canal should then be large enough to produce a slope characteristic of a flood of that volume. Otherwise the sewage carried by the river will be swept into the lake and pollute the city water supply. The supply is not filtered and such pollution would be so extensive that it could not be counteracted by chemical treatment.

"The permit issued by the Secretary of War provides for the installation of controlling works to prevent such flood discharges into the lake, but the execution of the complete program required by the permit will be very costly, and it is felt that the installation of sewage disposal plants should have first attention in order sooner to reduce diversion.

"For these reasons the paragraph of the permit relating to the controlling works does not require the installation of these works until 1929. Preliminary investigations concerning the installation have been made and its is expected that detailed plans will be prepared during the ensuing year. No difficulty in the completion of these works prior to the expiration of the permit is anticipated.

"In connection with the question of progress made toward the reduction of diversion, I may state that the permit of March 3, 1925, assigned supervision of the program for installing sewage treatment works to the district engineer at Chicago. He has recently reported that the progress made by the city in carrying out the program is satisfactory. It is understood that the schedule of expenditures adopted for this purpose by Chicago is as follows:

"1925, $17,789,000; 1926, $12,733,000; 1927, $9,379,000; 1928, $10,215,000; 1929, $1,370,000.

"The average sanitary flow through the drainage canal in 1925, after the deduction of about 1,277 cubic feet second used by the City of Chicago for domestic purposes, was about 7,000 cubic feet per second. The installation of water meters was provided for by appropriations made by the city council in January of this year, and consequently it may be expected that in the near future there will be a reduction in the consumption of water used for domestic purposes.

"The bill authorizing the construction, repair and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harborr and for other purposes containing a provision authorizing the improvement of the Illinois River, was not enacted into law during the session of Congress which recently closed. It is understood that the bill will be taken up for consideration shortly after the next session of Congress convenes in December. While this government is glad to give the Canadian Government the factual information requested by Your Excellency, it is not prepared to admit the conclusions stated in Your Excellency's notes of February 5, 1926 and May 1, 1926, as to the legal status of the withdrawal of waters from Lake Michigan. It does, not, however, deem it necessary to enter into a discussion of this phase of the question at the present time.

"The United States is prepared to discuss as suggested in Your Excellency's note of May 1, 1926, the outstanding questions affecting the Great Lakes and their waterways with a view to arriving at joint engineering solutions of those questions and the protection and development of great waterway resources for the mutual benefit of both countries."

HALLE ORCHESTRA SCORES SUCCESS

Manchester Musicians Give Fine Performance in National Concert.

LONDON, April 20.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Herbert Hamilton Hart, noted composer and conductor, who has been permanent conductor of the Halle orchestra, Manchester, since 1920, achieved a triumph at the recent national concert of the British Broadcasting Company at Queen's Hall here. The orchestra's playing of Berlioz' "Fantastic" Symphony scored a sensational success, according to the well-known London musical critic, Alfred Kalisch. He says: "There certainly has not been a performance like it in London. The beauty of the peaceful sections was as remarkable as the fierce energy and the wild humor of the others. The beauty of the tone was striking throughout and the whole was a object-lesson in what can be done by unanimty and training. The performance caused huge enthusiasm.

EVADING THE REGULATIONS.

In an address at Woodstock on Wednesday Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, once more repeated his warning that motorists who defy the traffic regulations will be dealt with severely.

It is to be hoped that the Minister's ultimatum will prove to be something more than mere words.

There is a type of motorist undeserving of sympathetic treatment on the part of the authorities; the driver who is deaf to appeals and indifferent to the safety of others has no right to expect to be leniently regarded.

Unfortunately, however, the traffic regulations are being evaded, and it would be a decidedly bad thing for public safety were the impression to become general that these rules can be broken with impunity.

Were a systematic check-up of headlights, brakes and operators' licenses to be undertaken the results might be an eye-opener to the public.

It would be an interesting piece of information, for example, to know just how many drivers there are operating cars in Peterborough who have not the operator's license the law says they must have.

EMPIRE SHOPPING WEEK.

The list of made-in-Peterborough articles that are to be displayed here in connection with the Empire Shopping Week indicates that the movement so far as the directing of public attention to the products of local factories is concerned will be a success.

Made-in-Peterborough goods are, of course, made-in-the-Empire goods, and their display is a logical feature of the campaign.

The effort should, however, be made more comprehensive than that if the objects of Empire Shopping Week are to be fully attained, inasmuch as the movement is designed to awaken the public to the need of Empire buying generally.

It should, therefore, be possible for local merchants to co-operate by making displays of Empire products in their windows during the week.

Most local stores sell such products—and could arrange attractive windows that would do much to advertise these articles during Empire Shopping Week.

Goods from other parts of the Empire should be featured along with Peterborough products if the campaign is to round out to its desired proportions.

WOMEN IN POLITICS.

The success of the national convention of Liberal women at Ottawa has a general significance apart altogether from what effect it may have upon the fortunes of the Liberal party.

The women of this country have the franchise in Federal politics, and it is of the greatest importance, therefore, that they should devote more attention to political matters and develop a closer acquaintance with political policies and problems.

It has been charged—and the indictment is to a great degree true—that the majority of Canadian women know very little about politics.

That condition, it is obvious, must be remedied now that they have the vote, and that their ballots play a big part in deciding the fate of Governments.

Conventions such as this week's successful gathering at Ottawa are an important step toward awakening among women voters a consciousness of their duty as electors.

The hundreds of delegates from all sections of Canada will carry the torch to their home communities, and out of this missionary work should come a very marked kindling of interest in political activities among the women of the Dominion.

FLYING THE STARS AND STRIPES.

That summer is a great deal closer than weather conditions would give us any right to expect is indicated by a dispatch from St. Catharines which states that the Lincoln County Council is drawing the attention of Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of Defence, to the over-display of United States flags on the part of Canadian proprietors of summer camps and road stands.

Members of the Lincoln Council protest that in many places American flags are so displayed as to take precedence over the Union Jack.

This is a new angle of the flag question, and one with which this district is not particularly concerned, inasmuch as it is but rarely that the United States flag is displayed here for commercial purposes.

There is indeed no reason why Canadians anywhere should fly an alien ensign, particularly as the influence is inevitable that the display is not a compliment to our American visitors but merely a gesture that it is hoped will be a business-bringer.

Our United States friends do not hang out the Union Jack on their places of business to lure us in, and Canadians who seek to secure trade by using the Stars and Stripes are insulting the intelligence of visitors from over the border

We can be friendly and courteous and hospitable to our guests surely without be-decking Canadian towns with flags of another country for a purpose that does not conceal itself.

"BRANDING" THE FILMS.

The ballyhoo of motion picture press agents is soon to be counterbalanced to some extent in Ontario by the judicious use of classification lettering. All films released for exhibition in the province will be designated, it is understood, by the letter "A" or he letter "U." Films suitable for adults only will be marked "A" by the Board of Censors, and theatres will be required to display this designation letter in advertising the pictures concerned. If a film is regarded as suitable for audiences of all ages, it will be classified as "Universal", marked with a "U" and advertised by the theatres as such. Then it will be up to the parents. Children under 16 will not be prohibited by law from seeing pictures marked "A", but will be admitted if their parents allow them to attend the show. The natural tendency, however, will be for parents to withhold permission in the case of films advertised as "A" pictures. It will take a lot of enthusiastic press-agenting to overcome the effect of that first letter of the alphabet in the minds of thinking fathers and mothers.

The Belanger bill, introduced in the Legislature, would have prohibited attendance of children under 16 at shows which had not been specially censored for children, but at the request of Premier Ferguson the bill was withdrawn for the time being. The special classification shows by letter is to be the Government's alternative plan, apparently.

Unfortunately for the complete success of such a classification, it cannot be assumed that children who attend the movies always have the consent of parents. In fact, school authorities in London and other cities report that pupils are often in the habit of attending picture shows without consent, very frequently to the neglect of their studies. And children can hardly be expected to respect the implication of the "A" classification for pictures.

A good effect of the classification scheme, however, should appear in an increased demand for films good enough to bear the "Universal" designation. Theatre managers will undoubtedly find, if the Board of Censors does its work properly, that the public will look for films marked "U." Showing of "A" pictures will be reflected unprofitably in box office receipts. And, after all, in the campaign for reform, the theatre managers are on the side which will yield them the biggest returns.—London Advertiser.

GOVERNMENT BROADCASTING.

Mr. Cardin's announcement that consideration is being given the question of establishing a Government broadcasting monopoly in Canada is certain to provoke much discussion and much criticism and the Administration may be expected to step very cautiously in the matter. There are many points on which the public will want full information before coming to a conclusion on the merits of the scheme. It is necessary to know, for instance, whether the Government would operate through one broadcasting station with an elaborate system of relays, as in the Confederation "hook-up," or through local stations situated at strategic points; whether any consideration would be given the claims, legal or moral, of existing broadcasting companies; whether advertising programs would be permitted; how the monopoly would be administered.

But it a general way and with the present limited knowledge of just what the Government has in mind there are many apparent dangers in any scheme of national broadcasting in this country. The situation in England is quite different. The British Government through its broadcasting system is serving a large and compact population through an atmosphere comparatively clear of interference. The Canadian Government would have listeners three thousand miles apart, and every tax-payer from Dawson City to Cape Breton would demand as his right the ability to pick up every program put on the air. Furthermore the Government station would have to compete on every dial with the inextricable confusion caused by hundreds of United States stations clamoring for a chance at the loud speaker.

The "seemingly unsatisfactory condition now obtaining" mentioned by Mr. Cardin is a result of broadcasting conditions across the international line rather than in the Dominion. Advertising "blurbs" have become so pronounced a feature of American programs as to become an abominable nuisance, but that is a matter over which even a radio commission of the Canadian Government would have no control. After all, somebody has to pay the bill, and if not the advertiser then it must be the national treasury—which has an element of unfairness to those who do not "listen in"—or the radio-owners themselves through an increased license fee which would be attended by difficulties in collection even greater than experienced now with a dollar tax per year per machine.

All of these are practical issues quite apart from the strong objection many entertain to the idea of giving any Government exclusive access to such a powerful agency of propaganda, conscious or unconscious, as the radio. But the whole question is one of great and growing importance and worthy of the Government's careful study.—Ottawa Journal.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 20. — There were but 41 fresh cattle in yesterday, not enough to make any price changes. Wednesday's market was well cleaned up, except for a few stale left-overs and calves. Everything was cleared at prices steady with Wednesday, showing a firm market, and about 25 cents higher on top-heavy steers and butchers.

Choice handyweight butcher steers and heifers firmer at $10.00 to $10.50. Heavy steers, $10.50 to $11.00.

Calves, a dollar lower at $12.50 to $13.50 tops.

Stockers and feeders, active demand at firm prices. Choice short-keep feeders, $8.75 to $9.25. Stockers, good to choice Western heifers, $7.25 to $7.90.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 20 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in Canadian grain here yesterday was extremely dull owing to the fact that foreign buyers failed to respond to a local exporter's views. The domestic trade was also quiet, but the undertone was firm.

The demand for spring and winter wheat grades of flour was of a limited character, but prices were unchanged.

A fairly active trade was done in all lines of millfeed, and prices were well maintained. There was no change in prices for standard grades of rolled oats, but the undertone was strong.

The wholesale and jobbing trade in eggs continued good, and values were firm. The receipts were 1,790 cases.

Prices for imported beans ruled firm under a moderate demand from all sources.

A feature of the butter trade was the marked improvement in the demand from local buyers and a more active business was accomplished, with the result that prices advanced ¼c to ½c per pound. The receipts were 1,218 packages.

There was some demand from local buyers for fodder made cheese yesterday, and sales of eastern No. 1 white and colored were made at 19½c per pound, while Western was quoted at 20c per pound. The receipts were 455 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 20 (Canadian Press). — Successive waves of new buying that formed the heaviest trading witnessed in months carried all grain yesterday up to prices heretofore untouched this season. Reports of showers in the south-west and west had only a transient market effect in the face of otherwise generally unfavorable conditions for domestic cereal crops.

Wheat finished unsettled, 1 cent to 1¼ cents net higher, with corn 1¾c to 2¼ cents up, oats showing ¾ cent to 2¼ cents advance, and provisions at a rise of 15 to 32 cents.

Despite enormous profit-taking sales which at times caused gains to fade away, wheat and other grain as well came back strong as the day drew to a close. Commission house power to absorb the offerings of wheat especially was shown to be more than sufficient to swing the market upward anew. Meanwhile, reports of widespread drought and high winds persisted, with forecasts of frosts last night in winter wheat territory and with indications of a good deal of replanting necessary in the spring crop belt.

A feature of yesterday's advance in wheat prices was that quotations on the May delivery here were inclined to lag as compared with July and September. In this connection, however, a leading trade authority said he was confident that May wheat is to hold a stronger relative position than at present. The bullish new crop outlook and the lateness of the growth season south-west, he said, is bound to reflect back on the May wheat, and in view of high quality of the Chicago stock, the May delivery will appear increasingly attractive to millers and consumers.

Corn traders gave particular attention to advices that weather over the corn belt was unfavorable for field work and that planting was being delayed. Low temperature predictions were a decided factor conducive to buying of oats.

Provisions were active as well as higher, owing mainly to the upward trend both of hog values and of grain.

GOD'S MINUTE

He hath set His love upon me.—Ps. 91:14.

Thou God of our fathers—our Father which art in Heaven, Thou art good to all, and Thy tender mercies are over all Thy works. We thank Thee for the night and for the day; for quietness and rest and sleep, for life and light and love. We confess that we sin against Thee even in our lying down and rising up. We shield ourselves in Thy Fatherhood, and believe that for Christ's sake Thou dost forgive us our sins. We commit ourselves to Thy covenant keeping for this day. Give Thine angels charge over us, and keep each one of us from harm. Guide us with Thine eye. Preserve our going out and our coming in. Keep us in health and safety in body and soul. Help us to live together in peace and love. Give us rule over our own spirits. Fit us for all Thou hast appointed to us, that we hear and do Thy holy will. May our Elder Brother walk with us all the way, and may His presence help and comfort us.

Bless our friends and neighbors, and all whom we love, especially those who may be sick or in any trouble. Comfort and speedily relieve them. Be with the great multitude that go out this morning to toil and weariness, and give them good cheer and rest, and the salvation that is of Thee. For Christ's sake. Amen.

JACK MINER AND THE BIRDS

AND SOME THINGS ABOUT NATURE

Can Birds Smell?

This is a thought that all bird lovers will come face to face with, sooner or later, and though we may not be able to steal bases like Ty Cob, yet if we study the game and watch the fowls, balls of interest are sure to fly our way. There are very few people living in the country that haven't seen crows make some queer manoeuvres when they are hunting food.

One hot July day, many years ago, as brother and I were nearing the house for dinner, one of these old black murderers went quietly flying across the road about two hundred feet east of my house. When about three rods in the field he gave a very sudden right-about-face curve, and hovered for about a second, then started stroking the air back to the fence. Dropping on the top rail he did not even take time to look around, but instantly jumped down among the thick growth of golden-rod, which was nearly as high as the fence. That instant my bare feet started throwing dust, and in less time than it is taking me to write it I had the gun and was pushing two loads of number six in the barrels as I ran to meet him. I got there just in time to draw one long breath, and as he came flapping up up out of the weeds he uttered a gurgling "Caw" at my red face which was smiling all along the gun barrels, and his body dropped beside the road, but a great portion of his feathers floated away on the air. As we picked him up, four unhatched song sparrows spued out of his mouth.

On investigation we found an old stump lying on its side in the fence corner; two projecting roots and its top held the middle about six inches off the ground; and right under there, nestled away in the dry, and perfectly out of sight, was this empty song sparrow's nest.

As the old birds were chirping around near us a real loud argument took place between brother and me as to how the crow located this nest. Brother's first question was, "Jack, didn't you know that birds could smell?" As I laughed he said, "What did you think their nostrils were made for?"

He insisted that this old ground-bird as we call them, had been setting close all morning, and now, just at the heat of the day, the eggs had become too warm and sweaty; the mother had just gotten off to air them as Mr. Crow came flying over, and that the crow did smell the eggs.

I put up such an argument it apparently got on brother's nerves. He said, "Just you wait a minute," and he stepped out into the field and picked up a flat stone about eight inches in diameter, putting it on the stump just above the nest. Then he took a small handful of punk and placed it firmly on the stone. As the day was extremely hot it only required the least touch of a match and he had a smudge started; and sure enough, as the smoke rose in the air it floated to the exact spot where the crow was when he turned so suddenly. "Now," said brother, "are you satisfied?" and he took the stone, with the punk on it, away from the fence and put the fire out. But still we have no proof that the crow smelled the eggs. Yet we were absolutely sure that he could not, and did not, see them until after he dropped off the fence into the weeds.

Since that I have time and again noticed crows and bronze grackles locate birds' eggs where I know they cannot see them.

But I think the turkey buzzard furnishes us the most convincing proof of birds using their nostrils to locate their food, for we actually know that they will come for miles and miles, not to carrion, but to freshly killed beef.

Now here is a fact for you to analyze: One Sunday morning last June I got up at the week-day hour and took a stroll back to the north pond. For some unaccountable reason I forgot to take feed to the family of young pet ducks that were about four weeks old. When I arrived they all came scudding over the water to me. I had no feed so I picked up a little coarse earth and threw it out into the pond, and all went after it; as they rushed out I ran away and came, by a roundabout way, back to the house, first coming about four hundred feet across newly-cultivated earth where I had trees set out six feet atpar; then I came out on the ball-ground and made a crooked path for fully three hundred feet in the dewy grass. As I neared the house I stopped for a few minutes looking at the climbing roses and listening to the birds, when I heard young ducks peeping. Looking up, behold you! here were the little pets following the same trail across the ball park. The sun was just high enough for me to see the path very plainly in the dew, and these toddlers did not vary a foot, but came, in single file, right up within twenty feet before they saw me. I then got some food and they followed me back to their old stepmother who was waiting in her coop for them. I then went and found that these little hungry pets had knocked dust in my tracks all through the cultivated grove. In other words, they had followed every step of my trail to where they overtook me.

On another occasion I had two young pet silver pheasants, and in March, 1909, I went into the little park and forgot to shut the gate; then, instead coming back through it I jumped over the brick wall to the north and went right on to my work which was at that time laying drain tile at the extreme north side of the farm, fully three-quarters of a mile from the park. In going there I had to pass through thirty acres of woods, where I visited three weasel traps; therefore I did not go in a straight course. I left home about seven o'clock. At nine, as I was working with my head down, I heard familiar sounds; looking up, here were my two pet silver pheasants pecking the earth beside me. They stayed there until eleven thirty, then both followed me back home just like two puppies, for their wings were pinioned and they could not fly four feet, and never could as this was done when they were very small. They were about ten months old. There was not a bit of snow on the ground and the weather was quite warm.

Now these are only a few of the hundreds of convincing facts I have personally observed which compel me to believe that birds can smell. I have no positive proof that they can. But I know they can smell, just as much as I know they can hear.

I will tell you how to prove it to your own satisfaction. When it is snowing, take a piece of fresh meat that is cold, and lay it down in the centre of a field. Let it snow under, and if there are crows around see how quickly they will find it! Or if you are in the northern country, throw a piece of meat into the snow and let it drift under; the next morning watch the jay locate it. I refer to the snow because it is the best natural cover on earth and will give the fairest test, but if you are where there is no snow to try it out, just take some chaff, straw, or sawdust and cover your bait with that.

Now I will not say that a crow or blackbird will smell cold birds'-eggs, but if the eggs are warm and sweaty I know that these cannibal birds will locate the nest by the use of their nostrils. "Well," you say, "that cannot be; there was a crow came right up to the barn while I was in there." Yes, but remember he was accustomed to you being around there. Go to the woods where this same crow has been shot at, and see how close you will get to him if the wind is in his favor. The great trouble with the majority of us human beings is that we are too slow to observe.

I once saw a man run bang into a stone wall; his excuse was that he did not see it. When I was a boy in Ohio I went with an Englishman to dig out a rabbit. When we got near the end of the hole Old Jack, as we called him, dropped on his side and ran his arm right in, clear up to his shoulder. I was of course peeking very closely, to see the rabbit, but the instant I saw him pulling out black and white fur I retreated backwards over a pile of loose sand, looking back just in time to see Old Jack get it right in the eyes. And say! he came bounding out of that cavity without being urged, snorting, sneezing and coughing, and with his long hair thoroughly powdered with yellow sand—and something worse. He went here and there and all over at the same moment, trying to gather all the snow in the country in each hand to wash his eyes out with. I was of course all alone and had to conceal my joy. My joy however did not last long, for this poor fellow nearly strangled to death and it was fully fifteen minutes before he could speak; but finally, looking up at me with his eyes and face all apparently washed into one red bfister, he chokingly said, "Jack, Hi didn't smell the beggar till hafter Hi 'ad 'im by the toyle."

COTSWORTH PLAN GAINING SUPPORT

Prominent Business Men Endorse Fixed Date Idea He Advocates.

MONTREAL, Que., April 20.—(By Canadian Press).—Persian Omar, according to his own verses, devoted many years to rebuilding the days and months into a new calendar, only to find that all his astronomical skill could not eliminate "Unborn Tomorrow and Dead Yesterday."

For nearly half a century a British emulator of the poet-astronomer, Moses B. Cotsworth, has been urging no less radical a change than the addition of a month to the twelve which the Gregorian calendar allots to the year. Recently he has gained the ardent support of prominent business men, as well as astronomers, in many countries of the world, notable among Canadian enthusiasts being George Eastman, the camera man.

The innovation is at present being seriously considered by the League of Nations and it is probable that that august body will prepare tentative legislation, to be submitted to the various governments for enactment. Should the nations of the world agree to simultaneously abandon the Gregorian calendar in favor of the thirteen-month calendar it is declared that the inevitable inconveniences and difficulties would be quickly overcome and that the scheme would be working smoothly within two years.

Under the proposed plane the months will contain an equal number of days and weeks, instead of manifesting their present irregularities. Each would be composed of twenty-eight days or four weeks, with the awkward extra day of the normal year tucked away, dateless, between December 28 and January 1. Of course each Leap Year would provide an extra day to be disposed of, but what is a day more or less to an enthusiastic calendar reformer?

Among the numerous advantages cited by the protagonists of the "International Fixed Calendar" are the elimination of inaccurate comparisons now caused by the unequal day and week lengths of the months; the coinciding of month-end and week-end; the simplification of business and commercial calculations through pay days, Sundays and week days falling on four set dates each month, year in and year out; elimination of confusion at present attendant upon setting dates in advance; pinning down of holidays to permanent week days; a fixed Easter, and a speeded up turn-over of money through the change from 12 to 13 monthly settlements.

It is proposed that all public holidays fall on Mondays, the reformers urging that this would, in addition to pleasing the workers, improve matters for the employers by doing away with awkward mid-week breaks. The proposal to shackle that restless feast day, Easter, has met with the approval of leading ecclesiastics and churchmen, it is claimed.

Against these the defenders of the Gregorian calendar set a long list of disadvantages, featured in which are the difficulty of dividing a thirteen-month year into quarters; the increase in the number of monthly closings, reports and statements the awkwardness of the annual blank day, with its nameless sister recurring ever four year; and the general upsetting of long established customs.

A rival thirteen-month calendar which was widely discussed a score of years ago provided a more attractive disposal of the bothersome extra day. It was to be neatly inserted into the centre of June and, bearing no date, to boast the romantic title of 'Midsummer Day.' Midsummer Day was to be a worldwide holiday.

OBITUARY

FRANK McMURTRY.

Word has been received in the city of the death after a short illness, at Midland, of S. Frank L. McMurtry of that town, beloved husband of Eva Anderson McMurtry, formerly of Peterborough.

The funeral will take place tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at Midland.

MRS. JOHN RICHMOND.

Terminating a very brief illness, the death occurred in Rochester on Monday, April 16, 1928, of Lily (Sissie) McGovarin, beloved wife of John Richmond, at the age of twenty-one years. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McGovarin, reside at 490 Parnell street, Peterborough, where deceased also lived prior to her marriage. She was a member of St. James' church.

Left to mourn, besides her sorrowing husband and parents are two brothers and four sisters, namely, James and Fred of Peterborough; Violet, Daisy, Ivey and Rose (Mrs. J. Bolton) of Peterborough.

The funeral took place from 490 Parnell street to Little Lake cemetery, on Thursday, April 19, the Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, of St. James' United church, conducting the service at 2.00 p.m. The pallbearers were John Bolton, George Richmond, Wilbert Smith, William Faiers, Leon Wheeler and Talman Smith.

MAXWELL McCALL.

In Detroit on Saturday, April 14, there passed away, after a two days' illness, Maxwell McCall, son of the Rev. George McCall, now of Brantford but formerly of Springville, aged twenty-five years. Left to mourn are his sorrowing father and mother, three sisters: Mrs. R. Daly of Toronto, Mrs. Reginald Burrows of Halifax, and Miss Barbara McCall, who is attending Toronto University.

The funeral took place from the Comstock Funeral Home on Monday, April 16, Rev. J. E. Todd, Rev. D. Wren and Rev. B. Greatrix conducting the service.

The pall-bearers were Bert Henson of Midland, James Benson of Peterborough, Norman Edmison of Smith Township, H. Daly of Toronto, W. H. Lytle of Peterborough, and Clayton Sanderson of Smith. Mr. Harris of the official board of Mr. McCall's church, Brantford, was also in attendance.

IN POLICE COURT

A resident of Douro Township appeared before the magistrate charged with being intoxicated on Water street, Peterborough. A fine of $15.00 and costs ($4.50) or in default of payment, ten days in jail, was imposed.

were casualties which were not justified. The plaintiff says, 'You have libelled us. There was no organized attack and no casualties' and he backs up this statement with war diaries and records."

Justice Rose interrupted Mr. Regan's questions to outline the various points of the case which it is the counsel's duty to "proe if you can." counsel's duty to "prove if you can." what Mr. Regan intended to establish by his questions regarding the truth or falseness of the war diary.

Mr. Regan submitted that the regulations call for accuracy of the diary since the history of the war is written from it, but the Judge reminded him that Col. Orde had explained where and how the exact information could be obtained.

In reply to a question from the bench, Mr. Regan said, "Yes, I will go so far as to say that these records were deliberately falsified by, under, or with the knowledge or consent of the one man most responsible for the suppression from the world of the knowledge of their casualties."

Evidence Must Be Relative.

Justice Rose insisted that the statement was not relevant to the points of the case, and explained to Mr. Regan that it is the duty of the bench to see that the jury is only presented with evidence relative to the case.

Mr. Tilley: "What my friend is saying, I have tried to follow with the greatest care. One never expects to go into Court and have a witness prepare a statement, file it, and then prove it false. What my friend is doing is trying to add insult to injury." '

Mr. Regan: "I object, my Lord. You stopped me yesterday for talking to the jury. What is he doing now?"

Mr. Tilley: "Just a minute. I will state my case more definitely."

In his further remarks Mr. Tilley referred to the two defendants, but Mr. Preston interrupted saying, "Only one defendant."

His Lordship: "At the opening of the trial the lawyers for the defence said they were acting for Mr. Wilson and Mr. Preston. Later Mr. Preston said he was acting for himself, and has asked several questions."

Mr. Tilley wanted to know if the evidence already submitted had been in his behalf.

Mr. Preston: "I am standing absolutely alone in my own case, and will take advantage of any evidence submitted, and hence shorten a long-drawn-out, double case. I will make a declaration when the time comes."

Mr. Tilley: "Surely I am entitled to know how Mr. Wilson and Mr. Preston stand, for it will be an advantage I should think, for the jury to know whom they are trying for when they come to a decision."

Mr. Regan: "That is a very improper statement. The jury will know whom I represent and whom they are trying when I finish my argument."

This caused considerable arguments as to procedure of the case.

His Lordship: "I didn't grasp from the reading of the article that there was any such charge as now being discussed. Mr. Regan may not have meant all that his words implied. I will ask the reporter to read from his notes."

Following the reading, Mr. Tilley said that it appeared that the charge was not made in so many words by Mr. Regan, but was inferred.

His Lordship: Mr Regan, I would deem it courteous if you would listen to me.'

"It was just for the briefest part of a record, My Lord," Mr. Regan replied, replacing a document on the table.

"Perhaps that was the only time I was looking at you directly," His Lordship replied.

Should Be Capable

When the bench had finished the address, Mr. Regan referred to questions asked Sir Arthur regarding Canadians killed November 11, 1918, which was taken at preliminary hearing. The evidence showed Sir Arthur took oath that there was not a single Canadian killed that morning, and that he spoke after having referred to the official records, he said. These records now show one man killed. Therefore, Mr. Regan claimed, the records were falsified and he intimated that his inexperience was a definite handicap to his case. This latter remark caused the bench to remind Mr. Regan that any lawyer coming into court to plead a case should be capable of conducting it. This was entirely a matter for the satisfaction of the client.

"It is utterly impossible to try a case properly unless we know definitely what the case is," said His Lordship.

His Lordship wanted to know if out of the newspaper article or the defense pleas there arose such an issue as Mr. Regan suggested when he charged that war records had been falsified for the purpose of not showing up the number of Canadians killed in the Battle of Mons. "We can never try the case successfully unless this issue is cleared up," said His Lordship.

Mr. Regan evaded the issue by answering unsatisfactorily, according to the ruling of the bench.

Mr. Tilley: "My friend is persistently trying to enter this implication without being responsible for it. I can't in the interests of my client, allow it to go on.

The judge asked that the matter be cleared up at once.

Mr. Preston said that he had no intention of implicating Sir Arthur Currie in the falsification of the records of the war. Mr. Regan said that he agreed with what Mr. Preston said.

After a short recess, Col. Orde was called as a witness and questioned about casualties on November 11. The records show one killed and 15 wounded, said the witness.

Q.—Are you sure the records are correct?

A.—The records have been checked as closely as possible.

Mr. Preston—Is there any record of the bodies found in Mons on November 11 and a record of those names.

A.—There is a record of those that were buried at a funeral on the 12th. The war diary of the 42nd Battalion, 3rd Division states Lance Corporal B. R. Jones, Private T. Mills, Pte. J. A. Daigle, Pte. B. Brigden were unfortunately killed during fighting around Mons on November 10. All funeral arrangements were taken over by the city and report says it was a most gorgeous funeral, with oak caskets being used.

Many flowers were placed on the caskets and graves by the citizens of Mons. The funeral was conducted by Major Kilpatrick. Major General Loomis, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., commander of the 3rd Division, thanked the citizens for their kindness.

This answer did not suit Mr. Preston, who wanted to know if witness had any record of the bodies found in the streets of Mons.

Witness—We have no record.

Asked in the preliminary examination, Sir Arthur Currie stated there were no deaths. This answer was given on information received from the Department at Ottawa In the witness box this morning, Col. Orde says that in the report furnished General Currie, no deaths on November 11th, 1918, were shown. But on a closer check-up he had found the name of Pte. Price as being reported killed. This was not told Sir Arthur, the witness said.

Questioned by Mr. Tilley, Col. Orde explained that army instruction books were not carried by troops in the line and that the war diary in the lower units, battalions and batteries, was usually prepared by a junior combatant officer with several other duties to perform. The diary would contain the names of officers and numbers of other ranks of the casualties. These diaries covered the period daily from midnight to midnight.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

Editor, The Examiner, City.

Sir,—Your report of the proceedings in Port Hope, when James Akey appeared before the local Magistrate there, charged with perjury, in last night's issue of your paper, has been drawn to my attention.

In the synopsis of the evidence of Chief Murphy, the following statement appears: "A lady friend sat beside him ,and Barnard was reclining in the back seat," meaning, I persume, that the lady friend sat beside him, Akey. As a matter of fact, the lady in question was not a lady friend of Akey's, and it appeared in the evidence, given at Port Hope, when Mr. Akey was tried on a charge of being drunk while in charge of a car, that the lady was a friend of Barnard's.

I would appreciate it if you would correct the impression that some of the public have gotten, that the lady friend in question was a friend of Barnard's, and not of Akey's.

Yours, etc.,
J. A. O'BRIEN.

Simple Home Recipe For Bad Stomach Gives Swift Relief

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this good advice.

Artificial digestants and starvation diets are seldom needed. Within reason, most folks may eat what they like, if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion. And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a little Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless form of Magnesia that swiftly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A few days' trial of Bisurated Magnesia (powder or tablets), which any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that fully 90 per cent of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary. Try Bisurated Magnesia today!

CRAP GAME CLEANED UP

Lady Luck was looking out the window when two armed gunmen walked in on a "big money crap game" which was under way in a downtown Toronto club room. After cooly and methodically going through the pockets of the dice players they mde a quiet departure with $5,000. "Everyone was taking an interest in the game when these birds walked in and announced they wanted our dough," said a taxi driver who was present. The bandits greeting was uncompromising "stick" up your hands you—" they ordered "Not a move or a peep out of any one of you or we'll fill you so full of lead you won't float." As they were departing two of the victims spoke out: "Say, you fellows, have a heart," they entreated. "We're flat broke—how are we going to get home?" "Take this," said one of the gunmen as he threw a $5 bill on the floor.

Some people have a quaint idea about this Clean-Up and Paint-Up movement. They feel, perhaps, that they can go just half way and reach the same goal, which, of course, isn't at all true.

To clean up around the grounds and in attics and under cellar stairways is the first logical step. To paint a house inside and out promotes cheerfulness, sanitation and increased property value. Then come the countless "dress-up" ideas, which put the finishing touch on the job.

It may be fresh paint in some of the obscure places; window boxes, trellises and porch steps given a bright new coat—whatever it is, there is a lesson in the story of Bill, the Tramp, who used to bathe regularly twice a week in the village swimming hole, and then put his dirty old rags on again, exactly as before.

The law provides penalties for those liable to taxation if a return is not made by April 30.

GET copies of the official form applicable to your case without delay. They may be secured at any Post Office in Canada, or by writing the Inspector of Income Tax for your district.

Fill in all the details requested. Make up the amount of your tax. Mail two copies to the Inspector in your district, together with an accepted bank cheque or money order as mentioned below. Keep a third copy for your own reference.

If your income for 1927 is more than $1,500, but you think you are not liable to taxation because of exemptions, it is best to file the return in any event. You have only till April 30 to make your return.

Three Kinds of Forms

There are three kinds of Dominion Income Tax Forms, one of which will apply to any tax payer. The different forms are:

Form T 1 —For all individuals, other than farmers or ranchers.

Form T 2 —For corporations and joint stock companies.

If you so desire, the Inspector of Income Tax for your district will send you upon written request a revised copy of The Income War Tax Act, Consolidated, Chapter 97 (R.S.C. 1927).

Income from All Sources Must be Declared

The public is especially reminded to report all income from bearer bonds—whether Dominion, Provincial, Municipal or industrial. The interest from these bonds is taxable. The 928 legislation enlarges the powers of the department which is ow enabled to trace the ownership of all bearer bonds.

Personal Exemptions

Personal exemptions should be noted carefully. They may be summarized as follows:

(a) $3,000 in the case of a married person or householder, or any other person who has dependent upon him any of the following persons:

1. A parent or grand-parent.
2. A daughter or sister.
3. A son or brother under 21 years of age; or incapable of self-support on account of mental or physical infirmity—except where the husband and wife each have a separate income in excess of $1,500, then each shall receive not $3,000 exemption, but $1,500 exemption.

(b) $1,500 in the case of unmarried persons.

(c) $500 for each child under 21 years of age who is dependent upon the tax payer for support, or if 21 years of age or over is incapable of self-support on account of mental or physical infirmity.

Send Cheque with the Return

Income tax may be paid either in a lump sum or in four installments, plus interest. An accepted cheque or express or money order for either the full amount or the amount of the first installment must accompany the official forms. Do not send cash. April 30 is the last day.

The return and the cheque are to be mailed to the Inspector of Dominion Income Tax for your district.

Canada's Income Tax Schedule

Following is the schedule of income taxation applicable to persons other than corporations and joint stock companies. The amounts mentioned are net, that is, the exemptions have been subtracted.

CAMEL WORTH MORE THAN WIFE

That a camel is worth more than a wife, was the declaration of a native of Egypt who recently offered both to an English clergyman. He first offered the wife for the equivalent of $25. "Why do you want to sell her?" he was asked. "She is old and fights", was the laconic reply. "Then she would fight me", said the clergyman. "No, not an English gentleman", was the answer The offer being refused the native then offered the camel for $100. Asked to explain the difference in prices, he replied curtly, "Camel better than wife."

Would Establish Just Native Policy

CAPE TOWN, South Africa. April 20.—Canadian Press Cable via Reuters.—Sir Hilton Young, head of the commission appointed to visit the East African colonies, and recommend if an economic or other union was advisable, has completed its task, and arrived here yesterday en route to England. Sir Hilton stated that the principal impression the commission received in the British territories from Kenya to the Cape was the effort being made everywhere to establish a native policy on a just basis.

PETERBORO' GIRL SUPERVISOR OF HOSPITAL IN MOUNTAINS

DOING GOOD WORK.

Large Mountain Areas, Without Roads, Served By Band of Heroic Women.

With a reference to Miss Alice Logan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Logan of this city, a nurse engaged in work in Kentucky, the Literary Digest for March 31st carries an interesting article which gives in detail a graphic idea of the work of the "Hard-Riding Nurse of Kentucky", as the heading puts it. It says:

"Swollen rivers and rocky trails are no bar to the district nurses in Leslie County, Kentucky, when the lives of a woman and an expected baby are in the balance. If sometimes they have to get to 'yon side' by swimming their horses or by crossing a foot-bridge swung by cable over a river, with the swirling water below running fifteen or twenty feet deep, and then crawl up a mountainside on all fours, they make no bones of it. That is part of life in the hills For there is no railroad in Leslie County, no automobile road, no horse bridge over the river. Mail comes in from Lexington, 140 miles away, by mule wagon and by mule-back. All of which makes the work of these nurses essential in this out-of-the-way spot in the United States, and, incidentally, goes to show, too, that there are still romance, heroism, self-sacrifice in this age of jazz, night-life and cabarets. Mary Breckenbridge tells us about these nurses and their work, in an interesting and colorful article in The Woman's Journal. The nurses, she tells us, have their own horses, and each saddles and feeds and grooms her mount as tenderly as any Arab tends his steed, for, we read:

"'Not only the nurse's own life, on dark winter nights, but those the stork is bringing, depend on the speed and sure-footedness of a devoted creature, whose flying hoofs scatter the rocks from the narrow trails up creek beds and over the gaps of the tallest mountain. No matter what the weather, if the man come for the nurse, the nurse can go with him. One of them followed a father up Thousand Sticks Mountain one time in a blinding storm, the last few hundred yard on all fours, he throwing the saddle-bags up above them every few steps and both climbing up after.

"'At Wendover a nurse was called out at 4.30 o'clock on the morning after Christmas for a case on Coon Creek, six miles away. The man who fetched her said the backwater from the river covered the road most of the last mile, and his horse had sometimes to swim. Eight hours later her horse, Nellie Gray, came back dripping wet, saddle-bags dangling, and riderless. If one's hair turned white every time, we should all be crowned with snow. This time the strain was not for long. Soon the missing nurse came down the trail. She had been dragged off her horse, but was uninjured.'

"What is this body of nurses which gives such trained service—the only trained service within reach of the Leslie County mountaineers? Mrs. Breckenbridge tells us:

"'It is a group of public-health nurses, who must be trained in maternity work, as well as in general nursing, to qualify permanently on our staff. At the close of our first two years we have ten of them. They include American-trained nurses like Gladys Peacock and Mary Willeford, who have gone to England at their own expense to take the preparation given maternity nurses there, and pass the English Board examinations; and equally splendid English nurses, three of them from the famous Queen's Nursing Service, who have come to help us put over in the new world the program which has lowered the death-rate of mothers and babies in the old.

"'Our nurses live in centers, each in the heart of her district, in a radius of not more—sometimes less—than five miles in all directions. Such an area is approximately seventy-eight square miles,—a huge territory, and yet the nurse in the heart of such a district is not more than five miles on horseback from her farthest patient.

"'The oldest of these centres is in Hyden, the county seat. There we have a loosely made rented wooden house, with floors of one thickness of unseasoned wood, much warped, between the planks of which the wind whistles all winter. But there we are now building, as headquarters for the District Nursing Service and the supervisor, Miss Alice Logan, a cottage hospital after the Scotch fashion. It is a charming house of the native stone and stands on the slopes of Thousand Sticks Mountain, above the little county seat, looking up and down the river.'

"It was because there was no skilled service for the people in Leslie County, as there is, we read, for every peasant mother in the Pyrenees and Alps, the Scotch Highlands and the Apennines, that the Kentucky Committee for Mothers and Babies was organized, and later incorporated, in Louisville. Let us see what an important gap these maternity nurses fill:

"'There is only one physician and one part-time physician in our county for ten thousand people scattered over 373 square miles. Greater New York has a doctor for every 475 people and a hospital bed for every 135. Due to the appalling scarcity of medical service in our country district, we have been asked by the State Board of Health of Kentucky, whose chief, Dr. Arthur McCormack, has been our big friend from the beginning, and is one of our trustees, to give hookworm treatment and inoculate against typhoid and diphtheria. Because we render our neighbors essential services in hours of pain and danger, and because their leaders are on our district committees, they cooperate with us in this preventive work. Such has been their response that during the first two years since our nursing began, we have 6,360 inoculations against typhoid and diphtheria alone, and have practically eliminated thees two diseases from the area we cover.'"

Rooster Beats Way On Tender Truck

KINGSTON, April 19.—A Tichborne rooster has set a precedent here, it is believed, by being the first of its species to steal a ride on a freight train. Paid passage was waiting, but the bird chose to come to Kingston riding in the most perilous spot he could find.

When the rest of the birds were being loaded at Tichborne the rooster made his escape. When the train started the bird was still missing.

About 3 o'clock in the morning workmen in the roundhouse here were startled by a rooster crowing. A diligent search was made, but the bird could not be located. Still the crowing continued.

Later in the morning when the engine from Tichborne was taken out to the turn-table the mystery was solved. Then one of the workers discovered what yesterday had been a white rooster sitting triumphantly on one of the trucks of the engine tender.

POISONOUS FUNGUS DEBAUCHES TRIBES

Siberian Tribesmen Swallow It Whole Before Entering Battle.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 20.—(By Canadian Press).—Traders from the Siberian coast have brought back with them stories of the weird effects of the "toadstool jag", described as the last word in debauchery for the Koraks of Kamchatka, northeastern Asia.

It is said that the effects of this poisonous fungus rival the high jinks of hashish, accelerator of Orientals in their wild moments. Vodka is as nothing to these peasants, however strong it may be to others. Even "smoke drinkers" would probably not attempt the habit of the Siberian natives because the basis of the "jag" is the Amanita, one of the fatally poisonous varieties of fungus.

Many years ago the Koraks learned about the Amanita. Usually it is allowed to dry on the ground before being taken, as it is said to be far more potent in that state than when pulled from the ground while still growing and allowed to dry in the air.

It is a simple process—preparing the Amanita for the "toadstool jag" The peasants merely pick the thing from the ground, roll it into a ball and swallow it whole. When the tribes are about to clash in battle the men consume large quantities of the herb and immediately are filled with the fighting spirit. In peace time, however, the Amanita is consumed conservatively except by the village "sots."

MARAUDING INDIANS MENACE SETTLERS

Government Will Attempt T Round Up Band in British

VICTORIA, B.C., April 20.—(B Canadian Press).—Marauding Chil cotin Indians are a menace to peace ful settlement of the open rang country west of the Fraser River i some sections, according to report received here by the government an efforts will be made during the nex few weeks to round up the troubl makers and bring them to account.

The Indians are said to be led b a wily and unscrupulous native whos capacity to elude observation or de tection is baffling game wardens an provincial police.

Among the charges laid agains the Indians is the setting of thirty five forest fires simultaneously, re sulting in the loss of valuable tim ber, game animals and damage t private property.

The Indians are said to resent th encroachment of whites, especially t the region to the northwest of Ques nel, where a large muskrat farm wa recently established. Thousands o muskrats were captured and place in a huge wire-bound inclosure hun dreds of acres in extent. The In dians, it is said, claim that thes operations have reduced their suppl of muskrats and placed a reserve o lakes and marshes hitherto breedin grounds for muskrat over a wid area.

The government has been asked t appoint employees of the muskra farm as special constables so tha they may take summary actio against the despoilers.

CATNIP IS USED TO TRAP COUGARS

Big Mountain Cats as Fond o Herb as Their Domestic Cousins.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 20.—(B Canadian Press).—Catnip is bein used in British Columbia as a lur for cougars and, according to Chair man M. B. Jackson of the Provincia game conservation board, it is prov ing extremely effective.

"The cougar is just a big cat i many ways and, like every othe pussy, it is mighty fond of catnip, said Mr. Jackson. "We have bee importing oil of catnip and sprink ling it about the ground wher cougar traps are fixed. We ar planning to use such a lot of catni that I am making arrangements t have the herb grown in British Co lumbia."

The United States bureau of bi ological survey is closely watchin British Columbia's experiments wit catnip as a cougar bait with a vie to adopting its use in state afflict ed with the cougar menace.

Meanwhile British Columbia ha imported trained cougar dogs fro the state lion hunter in Californi and these, combined with catnip baited traps, should be pretty deadl on the cougar species, Mr. Jackso thinks.

REAR ADMIRAL KERR SUCCEEDS COLLARD

New Man in Charge of First Mediterranean Battle Squadron.

LONDON, April 20.—(By Canadian Press).—Rear-Admiral William Munro Kerr, who succeeded Rear-Admiral Bernard St. G. Collard in the First Battle Squadron, Mediterranean Fleet, following the trouble on H.M.S. Royal Oak at Malta between Rear-Admiral Collard and Captain Kenneth, G. B. Dewar and Commander H. M. Daniel over a dance with the result that the rear-admiral was ordered to lower his flag and recommended to be relieved of his command—which was tantamount to dismissal—is 52 years of age. This is his first command afloat since his promotion to flag rank in January 1927. He entered the Navy in 1890. In 1913 he was navigating officer of the King George V., and in 1916 served in the Operations Division of the Admiralty Naval Staff.

During the latter part of the war Rear-Admiral Kerr commanded the cruiser Caradoc and for a short time in 1919 acted as British Consul-General at Odessa. He held the post of Captain of the Dockyard and King's Harbor Master at Rosyth during 1921-1923, and became Senior Officer, Reserve Fleet the Nore, in February 1924.

His last command before reaching flag rank was the aircraft carrier Eagle, Mediterranean Fleet, April 1925 to October 1926. For six months before his promotion to Rear-Admiral on Jan. 24, 1927, he was Aide-de-Camp to the King.

The court-martial which convicted Commander Daniel and Captain Dewar for conduct subversive of discipline in connection with the dance incident of the Royal Oak was held on board the aircraft carrier Eagle at Gibraltar. Both officers were reprimanded and dismissed from their ships.

ARE WOMEN CAPABLE TO ACT AS CLERGY?

Bishop Henson Opposes Dean Inge's Idea of Women in Orders.

LONDON, April 20.—(By Canadian Press).—In a recent despatch the sentiments were conveyed of Dean Inge, of St. Paul's Cathedral, that women are competent to do all the work that the present lower orders of clergy do, whether in preaching or visiting or in giving spiritual counsel.

The Bishop of Durham, Dr. Herbert Hensley Henson, has since expressed himself in direct disagreement with the Dean of St. Paul's. He admits the enormous decrease in the number of ordination candidates. "It is not in my mind", the Bishop continues, "that by the admission of women to Holy Orders the present crisis ought to be met. There is no assumption of female inferiority in excluding women from Holy Orders, but only a recognition of their distinctiveness in a natural function, and that distinctiveness cannot be ignored. The church of England would hardly be justified in taking up on its own authority a position which would involve a departure from the institution of Christ and the traditions of the universal church."

Further the Bishop of Durham says: "I find no reason in the present situation, and none in the spiritual achievements of individual women past or present, which could justify so great a breach with the traditions of Christendom as the admission of women of Holy Orders on equal terms with men. The world needs to-day the fulfilment of women's normal natural functions. For what is the most menacing evil of our times? Is it not the repudiation of the wifely and motherly functions by women. This is a contemporary feature, partly the result of our insular position, partly the consequence of the Great War, as well as the fact that a multitude of single women, through no fault of their own, cannot receive the normal function of domestic life, and are therefore casting about for alternatives."

ORIENTALS TRYING TO GROW LARGER

Demand For White Man's Food Aids Sale of Canadian Products.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 20.—(By Canadian Press).—The people of the Orient are dissatisfied with their size. They regard themselves as too small and in order to increase their stature they are consuming much larger quantities of the white man's food.

That is the assertion of G. H. McWilliams, Canadian elevator man, who has made a study of the Orient's food requirements, especially with regard to cereals.

"There is a pronounced desire among the Chinese to increase their stature", said Mr. McWilliams. "With this idea in mind they are considering the use of white bread in preference to rice, which has been the staple food of the Oriental since the days of Confucius.

"The Japaneses also have a plan to set aside one day a week for the consumption of bread made from white flour. So, you see, with all the millions of the Orient eating white bread, the most logical result is a tremendously increased market for Canadian wheat. Sales in that territory are already growing rapidly."

CAMPBELLFORD, April 20.-While no actual work was started on the paving program during the first of this week, the engineer in charge has been busy completing his survey.

St. John's Y. P. League

Electricity was proven to be a greater benefit to humanity than steam as a result of a verdict handed down after Monday evening's debate at St. John's Young People's League. The Hoards team of the Seymour charge were the visitors and supported the cause of steam as the affirmative of the debate. Mitchell Rannie and Miss Irene Thompson upheld the honor of the rural society, but were unable to defeat the local pair, Miss Chrissie McGirr and Miss Helen Atkinson. While many useful points were brought forward by each side, some familiar and some quite strange to most folk. The count on points alone seemed to indicate a very close discussion, however the experience and platform conduct of Misses McGirr and Atkinson swayed the balance in their favor.

The Rev. C. D. Daniel was chairman for the occasion, and H. M. Donald as official time keeper. The judges were Messrs. H. Coxwell, Campbellford, F. Heagle and the Rev. D. Clare, of Norham.

As neutral judge and appointed critic, the Rev. Mr. Clare gave the critic's report. His criticism was kind and very constructive showing that he, himself, had a clear insight into the real meaning of the debate. Both sides had failed to reach the objective, that of comparing the values of the agencies discussed and merely the surface had been touched in the addresses.

The Rev. C. Daniel then assumed the role of community song leader and a jolly period was spent until refreshments were served by the St. John's League, to a large number of Hoard's supporters who accompanied the team.

LEAGUE UNION AIDS POLICIES OF LORD CECIL

Viscount Cushenden Condemns Its Action For Daring To Pass Resolutions.

FASTER DISARMAMENT.

Piquant Dispute Has Arisen in England Between Two Statesmen.

LONDON, April 20.— A lively row has developed between Lord Cushenden and Viscount Cecil on the question of whether the League of Nations union, a powerful body boasting of 30,000 members is devoted to the league, it was revealed yesterday.

Supports Cecil.

Lord Cushenden has denounced the union for "daring" to pass resolutions contrary to the policy of the cabinet, while Viscount Cecil is strongly defending the union. Premier Baldwin is silent in the controversy. The union wants more disarmament and is apparently devoted to Cecil's policy.

Personal Affair.

Lord Cushenden has already said with some bitterness that Cecil is using the union as a means of putting forward his own policies, contending that he is as good a leaguer as Cecil. The piquancy of the position is that Cushenden took Cecil's place as British representative on the league when Cecil resigned.

REGAN AGAIN TRIES TO GET

Only One Witness.

Only one witness was placed on the stand yesterday afternoon by the defense in the Currie libel action. Col. Orde, one of four officers from the records department at Ottawa, took the stand shortly after five o'clock and produced such papers and documents as was requested until Justice Rose adjourned the court at twelve minutes past six. Just before the adjournment. Mr Tilley, K.C., counsel for Sir Arthur Currie, asked Col. Orde to prepare for to-day's session, a complete list of the names, etc., of all the fatal casualties of the 2nd Canadian Division from Nov. 8th to 15th 1918, both days inclusive. The colonel promised to do so if he could be furnished stenographic assistance. This was immediately granted.

Immediately the court was opened at 2 p.m. T. F. Hall, K.C., resumed the reading of the evidence given at the preliminary examination. Until twenty minutes past three, he continued to read uninterrupted and had only reached question number 1910. Two minutes later, Frank Regan, who is conducting the defense, relieved Mr. Hall and at twelve minutes to four had arrived at question 2015, leaving 634 yet to be read.

At 4.05 Mr. Regan read the question relating to the incident of the band playing in Mons on the morning of Nov. 11th.

"The band remained behind to entertain the populace," Mr. Regan explained to the jury. His remark won for him a rebuke from the bench.

"Now listen to this," Mr. Regan cautioned almost as soon as he had begun to read again.

"Mr. Regan, how many times must I speak to you?" Justice Rose reprimanded the reader, who made a plea of 'forgetfulness. 'Nothing more, my Lord,' and continued reading till the court adjourned for recess at 4.20 p. m.

At 4.35, when the court was re-assembled, T. F. Hall, K.C., took over the reading and progressed as far as question 2182, when Mr. Tilley interrupted as Mr. Hall paused, saying that the counsel had not been able to agree as to the admissability of the questions which followed and submitted the matter for the ruling of the bench. These questions were with reference to the now famous "dugout episode," which was the cause of Col. John Currie being recalled to Canada. The exact questions are numbers one and 28A of the adjourned hearing of the preliminary examination.

W. N. Tilley, K.C., submitted that the questions were "etnirely foreign to what we have to consider here."

The questions were ruled out.

Adjournment Refused.

Without a witness ready to enter the box and with his case temporarily at a standstill, Mr. Regan reminded the bench that the day had been a strenuous one, and intimated that an adjournment would be appreciated.

"What is the inference, Mr, Regan? That I adjourn the court? I don't think I can halt the case if you have a witness to put in the box."

Mr. Regan explained that he had three witnesses. One had just been given leave by his commanding officer, provided the proper subpoena was served. This officer was in Kingston. The subpoena, he understood, had been served, and the officer would appear as speedily as possible.

Mr. Wilson, who had been at the counsel table a moment before, was not in court. Mr. Regan called Col. Orde, Ottawa, and had him produce documents relative to the signing of the armistice. One was a copy of the despatch from the British Imperial Government to the Canadian Government at Ottawa, proclaiming in detail the signing of the armistice. Col Orde said he had no copy of the official armistice document. He told the court that there would be no objection to producing the document in court, and would be glad to do so. He also advised counsel that T. F. Hall's stenographer had copied certain extracts from the official despatch and that copies of these were in court. They were submitted and filed as exhibit No. 41.

Mr. Regan then informed the Court that owing to an oversight on his part, one paragraph which he wished copied had not been copied. He requested it read to the court.

"The paragraph is number 20, Section E, of the document," said Colonel Orde, and proceeded to read a communication to the British fleet relative to the signing of the armistice and the cessation of hostilities.

Asked regarding the meaning of the despatch, the Colonel would not interpret it. "I am not in a position to interpret the meaning of the communication. Its meaning depends on the interpretation of certain words. It means just what it says."

Asked regarding a message which passed between certain units on the Canadian front, Col. Orde said he had inquired by telegraph and there was no record of any such message at Ottawa. Nor was there any record of the message in the war diary of the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade which was produced and examined in Court. This led Mr. Regan to claim the records filed to be in error.

Mr. Regan: "We say the records for November 11 are all wrong, for on that date they enter the casualties up on the ninth."

His Lordship: "On what issue are you directing these questions?"

Mr. Regan: "It deals with information that Sir Arthur Currie should have had or others should have known on the night of November 10."

His Lordship: "I can not see why we are spending hours and hours verifying these records."

Mr. Regan: "I claim the records are wrong and Sir Arthur Currie claims they are right, and has brought them here to verify his claim."

Col. Dupuis was asked on a previous occasion while in the box to endeavor to find the number of Germans killed in action around Mons during the last three days of the war.

Col. Orde said there was no report in Ottawa as to the number of German dead, but he had been able to find the number of prisoners taken by the Third Division during the last days of the war.

Impossible Calculate the Exact Number of Casualties in Bulgaria.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 20 (Canadian Press).—Death, destitution and insanity stalked through south eastern Bulgaria to-day in the wake of a series of earthquakes which have devastated the region. More than a a hundred bodies were counted in Philippopolis and the neighborhood. How many were buried beneath the ruins was not known. To calculate the number of injured, many of whom are in a critical condition, was impossible, as the population fled panic-stricken to the countryside.

Lake Navigation Is Held Up By Weather

Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, April 20. — Canadian Press. — A northwest wind driving a foot of snowfall on Wednesday night, makes the opening of navigation date more remote than ever. Coupled with the snowfall the continued low temperature is holding ice conditions solid in all sections from the Soo. Whitefish Bay is badly piled and solid. In the lower river conditions are unchanged with the ice twelve to eighteen inches thick. The Sabin lock was tested out yesterday but judging from the unfavorable conditions operations are not looked for much before May 1.

Representatives of wrecking concerns who have been endeavoring to make a survey of the steamers which met disaster in last winter's storms on Lake Superior with the possibility of releasing them, have been forced to give up their quest on account of the impossibility of reaching them yet.

TYPES AND HABITS

We are confronted at all times with the problem of understanding different personalities.

It takes a good deal of study along the line of metaphysics to realize why one person is as different from another as a dog is from a fox.

It is not true that all humans are shaped the same, even physically—let alone mentally. While each man who is normal will have one head, two ears, two arms and legs, yet, one will be tall and the other short. While another is thin of waist, his brother may even be burdened with a fifty inch circumference!

How are we to account for these great physical differences when we are supposed to be made in the image of the Creator? The answer is explained very simply if we are to accept the belief that we are what we are because of our habits of thinking, eating, exercising, working, etc. It is true, we are all born with certain tendencies to physical growth, but any leaning, for instance, toward thinness, can be easily corrected by a proper change in physical and mental habits which will encourage the growth of a beautiful and symmetrical form.

In some respects we are born with the same raw physical material to be worked over into various shaped bodies according to the habits we acquire.

We are also born with some definite impulses often called instincts such as to avoid danger, to obtain food and warmth, to seek the opposite sex, and so on. But even from these natural desires we acquire a great deal of misery because of the inibitions and restraints of organized society, and from improper training in our educational institutions.

One who has so shaped his life as to be healthy, successful and happy has not done so because of any innate advantage acquired before birth, but solely because of the habit-systems he has learned to develop since birth. If sickness, failure and unhappiness have developed, these have come as the result of errors in living, and bad habits, not fate, are to be blamed.

If sickness is present, it is not because the doctor has not been consulted, but because the ailing one has lived the way, which, in his case, produced disease. If a physician is then consulted, great care should be used in choosing one who will teach the patient how to change his "sick" habits to healthy ones.

In a like manner, the one who wishes to develop a charming personality can learn how from the competent psychologist or psychoanalyst. It is all a question of cultivating good social habits. He must honestly examine himself to find out what disaggreeable traits of personality he has been acquiring, and substitute good traits for the bad ones. If he has been inconsiderate of others, it will be necessary to study how to be kind and considerate of others. He must avoid untruthfulness, and develop sincerity. Bodily cleanliness is as important for a successful social life as it is for physical health. He must learn to be fair in his games, whether playing blind man's buff, or poker.

We should all watch habits as they grow in ourselves, and realize that there need be no mystery about acquiring character or likable personality, as bad habits can be easily changed to good ones as soon as we sincerely wish to do so. A start must be made as soon as we understand this fact if we are to hope for success after years of living with haphazard habits.

Questions and Answers.

Question: I. T. writes: "I am 60 years of age, and have had eczema for twelve years. Will you kindly name the foods I should use? Is there a sanitarium that you would advise for a few weeks or longer if satisfactory?"

Answer: Take a fast for a few days and follow the menus I give you each week in this column. Any ordinary case of eczema can be cured by the use of a correctly balanced diet. No sanitarium treatment is necessary if you will follow the proper regime at home.

Question: K. L. M. writes: "I have trouble sleeping at night. Will you please tell me the cause of this? Also, I have a dizzy feeling in my head upon arising."

Answer: Insomnia is generally produced by over-eating at the evening meal, or using foods which make stomach gas. This would also cause biliousness, with the resultant dizzy spells which you experience each morning.

Question: Mary J. writes: "Does a rise in temperature of from one-fifth to three-fifths of a degree signify any bodily disease? This rise comes sometimes in the morning, but generally in the afternoon."

Answer: Such a slight rise in temperature does not indicate any specific disease. Most people are below normal in temperature during the morning and come up to normal in the afternoon. Normal temperature undoubtedly varies with different people.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 20, 1928.

This is read by astrologers as an uncertain day in planetary government, but the aspects are not strongly marked.

The morning is a first rate time to settle up old accounts and to take stock of one's finances.

The rule seems to favor advertising and solicitors should be lucky in securing contracts.

The planetary influences are not favorable for constructive enterprises which may be delayed or even thwarted if not wisely managed.

Again Uranus is supposed to have bad effect upon the mind, the aspect causing turgid thought and general lack of logic.

Under this sway the political orator may meet with enthusiastic applause, for the mind will be open to all suggestions that convey criticism or prejudice.

Neptune is in an aspect held to encourage deceit and double-dealing. It is well to watch one's step mentally and morally.

Influenza and a malady affecting the throat may be prevalent all through the summer. Care should be exercised in regard to dress.

Women will be less susceptible to disease than men, if the stars are rightly read. They should safeguard their nerves, however.

The seers warn the young against "sleep starvation" more prevalent in this country than anywhere because of the custom of early rising after late hours of amusement or dissipation.

Air travel is to become almost general within two years, it is prognosticated, for the summer is to introduce new inventions that assure safety.

Much reaping of the sowing of immoral ideas will be apparent in the coming summer when reactionary influences will be strong.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have something to do with hospitals in the coming year which will be nevertheless fortunate.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly loyal and affectionate.

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE BROKEN THREAD

The pattern of my life is changed,
For time has brought a sorrow.
The pattern must be re-arranged
To fit a new tomorrow.
Although my eyes are blind with tears,
Although my hands are weary,
Tomorrow's duty still appears,
Although today is dreary.

The pattern of my life reminds,
However it may alter,
And I must straighten out the skeins,
With hands that never falter.
A thread was broken yesterday,
A thread I loved so dearly,
But I must brush the tears away,
Look bravely, and see clearly.

The pattern of my life is mine,
A thing that I must finish,
Though time may alter its design,
Its brightness may diminish.
A little kneeling by my dead,
A little hour of grieving,
And now I must take up the thread
Of life, and go on weaving.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Knitted pajamas.

Nothing better than a pair of hand-knitted woolen pajamas for a negligee when you are off at cool mountain lake or ocean resort this summer. You may wear them over silk or cotton pajamas to make a lovely, cozy sleeping garment—just the thing when you spend a few days camping. Warm, cozy, light of weight, easy to pack and quite presentable!

These knitted pajamas are sold at some of the shops—and some of them are quite elaborate—made in soft pastel-toned shetland wool, with appliqueed wool embroidery in soft contrasting tones, and sometimes edged with ostrich or marabou. Sometimes, too, they are lined with crepe de chine or other thin silk. Of course, they are rather expesnsive.

If you like to knit, the thing to do is to make a set for yourself. I am afraid, however, that you will not be able to find directions for making them very easily. One woman I know is getting along without any directions. That is, she is making the top section according to directions for a slip-on sweater with a so-called cricket top. That done, she will proceed with the lower section—using the directions she has for a pair of children's knitted leggings, altering, of course, to suit her own dimensions. The lower edge of the pajama legs may be made with a sort of band—made by narrowing and then working into a ribbed cuff to fit snugly around the ankles. This makes the garment somewhat, warmer and cozier than is the case where the pajama legs flare at the ankles.

A bill making women eligible for jury service in Alabama is to be presented to the legislature now in session.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE ARE STINGY AND EXTRAVAGANT

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

I know a man who makes no fuss about paying the bills on his automobile. No matter how big the repair bill may be he pays it. It hurts him to pay hotel bills.

We are all like that in some things. It may not be hotel bills in our case. It may be anything. There are many personal differences in this respect.

There are those who hate to pay any and all bills. They hang on to their money just as long as they possibly can. They are the people who rub off the eagle from the coin. But even this class of folk hate some bills worse than others.

We all have a different sense of values. If the market price on these values is in accord with ours or is below it we become very extravagant in these matters. If, on the other hand, the market price is beyond what we regard as a fair price for the commodity we become stingy in that respect and either do not purchase at all or do so grudgingly. Thus strawberries out of season may be worth forty cents a dish to a man because he thinks strawberries are cheap at any price, while another man fully as well off financially will think it extremely extravagant because he has it in his mind that strawberries should never be more than fifteen cents a dish at any time.

It is not a matter of how much money you have. No matter how rich or how poor you are there are some things in which you are stingy and some other things in which you are extravagant.

We spend money gladly for the things that are familiar to us, the things that give us direct satisfaction. We are stingy in the things that we regard as unnecessary or exhorbitant. At each new advance in price we need to be re-educated before we can enjoy the purchase.

BUS CLUBS HIT GOVERNMENT

Motor clubs are giving officials of Australia, which own the railways of the country, a new problem. The clubs are composed of suburbanites of Melbourne who join together, pay an entrance fee and subscription, and the club buys a motor omnibus. Each club's membership is limited, and only members may use the buses that ply between each suburb and the city. The buses therefore do not "ply for hire", but "carry their owners", and thus avoid the bus tax. They have caught the surbanites' fancy to such an extent that the Minister of Railways is complaining of the growing competition, which he says is no more than an evasion

Merchants of Melbourne, Australia, have started a fund for the unemployed.

UPSETS RELATIVES.

Prince Charles Philippe, Duc de Nemours, has greatly upset his royal relatives by marrying an American girl, Margaret (Peggy) Watson, of Washington, D.C. The couple were married in the registrar's office, Covent Garden, London. Prince Charles is the only son of the Duchesse de Vendome, a sister of Albert, King of the Belgians.

HOW TO USE THE PINEAPPLE

The pineapple is really a multiple fruit, as all of the little sections are really fruits growing out of a central core. It gets its name from its resemblance to the pine cone, but the title is misleading, for it grows on a low, spreading plant. Only one pineapple grows on each plant, but the same plant will bear fruit the next year. Sometimes they are allowed to bear for two or three years, but after that time the fruit begins to deteriorate.

The pineapple is one fruit that can be used with an ordinary meal if the meal does not contain any starchy food. And although there is a large amount of malic and citric acid in the pineapple, there is, however, another element which assists in digestion and makes the pineapple really a medicinal fruit, especially for dyspeptics.

Most of the pineapple used in this country comes in the form of canned pineapple from Hawaii. The industry in that country dates back to 1899, and today the finest canned pineapple comes from this part of the world. In fact, very little of the Hawaiian pineapple is shipped fresh, 95% being ripened on the plant and put up immediately after gathering in modern canneries on the plantation or in nearby towns.

Canned pineapple is usually put up in a syrup, and although making it delicious to the taste, it is not desirable from a dietetic standpoint. The last few years some of the canning concerns in Hawaii have been putting out a special brand without the use of sugar. If this product is composed of the ripe fruit it can be used by persons on a diet or by patients in the hospital without fear of harm.

In buying fresh pineapple for immediate consumption, select those that look yellow around the little circles, but this is not conclusive proof of their ripeness. If you cannot get the pineapple ripe, it will ripen if you will set it aside for a few days; it is not likely to spoil, but will soon mellow.

In preparing the ripe pineapple for the table, peel off the outer skin, take out the eyes with one of the patented devices, cut into slices and core with a patented corer. Another method, which does not, however, give the round even slices of the preceding one, is to first remove the outer covering and eyes as above, then turn the pineapple up on a plate and insert a fork in the crown and with another silver fork push away the fruit flesh down to the core in small or large chunks, as may be desired. In either way of preparation, the pineapple will have a more delicious flavor and be more refreshing if put into a closed jar and placed in the refrigerator for a few hours before serving.

A good way to use pineapple is to make an entire meal of it, or use it with a pint of sweet milk for lunch. Pineapple makes a good fruit to use while fasting, and is a desirable change from the orange or other fruit.

The best way to take a pineapple fast is to eat all you desire three times daily, drinking whatever amount of water you are thirsty for. This treatment seems especially good in all throat troubles, such as colds or tonsilitis, as the acids assist in cleansing the mucous membranes of the throat of the accumulated mucus.

Pineapple may also be used at a proteid meal when no starches are used. The acids interfere with the starch digestion, but the leafy succulent greens may be used freely with this meal.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mary B. asks: "Why do I wake up at night out of my sleep and have choking spells as if I couldn't swallow? It almost strangles me."

Answer: Excessive smoking, gas, or eating too much at the evening meal may be causing your trouble. Reduce the amount you eat at night to about one half of what you have been using and do not use any starches and desserts at this meal.

Question: Young Cook asks: "Why not thickened gravy with our meats instead of just plain "boiled, broiled or baked" meats with only the pan gravy?"

Answer: Aside from the unwholesome fat employed in the making of thickened gravy, the white flour or cornstarch with which it is "thickened" makes a bad mixture with meat. Foods made from white flour should never be used at a meal where meat, fish, chicken or such protein food is used.

Question: A Subscriber writes: "I feel weak all the time, no strength; no appetite, and lack pep. I have no pain—just feel weak."

Answer: It may be that all you need is increased physical exercise. Do not depend too much upon food to give you strength. You cannot stoke the stomach like a furnace and expect the increased amount of food to be converted into energy. Physical exercise will develop strength through increasing the circulation of blood and encouraging the assimilation of food elements.

RHEUMATIC AGONY

Can Be Ended

There is absolutely no reason why any one who is constantly subject to attacks of Rheumatism, Neuritis or Gout should go on suffering the terrible torture and awful pain of these dread afflictions. For today any rheumatic sufferer may get amazing and quick relief from the use of Rheuma, a harmless remedy which has proved itself in thousands of cases.

Rheuma will absolutely stop your rheumatic suffering or it will not cost you one penny. If you really want to get rid of those awful stabbing knife-pains—if you really want to drive those dull, grinding, numbing aches, just step into McDermid & Jury and ask for a bottle of RHEUMA, for they, and druggists everywhere, sell it with a positive guarantee of money back if it does not rid you of all rheumatic torture.

JOLLIES OF 1928

(By Jeanette.)

Action and color, pep, vim and vigor, sparkling music, brilliant costumes and a wonderful setting, are high lights of the Jollies of 1928," the Minstrel-Musical Revue which forms the Kiwanis Club's dramatic presentation for this year, offered at the opening last night and also tonight, at the Grand Opera House. The cast has over a hundred performers ,and each one of them is up on his or her individual toes to give the very best possible performance to the patrons of the show. There was a good-sized audience for the opening last night.

The idea of a combined minstrel show and musical revue affords an opportunity for a very bright entertainment, with plenty of novelty and flashing color in its presentation, which is under direction of the Hartford Productions, Incorporated, and personal supervision of Harrington Adams The settings are simply gorgeous The old stage of the Grand Opera House, which has one of the largest proscenium openings in the Dominion, was resplendent once more last night with the beautiful back drops and curtains provided for this entertainment In beauty and freshness and originality they were up to the standard of any professional performance witnessed here in a long time The costuming the choruses and ensemble also added a striking and radiant note to the general atmosphere of vivid, glittering color and light Artistic blending of rainbow hues characterized the dance numbers by the chorus of young girls and there was plenty of brightness also to the startling combinations of color in the outfits of the men in the ensemble Radio Lite is the term used for this type of costuming and scenery and it has a flashing and stunning effect The tempo of the show is keyed to swift music ,and the resultis smart, vital and elaborate The dancing displays some of the city's best talent in a rapidly-moving kaleidoscope of lovely gowns and shapely forms, and the lighting effects add the last to a stunning presentation.

The first portion is devoted to a minstrel show and the second section to sketches and vividly-staged scenes, the sketches including a number of fast one-minute affairs which are termed "blackouts," and strive to give a grahic picture of certain types of life in a one-minute interval,with a farcical ending From the time that the curtain goes up on the first act until it descends on the final ensemble the action is fast, furious and vivid.

"Watching for the Parade" is the title of the first scene in the show, introducing a purple-lighted stage, and impressionistic back drop with a group of dark-skinned lassies in a nigger medley with Uncle Mose--(Harry Huffman. Appearing from the front entrance of the house and making their way up to the stage in turn, by way of an inclined runway extending over the orchestra pit, are the various groups which form the ensemble for the minstrel show, with the black face end men and circle men resplendent in suits of blue and yellow, of red and green, and tambourines. At the rear is a circle of Kiwanians in evening suits, making an effective background for the colorful costumes in front.

Minstrel Medley.

The second scene of "Minstrel Medley had a back drop of white, with a conventional floral design, and the chorus girls were dressed in red satin breeches and long-tailed red coats with green trimmings. Jack McKone acted as interlocutor, providing, with the end men, a variety of running jokes, interspersed with vocal and dance numbers.

The ensemble opened with a chorus, "Happy and Gay are We," and vocal solos, in turn, were those of Ronald Fortune, singing "Sunshine and You," and encore in "For You Alone," in liquid tenor tones, and George Nicholls, who received two encores for his snappy rendition of "Having My Ups and Downs," with chorus and dance steps for the final.

Miss Geraldine Collins' sweet, clear voice was heard to splendid advantage in the very pretty song "Ramona," one of the season's hits and the theme song of the moving picture "Ramona." This was given in very pleasing style and received an encore, which brought a repetition of the melodious number. Norman Laing was a real scream in his "I Scream" song, an energetic and startling affair in which the singer put a gerat deal of enthusiasm and which brought a double encore from a hilarious audience.

Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield, sang the baritone number, "Diane," in excellent voice ,with a repetition encore, and Vern Morphet put some of his own inimitable manner into the rendering of "Miss Annabelle Lee," which had enthusiastic applause, with the snappy chorus joining in the encore.

After Norm Laing had failed to live up to a wager which would have proved him the eighth wonder of the world, according to Jack McKone, the ensemble closed the minstrel portion with a finale song, "Oh, that Watermelon," a tuneful ending to a tuneful medley of music and fun.

Bathing Beauties.

During the intermission, a good deal of entertainment was provided byt a group of twenty-one Lindsay Kiwanians, headed by their president, Dr. Smith, and Mayor Ivan Moore, who sang Kiwanis songs and Lindsay booster numbers for the audience, while seated half-way down the house. Some silent advertising of the coming Y.W.C.A. Pageant was also done by a trio of small girlies, who bore aloft a banner advertising that event, and made their way to the stage with it. These were little Evelyn Hill, Berta Belleghem, and Betty Jary.

The second act opened with a scene, "By the Sea," with a chorus of dainty girls in lovely vari-colored costumes. These were the real bathing beauties, and were followed by a group of burlesque bathing beauties, composed of eight Kiwanian members in old-time feminine bathing suits, ringlets, and bare legs. This affair brought down the house and revealed the pulchritude of those taking part in a manner that was striking and original. Art Blade acted as master of ceremonies ,and introduced the beauties to the audience in turn: Miss Fortune from Lakefield (Frank Dawson), Miss Print from Port Hope (Harry Huffman), Miss Behave from Toronto (Art Reynolds), Miss Construe from Norwood (Fred Ash), Miss Fit from Lindsay (E. Catton), Miss Rope from Havana (Mark Bredin), Miss Hap from Oshawa (Roy Taylor), and Miss Peterborough (Dr. J. J. Craig). The unanimous applause of the audience conferred the decision upon Miss Peterborough, a part blushingly borne by Dr. Craig, attractively attired in a green bathing suit that suited his figure admirably. Dr. Craig was presented with the award of a rose-colored silk vest and a cotton bag said to contain $10.000 in gold. The disappointed contestants then sang a "cattish" song in dispraise of the lucky winner, and Dumbell."

The sketches which followed included a number of snappy brief acts, "Finding the Watch" including two excellently-acted parts, with Dick Lush as the drunk and Walter Fitzgerald as the Dutch comedian. Statues in this act were done in fine style by Evelyn Armstrong and Adele Picard. Frank Stinson made a wonderful Devil in red robes and horned cap, acting the part for the second bit, "Pretty Girls are Like Jewels," with Lester Montgomery doing the juvenile part and the dance which goes with a chorus of pretty girls ent types of precious stones. Their gorgeous dresses and headgear and the colored lights playing over them make a charming effect in this scene. Jewels are the Misses Jean Hill, Irene Chambers, Jean McCannan, Birdie Pickering, Zelda Northey, Elva Jackson, Berenice Bacon, Florence Murray, Wanda Bacon, Helen Blade, Margaret Lockington and Hazel Jackson. A great deal of appreciative applause was vouchsafed this pretty group.

"Shot at Sunrise" was a farcical scene with Norm. Laing as a hard-boiled Sergeant and Vern Morphet as the equally dumb colored soldier, who makes himself so generously obnoxious to his superior officer that he is condemned to be shot at sunrise. The firing squad, composed of Walker Jones, Fred. Ash, Fraser Skinner, and Mark Bredin, is interrupted, however, by various people who inject themselves rapidly into the action. Miss Lenora James and Mr. Jack Roach have a very pretty patter song and dance bit in this number, and other actors are Ken. McCannan as the newsboy, Charles Huffman as the mailman, and Art Moffat as an energetic insurance agent, trying to interest the victim in the benefits of accident insurance.

There was a good deal of applause for the next scene, with a bandit chorus in pale blue costumes that danced through the tiny scene, "We'll Steal your Heart Away," with Miss Florence Murray as the girl soloist and Ed. Catton as the victim, and applause also rewarded the efforts of A. J. Reynolds as the Ventriloquist and George Nicholls as the irrepressible Dummy in the next half portion, entitled "Repartee."

With Jack Primeau as an explanatory assistant whose humorous attempts served to create a hilarious atmosphere for the efforts of the actors, four one-minute sketches of the burlesque type were presented. "Main 2-0" had Jack Primeau as the husband and Fred. Ash as the other man; "Caught in the Act" was a bit of offstage fun enacted by Joseph Wearing and J. W. Geraghty; "Just an Everyday Occurrence" had Miss Edna Forster as the wife, Jack Krough as the husband and Fraser Skinner as the salesman. "Hunting an Apartment" had a breezy, slightly different atmosphere, wtih Norm Laing as the man and Miss Dorothy Graham as the wife. Randall Jupp was the janitor and Charles Huffman and Jack Clayton were a pair of husky "kids" who were exterminated by a desperate parent in a snappy finale.

Last evening, a number of small children were guests of the Kiwanis Club, occupying the boxes for the performance.

SOAKS RIGHT IN AND LIMBERS UP STIFF JOINTS

Pharmacists Call It 'Joint-Ease" Because It's For Swollen, Sore. Painful, Creaking Joints Only.

It took a good many years to get together a combination of pain subduing and swelling reducing agents declared to be the one remedy that almost instantly penetrates through skin and flesh and starts right in to make swollen, inflamed, creaky, pain racked joints as good as new.

They call this new and wonderful preparation "Joint-Ease" Because the medical man who turned the trick, worked for years to perfect some low-priced remedy that would really benefit the millions of people who have one or more points that need helpful attention.

So "Joint-Ease" is prepared only for people who have a swollen, painful, creaky, distorted or stiff joint, whether it be in knee, elbow, shoulder, ankle, neck or finger and whether it is caused by rheumatism or something else.

Of course, it can't help but quickly put an end to such superficial ailments as lumbago, neuralgia, neuritis, aching muscles, stitch in the side, crick in the neck or sore feet because of its penetrating action, but what it is really recommended for is joint ailments of any nature whatever.

Ask for a tube of 'Joint-Ease". You can use it several times in one evening for quick results, because it goes right through the skin with only a few seconds rubbing. It surely is a swift penetrator and when it gets under the skin, it starts right in to clean up all joint trouble.

Babe Ruth Makes His First Homer of Season

YANKS SPLIT DOUBLE BILL

Win Second Game 7-2 After Losing First to Sox 7-6.

DROP FROM LEAD

NEW YORK, April 20.—(Canadian Press).—Babe Ruth made his first home run of the season at Boston yesterday as the Red Sox and the New York Yankees divided a double-header. The Sox won the morning game 7 to 6 by late rallies after the Yankees had piled up a lead of 6 to 0 in the early innings, but the New York team came back to win, 7 to 2, in the afternoon engagement, halted by rain at the end of the sixth inning.

Ruth's home run came in the fifth inning of the afternoon game. Harold Wiltse, the southpaw who gave the Yankees trouble last season, was pitching and nobody was on base. The drive sailed far over the heads of the fans lining the outfield and found a resting place in the right field bleachers, to the intense delight of the 30,000 spectators. Gehrig remained one up on the Babe in the 1928 renewal of their home run feud.

Ken Williams hit a home run for the Red Sox in the afternoon game. It was his third of the season.

The even break of the Yankees and the victory of the Cleveland Indians over Chicago dropped the New York team from the lead of the American League for the first time since May, 1926, except for one day at the start of this season when the Red Sox technically led through winning from Washington a day before the other teams started.

Detroit defeated the Browns, 9 to 7, at St. Louis yesterday in a game marked with 18 walks and one hit batsman in four and a half innings.

The Indians again defeated Chicago yesterday in a 9 to 2 decision and made it four straight wins over the White Sox this season.

Willis Hudlin, the young Cleveland hurler, pitched airtight ball except in the seventh inning, when the Hose threatened a rally. Summa cut this short by starting a double play.

The Tribe batted three Chicago pitchers hard.

SOCCER OPENING

De Laval and Thistle will clash in opening fixture of the local soccer league, to-morrow, afternoon at King Edward Park.

Arrangements have been completed by the soccer executive for the use of King Edward Park for the season of 1928. During the week, the field was rolled down so as to eliminate the high spots while the earth has been applied freely to fill up the holes. The pavilion will be in the same position, but three yards farther back to the fence, which will allow more freedom along the touch line on the north side. New goal posts have been ordered and will be ready for the opening encounter.

The opening of the local soccer season takes place on Saturday afternoon at King Edward Park, when the De Laval meets the Thistle in a scheduled league fixture. Kick-off at three o'clock prompt. Alex. McKinley has consented to act as official referee. For the next Saturday, the C.G.E. team faces the Quaker Oats.

With Jack Pilling as president, and James O'Brien as secretary, the Track and Field Club of the Canadian General Electric promises to do much to arouse the interest in track and field events in this district.

The small club organized last fall is expanding into a booming organization, and with the aid of a score or more experienced men in the plant they could hold their own in any event in a track and field competition.

With the "Y" Harriers in the game and the Electric boys coming out, fans can look forward to seeing some lively competition. Bates, Tranter and Connolly are perhaps the most outstanding runners who work at the local plant. Bates and Tranter are familiar faces to the sporting fans, but Connolly hails from Toronto and has had considerable experience at the West End "Y" in that city.

The propects for Kingston in the Central Ontario Baseball League are not so bright. There appears to be some speculation as to just what is going to happen, and although no official statement has been made, there is a rumor to the effect that Kingston may be without the services of three star players.

It is understood that Harry Batstone has been harboring the question of returning to Toronto and playing with the Granites, and that Bubs Britton is also about decided to play with a team at Cobalt. It was expected that Howard Reid could be secured to play for the local team, but he is going to Toronto to locate, having secured a position there.—Oshawa Daily Times.

SOCCER OPENING ON SATURDAY

A soccer league fixture is scheduled for to-morrow afternoon as the opening encounter, between the Thistle and DeLaval, at King Edward Park Kirk-off at three o'clock. Referee Alex McKinley.

Johnny Ward has got a fairly good line-up for the DeLaval aggregation and intends introducing many juniors and juveniles who are now fit for senior company. There motto is: "Clean sport at all times".

In regards to the Thistle team, many new faces will be on the probable eleven that will face the opponents. They have lost some of their last year's players to the C. G. E. but anticipate making the tussles interesting during the season.

The pavilion will be in the same location but moved back against the fence. In all probability new goal posts will be erected and the field graded many places so as to facilitate the players movements while in possession of the ball.

Championship Open Until April 26th

MONTREAL, April 20.—(Canadian Press).—The champions of Eastern Canada in senior baseball will not be settled until April 26, it was stated yesterday, by A. M. Seaman, secretary of the eastern Canada baseball association.

Ottawa and Windsor have to meet for the right to play Mount Allison University, Sackville, N. S., for the eastern final.

In regard to the expenses of the Eastern Champions, University of British Columbia in their projected trip east. Mr. Seaman said that Windsor and Ottawa were the finalists. He had not heard definitely from Sackville but the Eastern University had already expressed their determination of going right to the finals if successful in the Canadian semi-final.

FINAL GAME AT WEMBLEY STADIUM

Huddersfield and Rovers Will Clash for English Football Association Cup.

LONDON, April 20.—(Canadian Press).— Wembley Stadium, scene of the final for the English Football association cup on Saturday between Huddersfield Town and Blackburn Rovers, was today in the hands of four hundred workmen, who were tearing out the Greyhound Racing Plant. Everything will be in readiness to accommodate a hugh crowd. King George will be in the Royal Box and will present the trophy to the victors.

Commentators in the English press regard the match as an open one, although the general leaning seems to favor Huddersfield Town, whose strength in attack through their marvellous forward line is expected to be strong enough to overcome the Dour Rovers defence by a narrow margin.

Eight thousand fans sporting the white rose of Yorkshire will travel from Huddersfield neighborhood to London to-night. Almost as many, who will wear the red rose of Lancashire, are expected from Blackburn.

Ticket speculators are dealing in the pasteboards. Advertisements are appearing in the papers offering the guinea and two shilling seats for forty-two shillings and ten shillings. The football association has issued an announcement that they are taking action to stop this speculation.

Arrangements have been made on the basis of a 93,000 crowd for refreshments. Seventy thousand bottles of beer and mineral water will be sent to the stadium, while there will be tons of cake and mountains of sandwiches on hand. Four hundred waiters and waitresses have been enrolled as help. The grounds will be guarded by a force of 600 police, while 200 ambulance men will also be in attendance. Four hundred and fifty stewarts were being schooled in their jobs of showing people to seats today.

Immediately after the match one thousand men will be thrown into the stadium to put it in shape for Greyhound races scheduled for Saturday night.

The football association has made a graceful gesture towards the sister game of cricket by inviting the touring west Indian Cricketers to lunch and to watch the match.

Body Of Bourassa Arrives At Montreal

MONTREAL, April 20 (Canadian Press).—The body of Ovila Rourassa, Montreal Jockey, who was killed at Havre de Grace Monday, arrived here yesterday. It was immediately transferred from the train to the home of the jockey's parents of Valois street. The body was accompanied to this city by Mrs. Lillian Rourassa, his wife, and his agent, Charley Hagen.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning.

DEMAR SETS NEW RECORD

Runs 26-Mile Marathon Course in 2 Hours and 27 Minutes.

RAY IS HERO OF RACE

By Alan J. Gould.
(Associated Press Sports Edtior.)

BOSTON, Mass, April 20.— Clarence H. Demar, the wiry, smiling little typesetter and Sunday school teacher of Melrose, is still the king of American Marathon runners, but there is a new crown prince of the realm, Joie W. Ray long-time monarch of the milers.

Demar, in as brilliant a race as he has ever turned in, stepped out over his favorite hills and dales yesterday to win the classic Boston A. A. Marathon in record-smashing style from the greatest distance-running field ever assembled. But the heroic figure of this astonishing spectacle was gallant little Joe, who finished third in the marathon of his career with as gritty an exhibition as any foot race has ever known.

They lifted Demar on the shoulders of cheering admirers as he broke the tape, seemingly as fresh as when he started, in 2 hours, 37 minutes, 7 4-5 seconds, shattering the course record for the full Marathon distance of 26 miles, 385 yards he set last year.

They roared again when stocky Jimmy Henigan, of Boston, came trotting in second, fully two-thirds of a mile behind Demar, but finishing the route for the first time in his career and springing one of the biggest surprises of the year.

But there was a thunderous outburst, the greatest ovation of all, for Ray, weary, feet bleeding and blistered, as he forced himself through the finishing stretch and to the tape in third position, some 300 to 400 yards behind Henigan. They carried little Joie from the finish too, but it was because he had collapsed after completing in gallant fashion the greatest test of his career.

Stepping out of his class on comparatively short notice, Ray, for a decade the greatest of American milers, exceeded the most optimistic expectations of his followers by forging toward the front from the start, remaining in a contending position for fully twenty miles of the rugged route and holding second place until forced to yield to Henigan's superior stamina a mile and a half from the finish

SOMERVILLE WINS WAY INTO FINALS

Former Amateur Champion Defeats G. B. Heintzman 5-3 in Semi-finals.

PINEHURST, N.C., April 20.—(By Canadian Press).—C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., former Canadian amateur champion, won his way into the finals of the mid-April golf tournament here yesterday by defeating G. B. Heintzman of Toronto 5 and 3 in the semi-final round.

Somerville, the medalist in the qualifying round, will meet R. L. Wintringer, of Steubenville, Ohio, who eliminated Norfleet Ray, of Pinehurst, 3 and 2, in the semi-final round yesterday.

Heintzman held Somerville to a closer score than any other opponent in spite of the fact that he yielded on the 15th hole. Somerville was three up at the turn and holed a birdie three on the tenth to go four up. Heintzman took the thirteenth with a stymie, but dropped the 14th to Somerville's birdie four. He was trapped on his tee shot on the fifteenth and gave up the match.

Leafs and Bears Game At Newark Called On Account of Windstorm

NEWARK, N.J., April 20 (Canadian Press).—Strong winds that made it even difficult for a player to remain in an upright position blew across the Bear's stadium here yesterday as the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Newark Bears prepared for their second diamond league battle of the season. Both Managers O'Hara and McBride decided to wait until the gale abated before starting the game. Jack Bentley, once known as the $72,500 beauty, was the pitcher selected by the Bears, while Toronto depended on the right hand feeding of "Rip" Collins to get the first victory of the season. Workmen watered the field as the wind continued to blow clouds of dust in the eyes of the fans. Only the rival pitchers warmed up; the other players seeking shelter from the gale behind the grandstand. Newspaper men atop the roof of the stand had difficulty controlling

A terrific gale which breezed across the Bears' stadium here yesterday and made it difficult for the players of the Newark and Toronto teams to remain on their feet, and after one Maple Leaf had doubled to right, Umpires Parker, Griffin, and Carroll decided to call off the game "on account of windstorm."

Jack Rabbitt, the first Toronto player to step to the plate, had put up a fly ball which Carlyle, Newark outfielder, came in for. The ball landed behind the catcher. Rabbitt doubled to right and another terrific breeze almost sent the players into a huddle. It was decided to call the game.

Burning brush in the rear of the stadium threatened to demolish a string of freight cars. Bits of paper left over from the opening game swirled around the heads of the spectators. Clouds of dust gave the stadium an appearance of a tornado having struck it. Newspaper men and telegraph operators atop the roof of the grandstand found difficulty making their way to the stairway and had to remain in their places until the wind abated.

BRAVES WIN FROM GIANTS

ROBINS LOSE OUT 9-5

NEW YORK, April 20.—Hornsby's single in the tenth, scoring Brandt, gave the Boston Braves a 9 to 8 decision over New York as the Giants closed their home stand here yesterday. The visitors came from behind in the ninth when Farrell's single scored Hornsby with the tieing run. Reese for the Giants and Farrell for the Braves hit home runs.

The Philadelphia Nationals opened their home season with a 9 to 5 victory over the Brooklyn Robins. Jim Elliott was routed in a sixth-inning rally which netted the Phillies seven runs on six hits and a pass. One of the blows was a home run by Leach with Thompson on base.

Seven Pirate pitchers were unable to stop the St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of the National League season at Pittsburgh yesterday and Redbirds won 13 to 10. Grantham hit a home run for the Pirates in the fifth inning.

Sherriff Blake hurled a two-hit game, Hack Wilson cracked out two homers, one with the bases loaded, and the Cubs rattled off a total of 21 hits to trounce the Cincinnati Reds, 13 to 0, at Chicago.

Not one batter reached second on Blake. The two hits were scattered in the fourth and ninth innings, with no one on base. Blake and Joe Kelly of the Cubs also bagged four hits, Kelly hitting a homer with two men on the bags. Wilson in addition to his two circuit clouts, hit a double and a single. He was hit by a pitched ball in his fifth appearance, thereby registering a perfect day at the bat. The Reds used three pitchers, Luque, Jablonowski and Ashe, but none was able to stop the Cubs' bats.

PAYNE AGAIN IN THE LEAD

Finishes in Dead Heat With Two Canadians, Granville and Ellis.

CROSS-COUNTRY RUN

JOPLIN, (Mo.), April 20.—Jogging steadily ahead in a downpour of rain, Andrew Payne, of Claremore, Okla., yesterday traversed the corners of Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri in the cross-country Marathon, and substantially increased his elapsed time lead over Peter Gavussi of Southampton, England.

Payne finished sixth in a dead heat with Phillip Granville and Thomas Ellis of Hamilton, Ont., in 6:33:56, bringing his elapsed time to 294:16:18, Gavuzzi was twenty first into the night control point in 8;00:02 for an elapsed time of 295:55:40, which places him 99 minutes behind the Oklahoma. Last night at Miami, Okla., he trailed by only 13 minutes.

Out to show his native Missourians and make good his boast of being first to enter his native state, John Gober, Moberly, Mo., flash, finished first to-day in 5.35:51, having traversed the 41-mile stretch at an average speed of eight miles an hour. His elapsed time is 445:48:01.

Samuel Richman, of New York, dark horse entrant, was second in six hours, four seconds, elapsed time being 510:08:24. Harry Rea of Long Beach, Calif., finished third in 6:08:28, elapsed time 340:45:19. Carl Wilberg, New York, was fourth in 6:15:00, elapsed time 482:16:14.

John Salo, Passaic, N. J., finished fifth today in 6:22:7, but his elapsed time of 326:39:39 kept him in third place behind Payne and Gavuzzi.

The race is 1,761.1 miles out of Los Angeles, the starting point, March 4.

MONTREAL TRYING TO OUTBID TORONTO

Belanger Offered $4,000 to Box Durand for Title in Montreal.

TORONTO, April 20.—Reports from Montreal indicate that Matchmaker Playfair Brown of the Shamrock A. C. of Toronto is having his trouble signing Clovis Durand for a Canadian flyweight championship match here April 27 with Albert "Frechy" Belanger of Toronto, former world's champion. Durand is anxious enough to box Belanger but thinks he can get more money for the bout in Montreal than the Toronto matchmaker is prepared to pay.

Alex. Moore, Montreal promoter, is endeavoring to secure the match but Brown appears to have the inside track. The later took the precaution of securing Belanger's contract before leaving Toronto. What is more, Belanger has signed to meet any boxer Brown may select. Yesterday the Montreal promoter sent Davy Garritty, Belanger's manager, a very tempting offer of 4,000 which the latter left in abeyance for two reasons. In the first place he has signed with Brown. The other consideration is the fact that it was the Shamrock club which gave him the bout that put him at the top of his class. Fired with the determination to regain his championship Belanger refuses to desert the Shamrock club now, and unless Brown fails to secure Durand the bout will take place here as scheduled.

Brown will stay over until Friday and if Durand does not sign by then will leave for New York to sign up another opponent for Belanger.

5TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP

The meeting started under the supervision of our A.S.M. With a sharp blast of the whistle the boys came to a freeze movement, then our A.S.M. gave the square formation signal, and the boys fell to.

The meeting opened with flag break and then the Lord's Prayer; after that general remarks took place, mostly on our Scout camp this year. After this we were dismissed to our corners for patrol instruction. Mostly first aid and signalling was taken up. Sharply at 8 the boys were called up for inspection. There was a poor attendance—only about fifteen showing up, but the competition was keen. Points were won and lost fast. Fellows next week will make sure their garter tabs are not showing up too much, and so on. Then followed an instructive talk by our A.S.M.. This was followed by games. Council five came next, and was opened by our A.S.M. in the Scout way. Then several songs and yells such as the "Queen's Own." The meeting came to a close with God Save the King

Every Man Past 40 Should Make This Test

For Amazing and Lasting Relief From Middle-Age Ailments That Cause Daily Annoyance and Sap Vital Force

No longer need men near or past the prime of life put up with those painful and often embarrassing conditions brought on by overworked, sluggish Kidneys, Bladder Weakness and Prostrate Gland Trouble, with their distressing symptoms of Lameness, Pains in back and down through groins, scanty but frequent and burning urination, "Getting-up-Nights", Nervous Irritability and lack of force—because a ten day test of Dr. Southworth's URATABS will convince the most skeptical of the value of this special treatment for their particular case.

Amazing testimony of Physicians and users gives convincing proof of the power of URATABS to restore Health and Strength to a weakened inflamed or irritated Bladder and Urinary Tract. A multitude of alarming symptoms seem to quickly disappear—and you see and feel a truly genuine improvement often within two or three days. "No more Backaches, no more pain, no more embarrassment or Getting-up-nights, I now sleep soundly, and get up in the morning full of 'pep' thanks to URATABS!"

While new to the general public, the wondrous value of URATABS has been thoroughly proven by nearly 40 years of successful use in the private practice of Dr. H. C. Southworth. And now any good druggist will supply them on a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Try URATABS today.

TRACK AND FIELD CLUB HOLD MEETING

Many Matters Discussed at Second Meeting of C.G.E. Club.

Another branch of sport was safely launched when the Track and Field Club of the Canadian General Electric held their second meeting last night. The club was formed last fall with Jack Pilling as president and J. O'Brien as secretary.

They made their first showing when two runners were sent from the plant to compete in the Monarch Road Race held in Toronto last October.

This year the interest in this branch of sport has greatly increased and the club is expanding into a booming organization which will probably do more than anything else to arouse the old spirit of the sports.

There are about a score or more young fellows in the plant who have had some experience in this sport and it is hoped that they will all be present at the next meeting.

H. Tranter and Dick Bates were appointed as a committee to interview the Y. M. C. A. with regards to making arrangements for the club.

Canadian General Picnic Notes

Final arrangements have been made for the annual excursion and picnic which will be held at Orillia this year on June 23.

Convenors have been appointed to look after transportation facilities, adult and children sports, intercity games and a special committee to make arrangements for the care of children on the trains.

The picnic was well patronized last year but the inclement weather damaged the spirits of the merry-makers. This year it promises to be a real success and if weather conditions are favorable it will be the biggest picnic held in this district for a long while.

THEATRES
AT THE REGENT.

The New York Times has called "East Side, West Side," by Captain Felix Riesenberg an "epic of Manhattan." The Evening Post has said that he came nearer to writing the story of the city than any one else who ever tried it.

In the same way, the Fox Film version now being shown at the Regent Theatre, is a true epic of the film world. Allan Dwan has lost none of the rugged sincerity which was the distinguishing characteristic of the book.

It is the kind of picture which has long been needed to give the world an authentic conception of New York, for the people in small towns have grown to think of it in terms of night clubs, Broadway theatres and the tinsel gayety of Coney Island.

Its Ghetto, with the chaotic jumble of brass shops, push carts and colorful Hebrew types, has remained practically unknown. So also has the shifting procession of barges, great liners and small craft that ply back and forth on its rivers.

Now and then a picture is released which shows fairly accurately some one phase of the city, but never before has the vast panorama which extends from the Battery to the Bronx been unrolled on any screen.

"East Side West Side," as a book, and "East Side, West Side," as a picture, has sought honestly to do this very thing. It has what so many books and pictures lack completely—the back ground of a really big idea, and the additional merit of a strong plot to build against it.

An exceptional cast presents the dramatic Riesenberg story with feeling and rare truth to detail. George O'Brien and Virginia Valli are the principals.

A new romantic combination comes to the screen in First National Pictures being screen versions of Harold Bell Wright's classic, "The Shepherd of the Hills."

In the picture which is to head the bill at the Regent Theatre Monday, the lovers are Molly O'Day and John Boles. Miss O'Day recently played opposite Richard Barthelmess in the "Patent Leather Kid" and opposite Milton Sills in "Hard-Boiled Haggerty." Boles was leading man in Gloria Swanson's "The Loves of Sunya." He is a recruit from musical comedy.

They make a striking pair of lovers and their appearance together in "The Shepherd of the Hills" may lead to other pictures in which they carry the burden of romance. With them in the cast of the picture are such notable players as Alex B. Francis Matthew Betz, Romaine Fielding Otis Harlan, Joseph Bennett, Maurice Murphy and Carl Stockdale.

Another pleasing love affair that figures in the dramatic plot of the "Shepherd of the Hills" is enacted between another pair of newcomers, Marion Douglas and John Westwood. Miss Douglas is a strikingly beautiful blonde, and Westwood, tall, athletic and handsome, was a Princeton youth selected by screen test in a complete canvass of the Universities for actors, conducted by First National Pictures.

Albert Rogell directed the Shepherd of the Hills" which Charles Rogers produced for First National. The famous novel was adapted to the screen by Marion Jackson.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"BRINGING UP FATHER."

The funny strip that has amused newspaper readers for many years past has come to life on the silver sheet and those who like Maggie and Jiggs as pen and ink sketches have now the opportunity to observe them as they live and move and have their being in the silence of the "jumping flickers."

In this feature picture at the Capitol Theatre, Jiggs buys a big home on Long Island and his wife engages a social secretary who resembles a lady in appearance. The secretary is domiciled in Jiggs' room and he wakens up after attending an all-night party to imagine that he has brought home one of his lady friends from the dance. This complication has hardly smoothed itself out when Ellen who is the pretty daughter of Jiggs, has a birthday party and Jiggs' sister, Annie, with her husband, the well-known Dinty Moore, arrive to disgrace the affair, according to Mrs. Jiggs' ideas. The Duke of Mantell, a visitor at the house, dances with Annie, and Maggie informs Jiggs that she has been disgraced for life. Jiggs decides to commit suicide and leaves a note which frightens Maggie. She follows him and promises to be a good wife thereafter, and he decides to go on living, if not in the movies, at least in the funny strips.

BORDER LINE GOLF COURSE IS PLANNED

Seattle Man Will Lay Out One With Nine Holes in Each Country.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 20.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. Samuel Hill, of Seattle, good roads enthusiast and international peace advocate, announces that he will establish an international golf course close to the border between Canada and the United States at White Rock, B.C.

The first nine holes of the course will be completed by July and the second nine will be established later in the year on a tract of 160 acres which Mr. Hill has owned for several years. The course will be located near the Peace Arch, built by Mr. Hill some years ago in commemoration of the 100 years of peace between Canada and the United States. The arch was dedicated by Marshal Joffre, whom Mr. Hill accompanied here from the Orient soon after the Great War.

"Golf is an international game and on this course that will overlook both countries golf players, of both nations will have convenient access to their favorite game", said Mr. Hill.

What Peterborough People Read in The Examiner.

25 YEARS AGO TO-DAY.

Monday, April 20, 1903.

Sir Oliver Mowat, Lieut.-Governor of Ontario, died Sunday morning, bringing to an end a long and useful career, which included service in the force for suppression of the rebellion of 1837, several years in the Parliament of Canada before Confederation, during which time he held the post of Postmaster-General, many years as Premier of Ontario, a year in the Dominion Senate during which time he was Minister of Justice, and five years as Lieutenant-Governor. He was in his 83nd year. He was called to the bar at 21 and became a Queen's Counsel at 36, after studying law with Mr. (later Sir) John A. MacDonald.

What CAN a Man Believe?

By BRUCE BARTON

XXIX—Mohammed Receives His Call

IT was in the cave of Hira that he received his call to be a prophet of the one God. He informed his wife of his call, and she believed it to be authentic. Mark this down to Mohammed's credit. If he was self-deceived he was at least sincere enough to make his wife his first convert. She of all people should have known his true spirit.

There followed a period of mental depression which has its parallel in the temptations of Jesus and in the heart-searchings of Buddha. But after a time this depression passed, and other revelations followed.

His next two converts were Ali and Zeid, his adopted children. Followed others, until in the sixth year of his prophetic career persecution had begun and some of his followers had fled. On September 2, 622, Mohammed himself fled from Mecca, accompanied by a single companion. After hiding for a time in a cave he came to Medina, where a new epoch in his career begins.

The faithful rightly start their calendar with the date of his flight, or Hegira, known in literature as A. H., the year A. D. 622.

During Khadidjah's lifetime Mohammed had no other wife, but within three months after her death he took two wives and thereafter increased the number until he had ten wives and two concubines, a total of thirteen, counting Khadidjah.

Descent From Fatima

Khadidjah was the mother of his two sons and four daughters, but neither by her nor any of his other wives did he leave an adult son. His acknowledged descendants, distinguished since 773 A. H. by their green turbans, trace descent from Fatima, daughter of Khadidjah.

As Moslems agree in accepting the date of the Hegira as that which divides the life of Mohammed, so modern commentators, seeking a key to the puzzling tangle of his moral character, have been inclined to go back to the death of Khadidjah as that which changed the peaceable shepherd, camel driver, merchant and teaching prophet into a conquering reformer.

Used Force

What we know is that after he left Mecca he adopted very harsh means for the conversion of those who did not believe. As his following grew, he joined armed attack and plunder with the progress of his cause. One-fifth of all the loot went to him, and in the rest his followers shared alike.

His was a simple doctrine. He denounced infanticide, he opposed strong drink, and he taught the unity of God. The sixfold pledge of Akabah gives his system of morality:

"We will not worship any but the one God. We will not steal. Neither will we commit adultery. We will not kill our children. We will not slander in any wise. Nor will we disobey the prophet in anything that is right."

The doctrine likewise was sixfold:

"Belief in one God; in his Angels; in his Prophets; in the Holy Books, of which the chief and only indispensable one is the Koran; in the Day of Judgment; and in a fatalistic Predestination both of good and evil, so that no man can either hasten or delay his death; 'God wills it' and therefore it is."

Mohammed encouraged rather than forbade polygamy, but limited a man's wives to four, except in his own case. He justified divorce if a man thereby might secure more congenial wives. At one time he tolerated temporary marriage for the convenience of his soldiers in the field, but this did not prove a permanently desirable arrangement and there were usually women captives enough to make it unnecessary.

His conversion was by the sword, and he showed no quarter. He made forays on the neighboring tribes; he made war on Jewish cities; he attacked Christians. And he was successful. There were, indeed, some revolts.

Rival Systems

Three of his followers set up rival systems, and he fought them. They were not completely subdued at the time of his death but they went under eventually. He brooked no opposition.

Here is a description of him by Kamal ud Din ud Damiri (A. D. 1349-1405):

"Mohammed is the most favored of mankind, the most honored of all the apostles, the prophet of mercy, the head and commander of the faithful, the bearer of the banner of praise, the intercessor, the holder of high position, the possessor of the River of Paradise, under whose banner the sons of Adam will be on the day of judgment. He is the best of the prophets, and his nation is the best of nations. His companions are the most excellent of mankind, after the prophets, and his creed is the noblest on earth. He performed manifest miracles, and possessed great qualities. He was perfect in intellect, and was of noble origin. He had an absolutely graceful form, complete generosity, perfect bravery excessive humility, useful knowledge, power of performing high actions, perfect fear of God and sublime piety. He was the most eloquent and the most perfect of manhood in every variety of perfection, and the most distant of men from meanness and vices."

We might doubt his humility, but we have this testimony of Ayesha, his favorite wife:

"The prophet when at home used to serve his own household; he used to pick the vermin from his cloak and patch it, mend his own shoes, and serve himself. He used to give fodder to his camel, sweep the house, tie the camel by the foreleg, eat with the female slave, kneed dough with her, and carry his own purchases from the market."

Tomorrow—Mohammed's Death.

Takes the Place of Sweets

MOTHERS have found that children like Quaker Puffed Wheat in place of sweets. A welcome discovery .... a wholesome cereal that satisfies the candy craving.

The toasted, nutmeat flavour of Quaker Puffed Wheat makes friends at once. Its crunchiness exercises teeth and gums and helps them to be strong and healthy.

Quaker Puffed Wheat is the whole wheat grain, puffed to eight times normal size, and exploded .... cooked and oven-crisped. Every starch cell broken down, which aids digestion. All the bran is there, but delightfully concealed. Serve direct from the package, or warm if you wish.

Quaker PUFFED WHEAT

Quaker Puffed Rice, too

Whole rice grains also puffed and exploded. Dainty and light. Easily digested. Always pleasing and inviting to the appetite.

PATRONS OF ORATORY

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King (right), prime minister of Canada, and Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the opposition at Ottawa are patrons of this year's Canadian and International Oratorical Contests. The Canadian championship will be held at the Arena, Toronto, on Wednesday evening, May 16, with competitors from British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario and Prince Edward Island. The Canadian champion will be given a free trip to Europe and the right to represent Canada at the International contest in Washington on October 13, when ten countries will be represented. The Ontario championship, to decide who will represent Ontario at the Canadian finals, will be held in Massey Hall, Toronto, on Wednesday evening, May 2, with district champions from various parts of the province competing.

TRANSFORMERS FOR POWER PLANT

TORONTO, Ont., April 20.—The first 220,000 volt step-down transformer station in Canada is now being built by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission on a site in the town of Leaside, Ont., just north east of Toronto. This station, when completed, will also be one of the largest single stations on the continent, and will have a number of new features which will be studied with interest by engineers and others having similar undertakings.

Only a few years have elapsed since the Chippewa development of the Commission on the Niagara River was completed. It was expected that the capacity of the station (550,000 horsepower) would take care of load requirements for some time to come, but the growth of load was so rapid that the capacity of Queenston station was all used up, and it became necessary to find other sources of power, if the natural increase of load was to be accommodated. A contract for a supply of power was made with the Gatineau Power Company, a subsidiary of the International Paper Company, for the supply of 260,000 H.P. of 25 cycle power, to be delivered to the Commission at the International boundary (the Ottawa River) near Ottawa. Delivery of this block of power was to be spread over three years, starting in 1928 with a block of 80,000 H.P., and increasing to the full contract amount in the Autumn of 1931.

In order to bring this power from the place of delivery to a point where it could be fed into the Niagara System, two single circuit transmission lines which will operate at 220,000 volts will be required. These lines will be the first in Canada at this voltage, and each will be approximately 230 miles in length. The first line is now under construction. The logical point for the Western termination of the 220,000 volt lines was in the vicinity of Toronto, at its eastern boundary, and Leaside was selected.

The new station site covers 12 acres, this relatively large area being necessary because of (1) the quantity of power concentrated there, (2) outdoor construction (3) provision for supplying the power to both the Toronto-Hydro System distribution circuits at 13,200 volts and also the Niagara System at 110,000 volts (4) necessity for large size synchronous condensers.

The 220,000 volt lines terminate on what is known as a bus, and may be disconnected from it by means of large oil circuit breakers and disconnecting switches. Each oil circuit breaker, is approximately 22 feet high to the top of the bushing, and occupies an area 45 feet by 10 feet. Each tank, of which there are three per circuit breaker requires 5000 gallons of insulating oil. In spite of the large size of these breakers, and their heavy moving parts, it is expected that they will completely interrupt the circuit in one half second. Seven of these circuit breakers will be required to handle the contract load.

The 220,000 volt circuit, after passing through circuit breakers and disconnecting switches, passes to the 220,000 volt terminals of the power transformers. The transformers are of the largest practicable size; the biggest single phase water cooled units ever built, so far as known. Four of these banks of transformers will be required to handle the Gatineau contract the capacity of the station, therefore, being 180,000 kv-a. which is the equivalent of approximately 240,000 horse power.

The 110,000 volt windings of the transformers provide a means of interconnection whereby the Gatineau power may be taken directly and absorbed into the 110,000 volt Niagara System. It also provides means whereby, in case of necessity, power could be brought in from the Niagara System through the 110,000 volt windings of the transformers to supply customers receiving power from the Leaside station.

The control of all circuit breakers, disconnecting switches, tap changers and synchronous condensers is centred in a control room 35 feet by 45 feet. Here metering instruments will be located which will enable the operators at all times the conditions of voltage, power factor and load, and thus be in a position to control the equipment to best advantage, and make necessary operations in the quickest possible time. The control of the large breakers is effected by manipulating little switches no larger than the switches used for ordinary house lights, a group of these small control devices being assembled on the top of a desk about the size of the usual office desk, thus concentrating, before the operator, means of opening or closing the main circuits. Signal lights on the desk show him at a glance the position of such apparatus.

Active work at Leaside was started a few weeks ago, the first building to be constructed being the erection building required for the assembly of the electrical equipment. This building is fitted with a 75 ton electrically-operated overhead travelling crane to facilitate handling of heavy parts. The building will be of brick and concrete with structural steel framework. The manufacture of the electrical equipment is well under way at factories in Peterboro, Toronto, Hamilton and St. Catharines. The structural steel is being fabricated at Toronto and Walkerville. The progress schedule requires the first portion of the station to be ready to receive power by October 1st, 1928.

England now has 1,892 women magistrates.

GERMAN FLIERS ARE EAGER TO RESUME FLIGHT

Returned News Reel Photographer Tells of Visit to Greenly Island.

EXTENDED WELCOME.

NEW YORK, April 21.—(A.P.)—All the energies of the crew of the trans-Atlantic Bremen are now directed toward continuing the flight to New York.

Ray Farnstrom, Paramount News-Associated Press cameraman, who was the first newsreel man to reach Greenly Island, landed at Curtiss Field yesterday to tell of learning of the fliers' hopes at first hand.

The German members of the crew, who have waited on the island with their damaged ship, while Major Fitzmaurice went out to get them supplies, were said by the photographer to be far from bored on their island prison, being all eagerness at the thought of resuming their journey

"We first saw them waiting for us on the ice as we circled before landing," said Fernstrom, who still wore his sub-Arctic clothing and his sun glasses. He was the first man to come by air from Greenly Island to New York as the Bremen crew hope to do next week

Would Have Missed Stone Wall.

"They gave us a cordial greeting and drove us on a dog sled to see the Bremen, propped up and with everything in readiness for replacing the broken parts when new are received. They showed us that if they had touched the ground two feet beyond where they did, they would not have hit the concrete wall which threw the plane on its nose.

"The natives with the yapping dog teams swarmed about their first movie camera as they had about their first aeroplane at close range. They arrive daily and are promptly recruited to assist the Germans.

"Neither flier seemed to have any complaint to make and did not seem eager to discuss the difficulties they had met. "Fine, fine" they replied to all questions about themselves or their progress. Only when the baron was asked whether he would consider leaving his plane did he speak, with sober determination, 'We started out for New York or Heaven, and now we will go to New York and take the Bremen with us.'

LAKE STE. AGNES, Que., April 21 (Canadian Press). — The illness of Floyd Bennett, co-pilot with Bernt Balchen on the big tri-motored plane which was scheduled to carry spare parts to Greenly Island to-day to enable the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen to be flown to New York, has caused the trip to be postponed indefinitely. Bennett developed fever during the night and was unable to leave his sick bed to take his place at the controls.

"Duke" Schiller, Canadian Transcontinental Aairways pilot, who has been in Lake Ste. Agnes since last Wednesday, after flying from Greenly Island to this air base with Major Fitzmaurice, Irish member of the German-Irish westward oceanic hop, is being discussed as a possible relief pilot for the Ford plane. Should he be selected, the plane will in all probability leave to-day, but in the meantime the trip has been postponed indefinitely.

ROADS LEADING FROM CITY DRY

Highways and County Roads Hardly Fit For Pleasure Driving, However.

IMPROVING RAPIDLY.

According to a bulletin issued this morning by the Peterborough Automobile club, the Peterborough-Port Hope and Lindsay - Peterborough highways are now quite passable though rough The former is in good shape as far as Bewdley, while in the latter, there are stretches of heavy going between Hillhead and Reaboro and immediately east of Omemee.

The Norwood-Hastings road is reported to be in fair condition as is the Keene road, while many prefer the river road rather than the regular Lakefield road. The Millbrook road is improving, as are all the roads, due to the drying winds of the past few days. However, with the exception of the highway to Bewdley none of the routes is in shape for pleasure driving as yet.

Injuries Fatal to Child.

KIPLING, Sask., April 21 (Canadian Press).—After lingering six days with a bullet in his brain, Ernest Rother, four, died. The tot in some way managed to get a small rifle and was found by relatives with a bullet wound in the head.

Peculiar Sunset Seen At Warsaw

WARSAW, April 21.—Residents of Warsaw report a most peculiar sunset on Wednesday evening. There was a large, bright halo around the sun; directly above, and straight out from either side, on this halo there was a large bright spot, the sun was diminished by clouds, but showed a bright glow surrounded by heavier clouds, giving it, part of the time, the appearance of an enormous eye. Within the halo, except for the sun glow in the middle was greyish in color; outside, the sky showed blue through misty clouds

About fifteen minutes after the halo was noticed, a rainbow appeared pale, but distinct, parallel to the halo, and about as far from it and the halo was from the sun. The halo did not make a complete circle, as about one-quarter of it was behind heavy clouds.

CANADA'S PART IN WAR RETOLD

Capt. J. A. Dewart, M.C., Reviews Efforts of Canadian Corps.

YPRES ANNIVERSARY.

On Sunday, April 22, the 13th anniversary of the second battle of Ypres, Canadians will recall with pride the tremendous sacrifice but greater triumph of Canadian troops.

The address delivered by Captain John Dewart, M.C., at the weekly luncheon of the Peterborough Kiwanis club was a most praiseworthy effort, touching intimately, as it did, upon the heroic part played by Canadians at Ypres. Coming almost on the eve of the anniversary of the battle, it will provoke more than a little thought: It reads:

In this busy prosperous age, with its marvellous scientific and industrial development, we have a natural tendency to live in the present. The achievement of yesterday is dwarfed by the greater achievement of to-day and the more wonderful advancement of to-morrow. We live in a land where justice is equitably administered, where life and property are secure and where the individual can work out his destiny without interference. This is the result of the triumph of British institution which carry with them great and invaluable privileges. These privileges were not attained without sacrifices in the past, so that it is fitting that, from time to time, particularly at anniversary date, our thoughts should be directed to some of these sacrifices which made possible the splendid conditions under which we live.

History is a story of the activities of the nation in the past, and it contains many fascinating pages, particularly those which relate to military events. We used to read with admiration of that gallant band of spartans who held the Pass of Thermopyle against the invading hordes of Persia. We marvelled at the manner in which Horatius and his two companions held the bridge across the Tiber in the teeth of the Tuscan army and saved Rome. We thought the age of heroism was past and asked ourselves if it were possible that men of our time and age could, if confronted by like circumstances, rise to the same heights of heroism.

We have had our answer, for, 13 years ago on the 22nd of April, Canadian troops from the farms, the workshops and the offices of Canada performed a feat which will rank in history with the greatest military events of the past, when they held a gate in the face of the most appalling circumstances ever faced by soldiers, and the result of holding this gateway had a supreme influence on the fate of civilization. I refer to the second battle of Ypres.

You are all familiar with the steps taken by Canada following Britain's declaration of war in August 4th, 1914. Our House of Commons met in extraordinary session and after an examination of the documents leading up to outbreak of war men of all political parties agreed that Britain's cause was ust, that she was fighting for freedom against oppression, democracy against autocracy, civilization against a reversion to that state of barbarism where the supreme law is the law of might. They pledged Canada's full resources to the struggle.

Under the very energetic leadership the Minister of Militia, Sir Sam Hughes, in the space of a few weeks, by voluntary effort, 33,000 men were gathered from the Atlantic to the Pacific, placed in Valcartier camp, equipped, trained and organized into the 1st Canadian Division. They sailed from Quebec early in October, 1914, guarded by British warships, the largest military expedition which up to that time had ever left the shores of North America. They landed in England, went into camp at Salisbury Plains, and there endured the rigors of a very severe winter. Early in 1915 they were despatched to France and quartered at Hazebrook, a French town in the rear of Ypres salient, the region in which the British army was employed.

Various opinions had been expressed by military men as to the value of untried and untrained troops, and the general opinion prevailed that they would be at a great disadvantage fighting alongside and against the highly trained troops of Europe. The B.E.F. of 70,000 men who had gone to France in the early days of the war were perhaps the finest trained body of troops in the world, particularly in the use of the rifle. They were the result of years of training, and beside that every unit which comprised that force had inscribed on its colors the name of the greatest victories in British military

DEPARTMENT OFFICIALS DENY ANY UNFAIRNESS TO DEFENSE

Col. Orde Says Both Sides Helped in Every Possible Way.

REGAN REPRIMANDED.

F. W. Wilson Tells of Discussing Matter With General Currie After Article Appeared.

(By Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, April 21. — Events took a lively turn at the Sir Arthur Currie-Wilson-Preston $50,000 libel suit here to-day when charges of unfair treatment of the defence by the Department of National Defence, Ottawa, were made.

Things came to a head when His Lordship severely reprimanded Mr. Regan for cross-examination of his own witness, Col. Archer Duguid, of Ottawa, and asked Col. Orde if he wished to make a statement in the interests of the Department. Col. Orde declared the Department had assisted the defence in every possible way.

As Col. Orde completed his statement, Mr. Preston jumped to his feet, and declared there was unfair treatment, and that it was without the knowledge of the Minister.

Mr. Regan claimed he never charged any unfair treatment, and as late as last night he wrote the Deputy-Minister thanking him for sending such efficient officers as witnesses.

After one week the defence had not closed its case, but from all expectations it will close it at noon on Monday.

F. W. Wilson, proprietor of the Port Hope Guide, which printed the alleged libelous article, was put in the box, and identified the occasion when the article was printed and told why he did it.

At 12.45 Mr. Regan made the acknowledgment that he was at a loss to know what to ask the witness, and would like time to consider the question. He had tried to submit as evidence statements appearing in Hansard about the capturing of Mons. His Lordship ruled such evidence out when Mr. Regan failed to show the Court any case when Hansard statements had been accepted as evidence.

Service Books Barred.

Mr. Regan attempted to put in wholesale exhibits of military instructions from field books at the opening of the court this morning, but his Lordship would only allow the relevant material and when Mr. Regan failed to show the relevancy His Lordship ruled the exhibits out.

When Mr. Regan referred to the records of casualties not being properly kept, His Lordsihp interrupted. "Kindly forget there is any press here and conduct the case as it should be conducted."

Col. Arthur Duguid, of the Department of National Defence, was the first witness called by Mr. Regan. The Colonel was asked for copies of the war diaries for the last three days of the war of the R.C.R., Forty-Second Battalion ,Princess Pats, Seventh Brigade, 4th and 8th Brigade of Canadian Field Artillery. These were put in as exhibits.

Col. Duguid will probably require assistance to carry all the documents into court which he has been required to produce .One request by the defense counsel was for all operation orders in which the word Mons appears. Mr. Tilley pointed out that there would be hundreds of these which would have no bearing on the case whatever. The request was therefore altered to mean those dealing with the attack on Mons.

A second request was for all orders and accounts of gun fire along the Mons front which Mr. Regan said the men of the department were subpoenaed to bring and apparently have not done so. Mr. Regan therefore did not wish to be blamed for not having them there.

Orde States Position.

His Lordship disagreed with Mr. Regan and spoke very highly of the conduct of the men of the department both in and out of court. They have, according to His Lordshto, done everything in their power to assist both sides of the case.

In defence of a charge inferred Col. Orde was given the permission of the bench to go into the box to make a statetment. He said:

"My Lord, about the 14th March, the minister received a subpoena with an appendix list containing 73 items covering war diaries, returns, casualties, operation reports and messages. We have brought with us every item asked for, except one, which could not be found. We have asked Mr. Regan daily, nightly, what he desired and have even suggested to him from our military knowledge, what evidence should be brought out at the trial. We have done everything we can possibly do to assist Mr. Regan. It has been stated that Sir Arthur Currie on request got certain documents which were not sent to Mr. Regan or Mr. Preston. Mr. Regan complained about this and I immediately had all requested sent to him.

"The requests then became so numerous from both plaintiff and defendant that the Department had to put a stop to that procedure and notified both parties, advising them that such documents would only be produced by subpoena, and then the Department would reserve the right

Sleep At Own Risk In Beds That Fold

LOS ANGELES, April 21 (Canadian Press).—Apartment dwellers who fail to note and report defects in folding beds, sleep in them at their own peril, a court here has ruled. Bruce Carter and his wife brought suit for forty thousand dollars, charging their bed folded up and forced them to spend the greater part of a night standing on their heads. After listening to testimony on folding beds in general, including spring tension and balance, the court granted a motion for nonsuit.

GIRL SAVES BOY FROM DROWNING

Miss Frances Sedgwick Holds Up Austin Keeler Until Help Comes.

AT TRENT RIVER.

TRENT RIVER, April 21.—Austin Keeler, nine-year-old son of Mrs. James Johnson, nearly lost his life in the Trent River this afternoon. He was standing on some boards which floated under the little bridge where there is a swift current.

Miss Frances Sedgwick rushed to the rescue with a canoe, but before she reached the boy the current upset the canoe. She grasped the boy and both held onto the lower part of the bridge until Thomas Wight rescued them.

THREE MEMORIALS TO BE DEDICATED

Two New Windows and Font Recently Installed in Trinity Church.

On Sunday morning in the Trinity Church a service of unusual interest will take place.

Two memorial windows and a baptismal font are being installed.

One of the windows has been installed to the memory of the late W. C. Switzer, a former member of Trinity Church, who took an active part in the erection of the church, and was a very faithful member of the quarterly official board up to the time of his decease.

Another window is to the memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Minorgan, their daughter, Jessie Stewart, and their son, George Elliott, who was killed in action in France in April, 1915.

A baptismal font is being installed to the memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Cox, whose nome was formerly where the Trinity Church now stands.

Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson, a former pastor, under whose leadership the present church was erected, will be present and assist in the service. With the competion of these windows, Trinity Church will then have a complete set of memorial windows which greatly enhance the beauty of the church and make it one of the most beautiful churches of the kind in the United Church of Canada. The Sunday services will be a fitting opportunity to do honor to the memory of those who in other days gave a very faithful and grateful service to the cause of God through the church of their choice. Visitors and friends of the deceased from a distance will be present to take part in these services.

Justice Rose Obtaining Much Publicity Through Currie-Preston Libel Action

TORONTO, April 21 (Canadian Press).—Perhaps the most retiring judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario, Mr Justice Rose in the Currie-Preston libel action is betting more publicity than falls to the lot of most judges in long years of experience on the bench. Until the beginning of this week he was known scarcely at all outside of legal and judicial circles, and his colleagues thought of him only as a quiet, retiring man, an efficient lawyer, and a capable judge.

Newspaper men who know the judges' antipathy to publicity speculate as to how he likes his present position. On one occasion not long ago, when a reporter approached Mr. Justice Rose with a request for some personal biographical material, he was turned away empty-handed with the remark, "I don't believe in publicity and that sort of stuff."

Hugh Edward Rose was born in Toronto in 1869, the son of the late Hon. J. H. Rose, a judge of the old High Court of Justice of Ontario. Obtaining his B.A. degree from the University of Toronto in 1891 and his LL.B. in 1892, the future judge took up the study of law at Osgoode Hall, and was called to the bar in 1894. He is unmarried.

He practised successfully in Toronto, and for some time delivered lectures on law at the University of Toronto and at Osgoode Hall. In 1908 he was made a King's Counsel, and in 1916 was appointed to the bench of the Supreme Court of Ontario. Since that time he has been a member of the High Court Division of the Supreme Court.

THE OBJECT OF EMPIRE SHOPPING WEEK

Empire Shopping Weeks are not a novelty. They have been tried with great success in other parts of the Empire, notably in Australia, British West Indies, and in Great Britain. One main thought steadily kept in mind is that a natural first preference be given to goods that are products of the country, or locality, in which the week is held; other Empire products receiving the next preference.

In 1914 Canada's total imports were over $410,000,000; in 1922, over $747,000,000; in 1927, over $1,000,000,000, and of these over $800,000,000 come from foreign countries. These figures and facts will bring home to every Canadian the desirability of aiding any plan that gives promise of rectifying, even partially, this conditon.

The merchants of Peterborough, and the manufacturers, during Empire Shopping Week, April 21st to 28th inclusive, have combined in an attempt to show every resident of Peterborough and district how it is possible, by an interchange of commodities locally, to set up a never-ending circulation of money among producers and consumers, with resulting economic benefits to all concerned, and particularly to the individual workman engaged in all commercial and industrial duties.

Citizens! Learn what you can buy in the way of Peterborough, Dominion, and Empire made articles; price and quality equaling the foreign article Demand the products of this City, Dominion, or Empire!

Merchants, fly your flags during the week.

ROLAND DENNE, Mayor.

JAMES DUTTON, President. Chamber of Commerce.

J. J. TURNER, Chairman, Peterborough Empire Shopping Week Committee.

C.G.E. TEST MEN ELECT OFFICERS

UNIQUE PROGRAM.

Canadian General Electric Company Test men, past and present, assembled en masse at the Empress Hotel last night and inaugurated the C.G.E. Test Alumni Association amid scenes of enthusiasm that would be hard to duplicate.

The initial banquet was unique, in the sense that no speeches were scheduled on the program. The only toasts of the evening were a silent toast to the ex-Test men who had passed on, and "Our Guests."

George B. Wilson, chairman for the occasion, paid eloquent tribute to the memory of the men who had died.

The toast to "Our Guests" was proposed by George S. Stewart, manager of the Toronto District Office. He coupled with the toast the names of E. G. Patterson, general manager of the local plant; W. A. Bucke, A. S. Edgar, L. D. W. Magie, H. H. Rimmer, M. P. White and A. H. Fielder.

Mr. Patterson, replying to the toast, expressed his appreciation at being present and extended his felicitations for the continued success of the new association.

Community singing, taking in all the old songs and many original ones composed specially for the banquet, was ably sponsored by Bill Cruthers.

Bruce Johnston outlined the constitution of the Test Alumni Association, it being unanimously adopted by the gathering.

The officers elected to guide its destinies for the first year are as follows:

Hon. President, L. D. W. Magie; President, George B. Wilson; Vice Presidents, A. B. Gates, C. E. Sisson, D. R. Wright, and A. H. Fielder; Secretary-Treasurer, H G Todd.

Moving pictures of the Belanger-Jarvis fight were shown, also one showing the various departments and buildings of the Peterborough plant.

Stunts based on factory occurrences, depicting many of the Company's officials supposedly transacting company business, were staged by the Davenport works, Head Office and the Peterborough works. These produced much merriment and well merited the hearty applause they received.

Many telegrams expressing regret at inability to be present were received from ex-Test men from coast

Forest Fires Are Now Under Control

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 21 (Canadian Press).—All of the approximately 125 forest fires which laid waste several thousand acres of Pennsylvania's timberlands had been brought under control yesterday.

At the state department of forests and waters, where reports were received of all the major fires, it was stated that the situation was well in hand, and that the largest of the fires of Thursday were about 400 acres in extent.

The only fatality in Thursday's epidemic of fires reported to the department was that of an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who died of burns in Johnstown. He was one of sixty men detailed by the railroad to help fight a fire in Burrel township, Armstrong county.

EGG GRADING NOT POPULAR

Vendors and Buyers Resent Extra Work and Difference in Price.

CHICKENS SCARCE.

Most of the vendors on the farmers' market are displeased with the new regulations which require strict grading, candling and marking of eggs. In several cases this morning, they declared that sales of eggs in the basket section have dropped off since the regulations have been enforced, with an inspector making weekly rounds to watch their observance Just why this should be so is not apparent, but on several Saturdays recently there have been a large number of eggs left unsold at a late hour. One lady asserted that the stores reap the benefit. "The customers pay the difference on Monday," she said, claiming that the stores grade in a different way to that practised on the market.

Prices ranged this morning from 40 to 20 cents a dozen, the first for very large pure white eggs of the "special" type, and the last price for pullets' eggs. It is said that the buyers resent the difference in price. They do not see why one basket of eggs with not much appreciable diference in size should be marked 35 cents a dozen ,while a companion basket is marked 28 cents. The difference in weight, by which the eggs are graded, is not as perceptible to the eye as one might think would be the case. The buyers is apt to think, it was asserted, that the vendor is trying to "do" the customer, by making extravagant claims for "specials" and "extras."

One lady with a very broad-minded outlook went about, buying a dozen of the "specials," a dozen of the "extras" and a dozen of the tiny pullets' eggs. She was going to sample them all and find out if the difference in price was justified.

The basket section was placarded this morning with pamphlets describing "cruel" eyes and "foxy" ears and "erratic" noses, advance material for a forthcoming psychological course. In between debates over the egg question, the patrons and vendors studied the charts which tell you and the world quite plainly just what manner of person you are.

Chickens were scarce this morning and sold at 35 cents a pound. Hens are 32 cents. Butter was 40 and 42 cents a pound.

Little round cakes of maple sugar sold at 10 cents apiece and honey of the clover variety was 14 cents a pound.

On the open section, potatoes were 30 and 35 cents a peck, $1.65 and $1.75 a bag. Spy apples were 50 and 75 cents a peck and Peewaukees 40 cents. Maple syrup was 70 cents a quart and little pigs were $4 each in junior sizes and $9 a pair for larger samples.

JUDGE REPRIMANDS COUNSEL FOR PLEADING UNFAIRNESS BECAUSE OF INEXPERIENCE

Eliminate Confusion On Exchange Floor

NEW YORK, April 21 (Canadian Press)—In an effort to combat the confusion created in brokerage houses by the long delays in transmitting ticker quotations, the Stock Exchange yesterday announced that, beginning next Wednesday and continuing for an indefinite time ,a selected list of stocks will be recorded on the bond tape at half-hour intervals. The quotations will not be records of actual sales, and will not be accepted as basis for any controversy between members or their customers with respect to executions of orders. The service is designed, rather to supersede so far as possible that which is now being given over members' telephones from the floor.

Floor members of the exchange will rest to-day, as the market will not open its doors. Offices of members, however, will remain open, and clerks and bookkeepers will remain hard at their work, as the recess is designed solely to permit a clearing up of accumulated work.

SEVEN KILLED IN EXPLOSIONS

Three Terrific Blasts Rock Alexander Industries Plant at Englewood.

OTHERS INJURED.

DENVER. Col., April 21. Canadian Press. — At least seven persons were burned to death and nineteen others were injured, several probably fatally, when three terrific explosions rocked the Alexander Industries plant at Englewood, a suburb, and set fire to the properties yesterday.

None of the 26 men and women who were working in the paint shop located a short distance in the rear of the main structure, escaped uninjured.

The company engages in a number of enterprises, including the manufacture of airplanes, and the fire spread rapidly from the paint shop, with its store of highly inflammable materials used in the "doping" of airplane wings.

Flames enveloped the building after the first blast. Persons, their clothes in flames, staggered from the burning structure while rescuers who rushed in emerged with the seared bodies of others.

The known dead are Effie Harkins and Ella Taylor, Mrs. Gertrude C. Jariett, Ross Owen Scott and Carl B. Moseley, employees; and one unidentified man and one unidentified woman. In quick succession the two blasts followed the first explosion, and the flames shot 50 feet out of the building. Almost all the clothing of the victims was burned off. Several were in a critical condition at the Denver General Hospital. A temporary first aid station was established at the scene of the explosion and here the nude and seared bodies of the victims were swathed in hastily-improvised bandages.

The paint shop, a wooden structure was rapidly consumed by the fire, which was brought under control in the afternoon.

Richard Trenari, 21, an employee who was in the building when the first explosion occurred, said that he believed it was caused by a short circuited electric fan which dropped into an open bar. of silver nitrate.

Legion Notes

To-morrow the local branch of the Canadian Legion will observe the 13th anniversary of the second battle of Ypres by attending a memorial service at St James' United church. An invitation is extended to all ex-service men to be present. Legionnaires and ex-service men will wear civilian clothes, with decorations and medals. They will fall in at headquarters, Murray St., at 10.15 a.m., sharp.

Flag bearer.
Peterborough Rangers band.
Militia Units.
Salvation Army band.
Mayor, City Council and Guests.
Legionnaires and returned soldiers.
Column of Route—
Murray street to George street.
George street to Romaine street.
Romaine street to church.

At the conclusion of the service the whole will re-assemble facing the church and march to a point 100 yards east, where the dispersal will take place.

Captain J. Abraham, president of the branch, will be in charge, and hopes a large muster of comrades will be in attendance.

Mexico City has started an investigation of living conditions of children of the working classes, with a view of improving the situation.

MUST DELIMIT CASE.

Col. Orde Gives Evidence From Army Records Nearly All Day —Night Sitting Planned.

COBOURG, April 21—Frank Regan, counsel for W. F. Wilson, proprietor of The Port Hope Guide, was severely repremanded by Hon. Mr. Justice Rose, presiding judge at the Currie-Wilson-Preston $50,000 libel suit here yesterday, when he suggested to the bench that their was unfairness on account of his own inexperience.

Justice Rose told counsel he was not going to have suggestions to the bench that there is unfairness to any counsel. "I assume that when any counsel undertakes to conduct a case he is satisfied and his client is satisfied on his competence to do so and of his knowledge of law and practise. I am not going to make any difference between counsel or admit the evidence of one because of his inexperience and exclude the evidence of another because of his experience."

In a short explanation, His Lordship said he was bound to take this position, and it was the duty of a counsel to help him in delimiting a case.

Mr. Regan: "It would be unfair if Mr. Tilley——"

His Lordship: "I am not dealing with Mr. Tilley. I am dealing with the problem that confronts me at every moment when I am trying a case; that of defining the issue."

After three hours and a half in the witness box in the morning, Col. Orde of the Department of National Defense was recalled in the afternoon at 3.25 and remained in the box until 7.00 o'clock. He was examined by Mr. Regan, on the movements of the troops in the vicinity of Mons on November 10 and 11.

The jury after the 4 pm recess was asked what they thought of sitting at night, and all agreed that it would expedite the case. Mr. Tilley and His Lordship also consented, but Mr. Regan objected, and claimed he was about exhausted on account of the heavy week's work. One juryman reminded His Lordship that they were farmers, and at this time of year they ought to be home; and Mr. Tilley said he had a case before the Court of Appeal next week, but Mr. Regan asked for the 6.00 o'clock adjournment, and promised to sit every night next week, if it would expedite matters.

Col. Orde told of the system of recording casualties. The daily casualty wire covered the day from noon to noon and would not blend with other statistics from midnight to midnight.

The official casualty record would start at the field ambulance, with positive identification of man. The next organization, the casualty clearing station, further back, would follow the same procedure, also the base hospitals. The record could be traced right through. Thus the department has thorough system for checking casualties. Thus the error in the first list furnished to Sir Arthur Currie and to defendants, is explained. This is the reason why the name of Price, who was alleged to have been killed by a sniper at three minutes to eleven on the morning of the armistice, was not included.

Mr. Tilley in cross examination inquired into the deaths of the Canadian soldiers during November 10th and of the movement of the battalion that day.

Q—A witness said his battalion, the 21st passed through the 19th on evening of November 10 and advanced towards Mons. Is there any record of this?

Q.—Did the 19th go through the 21st.

A.—19th went through 18th on night of 10th farther north of Mons. On November 8th, 24th Battalion came behind the 21st and moved along the line 4½ miles south of Mons advancing directly east.

On the night of the 9th they passed through the 24th and took up the line 4 miles south of Mons. The records also show Pte. Sullivan was killed on 10th and that Acting-Corporal F. W. Joyce was wounded on the 10th and was sent to a casualty clearing hospital and died on the 11th. The records of 42nd Battalion were considered and discovered that Pte. Brigden, Pte. Dagle, Pte. T. Mills and Lance Corporal Jones, who were accorded the military funeral in Mons on the 12th, were killed in action Nov. 10.

On further investigation it was found that Pte. A. Burnside, Pte. A. Lowe, and Pte. Hills Stanley of 42nd were killed in action on the 10th, while Pte. J. Hylands, Pte. J. Mahood, and Pte. A. McPhee were wounded and later died in the hospital.

Farriers Shops Shelled.

Col. Orde, asked if these men were killed in the rear, reads from war diary were shell dropped in the Farrier Sergeant's shop of the 42nd Battalion, killing two and wounding ten others, four of whom died later. The incident occurred at the transport

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD MEETING

TAFFY PULL HELD.

WARSAW, April 21. — The Warsaw Young People's Society met in the Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening. Miss Elsie Moore gave a paper on the life of a Hindoo girl, which was well prepared. Harold Payne gave a paper on the changes which have taken place in Peterborough County within the last seventy-five years.

The next meeting will be in the United Church, and will be a social gathering.

—Taffy Pull Held.

Mrs. Russell Puffer opened her house for a taffy pull on Tuesday evening. Millinery and peanut contests caused much merriment during the evening, also a short musical program was given, after which lunch was served. Rev. H. B. Herrington was among those present.

Church News.

Mr. McCleary left for Vancouver on Monday to visit his father, but has arranged for a student to take charge of the service in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

The Anglican services will be carried on regularly, alternative morning and evening. On Sunday, April 22, the service will be in the evening.

Personals.

Rev. H. B. Herrington, Mrs. George Taylor, and Mrs. W. Forsythe, from this district, attended the Sunday School executive meeting in Peterborough on Tuesday.

MEETING HELD OF DEANERY CHAPTER

Rev. Dr. Cosgrave Addresses Meeting Held at Christ Church, Norwood.

NORWOOD, April 21. — A chapter of the clergy of the Rural Deanery of Peterborough was held at Christ Church, Norwood, on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, under the presidency of the Rural Dean, Rev. C. A. G. Spence, rector of Apsley. A public service of evensong was held on Tuesday evening at 8.30. This late hour was arranged to enable Rev. Dr. Cosgrave, Provost of Trinity College, Toronto, to reach the church in time to preach, he having hastened down from another pressing engagement to do this honor to Norwood church. The Provost took as his text St. Luke 9, 2: "He sent them to preach the kingdom of God." His sermon was a full and eloquent account of the duties which press upon members of the church, especially in regard to the broader outlook and higher conception of a churchman's duties in the present day. There was a very large congregation, including many members from the other churches of the village.

The closing prayer and benediction were by the Rural Dean. The clergy present were: Rural Dean, Rev. C. A. G. Spence of Apsley, Rev. G. Bousfield, St. Luke's Church, Peterborough, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, St. John's Church, Peterborough, Rev. T. Stanley, Havelock, Rev. R. T. C. Dwelly, Young's Point, and Rev. T. J. O'Connor-Fenton, rector of Christ Church, Norwood. Rev. J. D. Paterson, of All Saints', Peterborough, accompanied by Mr. Cuttle, Finance Commissioner of Toronto Diocese, arrived too late to take part.

On Wednesday the clergy and several members of the congregation received the Sacrament at 8 a.m. After breakfast together at the rectory, the clergy said matins together in the church, and then proceeded to business. The Provost gave a very exhaustive and lucid account of the proposed new English prayer book. This was followed by an interesting discussion. The rector of Norwood took up I. Peter 2, 11 to the end, in Greek. Certain deanery business was then dealt with, and the session closed with the benediction by the Rural Dean. The music at both services was in charge of K. G. Thomson and his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Thomson, organist.

The visiting clergy were most hospitably entertained by various members of the congregation. Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Grover entertained the entire party at luncheon before their final departure.

SOCIAL EVENING.

"Pot-luck Tea" Held Under Auspices of Women's Institute at Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, April 21.—A pleasant social gathering, in the form of a 'pot-luck tea," under the auspices of the Women's Institute, was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, on Thursday afternoon.

The guests all brought their work, and, judging by the continuous hum of conversation and frequent bursts of laughter, there were no dull moments in connection with the event.

The 'pot-luck' plan of having everyone bring whatever inclination dictated for the tea was evidently a success, the supply of provisions being more than adequate for the number present with a pleasing variety when the tables were laid, and everything delicious in quality.

There was no charge, the affair being planned simply from the social standpoint. The daintily-colored eggs, which one member supplied for the tea, gave a touch of Easter that was seasonable.

Among the improvements which the Institute has been making at the Town Hall are included a new hardwood floor on the stage, and a cupboard in the kitchen under the gallery which promises safe keeping for the dishes belonging to the organization, and adds greatly to the convenience of serving when the hall is being used for social purposes. The suggestion that the Institute purchase some needed furnishings for the dressing-rooms on either side of the stage will come up for consideration at the next meeting.

The annual meeting will be held on the second Saturday in May.

A.Y.P.A. Gathering.

"Gentlemen's Night" featured the A.Y.P.A. gathering on Thursday evening, over sixty guests sitting down to the well-laden tables at 7 o'clock.

The men were responsible for the entire evening, acting as hosts, welcoming the guests, supplying the menu, which was of a most satisfying nature, and providing the program. Floral decorations added to the attractiveness of the tea tables.

Through the courtesy of Russell Smith, a radio was installed for the evening, and supplied musical selections while the supper was in progress. The men, on this occasion, were returning the compliment to the ladies who entertained them just before Lent, a "Jiggs and Maggie" evening proving both unusual and enjoyable.

Among those taking part in the program were Major A. V. Thorne, who gave guitar selections; L. W. Hutchison, whose numbers with the accordeon, and the banjo and harmonica, were much enjoyed; and R. Stone, who sang two vocal solos.

A one-act comedy, "When Women Have Their Rights," was highly amusing, the characters being: Mr. Pennylope—Piercey Pitt; Mrs. Pennylope—T. H. Harkness; Mr. Wyndham — Maurice Gray.

The formal vote of thanks to the men for the very enjoyable evening provided was moved by Mrs. P. C. Howard, president of the A.Y.P.A., and seconded by Miss Gladys Gray. R. Stone, vice-president, who was largely responsible for the entire evening's "doings," responded on behalf of the hosts of the gathering.

During the Lenten season the A. Y. P. A. has been meeting with the regular church service on Wednesday nights in the Parish Hall, the Rev. P. C. Howard taking up a series of talks on the lift of Christ, illustrated by lantern slides. The next fortnightly meeting will be literary in character, with probably an illustrated study of some outstanding writer.

Personals.

Mrs. Walter Dayton, of Picton, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley. The former's many friends will be glad to learn that he is convalescing satisfactorily, following a recent operation for the removal of tonsils and adenoids.

Mrs. Hayten Reid, of Montreal, is the guest of Miss Daisy Armour, Anne Street.

F. D. KERR SPEAKS TO ST. JOHN'S MEN

Gives Interesting Talk On Life and Works of W. E. Gladstone.

The regular monthly meeting of St. John's Men's Club was held in the Parish House on Monday evening last at 8 o'clock. J. Cridland presided.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave opened with prayer. An invitation was extended to All Saints' Men's Club for a return match at carpet balls next Monday.

The speaker of the evening, F. D. Kerr, K.C., was then introduced. Mr. Kerr's ably delivered address carried those present back to the old and esteemed British leader, the Rt. Hon. Mr. Gladstone. The theme of the talk showed that men may die and yet not be dead. The address was enjoyed by all, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded the speaker.

Refreshments were then served.

PLAY PRESENTED AT HAVELOCK

"East Lynne" Staged By the Young People of Knox Church.

HAVELOCK, April 21. — "East Lynne," a play in five acts was presented on Wednesday evening in the town hall by the young people of Knox church before a large audience that appeared to enjoy to the utmost their splendid reproduction of this famous English drama. Long before eight o'clock the hall was filled and extra seats were brought in until there was not room for another person. The proceeds amounted to about $185.00, while over $10.00 was realized by the Young Women's Auxiliary from the sale of home-made candy. The play which was under the able and experienced directorship of James F. Platt, assisted by Mrs. H. F. McNichol, had the benefit of a splendid cast, each member giving an excellent portrayal of their allotted role. New scenery, painted especially for the occasion by Mr. Platt, made a very beautiful and appropriate stage setting. Piano selections were played by Miss Helen Thompson while the audience was gathering and between acts. The following is the cast of characters:

Archibald Carlyle, lawyer — Fred Bennett.

Lord Mount Severn, Isabelle's uncle—F. McLaughlin.

Justice Hare, justice of peaceJ D. Wright.

Richard Hare, Justice Hare's son—W. Woodbeck.

Police officer—Albert Wilson.

Little William—Babe McNichol.

Lady Isabel—Marguerite Martin.

Madam Vine—Marguerite Martin.

Barbara Hare, Justice Hare's daughter—Reta Buchanan.

Miss Carlyle, sister of A. Carlyle—Elma Martin.

Joyce, ladies' maid—Allie McNichol.

Wilson, housemaid—Alice Dewey.

Lucy, Carlyle's daughter — Betty Mathison.

At the close of the performance the Ladies' Aid served lunch in the school roo mof the church to the members of the play.

BOY IS KILLED BY MOTOR CAR

Cobourg Lad Darts Out Into Street in Front of Vehicle.

DIES ALMOST AT ONCE.

COBOURG, April 21. — Wilbert Yerrow, aged nine, was almos instantly killed at 4.22 yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a motor car on George Street, just north of the main street. The driver of the vehicle was not held.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Yerrow, Division Street, who reside in the old C.N.R. Station on that street. Mr. Yerrow is a C. N.R. employee. At the time of the accident the little boy seems to have run out on to the roadway almost in front of the approaching vehicle. He was rushed to Dr. Jamieson's office, but died almost as soon as he was admitted.

LECTURE REPEATED.

Rev. J. D. Paterson Tells of Scotland's National War Memorial.

Rev. J. D. Paterson repeated his lecture on Scotland's National War Memorial in the parish hall of All Saints' Church on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Women's Guild. The lecture proved very enjoyable to those present and was added to by a pleasing program which included readings by Miss Margaret Wyllie, songs by Mrs. Jackson and A. Clark, with accompaniments played by Miss Muriel Bridge.

YOUNG PEOPLE PRESENT PLAY

"Her Step-Husband" Staged By Members of Christian Endeavor Society.

AT MADOC.

MADOC, April 21. — "Her Step-Husband," a real live comedy, was presented in the Empire Theatre on Tuesday evening by the young people of the Christian Endeavor. The play was well staged, and all the players took their parts exceedingly well. The fun commenced with the rise of the curtain, and was well sustained until its close.

Cold Weather Delays Work On Farms—Good Sap Run.

WARSAW, April 21—There was a good run of sap on Tuesday afternoon and all day Wednesday. It is as clear as it ever was, and somewhat sweeter, so some makers report, no sign whatever of deterioration in quality.

Spring work will be very late. Farmers have a chance to get odd chores done, unless they are in a bush, and they have not been steadily driven at that.

The buds began to swell on the twigs two weeks ago, and almost seem to have retreated. However, to look over the country, one sees of softening of the colors, and the branches seem to occupy more space. The cedars are getting a bright green again.

FRANCE RESERVES WARS FOR LEAGUE

Also Wants Right To Fight If Attacked — Treaty Submitted.

PARIS, April 21 (Canadian Press). —France in her draft of the treaty for the renunciation of war, reserves the right to wage war for defence and in fulfillment of her obligations under the League of Nations covenant.

The French draft of the multilateral pact was presented to five powers: the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Italy and Japan, yesterday, for consideration in preference to the plan of Secretary of State Kellogg, of the United States.

The object of the treaty, which was made public to-day, was defined as a "humane effort to achieve a union of civilized peoples through common renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy."

REMEMBERING THAT MY CARPENTER FRIEND had been described by one of the Christian Science watch-dogs as "the fictitious John Plane," I thought I would call upon him and find out whether or not he had seen a letter which had appeared in The Examiner on April 2.

"Oh, yes," he said, "I saw it all right; but it beats me to know how our C. S. neighbors can play so fast and loose with words! It seems to me that what is needed is an honest attempt to publish a dictionary giving the definite meaning of all words in circulation among the members of that strange sect which was founded by Mary Baker Eddy. The writer of the letter which was published on April 2nd says, 'The facts are that in the Christian Science organization provision is made for the proper editing and publishing of all authorized Christian Science literature.' I wonder why this organization, in all fairness to itself and multitudes who want to know the truth, does not publish such a dictionary!

Christian Science Not Understood.

"When I speak of any of my C. S. neighbors about the peculiar beliefs of their sect, I am invariably told 'Oh, you don't understand!' All of which may be true! But I can understand a Methodist, an Anglican, a Congregationalist, or a Roman Catholic, although I don't belong to any of these branches of the Christian church—then, why can't I understand a Christian Scientist? I can understand all sorts of odds and ends among the more than fifty-seven varieties of strange and often contradictory beliefs, even if I don't agree with any of them. But with Christian Science it is different! I wonder why? Perhaps if I could be assured as to what is meant by certain statements I could also understand Christian Science even if I were still unable to agree with it. But I refuse to agree with the statement that I do not understand. The fact is that I understand it well enough not to want to have anything to do with it. I may be a simple soul, without the stamp of the schools upon me, but I am in good company when I think that Christian Science is neither Christian nor scientific."

Christian Science the Witch of Endor.

A friend has recently presented me with a book from the pen of John Timothy Stone in which he quotes an incident from the life of Maltbie Davenport Babcock. It seems that a certain young lady had written her doubts as to Christian Science, and he answered with the following letter:

"I can only speak for myself. I would not consider Christian Science anything short of the Witch of Endor. The basis on which it certainly has helped many people is a truth always known and now more and more appreciated. . . . The power of mind over matter! That is hardly explored yet, although Magnetism, Perkins "Metallic Tractors," Mesmerism, Hypnotism, Telepathy, and what not, have dug quite a way into the mountain. There is the practical human basis of C S. on the divine side. I wish I knew what God thinks, but this much is true, that this new system which denies the personality of God, the reality of sin and the atonement, may call itself Christian, but it is an infringement on the patent. I think C. S. neither Christian nor scientific. I could tell you of people I have known intimately, who were uplifted, exalted, cured, and who afterwards absolutely collapsed, and in several distressing instances, died. Their whole system breaks down at death. Mrs. Eddy will die when her time comes just like the rest of us. They are full of words, and are covered up in inconsistencies. I would not have anything to do with them. I can give you all you want to read, if you care to have me. I am in no way indifferent to the sufferings in this particular case nor to your heart. Cannot she claim God's goodness and power quite as well under James's auspices (James 5:15), as under Mrs. Eddy's?"

Christian Science and Humor.

The trouble with many of those who have taken up Christian Science is that they take themselves too seriously. A little of the saving grace of humor would help them to retain a measure of sanity.

As Mr. Bindle says to Ginger, so I might substitute the name of the writer of the letter in question which appeared on April 2nd, and say, "If you was to smile a little more . . . . life wouldn't 'urt quite so much."

Incipient Insanity.

In one of my books I came across the following which might quite fittingly be inserted here.

"Mr. Depew has a well-balanced brain. There are no streaks of insanity in the Depew family. Once, while conversing with Dr. Hammond, our witty ex-surgeon-general, about insanity, I asked him how incipient insanity could be detected.

"'One infallible test,' said the doctor, 'is to get a good joke on a man—a real good one—and if he laughs at it, it is a sure sign that his mind is evenly balanced. An insane man never laughs at a good joke on himself. He always gets enraged. Insanity always begins in egotism. Guiteau, the crazy man who shot Garfield, laughed at his own jokes all through the trial, but when the prosecuting attorney got a joke on him, his insanity showed itself in flashing eyes and a scowl of indignation.'

"After my conversation with Dr. Hammond, I met Sam Cox at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and told him about Hammond's theory.

"'Let's go over to Madison Square,' said Sam, 'and try the theory on George Francis Train.'

"'Good,' I said, and we were soon in the garden talking to the great George Francis, who sat on a bench surrounded by his usual crowd of children. 'Train is a vegetarian, and he was soon talking on his favorite subject.

"'Yes,' he said, 'I am a vegetarian. Vegetables give strength. They give muscle;' and then he held up his clenched fist and gradually opened it to show the flow of red blood to the palm.

"'See!' said Train, 'that blood and muscle comes from a vegetable diet.'

"'Yes,' said Cox, 'you are right, George. Vegetables do give muscle and health. I notice that all the strong animals eat vegetables. There is the sturdy lion, he lives on vegetables—and the leopard and tiger, too; that's what makes them so strong. But sheep and geese live on meat; that is what makes them so weak and—'

"'I don't want to talk to a darn fool!' interrupted Train as he strode off in a huff.

"Then we knew George Francis was insane.

"Then next morning I met Mr. Depew in the street car on his way to the Grand Central depot. Remembering Hammond's insanity test, I said now I will try it on Depew. So I held up the world and exclaimed:

"'I see there's a washout on the Central!'

"'A what?'

"'A washout.'

"'A dangerous washout?'

"'Not very.'

"'How large is it? I haven't seen a newspaper.'

"'O, ten shirts and four pair of—'

"But Depew's genial laugh drowned the sentence.

"'Perfectly sane,' I said to myself."

How Inconsistent!

John Plane continued his interesting talk by saying that he was interested to see how the writer of the letter in question made him to be "the fictitious John Plane," and then took me so literally when I said that I had not seen "Memoirs of Mary Baker Eddy."

"John," I said, "the difficulty with many people is that they fail to distinguish between things that differ. We were not dealing on that occasion, as we are now, with some of the Christian Science beliefs; it was a sort of a playful criticism of a book which has been suppressed rather than 'withdrawn.' To a Christian Scientist these words may mean the same thing, but they did not mean the same thing to Webster. And we know a great deal more about the suppressed 'Memoirs of Mary Baker Eddy' than the writer of the letter under consideration gives us credit for knowing. Moreover, it was only your thoughts that I was setting down. And I am quite sure that you are well able to take care of yourself in any kind of fix into which you may be forced."—Allan Fairbairn

Eminent Catholic Assails Modernism

Modern Conception of Christ as Man Only is Ancient Heresy.

PREACHING in St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, the Very Reverend William J. Duane, S. J., President of Fordham University, assailed the modernistic conception of Christ as man only. He said it was wonderful how history repeats itself. The highly rationalistic modern critics have made the same statements concerning Christ as were made by the earliest heretics, and people thought they had found a new doctrine. Is it not presumptious of us to think that we have all the wisdom of the ages? Should we not concede to those scholars of the first, second and third centuries some thoughts, some research, some wisdom? They have searched for the truth of the Christian doctrines, and settled them. —A. F.

I see a large and beautiful city situated on a rapid river, with a busy population thronging the streets and wharves, ships are discharging cargoes, and vessels full of merchandise are starting on their voyages to distant ports.

Let us turn aside, however, from these thoroughfares, with their thronging crowds, and go into this house. Here are a number of people at a friendly meal enjoying happy fellowship together; they do not appear to be all of one nation, I see clearly differences of dress and of feature, yet they are evidently united in close terms of intimacy, founded probably upon religious feeling and a common faith. Two or three of the company seem to be looked up to by the rest as leaders, their words and actions have much weight with the others. One of these great men, whom I should judge to be the eldest, is perhaps a visitor, he does not seem to be quite so familiar with the place and its surroundings as do the others, who are quite at home here. I hope that we shall often see these people assembled together as we see them now.

Once more we look in upon this pleasant gathering, but I miss several faces. Of the leading men before mentioned, I can see only one, where are the other two? Moreover, of the different nationalities noticed before, one is missing now, nearly, if not altogether. There is a sense of depression in the place, as well as of disappointment; why have these men been deserted by their former companions? I think I can see something like indignation gathering in one face. Perhaps his feelings will find vent in words; I should not like to be the subject of them!

Education

LIFE is action. Nine hundred and ninety-nine men out of a thousand are meant for action, not for contemplation nor study. Therefore a school, which ought to be the vestibule of life, but does not prepare for action, is a mistake, and the schoolmaster who measures the aptitude of his boys by their capacity for knowing will often be found to have been a false prophet in reference to their future career. Clive, the idle descendant of a Shropshire boy, was the founder of our Indian Empire.

An Argument Of An Angel.

IN the days of His flesh He foretold that He should rise again from the dead. If He were supremely great in intellect, so that no charge of mental weakness could be sustained against Him, or possibility of self-deception could be His; if He were so morally right, that He was actually sinless and impeccably holy, then any promise He should have made as to His resurrection from the dead, carries its own guaranty. If we can be sure that Jesus Christ fulfils all these conditions—and the history of His life to the day of His death does so demonstrate—then, absolutely, it makes no difference whatsoever whether any human being ever saw Him after He died. The angel said: "He is risen as He said." And, "as He said" is evidence all sufficient and supreme that He did rise. This is in final terms, the argument of the angel. Instead of pointing to the empty tomb and the absent body of the Lord as primary and all conclusive evidence of the resurrection, the angel goes back to the word and the promise of the Lord; he makes the resurrection as a fact depend on the integrity of the Lord Himself.

We should not lose sight of the fact that the veracity of Christ, involving, as it does, His whole mission, hangs upon the fact of His actual, bodily resurrection. Again and again, in the most public way possible, He declared that He would rise again. This prediction was well known not only to His friends but also to His foes. This was why, after His crucifixion and burial, His enemies went to Pilate, saying, "Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while He was yet alive, After three days I will rise again. Command, therefore, that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day, lest His disciples come by night and steal Him away, and say unto the people He is risen from the dead: so the last error shall be worse than the first."

Every precaution was taken to make even the apparent fulfilment of that prediction impossible. But their efforts were all in vain. For now is Christ risen from among the dead and shown Himself alive by many infallible proofs. In His resurrection He has become the firstfruits of them that slept.

Let that hope be taken away and life becomes an unfinished monument, a shattered harp, a wrecked ship, which were the symbols often employed by the cultivated heathen world to mark the despair of the ancients over the graves of their dead. But now that Christ is risen, the grave becomes, as Dean Alford expressed it in letters cut into the stone over his last resting place upon earth, "The inn of a traveller on his way to the new Jerusalem." —A. TELL US A STORY

I have had a golden dream. I thought I stood before the black gates of Hela, the Death Goddess, weeping bitterly, because none could burst those heavy bars; when softly, without a sound or the touch of a hand, I could see the gates flung asunder and opened wide; and through them came a flood of light, as if it had been Walhalla, and not hell, that was opened. As I gazed, however, I saw that all the light beamed, not from those dark halls, but fro: the glorious Being who came forth from them. His face and His raiment were brighter than the sun. Yet it was not the light that filled my heart with joy when I saw Him; it was the look in His eyes. He looked at me. I knelt at His feet, and said, "Balder! Balder, the beautiful and the good!" But He pointed to the sky, and rose into the heights and vanished from my sight. Then I seemed to hear, floating down on me in tones of the most joyous music, the name, not of Balder, but of Christ. And so I awoke.—"The Early Dawn."

To What Use Shall We Put Our Churches?

SPEAKING at the dedication of a new church a certain minister said, "The church has been built in witness of what the life of this community ought to be." And he warned the congregation against permitting it to deteriorate into a place meant solely for social diversion. "You have built," he said, "something that is going to live as a witness of the faith you have in the power of God and the gospel. You can build this church on a truly large scale if you can make it a church of all people. If it is going to have the right spirit it must administer to the spirit of men and women in the right way." —A. F.

REMEMBERING THAT MY CARPENTER FRIEND had been described by one of the Christian Science watch-dogs as "the fictitious John Plane," I thought I would call upon him and find out whether or not he had seen a letter which had appeared in The Examiner on April 2.

"Oh, yes," he said, "I saw it all right; but it beats me to know how our C. S. neighbors can play so fast and loose with words! It seems to me that what is needed is an honest attempt to publish a dictionary giving the definite meaning of all words in circulation among the members of that strange sect which was founded by Mary Baker Eddy. The writer of the letter which was published on April 2nd says, 'The facts are that in the Christian Science organization provision is made for the proper editing and publishing of all authorized Christian Science literature.' I wonder why this organization, in all fairness to itself and multitudes who want to know the truth, does not publish such a dictionary!

Christian Science Not Understood.

"When I speak of any of my C. S. neighbors about the peculiar beliefs of their sect, I am invariably told 'Oh, you don't understand!' All of which may be true! But I can understand a Methodist, an Anglican, a Congregationalist, or a Roman Catholic, although I don't belong to any of these branches of the Christian church—then, why can't I understand a Christian Scientist? I can understand all sorts of odds and ends among the more than fifty-seven varieties of strange and often contradictory beliefs, even if I don't agree with any of them. But with Christian Science it is different! I wonder why? Perhaps if I could be assured as to what is meant by certain statements I could also understand Christian Science even if I were still unable to agree with it. But I refuse to agree with the statement that I do not understand. The fact is that I understand it well enough not to want to have anything to do with it. I may be a simple soul, without the stamp of the schools upon me, but I am in good company when I think that Christian Science is neither Christian nor scientific."

Christian Science the Witch of Endor.

A friend has recently presented me with a book from the pen of John Timothy Stone in which he quotes an incident from the life of Maltbie Davenport Babcock. It seems that a certain young lady had written her doubts as to Christian Science, and he answered with the following letter:

"I can only speak for myself. I would not consider Christian Science anything short of the Witch of Endor. The basis on which it certainly has helped many people is a truth always known and now more and more appreciated. . . . The power of mind over matter! That is hardly explored yet, although Magnetism, Perkins "Metallic Tractors," Mesmerism, Hypnotism, Telepathy, and what not, have dug quite a way into the mountain. There is the practical human basis of C S. on the divine side. I wish I knew what God thinks, but this much is true, that this new system which denies the personality of God, the reality of sin and the atonement, may call itself Christian, but it is an infringement on the patent. I think C. S. neither Christian nor scientific. I could tell you of people I have known intimately, who were uplifted, exalted, cured, and who afterwards absolutely collapsed, and in several distressing instances, died. Their whole system breaks down at death. Mrs. Eddy will die when her time comes just like the rest of us. They are full of words, and are covered up in inconsistencies. I would not have anything to do with them. I can give you all you want to read, if you care to have me. I am in no way indifferent to the sufferings in this particular case nor to your heart. Cannot she claim God's goodness and power quite as well under James's auspices (James 5:15), as under Mrs. Eddy's?"

Christian Science and Humor.

The trouble with many of those who have taken up Christian Science is that they take themselves too seriously. A little of the saving grace of humor would help them to retain a measure of sanity.

As Mr. Bindle says to Ginger, so I might substitute the name of the writer of the letter in question which appeared on April 2nd, and say, "If you was to smile a little more . . . . life wouldn't 'urt quite so much."

Incipient Insanity.

"Mr. Depew has a well-balanced brain. There are no streaks of insanity in the Depew family. Once, while conversing with Dr. Hammond, our witty ex-surgeon-general, about insanity, I asked him how incipient insanity could be detected.

"'One infallible test,' said the doctor, 'is to get a good joke on a man—a real good one—and if he laughs at it, it is a sure sign that his mind is evenly balanced. An insane man never laughs at a good joke on himself. He always gets enraged. Insanity always begins in egotism. Guiteau, the crazy man who shot Garfield, laughed at his own jokes all through the trial, but when the prosecuting attorney got a joke on him, his insanity showed itself in flashing eyes and a scowl of indignation.'

"After my conversation with Dr. Hammond, I met Sam Cox at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and told him about Hammond's theory.

"'Let's go over to Madison Square,' said Sam, 'and try the theory on George Francis Train.'

"'Good,' I said, and we were soon in the garden talking to the great George Francis, who sat on a bench surrounded by his usual crowd of children. 'Train is a vegetarian, and he was soon talking on his favorite subject.

"'Yes,' he said, 'I am a vegetarian. Vegetables give strength. They give muscle;' and then he held up his clenched fist and gradually opened it to show the flow of red blood to the palm.

"'See!' said Train, 'that blood and muscle comes from a vegetable diet.'

"'Yes,' said Cox, 'you are right, George. Vegetables do give muscle and health. I notice that all the strong animals eat vegetables. There is the sturdy lion, he lives on vegetables—and the leopard and tiger, too; that's what makes them so strong. But sheep and geese live on meat; that is what makes them so weak and—'

"'I don't want to talk to a darn fool!' interrupted Train as he strode off in a huff.

"Then we knew George Francis was insane.

"Then next morning I met Mr. Depew in the street car on his way to the Grand Central depot. Remembering Hammond's insanity test, I said now I will try it on Depew. So I held up the world and exclaimed:

"'I see there's a washout on the Central!'

"'A what?'

"'A washout.'

"'A dangerous washout?'

"'Not very.'

"'How large is it? I haven't seen a newspaper.'

"'O, ten shirts and four pair of—' "But Depew's genial laugh drowned the sentence.

"'Perfectly sane,' I said to myself."

How Inconsistent!

John Plane continued his interesting talk by saying that he was interested to see how the writer of the letter in question made him to be "the fictitious John Plane," and then took me so literally when I said that I had not seen "Memoirs of Mary Baker Eddy."

"John," I said, "the difficulty with many people is that they fail to distinguish between things that differ. We were not dealing on that occasion, as we are now, with some of the Christian Science beliefs; it was a sort of a playful criticism of a book which has been suppressed rather than 'withdrawn.' To a Christian Scientist these words may mean the same thing, but they did not mean the same thing to Webster. And we know a great deal more about the suppressed 'Memoirs of Mary Baker Eddy' than the writer of the letter under consideration gives us credit for knowing. Moreover, it was only your thoughts that I was setting down. And I am quite sure that you are well able to take care of yourself in any kind of fix into which you may be forced."—Allan Fairbairn

PREACHING in St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, the Very Reverend William J. Duane, S. J., President of Fordham University, assailed the modernistic conception of Christ as man only. He said it was wonderful how history repeats itself. The highly rationalistic modern critics have made the same statements concerning Christ as were made by the earliest heretics, and people thought they had found a new doctrine. Is it not presumptious of us to think that we have all the wisdom of the ages? Should we not concede to those scholars of the first, second and third centuries some thoughts, some research, some wisdom? They have searched for the truth of the Christian doctrines, and settled them. —A. F.

I see a large and beautiful city situated on a rapid river, with a busy population thronging the streets and wharves, ships are discharging cargoes, and vessels full of merchandise are starting on their voyages to distant ports.

Let us turn aside, however, from these thoroughfares, with their thronging crowds, and go into this house. Here are a number of people at a friendly meal enjoying happy fellowship together; they do not appear to be all of one nation, I see clearly differences of dress and of feature, yet they are evidently united in close terms of intimacy, founded probably upon religious feeling and a common faith. Two or three of the company seem to be looked up to by the rest as leaders, their words and actions have much weight with the others. One of these great men, whom I should judge to be the eldest, is perhaps a visitor, he does not seem to be quite so familiar with the place and its surroundings as do the others, who are quite at home here. I hope that we shall often see these people assembled together as we see them now.

Once more we look in upon this pleasant gathering, but I miss several faces. Of the leading men before mentioned, I can see only one, where are the other two? Moreover, of the different nationalities noticed before, one is missing now, nearly, if not altogether. There is a sense of depression in the place, as well as of disappointment; why have these men been deserted by their former companions? I think I can see something like indignation gathering in one face. Perhaps his feelings will find vent in words; I should not like to be the subject of them!

Education

LIFE is action. Nine hundred and ninety-nine men out of a thousand are meant for action, not for contemplation nor study. Therefore a school, which ought to be the vestibule of life, but does not prepare for action, is a mistake, and the schoolmaster who measures the aptitude of his boys by their capacity for knowing will often be found to have been a false prophet in reference to their future career. Clive, the idle descendant of a Shorpshire boy, was the founder of our Indian Empire.

THE GREAT DEMAR.

In the world of sport Clarence Demar, the 39-year-old long distance runner, must be regarded as one of the greatest wonders of the age.

His feat on Thursday in winning the famous Boston Marathon for the sixth time was a remarkable achievement in itself, but when it is remembered that he first won this great race at the age of 22 years, and that now, 17 years after, he has not only set up a new mark for the classic but also broken the American record for the full marathon distance, the full significance of his performance becomes apparent.

That over a period of seventeen years one man could win this particular race six times is a surprising development that testifies to the great stamina of Demar and to the care that he has taken of himself.

Demar, of course, will represent the United States in the Olympic marathon, and if it is not possible for Bricker or some other Canadian runner to come home in front, there is nobody whom Canadians would rather see win than this gallant veteran type-setter runner from Melrose.

ON THE AIR ROUTE.

The fact that Col. Lindbergh in his flight to Ottawa for the Diamond Jubilee celebration last year and Bernt Balchen and Floyd Bennett in their huge monoplane en route yesterday from Detroit to assist the Germon flyers at Greenly Island passed over Peterborough is not without its significance.

These flyers did not just happen to fly over this city, nor did they make a detour to see us from the air.

Their route was over Peterborough because this city is on the direct air-line between Detroit and Ottawa, and also between Detroit and Quebec, and any air service that may develop between such points will necessarily pass here.

As Detroit is now one of the greatest airports on the continent and as eventually air communication from eastern Canadian cities will become the regular thing, centres such as Peterborough situated on the direct air route, should be prepared for the developments that are bound to eventuate.

A proper landing field will soon be as much a necessity as adequate wharfage for steamers, or as railway stations or parking places.

WHEN THE PREMIER FELL DOWN.

A South Monaghan delegate to the Ontario Educational Association's convention, in a letter, which appears elsewhere in this issue, takes The Examiner to task for stating that only eleven out of the 600 delegates voted for the township school board plan.

Probably one-fifth of the delegates there, he intimates, were not opposed to the bill, and The Examiner, believing the township board plan to be a step toward a better system of rural education, is very happy to learn that the opposition was not as great as at first it seemed.

We thoroughly agree, too, with our correspondent that Premier Ferguson lost a golden opportunity to sell his policy when he did not appear at the convention and discuss the question with the rural school trustees.

He had intimated that he would be present, and undoubtedly had he lived up to that announcement the hundreds of delegates might have obtained a much more favorable impression of the proposed legislation, and would have been able to do much to eliminate the unpopularity of the plan.

Why the Premier failed to grasp this splendid chance has not been explained; undoubtedly the occasion might have been turned to splendid advantage.

AN ABSOLUTE FAILURE?

The Local Council of Women has passed a resolution condemning the Liquor Control Act as an "absolute failure."

It would be interesting to know whether this was one of those circular resolutions sent out from prohibition headquarters, or a motion drafted according to what its proponents had seen of local conditions under the Control Act.

Most people, even among those who are not satisfied with the present system, would hesitate to pronounce it an "absolute failure" so far as its local operation is concerned, for, fortunately, the conditions mentioned in speaking to the resolution have not prevailed in Peterborough.

There have been no signs of a crime wave here, nor has the County Council had to consider the question of enlarging the local jail, the accommodation offered by which has been quite sufficient to take care of the normal number of inmates.

It may be that other communities have not been so fortunate, and that those who voted for this sweeping condemnation of Government control in Ontario did so because of what they knew was going on elsewhere.

It certainly could not have been because they have seen in Peterborough all the distressing conditions pictured as being general under the Liquor Control Act.

MOTHER OF A WORLD HERO.

It is a quaint conceit that the mother of Colonel Lindbergh, because her son is a famous airman and a world hero, herself by virtue of their relationship must be an authority of equal standing on educational subjects. Mrs. Lindbergh teaches in a Detroit school and she has been in Toronto addressing the Ontario Educational Association. She proposed, among other things, that all school trustees should be elected by school teachers rather than the whole voting public—"to banish," she said, "unbalanced intensity and ignorance in education." The point is realized when it is recalled that the trustees engage teachers and fix their salaries; therefore she would have the teachers choose their own employers, and candidates would canvass for votes only among their employes. Common people neither teachers nor trustees would have no responsibility in the matter beyond paying the bills.

It is a delightful suggestion of a fine, democratic flavor and no doubt there are circles where it will find cordial support. But one wonders if Mrs. Lindbergh might not enlarge the plan. If the idea is sound for the schools it should be good in other spheres which concern the public purse. Why not let civic employes elect the city councils? Think of the responsibility lifted from "ignorant" and "unbalanced" voters if it were provided that civil servants should choose members of Parliament? Such a system would be but carrying to its logical conclusion the Lindbergh plan of electing school trustees.

We fear for the consequence should Col. Lindbergh fly the Pacific. His mother, an estimable lady who has behaved with admirable dignity and restraint in very exceptional circumstances, no doubt would be set up by her admirers as one fully capable of solving all the major problems of the world. She is entering the exclusive circle which the United States press has composed of John D. Rockefeller and Henry Ford.—Ottawa Journal.

MAN'S TRIUMPHING SPIRIT.

(From The Chicago Evening Post.)

The epic story of the Bremen's flight and its great achievement in battling through fog and wind and snow to a safe landing off the Labrador coast will live in the annals of the air with the Lindbergh saga.

The daring of it, after the tragic record of brave failures of silent vanishings into the void by preceding westward adventurers, was a magnificent tribute to the undiscourageable spirit of man.

We wonder how those of our modern psychologists who seek to explain the human unit as nothing more than a machine account for that undying impulse in the soul of man which presses on and on, in spite of all defeats and obstacles, until it wins its victory.

This triumph of two Germans and an Irishman marks a new chapter in the age-long story of how life has fought its way to freedom, that is to say, to dominance over its environment. Why does it not submit? Why must it subdue the soil, conquer the seas and make the very sky a pathway for its faring? The demands of maintaining existence might be sufficient to explain the first of these endeavors, but they will not solve the mystery of man's mastery of the ocean and of the air. Here life reaches out beyond the needs of existence to the satisfaction of desire for an ever-widening experience, an increasing sense of control over those externals which condition it.

There is something more in that than can be explained by any merely mechanistic theory. There are spiritual values which enter into the making of such an adventure and such a success as the Bremen represents. Behind it lies the thrilling narrative of human aspiration to fly, with all its many chapters of experiment and failure; behind it lies the record of intellectual wrestling with problems of physics and mathematics, and the indomitable courage which tried and tried and tried again, until these problems were solved; behind it lies a great faith that the thing could be done, a readiness to launch forth into the emptiness of space relying upon certain laws which the mind of man had reasoned from his study of the universe. The Bremen is a machine; a marvelous machine, but the urge of the human spirit and the creative power of the human reason made it.

The Bremen is a machine, but it could not wing its way alone across the Atlantic, perfect though it was in every cleverly fashioned and adjusted part. Before it could rise into the air and soar toward its distant goal the hand of a man had to rest upon its mechanicism, and the mind of man had to take control and guide its course. The Bremen has done what man willed, because an intelligent will directed it, battled through all perils and obstructions, and brought it safely to rest.

The achievement of the Bremen is a triumph of both the mind and the spirit of man; it is a proof of what they can do. Here we find promise for the ultimate victory of man in all those spheres which challenge him. Let those who despair that he will ever conquer the forces which thwart and distort and destroy in the moral realm take courage by such episodes as this. God made man to conquer. Within his soul He set that restless enterprise which will not be thwarted. When the mind and spirit of man are directed toward the greater adventure which lies in the moral realm there, too he will win his victory; when his faith is willing to launch upon the laws of love and eternal justice, as it now launches upon the physical laws which govern flight, we shall see greater deeds accomplished than yesterday's news columns set forth.

If you question this we remind you that long ago one Man had such faith. He proved it possible. He showed the way.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 21. — The opening market on Monday of this week was a disappointing one for shippers. With a moderately heavy run of good quality cattle offering, buyers for the first few hours showed a surprising indifference and bids were anywhere from 25c to 40c lower than the previous week's closing. Not until after the noon hour did the cattle movement toward the scales really commence and then it was at a general decline of about 25c on the best grades of butcher cattle. Medium and common suffered in proportion.

Late in the day movement was accelerated and from a very dull opening the market became quite active toward the close and a fairly good clean-up was effected but generally at the early decline.

On Tuesday a better tone pervaded the market and by Wednesday prices had pretty well come back to their former level and for the balance of the week held steady to firm all round at the fully restored prices.

Sheep an dlambs held practically steady and unchanged all week with the usual light offerings at this season.

Hogs were for part of the week in an unsettled market, but finally came through with prices holding steady and unchanged from last week.

Calves were the weakest feature of the whole market, and generally broke to a dollar below last week's price

The demand for choice stockers and feeders continues strong and active, and the light offerings are readily taken at comparatively high prices. Choice Western stocker heifers selling from $7.25 to $7.90, and good weighty feeders and shortkeep, from $8.00 to $9.00.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 21 (Canadian Press). — There was some demand from the United Kingdom for Canadian Western oats here yesterday and sales of odd loads were made by local exporters. The trade in cash grain in the domestic market was quiet, but the feeling was steady.

Further strength was displayed by the winter wheat flour market and prices were marked up another ten cents per barrel. The demand was fair. A moderate amount of business was worked in spring wheat grades and values were firm.

A feature of the millfeed trade was the increased demand from buyers in the United States and a fair amount of business was done. The local and country demand was also good, and prices were unchanged.

Owing to the higher prices ruling for the raw material, a stronger feeling prevailed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats, and prices were advanced ten cents per bag.

The demand for eggs continued fair and prices for all grades were firmly maintained. The receipts were 2,557 cases.

Owing to the continued limited demand for potatoes from outside sources and the fact that supplies on spot were in excess of domestic requirements a weaker feeling developed, and prices declined five cents per bag.

A moderate amount of business was worked in butter and values were well maintained. The receipts were 759 packages.

The cheese market was without any new feature to note, business being quiet and prices unchanged. The receipts were 279 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 21 (Canadian Press). — Rains in Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma, although chiefly where moisture was but little needed, did much to give a brisk setback to grain values yesterday. Unexpected weakness of the Liverpool market was a contributing bearish factor.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 2¾ cents to 3¾ cents net lower, with corn 1¾ to 1¾ cents off, oats 1 to 1¼ cents to 1¾ cents down, and provisions 5 cents to 25 cents up.

Underlying other causes for downward swings in the price of wheat yesterday was the general knowledge that the market had scored a big advance, and that a reaction would be natural, prices having risen on Thureday to more than 36 cents a bushel above the season's low point. It was current talk, too, that Chicago quotations had become out of line not only with Liverpool and Winnipeg, but with domestic centres such as Kansas City, St. Louis, and Minneapolis.

Moreover, enlargement of Argentine wheat offerings to Europe yesterday on a cheaper basis, did a good deal to give an advantage to the bear side of the market here. It was pointed out also that the final official estimate placed the 1927-1928 Argentine wheat yield at 239,000,000 bushels against 221,000,000 bushels the year before. Under these circumstances, free liquidation on the part of wheat holders was in evidence here from the outset, and speculative pressure to sell broadened out on all the rallies, especially toward the finish.

Corn and oats went down with wheat, but there was good buying of corn on the breaks in price. Reports of a better shipping demand for corn were something of a factor, besides, the trade looks for a good-sized decrease of the corn visible supply total on Monday. Oats were influenced by a forecast of warmer weather, with showers.

JOCKEY KILLED.

Ovila Bourassa, famous Canadian jockey, killed at Havre de Grace while exercising one of the Seagram fillies. He was thrown against a fence.

GOD'S MINUTE

"One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after. —Ps. 27:4.

We need Thee, O loving God. We are lonesome, discontented, helpless, defeated, without Thee. How shall we know ourselves aright unless Thou teach us? How shall we love goodness and strive after holiness, and know the deep joys of the soul unless Thy Spirit abide in us? How shall we be able to meet Thy just expectations unless we companion with the Most High God? How shall we bear our burdens and overcome our temptations, or be unselfish in service, or turn away from our sins, or grow into the beauty and majesty of the character of Christ, unless Thou take possession of us?

Thankful we are, then, that Thou dost not withhold Thyself from any eager, hungry, obedient heart. We know that Thou are willing to give Thyself to us. Teach us how to open our natures to Thee. Help us to be obedient to Thy will, joyous in our allegiance, co-operative in all of Thy plans.

Disturb us when we go astray; discipline us when we are wilful; hearten us when discouraged; strengthen us when perplexed.

Through all the experiences of our lives, fashion us into the likeness of our exalted Christ, so that we may be Thy true sons and daughters Amen.

—Philip L. Frick, Ph.D., Buffalo, New York.

W.M.S. GROUP MEETS.

Ladies Plan For May Meeting of St. James' Church Auxiliary.

Mrs. Wesley Rose, leader of Group 5, of St. James' United Church Auxiliary, held her first group meeting on Wednesday evening at her home on Morrow Street, with the following group members present: Mrs. E. L. Woodley, Mrs. J. H. Dudgeon, Mrs. W. D. Sargent, Mrs. George Cufffle, Mrs. George A. Agnew, Mrs. H. Davidson, Mrs. A. E. Saunders, Mrs. G. Patterson and Mrs. William J. Swanger.

The group was called together to make plans for the May Auxiliary meeting of which this group is in charge, and the business program was largely in the form of discussion and quite informal. This was preceded by an opening service of singing and prayer led by Mrs. Dudgeon. A duet, "Tell It Wherever You Go," sung by Misses Jean Rose and Eleanor Gibson, with ukelele accompaniment, was very much appreciated.

The business session was also closed by prayer, after which a happy social hour was spent together. The service of dainty refreshments by the hostess, Mrs. Rose, was the conclusion of this first very successful meeting of her group.

BRITISH STOCK IS GIVEN CREDIT FOR STABILITY

Encouragement of Empire Shopping Will Assist in Maintaining It.

HELPS BRITISH IDEALS.

No Attempt Being Made To Upset Economic Laws—Governments Assist.

21st to 28th, April, 1928.

It is probably correct to say that one cannot get a proper background for Empire Shopping Week in Canada without paying considerable attention to the fact that general conditions in Canada over a long period are more stable and sound than in many other countries, largely due to the fact that many of her people are of British stock, or are strongly affected by British traditions deepened and improved by long residence in Canada perhaps, in cases, residence for three or more generations.

No excuse is needed by any Canadian for holding strongly to the view that the type of civilization and its promise of development as shown in countries of the British Empire is one that Canadians desire to encourage. It is simply a natural and right thing for a Canadian or any other British citizen to do.

It is suggested occasionally that an attitude of this sort may in some way offend the susceptibilities of our great friends and neighbours to the South. How can it when they to a great extent share the same traditions modified by North American spaciousness and freedom which Canada shares with them, but modified too by many elements which the most loyal citizens of the United States themselves would say do not tend to raise the average of their civilization. Does that not make it all the more desirable for those who respect Canada to see that her more purely British and Canadian civilization is maintained.

Then, in purely trade matters, we all recognize that there must be very extensive business transactions between Canada and the United States. Many things because of convenience, because of cheapness, because of amplitude of supply will always find their way back and forward across the border.

Certainly no attempt is being made to upset economic laws. No country is more strongly seized of the idea of protecting its own industries and encouraging the purchase of goods made at home than the United States. However, the Governments of British countries throughout the Empire practically without exception reflecting what they think to be the feeling of the population at large, have established a system of granting preferential rates of customs duties or their equivalents to assist the entry of goods produced or made in other parts of the Empire.

That makes Empire Shopping Week in Canada come right into line with the public acts of various governments throughout the Empire. Canada is part of the Empire. She likes to be. She can benefit as greatly from the operations of Empire Shopping Week in Canada as her people or any other people engaged in producing goods in Canada and the rest of the Empire care to do without trespassing one iota on good taste or injuring the good relations existing in any part of the world. We are simply exercising a natural right in a natural way.

The pupils in many schools in Canada are going to be told to-day something about Empire Shopping Week in Canada. This whole question is of equal or even greater interest to every newspaper reader. The purpose of Empire Shopping week in Canada is to bring to everybody's attention during the week of April 21st to 28th, all of the various products that are made in Great Britain, Canada and other parts of the Empire and some of the underlying motives relative to trade. When the Empire Shopping Week comes along and the products of various countries of the Empire are displayed in the stores, they will know something about them and will have special occasion to see how much is made in their own home, Canada.

Our Part as Canadians in the Empire.

Usually when we think about the Empire we think of something far away and scattered all over the globe. Yet it is a fact that the sea which seems to divide us really binds us together. The sea means to us great and easy means of communication and cheap transport. Communication and transport require the assurance of the freedom of the seas. So far, in the progress of the world, the only means of keeping the sea free is to be able to protect the traffic and citizens of the Empire wherever they may be. The best means devised is the British navy which safeguards all channels of communication. Though Canada, in common with other countries of the Empire is in part a maritime nation, she has no navy of her own, and must therefore depend on the navy of Great Britain and other parts of the Empire.

We are inclined to forget about Canada because we are so close to it. Yet Canada, to us who live here, is most important of all. It is in Canada that our fathers and relatives earn their livelihood. The more prosperous Canada becomes, the stronger she becomes as a link in the chain of Empire. Canada has great diversity of climate, chiefly in the temperate zone, which helps to produce a hardy, industrious race. She has a diversity of products, being equally great, or nearly so, in agriculture, in forestry, in minerals, in fisheries and in industrial production. Many thousands of manufactured articles produced in Canada are readily obtainable.

Canada and the Empire are more than a summation of land, property and resource. Her people and their character is most important of all. The Empire is a real thing, a thing of flesh and blood and spirit, and you and I at this moment are living and breathing parts of it. We cannot just look into our books and think of the Empire as something that is colored red on the map, something that concerns us simply as a matter of geography. We bear the British hallmark, which is now a Canadian hallmark also. We are not simply spectators at a game, we are players in it. If we don't help by our thoughts and our purchases and our sacrifices, the whole fabric will be harder to maintain. You know what happens to a piece of knitting if one end gets loose. The whole thing unravels and becomes a useless tangle. Every child, and every grown-up in the Empire must think of himself and herself as one of the millions of threads that form the whole.

Canada and The Empire Dependent on One Another.

The important thing for us is the value to us of the Empire in times of peace. The British have always died bravely, and you all know of valiant deaths that make us proud of our race. That the instinct which prompts men to take risks is an honourable one is shown by the pages of history and of biography which shine with the record of men who have taken magnificent chances. Cabot, Cartier, Champlain and Scott as explorers; all our early Canadians as pioneers; Faraday and Lister as scientists; Harvey, Jenner, Bell and Banting as medical investigators; Pitt, Peel, Gladstone, Macdonald and Laurier as statesmen; the early Church fathers as Canadian missionaries; Wycliffe and Wesley as religious reformers, were all adventurers who saw ideals and possibilities and were willing to take risks because the stakes were the promotion of human welfare and the increase of useful knowledge. Livingstone opening up Central Africa in the hope of righting the terrible wrongs discovered there, gambled with his life and finally lost it. Nelson at Trafalgar was taking risks for the sake of his beloved England. The engineers of the Canadian transcontinental railways took tremendous chances as they slowly built their road-bed over ugly chasms and across precipitous mountains. Down through the ages British and Canadian civilization has followed in the wake of the heroic adventures of men who grimly obeyed the urge within them to do the dangerous thing because it seemed to them that if they were successful, incalculable benefits would result to all mankind. So the first cable was laid across the Atlantic, the first steamboat plied its clumsy way, the first aeroplane soared among the clouds. Second only to these great risks for noble purposes is the risk that is being run by thousands of people in all sorts of businesses who must approach their problems with the same high heart in success and the same fortitude in failure. In all these mighty enterprises the instinct to take risks was put to honourable and laborious purpose.

It is not in the deaths we die, but in the lives we live that Canada and the Empire means most to us. For to be British in the wide sense is to have as the background of our lives those laws and privileges and liberties which are the envy of the whole world. Because we know very little about the lives of people in foreign countries we do not appreciate what it means to live in a British country—that there is more freedom here, and more justice and more regard for the rights and properties of individuals. We should lose a great deal of all this if we cut loose from the British tradition and the bonds of Empire.

Not the least of this aid extended to us as members of the Empire comes in the safeguarding of our persons and our rights by ambassadors and consuls. Throughout the world these ofices create a bit of the Empire wherever they are, and any decent Canadian can be sure of fair treatment and help no matter in what trouble he may be in any part of the world.

Then we have the force of British example in art, in science, in literature and law. Canadians are perhaps too new a people to excel as yet in some of these noble vocations. In literature especially, the British have produced the greatest secular literature known, and the number of her classic names is out of all proportion to her population.

The time is coming when this example added to the reality of experience through which the generation of new Canadians is now passing, will unquestionably result in the production of a real Canadian literature. Some person now reading this article may be one of those who will follow the great lead given to us in these vocations, and bring fame to himself and renown to his native Canada.

The Empire, therefore, means a great deal to Canada; and Canada means much to the Empire, because here there are tremendous resources of minerals and water powers and farm lands, all providing opportunities for the investment of money and the employment of men from other countries of the Empire. Canada is a place where the Empire can expand.

Trade and Exploration the Binding Forces of Empire.

We often think, that patriotism and the flag are the things that keep the Empire together, and certainly they have their influence. But perhaps you have never realized that it was trade that made the Empire and it is trade that helps to keep it solid. It was the traders of the East India Company who made the British connection in India. Traders carried the British tradition to Africa and Australia. You already know from your study of Canadian history what splendid deeds were done by early missionaries in exploring the country and finding the best natural routes between different remote points. They paved the way for the hardy pioneers who with great labor and fortitude cleared the forests and turned the land into smiling agricultural plains. Later the faith of a few courageous men caused railways to be built through wild country, the prairies and mountains, to bind all the provinces together, and open up for settlement the productive virgin fields of the West, where grain, rightly world famous, and many other field products, reward the strenuous efforts of the prairie agriculturalists.

There are some people who pretend to despise trade and shirk the thoughts that the Empire was built by extending commerce. Yet trade is simply the process of making a living, and this is a man's first duty, to make a living for himself. To work and make a better living for those dependent on him is the most honourable thing a man can do. And it was that kind of a man, the man who was anxious to make and grow and sell more goods, and thus improve his way of living, who braved dangers and hardships of little known lands to find more materials and more customers for what he could grow or make. All the countries that have joined the Empire have become a part of it because Great Britain protected these people who had gone to the ends of the earth to make a better living for themselves and their families. And it is still this protection of trade and opportunities to make a good living that holds the Empire together. Producing goods and moving goods, buying goods and selling goods, these are the ways men have of earning a livelihood, and the more we buy and the more we sell the more prosperous we are.

If the goods we grow, mine or make in Canada cannot be sold to the people of Canada and other countries we shall not be able to make a living here. If we do not buy the things that are made in the Empire countries it will reduce their production at home.

Buying keeps people employed and enables them to earn a living, and if we want the Empire to prosper we should buy all we can from the people who are trying to make a living in it. And if we buy from them, they will buy from us, and that will keep us employed here in Canada. Thus the whole Empire will be kept busy. And that is all trade is—busyness. It is busyness—keeping busy at producing and moving and buying and selling goods—that enables us to make a living in the Empire, and the busier we are the stronger and happier the Empire will be. It is also of real advantage to the Empire that we should buy home goods first, for the stronger we make Canada as an economic unit the stronger link she is in the chain of Empire.

Why We Can Say "Empire Buyers are Empire Builders."

Deep in our hearts, though perhaps seldom discussed, is that inborn sense of worth that belongs, of right, to people of British birth and heritage. It comes to us without our volition—but by its value imposes on our will the responsibility of carrying on in the same spirit. All Canadians are British in that wide sense of forming part of the citizenry of the Empire. We have that sense of worth by reason of the blood of our British or Canadian forefathers, who had the stuff in them that makes sturdy citizens, pioneers, explorers, scientists, schoolmasters, poets, authors, musicians, statesmen, heroes, ministers, missionaries, noble women and martyrs. We all share that great blood strain. We all share in the civilization that produced these men and women.

What is civilization but a background of great souls? We aim not at money, not at power, not at any mundane thing for itself alone, but at character—the rest follows. We want to perpetuate the best in that British civilization, and to carry it on to a deeper and better development, to find its finest flowering in Canada, in geography the centre of the Empire, in influence what Canadians can make her to the Empire of the future.

As a proof that we really share in this great background, each one of us can think of the many people in Canada carrying one with great devotion to duty and love to fellow men; perhaps unheard of outside of their small community; yet no matter what their station in life they are deeply respected and held as exemplars to others. In them, and in people like them are the seeds of the great and noble deeds we all admire.

Romance and risk-taking lies more than ever now in business in all its phases. These are the motives that prompt us to say that Empire Buyers are Empire Builders. Let us all do the duty closest at hand and support Empire Shopping Week in Canada, 21st to 28th April.

Lagunillas, Venezuela, built on piles and known to be more than 400 years old, has just has electric lights installed throughout the little town.

BLACKBURN 3; HUDDERSFIELD 1

KING GEORGE PRESENT.

LONDON, April 21. Canadian Press. — Blackburn Rovers won the English Football Association Cup, emblematic of the soccer championship of England, here to-day when they defeated Huddersfield town in a final match of the competition by three goals to one. Blackburn scored two goals in the first half. Each team scored a goal in the second.

A crowd estimated at 93,000 attended the match. King George and Queen Mary and the Duke and Duchess of York were present.

Blackburn's first goal came when Puddefoot threw the ball in. It went to the goal mouth and the Huddersfield goalie caught it and hesitated. He was charged into the net by Roscamp.

The second came when Rigby went down and shot. Mercier partially cleared but McLean hooked the ball into the net. Jackson got Huddersfield's first when his shot hit the post, ran along the line, and then went in. Five minutes from the end Roscamp gained possession. The Huddersfield captain registered an offside appeal, and his side made no attempt to stop Roscamp. The player himself paused but the referee waved him on. He ran in and scored the softest of goals.

Department Denies Any Unfairness

to withhold them if they believed the documents were not in the public interest."

Mr. Preston arose, and with some heat charged the Department with unfair treatment. "There was unfair treatment, and it was done without the Minister's knowledge," he said.

Mr. Regan followed Col. Orde's statement with the claim that Mr. Tilley made insinuations.

His Lordship—"Nonsense, I started it."

Mr. Regan said he served a subpoena and the men appeared in Court and produced such documents as they thought proper.

"It took some time to get this, due to his (Regan's) inexperience he thought he might express his appreciation. He did not understand how he could be interpreted as having made any charge against the Minister or his representative or the Department."

"I am very glad that this is the case," said His Lordship. "It's all over now."

There being no more questions from Mr. Regan or Mr. Tilley, Col. Duguid was allowed to step down from the box.

Wilson in Box

F. W. Wilson, a defendant in the suit, and publisher of the article which caused the action, entered the witness box at 11.48 to-day to testify on his own behalf. Questioned by his counsel, Frank Regan, of Toronto, Mr. Wilson stated that he had resided in Port Hope more than fifty years, was married, and trying to make a living as editor and publisher of the newspaper in question. He remembered the article which he had published, and stated that he had discussed it with W. T. R. Preston before printing it. The article which the plaintiff, Sir Arthur Currie, claims to be libelous to him was inspired by a Canadian Press cable which appeared in The Toronto Globe's issue of June 13, 1927.

Mr. Regan produced a copy of this issue of the paper and asked Mr. Wilson to read the article.

W. N. Tilley, K.C, counsel for Sir Arthur Currie, objected to this procedure on the ground that it was not evidence His Lordship did not think the reading should be stopped and Mr. Wilson proceeded to read the entire lengthy article which dealt with the unveiling of the Canadian memorial in Mons.

Questioned by Mr. Regan when he had finished reading, Mr. Wilson said his feelings were expressed in the article published in The Guide. These were his feelings when he first read the press despatch in The Globe.

Mr. Tilley objected to reading from Hansard, which Mr. Regan had placed in Mr. Wilsons hands for that purpose. As a reason for objecting, Mr. Tilley said that the witness' state of mind at the time of writing is irrelevant.

"Have you charged malice,' Mr. Tilley?" asked Mr. Regan.

"I have charged libel," Mr. Tilley replied, "and I am not required to prove malice."

After a lengthy argument, in which Mr. Tilley referred to many points of law, some of which Mr. Regan admitted to be correct, His Lordship ruled the evidence is not admissible.

"Your Lordship admitted The Globe," said Mr. Regan."

"I did, subject to objection," replied His Lordship.

"I submit the same thing is in Hansard as is in The Globe," said Mr. Regan.

But His Lordship still refused to admit the evidence.

Mr. Regan esked for time to look up other authorities.

His Lordship: "Oh, surely, Mr. Regan, you must have anticipated this for some time."

Thus, with only eight minutes to adjournment, the defense was at a standstill. Mr. Regan suggested His Lordship lean a little toward the defense. His Lordship replied that he cannot lean either way, but must keep the rpoceedings in a straight line.

Mr. Regan proceeded to take up the remainder of the time in the best way possible, since His Lordship would not adjourn the court before the proper time.

Mr. Tilley rose to remind the bench that Mr. Regan knew the Hansards were coming up, and His Lordship replied that he has already ruled.

Mr. Tilley asked if the witness is to be carried over till Monday. He said he could finish his questions to the witness "in about a minute."

His Lordship urged Mr. Regan to proceed with questions.

Mr. Regan proceeded to question Mr. Wilson on other articles which he read in the newspaper.

Time Extended.

When the pre-arranged time for adjournment, His Lordship asked the jury if it would be possible for them to continue for "another half-hour or so." In making the request His Lordship explained that the proceedings had arrived at a difficult point, and he preferred to have the situation cleared before allowing the case to stand over till Monday. Mr. Regan continued his examination.

Talked with General Currie.

Q.—Did you discuss this article with Sir Arthur Currie?"

A.—"Yes."

Mr. Tilley wanted to know when and found out that it was after action had been taken by the plaintiff, and the discussion was without prejudice. The defendant produced a letter which was written to him by Sir Arthur Currie. The defendant added:

"The request for an interview did not come from me. It was sent through Hon. George N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterborough.

Mr. Wilson said Sir Arthur had said he discussed the matter with his staff. When he said Sir Arthur had not repeated what he had said to the staff, Mr. Regan interjected:

"You told me he did."

His Lordship—"Surely you will not say that remark was not impertinent."

Q.—"What did you say?"

A.—Sir Arthur and I met on an equal footing and he asked me to tell him where I got the information. I told him I got it from reading Hansard, from talking with returned men, and from other articles."

"He scorned the idea of taking the word of a returned man," Mr. Wilson said.

Mr. Tilley rose to object. His objection was sustained.

Mr. Regan asked if what Sir Arthur Currie said to Mr. Wilson regarding returned men was not to be repeated in Court.

"If it has any bearing on the case, yes," replied the Judge. The bench continued that the question had been asked and answered and the jury had heard.

Mr. Regan finally desisted and returned to question the witness as to why he wrote the article.

Mr. Wilson replied that he thought it a good opportunity to clear up a point which was being widely discussed.

Rumors Ruled Out.

Mr. Regan continued to establish what is a rumor and attempted to have rumors brought into court. The bench rejected the attempt and Mr. Regan said he was unable to take the case from any angle without being ruled out.

"Sit down then, please, if you have no other questions to ask," said His Lordship, and Mr. Regan almost touched the chair when he returned to his feet to ask if there was any malice involved in the writing, but the witness did not answer on advice.

"Did Sir Arthur Currie tell you how he came to attack Mons?" asks His Lordship in correction of what he called improper wording of the question when put by Mr. Regan.

Mr. Wilson—"I am a little hazy on that point."

Mr. Regan—"Did he say anything about the wisdom of the attack?"

Mr. Wilson—"Yes."

Mr. Regan—"Give me his words as you remember them."

Mr. Wilson—"He spoke of having instructions to keep up the pressure and that was part of the plan to keep up the pressure."

Replying to further questions by Mr. Regan, Mr. Wilson claimed General Currie had said he had been waiting for an opportunity ever since the war to clear up the matter.

He had received the impression that Currie had doubted the advisability of the attack. He had said no one was killed and that he did not enter the city until 3 o'clock. Sir Arthur had shown him maps explaining the situation and witness had decided that he would like to see the matter cleared up. It was the first time he had been in a libel suit.

At 1.35 His Lordship interrupted the questioning to say the time agreed upon for adjournment had arrived and he did not wish to ask the jury to sit any longer since it was apparent that Mr. Regan did not intend to finish the examination of the witness or close his case this afternoon. He thought, therefore the case might as well be adjourned over the week end. Some of the jury had already missed the trains which they desired to catch in order to spend Sunday at their various homes. His Lordship also took into consideration the fact that some of the jurors could not return till after one o'clock Monday afternoon. He therfore ordered the case to declare the court adjourned until 2.00 p.m. Monday, April 23rd.

To Mr. Tilley's question whether he should charge the witness, F. W. Wilson, not to discuss the case during the period of adjournment, His Lordship replied that he did not think he could do so, but that the witness could be examined as to such an event when the proceedings were resumed.

COMPARISON will convince you that no other car at any price in the fine six field equals McLaughlin-Buick in value.

Because of its leadership in sales in the fine six field . . . and because of its association with the vast General Motors organization, McLaughlin-Buick is able to build a better car at a lower cost. And, in accord with the McLaughlin-Buick and General Motors policy, McLaughlin-Buick turns these advantages into greater values for the motor-car buyer.

The G. M. A. C. Deferred Payment Plan offers many advantages to buyers of McLaughlin-Buick cars.

JACK MINER AND THE BIRDS

AND SOME THINGS ABOUT NATURE

One morning, about two o'clock, my brother-in-law and I hooked up the Old Reliable and, believe me, we had some load in that old phaeton buggy, the three blocks of wood, a spade, blanket and lantern. Away we went. Fortunately when we got there the soft ground was frozen just enough to hold us up, so we took the lantern and scoured the fields for tracks. Finally we found goose-prints in an old-partly drowned-out corn field which was adjoined by a field of fall wheat, no fence in sight. It was evident that the geese lit on the wheat and then walked into the corn stubbles. Here we selected our site. Standing these three decoys on the wheat, I dug myself in on the edge of the corn field. I say dug myself in, but not much, as the water was close to the surface; so I dug a coffin-like cavity about six inches deep and covered myself with a blanket which was, of course, the exact color of the ground. Three corners of the blanket were staked and tied fast, arranged to cover this muddy coffin. Then I gathered weeds and so forth and lined this grave to keep me out of the mud.

At the faintest sign of day the other fellow took the old horse and all the rest of our junk and drove fully half a mile away. At last, just before sunrise my eyes caught a dark streak in the sky, away to the south. So I examined the old gun, which was loaded with swanshot, lay down on my back in this bog hole, covering myself with the blanket and holding it firmly with my left hand with the gun in my right. There I lay with just my eyes out, my heart almost beating the ground into a pulp. It seemed so long I thought I must have been mistaken; they couldn't have been wild geese. I quietly called, twice, "A-honk! A-honk!" Just then I heard a low reply to the east of me. Rolling my eye in that direction, here were the eight geese going quartering by. So I gave another low "A-honk!" and to my delight they turned and saw the decoys, answering as they bowed their wings to alight with them.

But the keen eyes of this old gander detected that they were false. Fortunately for me when he shied from the decoys he swung my way, and just when they got in the right place I threw the blanket off with my left hand; raising the gun and my body at the same time I fired, sitting down. At the first shot the leader crumpled up with fourteen swanshot driven almost through him, and his mate started to follow long before he struck the frozen earth, leaving two distinct puffs of feathers floating away on the frosty air, the six young screaming, and darting in all directions for their lives away from their fallen parents. They went screaming back in the direction from which they came.

As soon as my chum arrived we had a good laugh when we looked at the decoys and the real geese. We soon loaded all up and could hardly get home quick enough to repaint those blocks of wood. Then they looked O.K., and fooled many a goose after that. But the weight of these geese was far from twenty-five pounds, the gander weighing exactly ten pounds and his mate one pound less.

I hunted geese every spring from then on, but they soon got wise and moved their stopping place about eight miles west to what was then called Walker's Marsh. I even followed them up there and secured an odd one now and then. I never killed over six in one season. This will give you an idea of how scarce they were in this part.

But it wasn't until 1903 that I really tumbled to see the depth of the Canada goose. In March I saw a family of six passing my house. I felt sure they were feeding on Cottam Plains, so the next morning found me out there with a lantern searching for their tracks, and long before the last stars had closed their eyes I had five decoys out and the blanket staked down, ready for action. But it seemed they weren't coming.

The sun is just high enough to be making golden windows in the distant houses to the west of me when I look to the south and a short, dark line appears in the sky. It is geese, sure; and they are coming straight this way.

Just as I am crawling under I see, to my disgust, two men coming out to ditch, right on the next farm; my heart sinks, as they will scare them away. But on and on come the geese. I can now see them plainly, and begin to hear their long-drawn-out safety notes, "A-h-k! A-h-k!" Imagine my delight when I see them come right on past these men, heading straight for me.

As they come over the field that I am in, a call comes from under the blanket, "A-honk!" and the old leader replies, turning my way. Seeing the decoys, they all bow their wings and drop their black feet to come down. But just before they get in range of my deadly aim, this cunning old father's voice suddenly rings out on the morning air, "Khonk! Khonk! Khonk! Khonk!" These sharp, alarming danger-cries are given in rapid succession, and every goose darts for his life. Their terrified cries can hardly be described. They finally fall in line again and fly back towards the lake.

That morning I was all alone and as I urged the driver along I was doing some tall thinking. And really I felt like a one-cent piece coming home from Klondyke! Here were my thoughts—Why did he pass right over, within hooting range of these two men, and then shy before he got that close to me? Moreover, why were they so dreadfully frightened? Possibly because he saw one red hair of my topknot projecting from under that blanket and, to his sorrow, he had seen that fellow before. "That's our deadly enemy! Everybody get for your lives!" were the cries he uttered.

Well, these thoughts presented themselves to me in this way: He does know me. And these are some of the same geese that come around here every spring, for they frequent the same places. To be frank, I studied wild geese until I felt like flying. Surely they must be the same geese. They do know me as their enemy. No man on earth knows their cunningness and depth. If they know me as their enemy, surely they would know a friend if they had one. But what can I do? I own only ten acres of land, and it is very much disfigured by taking about three feet of the surface off for making drain-tile and brick. But I will try.

So I called the neighbors (mostly boys) together and told them if they would not shoot at a wild goose around here I would bring some right to that place and we would shoot a limited number when the opportunity was right. This seemed too good to be true, as only one of them had ever shot a wild goose, and all jumped at the scheme.

I graded up a bank at the far side of this sore-eye ten acres, making, not a pond, but mud-hole. Then I bought seven wing-clipped Canada geese from an old gentleman who had trapped them unlawfully, put them back in this cavity and fed them there. They soon became quite tame and interesting. This was in the spring of 1904. The seven geese got so they roamed all over the ten acres, making this mud-hole their home; but no wild ones ever came. In 1905 none came; 1906 brought the same result; and even 1907 came, but no geese. And really I was the mark of the neighborhood; the questions I was asked would surely jar the cherries on Aunt Sarah's Sunday bonnet.

But April the second, 1908, was my innings, for the whole neighborhood was aroused long before breakfast. "The geese have come! the geese have come! Jack said they would come!" and everybody had a gun.

Now I was face to face with another serious problem, but all listened to me as I explained that if we did not shoot at them until they got settled down and made this their spring home, the ones we did not kill would return next spring and surely bring more with them. Every hunter was very reasonable, and, after having a quiet chat, each took his gun back home. In about three weeks I hoisted the signal and every one was on deck. I believed I was the biggest boy of the bunch. All of us went over to the tile factory and watched these eleven geese from the upstair window until the goose fever got a few notches higher than our nerves. Then we all came down and marched up behind the embankment. "Now," I said, "don't shoot at them sitting, or you will hit my tame ones." Then I said, "Cock your guns," and I gave an alarming "Honk!" and that instant every one of the eleven geese was in the air, and "Bang! Bangety! Bang!" went the eight guns into them. When the soft coal smoke had finally cleared away, five geese lay dead on the muddy water. The other six, screaming with fright, flew away to the lake.

Now how fortunate this was for me: The eight guns came from five homes, and thus each home had a good fat goose for the oven. And all was going well so far.

I did not expect to see these geese come back until another spring, but to my surprise in about two hours they were circling high in the air and honking for their lost companions. Finally they went away again, but the next morning they were back, bright and early, and to my great satisfaction they lit and fed with mine, and it was surprising how soon they quieted down. I asked the neighbors not to shoot at them again that spring, and all kindly agreed.

Then came a whole lot more fun for the public. "Jack Miner is not going to shoot these six geese; he says they will come back next spring!" Really this furnished fun for a great percentage of the community. One old gentleman told me how his great-uncle Dave killed 'steen wild geese before breakfast; and this dear old gentleman's white hair just shook as he explained the points, how to clean right up on this six, and not one could get away if his plans were carried out. Why, bless your life, they had gotten so tame I honestly believe I could have killed them with a fishing pole. Yet of course I respected his grey hairs enough not to interfere with his trembling thoughts.

One morning about May 1st, they rose up and circled higher and higher, and started straight north.

CANTON FACES WAR OVER AUTO

With the advent of the automobile the transportation situation in Canton, China, promises a war of its own. In the city of 870,000 population and only 38 miles of modern streets, the 14,000 licensed ginriksha pullers have just about driven sedan chair carriers out of business, but the coming of the automobile has caused the "ricksha" men to form a union in self defense. Canton has only 420 registered passenger automobiles, besides the 80 official cars. Of these 364 are owned by garages and rented to the public, constituting Canton's taxi service. Nine of every 10 of these machines are American-made. The organization of the coolies into a union is expected to result in a demand for higher wages to "ricksha" and garage men that may result in a bitter transportation war that will make the revolution seem tame.

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN CONDEMNS L.C.A. AS FAILURE

Mover of Resolution Says Crime and Drunkenness Have Increased.

SAYS JAILS CROWDED.

Mrs. W. R. Morris Tells Ladies of Work in Toronto Schools For Subnormal Children.

A resolution, voiced by Miss A. Lancaster, seconded by Mrs. J. Plunkett of the W.C.T.U. and endorsed by the majority of the members of affiliated societies present, was passed at the meeting of the Local Council of Women in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. on Thursday afternoon, to the effect that the Liquor Control Act has, so far, been an absolute failure, and that this opinion of the Peterborough Local Council be brought to the attention of the Provincial and National Councils, at their forthcoming annual meetings.

Miss Lancaster, moving the resolution, said that large salaries were being paid those in charge of the conduct of the Liquor Control Act, that, in the six months of its operation, $17,500,000 had been spent in the province for alcoholic beverages, that drunkenness and the crime wave were on the increase, and that jails, which the speaker asserted were almost closed up during the operation of the O.T.A., were now overcrowded. The Liquor Control Act, she went on to state, had been sponsored by brewing and distilling interests and opposed by the large majority of the churches and educational institutions of the provinces.

"Practical Christianity in Toronto Schools" was the title of a very interesting address which featured the meeting, given to the members by Mrs. W. R. Morris, who was congratulated by the president, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, on her recent election as president of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations.

Mrs. Morris outlined, in illuminative style, the work being carried on in the old Jarvis Street Collegiate in Toronto, to educate boys who are not of the normal mentality and who have not been able to reach the 75 quotient placed as a basis for admission to lessons with the normal, average child. This school, with its sister school, where girls are trained in the same way, aims to ameliorate the difficulties under which such children labor, when placed in competition with normal children in school, where they are exposed to the ridicule of brighter scholars, are depressed by the feeling of inferiority and are unable to reach the standards demanded by the curriculum.

Here, 400 boys are trained in ways suitable to their mentality. They are between the ages of thirteen and sixteen years but have the mental age of six to twelve years. They are of the type that is never able to reach beyond the third form in school, but in these schools they have oral instructions that arouse their interest in various ways. Instead of being left to roam the streets, idle, morose and with tendencies that lead them into mischief and often into crime, they are turned into self-respecting, self-reliant citizens, enabled to do a certain amount of useful work which will support them and, better still, given them the moral support they require to face the world in competition with brighter minds.

Experts in psychology supervise the tuition given by ordinary teachers and each of these problem children is studied closely, to determine their physicial condition and remove any defects that may contribute to mental retardment, to find out home conditions which may tend to keep them back, and to discover their likes in the way of mechanical occupations. Here they are taught the use of the hands in co-ordination with the brain. They are taught obedience to authority, cleanliness, tidy habits and self control.

They are trained to cook, to wait on table, to be tinsmiths and barbers and cobblers. From old grain bags, they make overalls. They are taught to read, to play, because all education requires for its fulfillment the knowledge of a proper use of leisure time, and they are impregnated with love for their country.

Mrs. Morris spoke in terms of great enthusiasm of the band of forty mouth organs at this school, which plays beautiful music in conjunction with a pipe organ. She concluded with a reference to the practical Christianity exemplified in this type of work, in the "saving of the flotsam and jetsam of humanity which has for generations been left to float aimlessly on the sea of society," and to the turning of characters which might easily become a menace to civilization into self-respecting, self-supporting citizens.

Miss Lancaster rose to move a very enthusiastic vote of thanks to Mrs. Morris for her "deeply stimulating and touching address," and was seconded by Miss F. Hatton. Asked by Mrs. Edwards as to the system of entrance into this school, Mrs. Morris said that none was demanded. A preliminary survey had been made and all teachers knew that children of sub-normal type in their classrooms would have a place in that institution. During the first year, fifty per cent. of the children had been court cases, but that had now entirely ceased.

Mrs. Edwards wondered if there would be room in the new extension to the Collegiate for such classes, and Mrs. Morris said that such was not the intention, although, she remarked humorously, "A man asked me some years ago: 'If you do have a new technical school, will you put bright pupils in it'?" In this prevocational school in Toronto, more attention is paid to the industrial processes than to the principals of vocational work, as is the case in ordinary technical schools.

Sundry items of business were dealt with at yesterday's meeting. In the absence of the recording and corresponding secretaries and the treasurer, their place was taken by Mrs. E. Wand. Nominations of delegates to the provincial meeting of the council, to be held in Toronto on May 28th and 29th, were made, in Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner and Mrs. N. D. Seaton The National annual meeting, which follows immediately, from May 29th to June 5th, and will be held at Annesley Hall, Toronto was also dealt with. Suggestions for delegates were made, in Mesdames Wearing, Mowat, Mills, Morris, Lundy, Stevenson, and Miss A. Walton.

O.E.A. PRESIDENT.

WHY TORTURE THE LITTLE ONES

Mothers, do you think it fair to torture your little ones by forcing them to take ill-tasting oils when they need a laxative medicine? Don't you find that the child's dread of these medicines often do more harm than good?

Baby's Own Tablets are the modern substitute for these nauseous doses. They are the very medicine the child requires and are so pleasant to take that they are as easy to administer as a glass of water. They are the perfect remedy for all the minor ailments of little ones, being absolutely guaranteed free from injurious drugs.

Baby's Own Tablets accomplish all that castor oil and other bad-tasting remedies can do. In fact they accomplish more as they do not leave the child exhausted from its struggle against taking medicine. They relieve teething pains, banish indigestion and constipation, break up colds and simple fevers and promote healthful, refreshing sleep. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LET PRINCE RACE SAYS N. Y. HERALD

Admirers Fear For His Safety, Paper Says—He Is Good Horseman.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 20.—(By Canadian Press).—Under the caption, "Let Him Race", the New York Herald-Tribune discusses the Prince of Wales editorial as follows:

Hunting, in the common English interpretation of the word, that is to say, on horseback, and steeplechasing are forms of sport almost as hazardous, it would appear, as aviation. The participant, although he cannot fall so far as the luckless air pilot, does so more often and under circumstances that are by no means reassuring in the matter of life and limb. The apprehension in the matter of the British public, therefore, as a result of the Prince of Wales' addition to these pastimes of the saddle, is entirely undestandable. A similar anxiety in this country envelops Lindbergh's activities in the air. Each country is in the position of worshiping a popular hero for the very qualities which it wishes—that is, a good part of it wishes—he would cease to display. For undoubtedly the British, and for that matter, the rest of us, honor the Prince for those exhibitions of pluck and sportsmanship which give it cold shivers down the spine. Unofficial record credits him with a total of 25 croppers to date, eight of them in this year alone. Meanwhile the old jokes about him which seemed to imply that these accidents were the fruit of poor horsemanship have been succeeded by a realization that he is, in fact, an excellent rider who merely takes the chances common to the games as fast as opportunity offers Truly a gallant and intrepid young man who is not to be swerved from the pursuit of a dangerous predilection, any more than our own Lindbergh, by the possessive instinct of his adorers who would put him in a glass case. Let him race! After all the ordinary routine of a Prince allows him little chance to show the stuff of which he is made. Let him meet the ups and downs of life in one of the few ways open to him. Whatever the political considerations that complicate his case they are not half so important as the example he sets of an unconquerable spirit who accepts the tumbles that fate hands him as all part of the day's work."

MISSIONARY TELLS W.A. ABOUT EGYPT

Moslem Revolution is Subject of Talk By Miss Harris at St. George's.

Miss Harris, of Toronto, returned missionary from Egypt, gave a very interesting talk to the members of St. George's W A. on Thursday afternoon. The meeting was in connection with the anniversary of the formation of St. George's branch which inaugurated three years ago around St. George's Day. Mrs. E. G. Brown, president was in charge of the meeting. Members of other city branches were present. Miss Harris, who spent sixteen years in Egypt, based her talk on 'The Moslem Revolution.'

The solo, "Dear to the Heart of the Shepherd," was sung very sweetly by Mrs J. Howard. Dainty refreshments were served at the close.

Miss Harris addressed the Junior W. A. in the evening, being introduced by Mrs. Hughes, superintendent. The girls were much impressed by the interesting stories told by the missionary, and learned the chorus, "Yes, Jesus Loves Me" in the Arabic language. During a social half hour afterwards, Miss Harris sung several hymns in Arabic.

CELEBRATES JUBILEE OF LADIES' SCHOOL

Duchess of York Will Take Part in Gathering of Graduates at Oxford.

LONDON, April 20.—(Canadian Press).—Lady Margaret Hall, Oxford University, which was founded 50 years ago, will celebrate its jubilee at the end of June. The Duchess of York has promised to attend the celebrations, the principal one of which will be for 100 former Oxford University students on Saturday, June 30, when they will meet the Duchess at a luncheon. These will included Most Rev. Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of York; Bishop Talbot, the founder, and Mrs. Talbot; A. B. Houghton, United States Ambassador, whose daughter is a student; the vice Chancellor, Dr. F. W. Pember, Warden of All Soul's Church, and the Hon. Mrs. Pember, and Miss Jex-Blake, the late principal.

Lord Cave, whose death occured recently, was Chancellor of Oxford University.

Miss Woodsworth, the first principal who is 88, hopes to be present in the afternoon. The luncheon will be followed by a garden party at which the Duchess will be present.

The principal, Miss Lynda Grier, has also invited all former sudents with their nearer relatives and the present members of the Hall.

Lady Margaret Hall was founded in 1878, but was not actually opened until 1879, when Somerville College, the second of the women's colleges, was also opened. Owing to the increasing demand for accommodation it will be found necessary to make additions to the buildings in the near future.

The Hall has had a number of distinguished students, including Miss Agnes Maude Royden, noted preacher Mrs. Hammond, who with her husband, had published some valuable historical works; Miss Morberly, principal of St. Hilda's College, Oxford; Miss Gwyer, principal of St. Hugh's College, Oxford; Miss Burrows, principal of the Society of Oxford Home Students and Miss Elizabeth Levitt, formerly vice-principal of St. Hilda's College, and now Reader in Economic History in the University of London.

The many distinctions wonby members of Lady Margaret Hall include the Arnold Essay Prize, awarded to Miss J. H. Fleming in 1922, the first prize to be won by a woman in the university; and the Newdigate Prize, which was won last year by Miss G. E. Trevelyan.

"They say that sleep is nature's nerve restorer"

"That is all right but the trouble is that I cannot sleep. My nerves seem to be so excited and irritable that I lie awake for hours nearly every night. Then I get up tired in the mornings, have no appetite and frequently suffer with headaches."

"Well you certainly are in a bad way. Did you ever use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?"

"No, but I have often been advised to do so by friends who swear by it."

"Here is another Dr. Chase fan, for I certainly believe it is the only thing to use when your nervous system gets run down."

"Yes, Jessie, I want to get in on this, too, for I know it will do you all sorts of good and in a few weeks you will be feeling fine."

BANNER RADIO YEAR PREDICTED FOR 1928

New Developments in Radio Increase Entertainment Possibilities.

The radio fan and music lover has in prospect a year of greatly increased pleasure when radio developments now maturing are released predicts D. H. Pollitt of Toronto, Vice-President and General Manager of De Forest Radio. New models to be presented by the radio industry during the coming season incorporate considerable advances in performance and convenience of operation. Great strides have been made in simplification and in tone-quality.

Mr. Pollitt, who is one of the pioneers of the industry in Canada, believes that radio will definitely reach in 1928 a position of stability in broadcast receiver development and that prospective purchasers can invest with confidence in years of satisfactory service from present-day models. The trand generally is toward higher powered instruments of increased cost but offering greater dollar value and enhanced appearance operating entirely from the ordinary house-current.

To Everyone Interested In Getting a 1929 Automobile In 1928

The New Reo Flying Clouds are announced as 1929 automobiles for the very simple reasons that they give you today—

The riding ease
The handling ease
The safety braking
The simple, vigorous lines
The carefully appointed interiors
The ability to get-up-and-go—

that many other cars will still be trying to equal—in 1929.

A few of many Flying Cloud 1929 technical advancements are listed to the left. With Reo's moderate production such design improvements change from blue prints into motor cars months sooner than they could in the huge plants which build most of America's automobiles.

So Reo can give you 1929 Flying Clouds in the very heart of the 1928 season.

Try out a New Flying Cloud for yourself. The complete story of true 1929 motoring will be told you in a new, sweet-running way.

HUMOR REIGNS AT ST. ANDREW'S

Men's Association Has Debate By Number of Clergymen.

ON MAN'S GOOD TIME.

The new executive, under the presidency of W. H. Dickin firmly established itself through the success of the monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Men's Association, held on Thursday evening. By 6.30, the supper hour, an encouragingly large number of the members and their wives had gathered in the Sunday-school auditorium, whence they moved to the basement. There they gathered around the tables each of which was presided over by a host and hostess, namely: Mr. and Mrs. A. McNab, Mr. and Mrs. M. Breckenbridge, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, Mr and Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dearborn, The Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. H. Dickin, Mr. and Mrs. V. Foster, N. Brandt (at the batchelors' table), Mr. and Mrs. George Gilman, Miss Jean Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Fraser. The main event of the program was a humorous debate, "Resolved that men have a better time than women", participated in by six ministers.

Following supper and community singing, President Dickin announced the names of the ministers taking part in the debate. He stated that the affirmative was to be taken by the Rev. Wren, the Rev. A. E. Thornley and the Rev. William McDonald, while the Rev. J. W. Gordon, the Rev. J. E. Todd and the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe (who kindly filled in owing to the illness of the Rev. J. H. Dudgeon) would uphold the hopes of those with different opinions on the subject. And so the argument began with each speaker forced to confine his remarks to five minutes. The result was one of the most humorously entertaining half hours that could possibly be hoped for.

Anyone who says that ministers aren't witty will meet with plenty of argument from those who heard last evening's debate!

The arguments brought forth ranged from most complimentary references to the judges to satirical remarks on the domestic relations of members of the opposition—in fact the only thing not proven was that men had a better time than women. Nevertheless, a judge's decision was necessary so that Dr. Moir, H. R. H. Kenner and Mr. Barnes, after no deliberation whatever, announced that the affirmative side had won. Even yet the matter is not definitely settled.

The vote of thanks to the ladies who provided the supper was moved by E. Shirley, while Dr. McPherson expressed the appreciation of the entertainment provided by the ministers.

RUST RESISTANT WHEAT OFFERED

Saskatchewan Man Claims New Discovery Is Of High Class.

SASKATOON, Sask., April 21.—Millions of dollars annually may be added to the value of Canada's wheat crop as a result of the discovery of a new rust resistant wheat by Dr. Seager Wheeler of Rosthern, Sask., five times winner of the international wheat championship.

The new wheat is said to ripen earlier than the Marquis variety, which comprises 90 per cent of the Dominion's total crop and is heavier than garnet wheat, an important consideration in the withstanding of wind and storm.

Control of rust, wheat, according to statistics of the Department of Colonization and Development of the Canadian Pacific railway, annualy does $5,000,000 worth of damage in the Prairie provinces and other added millions of dollars worth of mischief in the wheat growing sections of the United States, is a problem which agricultural experts have long sought to solve. Dr. Wheeler, who is the "Luther Burbank" of Canada, obtained his new wheat after years of experimental growing by crossing and improving old types.

Canada, the world's greatest wheat producing country in the last few years has so materially improved the quality of this grain as to win fourteen of the last seventeen world's wheat championships. If the new wheat proves up to what is claimed for it, its discovery will be an inestimable boon to wheat growers both in the Dominion and the United States.

NEW STRENGTH FOR WEAK STOMACHS

Indigestion Disappears When the Blood is Enriched.

The most urgent need of all who suffer from any form of indigestion is a tonic to enrich the blood. Pain and distress after eating is the way the stomach shows that it is too weak to perform the work of digesting the food it takes. New strength is given to weak stomachs by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills because they purify and enrich the blood. This accounts for the speedy relief in stomach disorders that follows the use of this medicine. The value of this medicine in cases of indigestion is shown by the case of Mrs. George W. Johnson, Lequille, N.S., who says:—"I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was greatly distressed with indigestion. Always after eating I suffered from pains in the stomach and other distressing symptoms. I tried different remedies, but without getting relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I readily did, and I am feeling very grateful ever since to the person who gave me the advice. The very first box helped me and before I had taken a half dozen boxes I was restored to my former good health and all traces of this distressing trouble disappeared. It is now about a year since I took the pills, and I have not been troubled with indigestion since. I have taken every occasion to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to those in need of a medicine and shall continue to do so."

A little booklet, "What to Eat and How to Eat", will be sent free to anyone asking for it. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

R. R. 5, Peterborough,
April 18, 1928.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your issue of the 17th and again on the 18th you have editorials re the rural school problem.

In the first place, you state that out of 600 delegates at the convention only 11 members voted for the township school board bill.

I beg to differ. When the vote was called for against the bill I would guess that about four-fifths arose to their feet ,and as we were on our feet, perhaps 2 minutes, a lot of that one-fifth, in ones and twos, gradually and rather unwillingly arose as if they could not stand the strong opposition. Possibly there were not more than 25 that had the courage to sit it out.

Now, if Premier Ferguson's bill is as good as you seem to think it is, did he ever have, or will he ever have, a better chance than he had right then of expounding the merits of his bill? Neither Premier Ferguson or any of his colleagues were there to try to convince that stubborn (to use your own expression) six hundred that his bill was any good.

That 600 was open to listen to any common-sense motion that was brought forward, and then could have taken it home and talked it over with the public school supporters in their respective sections.

Again you state on the 18th that rural Ontario would rather bear those ills it has than fly to others that it knows not of. They would if you don't take the trouble to convince them differently. Once convince the average farmer of a thing on merits, whether it's a copper mine, or an oil well in Kansas, or a rubber tire concern, or a motor factory, he will bite.

In looking over the 1927 reports on schools and teachers in Ontario there is a vast difference between that and the figures you quote as the 1926 attendance at some of the rural schools. I presume you meant the public schools. As a delegate at that convention I feel assured that had Premier Ferguson been there to expound the merits of his bill it would have made a great difference to the vote, as I think the majority of rural Ontario people know that the present rural educational system is far from being perfect.

One of that stubborn six hundred.
S. S. 3, N. MONAGHAN.

SEA DISCIPLINE STERN.

Stern discipline of the sea was meted to a bosun of the Commonwealth Line vessel Moreton Bay when it docked at the harbor at Sydney, Australia, recently. At a strike meeting of the Seamen's Union the man was charged with "carrying tales" to the mate with regard to certain happenings in the forecastle. The bosun offered an explanation, but the meeting found him guilty, and ordered that he give 24 hours' notice of his intention to leave the vessel and further ordered him not to seek re-employment with the Commonwealth Line for 12 months.

She Suffered Terribly From Backache

Both Mother and Daughter Praise Dodd's Kidney Pills

"I suffered terribly from Backache, which at times made me feel right ill," writes Miss Dora Wyatt, 87 Alyward Street, Toronto. "I tried other Kidney Pills, but they seemed of not much use. Then I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and am feeling fine now after using two boxes. I praise them for their good work. My mother used Dodd's Kidney Pills for her Backache and Weak Kidneys. She was unable to brace herself upright for about three weeks and then used your Kidney Pills. She derived great benefit from Dodd's Kidney Pills and still continues to use them. She thinks they are fine medicine."

WHERE FLIGHT OF BREMEN ENDED

No more welcome sight has mortal man seen than the Greenly Island lighthouse piercing the fog, with fuel gone and their airplane hundreds of miles off its course, the crew of the Bremen, at the point of exhaustion, peered anxiously through the blanket of murk for a place to land. At first taking the lighthouse for a sealing steamer, the airmen saw that they were approaching an island on which a small pond or ice-covered field offered the chance of a landing. It was their only chance and they took it, but the plane went through the ice, damaged the under-carriage, fuselage and propeller. With their will to succeed undaunted, they clambered out of their machine, borrowed a makeshift kit of tools from the lighthouse keeper and at once began planning to repair the damage. Above is an artist's conception of the historic landing at Greenly Island.

EMPIRE SHOPPING WEEK

Its Object and Its Significance

EMPIRE SHOPPING WEEK, which is being held in Canada from April 21 to April 28, has for its object the promotion of a first natural preference for goods produced within the Empire. Its appeal to you is simple. It invites you, in your daily shopping, to demand first the products of our own and other overseas Dominions, and, of course, the Motherland.

Whenever you can find Empire products, whether they be manufactured or produced at home or overseas, that are satisfactory in price and quality, you are asked to buy them in preference to foreign goods. In short, Empire Shopping Week combines patriotic and business enterprise in a thoroughly practical manner. It is an invitation to strengthen the bonds of the Empire—to increase distribution and volume of sales.

For you, then, Empire Shopping Week holds a very definite, personal significance. During this coming week you will be able to grasp some idea of the progress that has been made in raising the standards of manufacture throughout the British Empire, of the Empire's industrial and agricultural ability, tangible evidence of which will be found in the high quality products on display during Empire Shopping Week, many of which are the finest in their class in the world.

You will see the spirit of Empire Shopping Week reflected throughout the Teco Store. Special efforts are being made—by displays and interesting features—to acquaint you with the extensive range of Empire-produced goods available here. You cannot fail to be impressed by the high average of Empire goods among the Store's merchandise. There will be something of interest to young and old throughout Empire Shopping Week at the Teco Store.

"Empire Buyers Are Empire Builders"

Outstanding values in Empire-made goods are obtainable every day at the Teco Store. Here you have all the advantages created by a policy of buying for cash and selling for cash—buying in large volume through the tremendous organization which operates this Store—a unit in the largest retail organization in the entire British Empire—maintaining buying offices the year round in many of the countries within the Empire.

Each day during the week there will be separate groups of Empire merchandise featured. Each successive day will bring forth interesting new sidelights on this great patriotic movement.
Plan now to visit the Store frequently during Empire Shopping Week.

Teco Merchandise
From many and distant parts of the Empire is to be found in Departments of the Store. Ask clerks where your purchases are from.

lines at Jemappes about 2½ miles back of the front line. Thus of the total of ten killed of regiment, four were in line, six were at work in the rear. The total killed November 10th was 57.

The Princess Pats' records show two other ranks killed, fourteen wounded. Those killed, 410970, Wainwright Carlton killed in action, 3320394, Private Joseph Needon, died of wounds received.

The 19th Battalion was also in action that day, November 10, 1918. It had four officers and eleven other ranks killed and thirty-eight other ranks wounded. Killed, Lieut. William Wilfred Fulford, died of wounds December 23rd admitted to hospital. Lieut. Wesley Clarence McFaul killed in action. Capt. Morris Cameron Roberts killed in action. Lieut. Cecil Ewart G. Roberts killed in action. Eleven other ranks were all killed in action.

The 20th Battalion, November 10, 1918, suffered casualties killed. One officer and eleven other ranks.

The R.C.R.'s casualties for November tenth were one officer and six other ranks killed or died of wounds, three officers, twelve other ranks wounded but survived.

The 49th Canadian Infantry Battalion casualties show five other ranks wounded.

Regarding inquiry as to artillery fire on Jemappes on November 10th Col. Orde reads from war diary of 3rd Canadian Division showing that enemy had fired barrage in Jemappes sector on November 10th.

Regarding a message referred to by Major Nickle in his evidence no record of it could be located at Ottawa.

Mr. Regan: "About this cable Major Nickle was telling us about, in view of the fact there is no record of this cable could we conclude that it was a private matter."

Col. Orde: "From the records in Ottawa, I would conclude there was no official communication cabled from one government to the other."

Reply to further questions, witness could not give any reason why a communication should be sent or received regarding private messages. The witness replied that he did not know whether they sent private messages on government matters or not. He knew that private messages were sent. He could not recall the contents. Regarding the Pritchards, Col. Orde was requested to wire for the file of Sergeant N. W. Pritchard No. 647263, 19th Battalion Canadian Infantry.

Plaintiff Late.

When court reassembled at 2.16 after the noon recess, the plaintiff and counsel were not among those present so Mr. Frank Regan, counsel for Mr. Wilson's defense left the court to summon him.

W. N. Tilley arrived with an apology that he had not noticed the time and proceedings were resumed, with a request from Mr. Regan to place Sergeant Major Cruchley, Kingston, in the box. Mr. Tilley did not object and the witness was called.

Alfred Charles Cruchley was a sergeant major of the 2nd Brigade Canadian Garrison Artillery at time of Armistice. He had some messages with him which he received but not as an official. The sergeant major asked specifically what messages were required, and produced photograph copies of messages. He requested these be returned to him as they were souvenirs which he had brough back from overseas. His Lordship ruled that he might have them by making a proper application to the court after the case had been disposed of. Asked where he got the message, the witness said it was received in the usual way and placed on file. When the usual time had elapsed and old messages were being destroyed he took this copy from the file and retained it as a souvenir.

The second message was received by the 2nd Brigade C.G.A. and forwarded to the 1st Canadian Heavy Battery. Some figures appeared on the top of the message. Under cross examination Crutchley could not say what they were, how they came there or who put them there. The message was received at nine o'clock in the morning.

Requested by W. N. Tilley, witness allowed him to examine the documents. The messages were on Form A, which was the proper form for messages received. The first, an operation message, first came into the witness' hand about twenty-three hours November 10th, received by a signaller over the telephone and handed to him. The only time entered by the signaller was time received twenty-three hours, 22.50 would be something else. A second message, also on the receiving form, was received by telephone the same as the first. The time received was 09 hours November 11th, 1918.

Copy Official.

The copy was official, because it was the signaller's duty to make copies of each unit in the brigade. The copy on exhibit was the one sent to the first Canadian Heavy Battery. The entry for the time sent would depend on the accuracy of the signallers.

Mr. Regan, read from the field service regulations, "at the foot of the order below the signature the time should be entered at which the message was sent."

Mr. Tilley: "That is for a message sent. This form is for the message received. The Sergeant Major did not understand what Mr. Regan was driving at and said that authority need not necessarily originate with the Canadian Corps. Authority might start from General Headquarters in France or any where along the line of authority. The witness suggested that Mr. Regan look further into the book and see that the officer sending a message should mark the time he enters the message below his signature.

Mr. Tilley: "If my friend will come to the end of his case I will call the man who started that message," he added. "Is my friend entitled to keep on this way asking questions after the witness has told all he knows. My client cannot keep up this indefinitely."

His Lordship: "I don't think it necessary to use those tactics. Try and follow the regular practice. Mr. Tilley's complaint is quite justified."

Mr. Regan: "My Lord we have had great trouble in getting the witness."

Mr. Tilley: "If you have not got a good case you are bound to have."

F. H. Caldow.

Frederick Howard Caldow, Toronto, is a stock broker, and was a lieutenant overseas with the First Canadian Heavy Battery, 2nd Brigade. They were not attached to a division, but were corps troops. He was between fifteen and twenty miles west of Mons with his battery on November 10th. Caldow identified his signature on the message to the 1st Canadian Heavy Battery which Cruchley had produced. He signed in acknowledging receipt of the message.

Mr. Regan: "Looking at the bottom of the message, where would you say this message originated?"

Witness: "This is merely my opinion, mind you. I would say this was a message from corps headquarters to the 2nd Brigade C.G.A., which was relayed to our unit. My signature appears in acknowledging receipt."

The witness was in some doubt as to why his signature appeared on the face of the document. To Mr. Preston's question Caldow replied that he signed for the message for his battery.

To W. N. Tilley, the witness admitted that his signature should not appear on the face of the message. The numbers near his signature were not placed there by him. His signature on the back of the message officially acknowledges receipt of the message.

Col. Orde Recalled.

Col. Orde was recalled to the witness box and Mr. Regan read part of the alleged libelous article.

Q—Can you tell me the number of casualties actually occurring in the so called attack on Mons.

A—I cannot.

Mr Regan: "What about Paschendale, where casualties were reported at 14,876.

Mr. Tilley: "I object to these questions referring to other battles."

His Lordship: "I am getting tired of ruling."

Mr. Regan: "Why don't you look at me. Never mind Mr. Tilley."

Col. Orde: "I'm very sorry Mr. Regan." Then in a lower tone as he turns to his documents, "Tell the truth, I'm rather tired looking at you."

"Battle casualties for the second Canadian Division for November 10 to 12 inclusive were: Fatal, five officers, twenty-seven other ranks; not fatal, six officers, ninety-six other ranks.

For the Third Division, during that period there were: Fatal, two officers, twenty-two other ranks; not fatal, six officers, seventy-six other ranks.

Said Col. Orde: "Total casualties in these two divisions were fifty-six for these three days and for the corps in that period fifty-nine."

Q—Can you tell me where these three were?

A.—Not without several weeks of search.

Q—Can you tell me the strength of each division on November 11?

A—Approximate strength, 12,000 for each division.

Pressed by Mr. Regan, Col. Orde expressed the opinion that there were comparatively few Germans in Mons, mostly small parties fighting rear guard actions. He had no information on prisoners captured by the Second Division and the documents show nine prisoners captured by the Third Canadian Division.

Summarizing All Day

Mr. Tilley objected to the evidence which Mr. Regan was trying to get from the witness on the grounds that it is to be improperly used later in the case. Mr. Regan altered the question slightly, and it was allowed to pass, then the bench asked what Mr. Regan was getting at.

"I was just getting him to summarize, my lord," Mr. Regan replied.

"He has summarized and summarized and particularized all day," returned His Lordship.

"You told my friend something about a funeral in Mons," Mr. Regan asked Col. Orde.

Col. Orde: "I read an extract from the war diary."

Mr. Regan was allowed to examine the diary and questioned witness along the same lines as he followed during the morning proceedings. The questions referred to the meaning of certain sentences in the dairy. The colonel replied, "Just what it says; no further tactical operations when troops arrived at objective."

Mr. Tilley objected to Col. Orde being asked to interpret the words used in the document. The objection was sustained.

Mr. Regan, reading from the war diary of the 42nd Canadian Battalion, asked: "Can you tell me when they first approached Mons?"

Col. Orde read an extract from the war diary of the regiment showing that the battalion penetrated Mons about one hours Nov. 11th. They had previously relieved the Princess Pats. The attack was made from the west of the town and slightly south. The diary used the word attack, so Mr. Regan asked if, reading from the diary, there was an attack on Mons.

Mr. Tilley: "He wants to emphasize the word 'attack,' so it will live in some person's memory."

His Lordship: "Mr. Regan, please have some regard for the proper method of procedure of the court."

"Yes, my Lord."

The emphasis placed by Mr. Regan on the last two words caused many smiles and a few chuckles around the court.

Immediately following the recess, Mr. Regan pressed Col. Orde for details of the troops which took part in the attack on Mons. The regiments engaged were represented by the 42nd, R.C.R.'s, and P.P.C.L.I. When asked what artillery was engaged on the attack, Mr. Tilley interrupted to protest against the word "attack." The word "target engaged" was substituted, and the inquiry proceeded. It developed that one gun of the 24th Battery, C.F.A., was firing on machine gun nests in close support of the infantry. Col. Orde did not know where the other guns were or how many other batteries were in the vicinity.

Explains Map to Jury

With the permission of His Lordship, Col. Orde stepped down from the witness box to explain to the jury by using an official map, the exact location of the troops before the advance on Mons just prior to the cessation of hostilities.

This map, said Col. Orde during his explanation, indicated the general position of the troops before midnight, say 11.59 p.m., November 10th.

Mr. Tilley objected, claiming that Col. Orde was not in a position to give such evidence, since he was not actually there, but had extracted his information from the official records.

Col. Orde objected to filing the map on the grounds of public interest, and His Lordship would not order him to do so. He will not prepare any map, because he has been forbidden to do so. The Colonel also denied that any map was prepared for General Currie for this occasion. Mr. Regan examined the map previously filed as an exhibit. Col. Orde reminded Mr. Regan that he gave him a spare map some days ago. Mr. Tilley claimed that maps have been previously considered and marked as required. His Lordship ordered Mr. Regan to proceed with his case. "What is the next question?" asked the bench. "Let us get on with the case." Mr. Regan turned to his documents on the counsel table and said, "We are down now to the line."

Mr. Regan asked about two guns of the 24th C.F.A.

"One gun, Mr. Regan," Col. Orde replied.

Searching the war diary of the 3rd Division, Col. Orde showed that arrangements had been made to manhandle the gun into the most advantageous position. Batteries of the 4th Brigade took position on the Eastern edge of Jemappes, firing on the machine guns. How many batteries there were, he could not say. The war diary used the plural, "batteries."

7th Brigade Engaged.

Continuing his examination of Col. Orde, Mr. Regan was told there were no casualties from noon, Nov. 10th, till noon, Nov. 11th, 1918, with the 4th brigade. The Princess Pats and R.C.R. were in the 7th Canadian infantry brigade. The units which entered Mons from the west and the north were of the 7th brigade. Those represented were the R.C.R., Princess Pats and the 42nd. The artillery engaged was not under the brigade command. These units were known as divisional troops.

"I can't answer your question; I can't answer—I don't know," was Col. Orde's reply.

In reply to a question regarding the casualty report and its accuracy Col. Orde attemtped to explain how these documents were made up, but was stopped by Mr. Regan—hence his refusal to answer.

"I do not know whether the statements in the war diary as regards casualties are correct for the days on which casualties occurred," Colonel Orde explained. He had previously pointed out that the war diary is written from midnight to midnight, and the casualty wire from noon to noon. He also showed how a unit in action might not know of its casualties on the day that they occurred. Hence they would not appear in the diary of the date of occurrence.

At the request of Mr. Regan, Col. Orde stepped down again from the witness box to show the jury the position of the 21st Can. Inf. Battalion on the nights of Nov. 9th and 10th, 1918. While Mr. Regan asked questions of the Colonel, Messrs. Tilley and Parmenter represented the plaintiff's interests.

T. F. Hall K. C., was also in the room for the defense. Frequently His Lordship requested Mr. Regan to speak louder in order that the remarks might be heard.

At ten minutes to six, Col. Orde returned to the box to answer further questions regarding the advance on the village of Mons.

According to documents, troops were 1,000 yards short of the objective at 6.20 a.m. Nov. 11th, 1918, Col. Orde explained. At eleven in the morning they were some 5,000 yards in advance of it.

His Lordship would not permit Preston to re-examine the witness.

Mr. Regan resubmitted the question regarding the relative positions of troops and objectives.

"With regard to that point?" said Col. Orde.

"I'm going to hold you to military terms. I'm getting educated now," Regan replied in objecting to the word "point" in place of "objective."

Mr. Tilley objected to the questions and in objection was sustained.

Mr. Regan asked the witness where troops were at certain hours. Col. Orde gave information, then realized he had made a slightly erroneous statement.

"As you were, my Lord!" he corrected himself. The court smiled. "The third division was approximately 1,000 yards north-west of O.4."

Asked if the had any records at Ottawa which would show the opposition offered the troops advancing on Mons, Col. Orde replied that there was nothing but the war diaries.

Regan proceeded to give object lessons of the advance on Mons, using an arm chair which he placed before the bench, as the city of Mons. Then taking up positions at various points, he indicated and attempted to exemplify the movements of the advancing troops Col. Orde replied by reading from the war diary of the R.C.R. for Nov. 10th, while Mr. Regan placed a brief case and books on the table to represent a village concerned. I'm afraid I'm being criticized for this," said Mr. Regan. He placed war map on the counsel table and lawyers from both sides followed the progress of the movement as it was read from the war diary.

At 6.33 His Lordship intimated that he would adjourn the court if the jury so desired. They expressed their willingness to sit till 7 p.m.

"It is much easier for a man sitting down to figure these things out than a man on his feet," said Mr. Regan.

"I'm not so sure that it is," said one of the jurors.

The remark caused much laughter in the court and Sheriff Nesbitt had to call repeatedly for order before the case proceeded.

ELEVEN BOILS ON HER ARM AT ONE TIME

Mrs. S. Potuh, Fisher Home, Alta., writes:—"I was troubled with boils and had eleven of them on my arm at one time.

"I tried all kinds of medicine, but got no relief.

"I took two bottles of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS and have never been troubled since."

A splendid entertainment was provided Thursday evening by the Eliot Club to about 60 invited guests. The Entertainment committee, headed by Miss Rhoda Cullen, chairman, with the able assistance of Miss Jean Robinson, Miss Rosa Jay, Miss Mae Hatley, Miss Kathlyn Conway, and Mrs. Iola Cullen, put on a program of fourteen numbers, varied to please all, in fact the club's entertainers are putting such enthusiasm into their parts that they are showing an adeptness and style quite unexpected of amateur performers. After appropriate words of welcome by President Mrs. Frances Marshall all sang "God Save the King," after which the evening's program begun by community singing of that old song, "The More We Get Together." Miss Jean Robinson gave a piano solo, "That Melody of Love," and obliged with an encore, "Underneath the Mellow Moon." Then came a soprano solo by Mrs. Madeline Lundy, "Girl of My Dreams" and encore. The next number was one of the outstanding features of the program, a chorus by Miss Rhoda Cullen, Miss Rosa Jay, Miss Kathlyn Conway, Mrs. Iola Cullen, Miss Mae Hatley in a singing and fancy dance act and at the same time supporting tiny Miss Noreen Rody, who though only four years, danced the Charleston equal to any of her elders. The entire chorus was dressed alike in gingham bloomer suits, with wide sashes and white silk stockings and black pumps, with red bell-boy caps tied with ribbons under the chin, giving altogether an effect that brought instant applause. During this number all lights were switched off and food lights especially provided on the platform played on the chorus girls. The applause from the guests indicated that the girls made a big success of their part. Following this there was another number of community singing "My Wild Irish Rose." Then Miss Rhoda Cullen with Miss Jean Robinson at the piano sang a duet, "Did You Mean It" and an encore being requested sang "Kiss and Make Up." Mr. Jack Marshall, leader of the Jack Marshall Orchesra, with two members of his staff, Mr. Alf. Marshall, saxaphone, and Mr. Jerry Collins, violin, were invited guests and requested that they be permitted to take part in the program and the three furnished a valued share in it, Mr. Jack Marshall playing a piano solo and encore, Mr. Alva Marshall a baritone solo and encore and Mr. Jerry Collins two violin solos. The Gingham Chorus then came on for their second number, a fancy dance and song piece. The guests were so insistent in their applause that the chorus were obliged to play this number a second time. No small part of their success was due to the skill of Miss Jean Robinson at the piano in both of the chorus acts. Then came another community song, followed by a variety of refreshments, at which point dancing was announced, for which Mr. Jack Marshall and his colleagues offered to play. During intermission music was furnished by the club's orthophonic. The evening was voted by every one a huge success.

BANISHING NOISES IN THE EARS

It is surprising to see how many questions come into my office daily from correspondents asking for an explanation of ear noises, and hoping that I can send them information which will bring about relief from this distressing symptom.

Patients suffering from this trouble have sought in vain for help from ear specialists, although whatever help received through treatments has been at best only temporary. This is, of course, because the real cause cannot be removed through any kind of treatment except by changing the habits of living which have been responsible for the disorder.

The immediate irritation which produces the throbbing noise is due to either high blood pressure in the blood vessels of the innter ear, or to an accumulation of catarrhal mucus around the delicate vibratory apparatus which is the instrument for receiving sound waves from the outside of the ear.

In every case which has come under my observation there has been no difficulty in bringing about a complete and permenent cure. This can be effected merely by dietetic treatment which must be applied by the patient to himself.

Whether the derangement is caused by blood pressure, or by mucus pressure, the patient actually has something which is producing sound from the inside of the ear instead of from the outside. It is much the same as if you strike your telephone bell with a hammer instead of only being disturbed when someone wants to talk to you on the phone, and rings you in the usual way.

If the ringing continues in your inner ear, of course you cannot sleep and will consequently become very nervous, but it is folly to continue to allow the "bell" to ring when you can stop the cause within a few days.

In every case a fast from all food for a few days will remove the trouble temporarily, as the blood pressure will be reduced if it is too high, or the catarrh will quickly diminish if the cause lies in an excess of mucus around the tympanic bones.

It is doubtless interesting to have the blood pressure taken before the fast in order to find whether or not high blood pressure exists. If the systolic pressure is not over 140 millimeters, you can be sure that the difficulty is produced from chronic catarrh. In either case the fasting and diet treatment will bring about a rapid change, with quick relief from the annoying throbbing. A fruit fast should be continued for a week or ten days, and the diet to be followed after the fasting must be free from an excess of carbohydrates.

If the trouble is purely catarrhal, all fats and oils must be avoided for a considerable period of time. Milk should not be used at all, and only small amounts of cream and butter. A blood stream which has been full of catarrh for years will need a rest from all forms of carbohydrates and hydro-carbons, and onl after several months of living on this restricted diet can one expect to be able to return to a well balanced diet without experiencing a slow return of the catarrhal tendencies.

The blood must be literally starved of these mucus forming foods for as long as a year or more before the catarrhal inclination will disappear altogether.

One who has a proneness toward high blood pressure or toward catarrh has a serious problem on his hands which cannot be solved by ministrations of any physician, no matter how skilled in his science of treatment. The fault lies only in the patient's dietetic habits, and the cure rests with his power of will in using only the RIGHT FOODS IN THE RIGHT WAY!

Questions and Answers.

Question: L. J. G. writes: "Have gone through much sickness and disease and nothing but your way of dieting has ever helped me, but I still have a tired feeling, no matter how long I sleep. What makes me have a constant craving for sweets?"

Answer: Try taking more of the systematic exercises and see if you cannot build up your strength so that your sleep will do you more good. No matter how much you diet, nothing you can do will take the place of physical exercise, and it is surprising how you can gain in strength through increasing your exercise when it would probably seem to you that more rest is necessary. Your craving for sweets is a craving for stimulants and will be overcome as soon as you regain your normal strength.

Question: High School writes: "I am troubled with hairs on my face, but cannot afford the electric needle as you suggest. I pull the hairs out every day but they keep coming back. I am only eighteen, and am so ashamed of my condition. Can't you help me?"

Answer: The electric needle is the only sure means of killing superfluous hair, but you will be able to somewhat discourage the growth of these hairs if you will use one of the rosin and bee's wax preparations now on the market. This comes in a cake, and the warmed wax is put on the face wherever there is hair. As soon as it cools, the wax plaster is jerked off, bringing the hairs with it, making a much better job of it than you can do with the tweezers. You will need to use this preparation only about once a week to keep down the growth, during which time it will gradually become less.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

A straw hat of the new bonnet shape with the head of an Indian painted in bright colors at the side.

Lo the poor Indian, now appears to provide a picturesque adornment for the side of madame's hat or the front of mademoiselle's jumper. There are metal canoes and saddles and other Indian emblems too that look as if they might be knicknacks bought as mementoes from some Indian reservation—but, of course, they aren't. They are among the very newest ornaments from the very smartest millinery shops and they are tokens when you wear them that you are completely up to date.

High Spanish combs, known as Carmen combs, have been very popular at French resorts recently —not often for conventional dress but for the numerous masques and fancy dress balls which have been so numerous of late—and at which half the women always go as Spanish ladies. Not a very original disguise, certainly, but one providing excellent opportunity to display a gorgeous embroidered shawl. If you are going abroad this summer just make note of the fact that one of these enormous combs, which can be found anywhere in France, is a trinket that almost any woman friend in this country would like as a souvenir.

Coral, turquoise and jade are three stones very much liked in Paris at present, and many women choose these stones in preference to the transparent, glittering stones, such as rubies, emeralds, sapphires or diamonds for daytime wear. A quaint pair of earrings shows a combination of turquoise and coral while jade is frequently used with jet.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 22, 1928.

Benefic aspects dominate today, according to astrology, which reads in the stars fair promise for dwellers on this plane

Early morning is an auspicious time for the clergy who may be sure their appeals for charity or philanthropy will meet with response.

All the signs appear to presage for the churches a period of development and prosperity.

Bigotry and prejudice may be apparent in inter-denominational policies but at the end of the year there will be a decided change.

World events will unite the force for good against those arrayed on the side of evil, the seers prophesy.

Despite all the criticism and misjudgment the rising generation is really in advance of those preceding it, astrologers announce, and it will achieve miracles in the future.

Adherence to old ideas are told by occultists that they are retarding true progress and when they pass on the real meaning of this period of tumult and transition will be discovered.

This is not a day for beginning anything or for paying attention to material things.

Sane recreations, attendance at church and outdoor excursions are all well directed while this configuration prevails.

Farmers may expect a storm of some freak of nature that will cause heavy losses. Floods again are indicated.

Tillers of the soil are to be the next class to focus national attention by their success, if the seers are to be believed, for they will apply big business methods to their work and will make immense fortunes. For food is to be in demand because of a war abroad, it is forecast.

Music continues under the most auspicious rule of the planets and will be within the reach of the poorest, owing to new inventions.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have pleasant journeys in the coming year which will demand attention to business.

Children born on this day probably will be endowed with charm as well as superior intelligence.

FOR MONDAY, APRIL 23, 1928.

Astrologers read this as a fortunate day in which many planetary aspects are helpful to men and women.

Women are especially favored while this configuration lasts and they should push all their public work.

Non-partisan organizations in politics will be prominent through the summer months when women will unite for reforms, the stars indicate.

This should be a lucky wedding day for it seems to presage success in a long partnership that precludes divorce.

The birthdate will increase this year, it is forecast, and boys will out number girls.

The children of this period are to be super products of the race, the stars presage, and they will have extraordinary beauty as well as splendid mentality.

This may not be a lucky day for buying real estate, but for all other lines of business it should be fortunate.

Merchants and manufacturers should profit greatly, for there is indication of increase in foreign commerce.

Special orders of some sort from a foreign land will cause activity in certain lines of manufacture, the seers foretell.

Newspaper writers, especially those interested in economic subjects or war chronicles, will have a year of extraordinary profit, the planets presage.

Serious illness for a woman long before the public is prognosticated.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which they may encounter obstacles, land speculation should be avoided.

Children born on this day may be ambitious and inclined to success at any cost.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HAVE INSTINCTS

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

We have instincts because we are animals. In so far as we live on the animal level we live by our instincts. In so far as we live a life of reason, which is decidedly a human prerogative, we get away from instincts.

This will explain a very important difference as well as a very close likeness between human beings and lower forms of life. Animals and insects live wholly by instincts. Therefore their life is a matter of rigid mechanisms. The bird builds her nest without previous training and builds it as her ancestors have built before her.

The acts of the bees and other insects and animals sometimes appear intelligent but there is no reasoning power back of them because animals do not really think. They do all these wonderful things by instinct. Instinct in the animal is purely a matter of reflex activity. One sort of activity leads to another and that to another until the act is completed.

No one knows how instincts originated. It is supposed that they were picked up somewhere along the line of progress, that the individuals who were best able to meet competition lived to reproduce their kind and thus the more capable ones continued to live on. Instincts are inherited. They are persistent tendencies to activity.

As human beings we have instincts to start us on our career, but we soon learn many new ways of satisfying the instinctive cravings. Nevertheless these instincts, though greatly modified in expression, remain throughout life to urge us to undertake certain types of activity. They furnish the chief motive force. Intelligence and experience merely find new and varied ways of realizing these ex This the animal cannot do.

LYRICS OF LIFE

NO GOOD

These men who don't support their wives—
No good.
The women leading idle lives—
No good.
The man who loafs through life instead.
The woman with an empty head,
The world has seen, and world has said.
"No good."
The man who talks but never works—
No good.
The woman who life's duty shirks—
No good.
The man whose burdens others bear;
The woman with enough to share
Who looks on want and does not care—
No good.

The gentle may not use the term
"No good,"
But, Lord, I want to make them squirm
No good.
For, Lord, they are the losers, too;
Of joys they never sensed or knew;
Who walk the ways of life and do
No good.

Yankees Defeated 3-1 in Their First Game at Home

ATHLETICS WIN FROM YANKEES

Grove Outpitches Pipgrass and Moore For 3-1 Victory.

YANKS AT HOME.

NEW YORK, April 21 Canadian Press. — Robert Moses Grove, the Philadelphia southpaw, who gave the Yankees their only shut out in a championship game in 1927, outpitched George Pipgras and Wiley Moore before 50,000 fans here yesterday as the Athletics nosed out the world champions 2 to 1 in the opening game of the American League season in New York. Grove gave the Yanks only five hits, held Ruth and Gehrig to one single between them, and struck out eight, mostly on called third strikes.

Hitless for Five Innings.

Pipgras held the Athletics hitless for five innings, b the veterans Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker then began turning the tide in Philadelphia's favor. Singles by Bishop, Cobb and Speaker gave the Mackmen one run in the seventh, but the Yankees tied the score in the seventh, when Dugan scored on a sacrifice fly by Paschal, pinch batsman for Piggras.

With Moore in the box, Cobb opened the ninth with a high fly which Coombs lost in the sun for a three-base hit. Ty came home on Speaker's sacrifice fly to Coombs.

Chicago routed the Indians 11 to 1 at Cleveland yesterday after losing the first two games of the opening series here. Al. Thomas held the Indians scoreless until the ninth inning, when three singles and a walk averted a shut out.

The White Sox pounded Miller, Bayne and Collard for twelve hits and made most of them count for runs. Despite the setback, Cleveland retained the American League leadership as both Washington and New York lost.

Home runs by Easterling and McManus in the second inning enabled the Detroit Tigers to win at St. Louis 3 to 0. Easterling's homer was his third in three days. Whitehill allowed only four hits and Ogden five. The Browns tried a new batting order. It was their fifth straight defeat after four victories at the opening of the season.

The Senators had one big inning at Washington yesterday but it was not enough to defeat Boston, the Red Sox taking the series opener 6 to 5. The Senators pounced on Danny MacFayden in the fourth inning for four runs, one of them being Goose Goslin's third homer, with Judge on the paths. The Sox put over three runs in the fifth to tie the count when Gaston weakened and handed out hits and passes.

MITCHELL AGAIN WINS GOLF TITLE

Plays Stiff Game of Golf to Win Roehampton Tournament.

LONDON, April 21.—(A.P.)—Playing the final round of the Roehampton golf tournament in sensational 66's for the first 18 holes, Abe Mitchell won the title for the third year in succession.

It was the most amazing round of brilliant golf British devotees of the Royal and ancient sport have witnessed in many years. After the regulation rounds, Mitchell and Robson were all square in holes as well as medal score. One round of 66 would have left the majority of the gallery gasping, two practically reduced it to a state of coma.

At the extra hole fours seemed certain and as everyone was ready to troop to the 20th, Robson's four foot putt strayed away from the cup and Mitchell's four was enough to win the match and the tournament.

The long driving Abe was never in the lead and encountered the unfamiliar experience of playing his second shots before his opponent at most of the holes. Long putts were dropping for both finalists, and at the 16th where Mitchell had a chance to square the match, Robson sank a forty footer for a half in threes.

Robson ran into disaster at the 18th, holding a lead of one up and needing only a half to win, his drive landed a few inches from a tree. The shot he had to use to get away from the obstruction cost him the hole, and a few minutes later the match.

Mitchell, regarded as the best of the British professionals who has never won the open, may enter the United States' open this year. His performance in the approaching British championships will be closely watched. He recently declined a proposal from Walter Hagen that they team up for a tour of the United States.

TUNNEY LOSES HIS INCENTIVE

Heeney's Manager Predicts Victory For New Zealand Boxer.

TELLS OF NEGOTIATIONS.

NEW YORK, April 21.—Money has blunted Gene Tunney's fighting spirit.

Idleness has taken the edge from his skill.

And the combination of both will cause him to fall an easy victim to Tom Heeney, the British contender, when they meet at the Yankee Stadium in July.

Charlie Harvey, the bristling little man who manages Heeney, opened the conversational part of the 1928 championship campaign with these assertions yesterday. Manager-like, he doesn't fear Tunney at all.

"I have seen Tunney in almost all of his fights," he began. "I have watched him grow from an amateur to a champion. I feel I know him as well as many man in the boxing game.

"Knowing him as I do, I believe that my Tom has at least an even chance of defeating him in the coming fight.

Tunney Missed Punches.

"Tunney cannot see himself as others see him. I was there when he defeated Jack Dempsey at Chicago, and I know how far he missed punches. I know he was not the dead shot that he used to be, and I know he will be still worse this year.

"Tunney is what I would call a made fighter. The natural fighters like Jack Dempsey, fight for the love of fighting. Dempsey fought on after he became rich, because he really likes to fight. It was born in him.

"Tunney is different. He fought to get on top. He achieved his ambition and the boxing game has nothing more to offer as an incentive. He has money now, and it has affected him as it did Jack Sharkey. Commissioner Muldoon diagnosed Sharkey's case very clearly when he said that necessity had made Sharkey a great fighter, and that affluence had caused a reaction that might have been expected.

Odds Against Challenger

"The odds will be against Heeney but that is to be expected. They always were in all of his American fights. They were 3 to 1 against him when he fought Paulino, and he was also the short ender in his fights with Jack Delaney and Jack Sharkey. The odds means nothing. Evidently the gamblers have forgotten what happened to them when they made Dempsey at 3 to 1 favorite over Tunney at Philadelphia.

"I believe the fight will be held right here in New York, and I believe it will draw $1,500,000. A heavyweight championship has attained the same place as a world's series in the affections of the sporting public. It has become a set event. It will draw, not matter who is in there, just as the world's series will draw no matter what teams play."

Harvey made an interesting explanation of his now famous 'sneak' trip to Miami. Jess McMahon was trying to force him to match Heeney with Johnny Risko and Charlie disappeared right when the negotiations were at their height.

Harvey Wins Argument.

"Certain people were trying to force me to take that match", said Harvey. "Tom had beaten Risko once. What would another match prove? That he could whip him again?

"I knew they were working on Rickard every day by long distance, I decided to go them one better. I went to Miami in person.

"It took me a week, but I won my argument in the end. I convinced him that Heeney was the logical challenger.

"I really am getting 12½ per cent and I have given Rickard an excessive contract to his services until October. As for giving Tunney the first title chance if he wins, that would be up to Rickard. I would have nothing to do with that."

The manager revealed that he had handled the entire deal without consulting Heeney. The fighter knew nothing about it until he read it in the European newspapers.

Heeney Wants Details.

When Charlie returned last night, he found a cablegram from Heeney awaiting him. The big fellow asked him to cable some of the details.

"I'm cabling him to leave for America this week", said Harvey. "I want to have him on the ground as soon as possible. I understand Tunney will train at Speculator, and Heeney will be the only man available for the public. Tunney will be too far away. I will probably train Heeney at Atlantic City."

Harvey admitted Risko had offered to fight Tunney for 10 per cent.

"That's what I heard", he said. "However, I refused to lower my price. I was not bidding against Risko."

VIEWS ON SPORT

APPOINTED MANAGER

J. Hemphill is appointed new manager of Deloro. Although this team is a new entry in the C.O.B.A., a lively battle will be put up by them for the league honors.

The Canadian General ladies softball league should help to create more interest in the girls' diamond game by their inter-shop play this season. It is only a few seasons since the girls from the Electric plant and the Colonial Weaving played such spectacular games in the city league, and invariably the games had large crowds looking on. The fans still retain the interest shown in this brand of the popular game, but where is the city league? If Lindsay can boast of having a girls' league, even though if may consist of only about three teams, surely Peterborough can do its share towards boosting the game. A league composed of teams from Canadian General, Bell Telephone, Canadian Woollens and the Colonial Weaving would be a great help towards aiding this popular brand of sportdom. Sportsmen, take notice.

* * * * *

A meeting of the executive of the Deloro Amateur Athletic Association was held in Deloro Hall on Wednesday evening, for the appointing of sub-committees and outlining of the year's activities. John Hemphill presided. R. A. Elliott reported on the recent C.O.B.L. meeting, after which the baseball committee was appointed, to consist of J. Hemphill, manager; R. A. Elliott, L. K. Crawford, and V. Jack. It was decided to continue the subscription list at the plant, and improvements to the diamond were decided upon.

Tennis was the next sport considered. E. W Bennett, manager, selected F Groves to form that sub-committee. The appointment of bowling committee was laid over by J. Judge.

R. D. Murray, as manager of the playground committee, appointed Miss S. Scott and Messrs. S. B. Cheeseman and W. Simmons to serve.

Miss Scott, who is manager of the Sunnyside Girls Club, mentioned that its seventeen members would take turns in looking after the younger ones at their play. K. Buchman, rink manager, mentioned that he was not yet ready to appoint his committee. After minor points of discussion, the meeting adjourned.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By a Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, at last we got the hockey season over, and most folks seem kinda happy to see the old Stanley mug summer in New York. That don't mean nothing, seeing the boys what win it will spend their summer home here in Canada, but anyway the customers seem to think it serves the Maroons right for not letting Rangers put in a borrowed goalie when Mister Chabot stopped a heave with his lamp. Personally, I think Mister Dunk Munro and his pals pulled a boner there, but, on the other hand, I could never see why them pro hockey teams tried to get by with only 1 goalie. Any big league ball team what had only 1 catcher would be considered crazy, and a hockey team with only 1 bird able to play goal is certainly taking plenty chances. They'd better loosen up and get a sub goaler on all them pro teams or they may be more trouble later on.

Getting nearer home, Mac, the old Central Ont. League with Deloro added oughta to be a smart loop. Them Smelters have been no easy pickings for nobody's team, topping the intermediate Ont. title 2 years ago and just getting nosed out last year, and they'll make plenty trouble for everybody. Down in that hole in the ground where they play their home games it ain't the easiest thing in the world for visiting teams to come through, and both there and on the road Mister Elliott's boys won't be no custard pie and whipped cream for the rest of the league.

Looking round the circuit, the Oshawa General Motors seem to top the field so far as new material goes They slipped a whole quota of ball players in there last Christmas, and if they all live up to advance notices, the Motor Town oughta to put out a clever squad. They probably is a few winter blooms in the bunch, but out of the lot they oughta to be a few smart performers which, added to last year's Motors team, will mix into a mean combination. From Kingston comes a few yelps of distress from Mister Joe Daly, and the story is that Mister Batstone is going back to Toronto and Mister Britton up to Cobalt, and that leaves the Ponies with a infield full of holes. On top of that, Mister Daly is stuck for pitching talent, and even Mister Reid, the old Circle 6 heaver, is pulling out. It looks like the Toronto Star'll hafta send a rescue plane to pull Mister Daly outa the hole.

They ain't saying much down in Belleville, but mosta the old Grand Trunks is still there, and a bird by the name of Mister Utronke from down Renfrew way has taken a strange fancy that he'd like to live in the Quinte town, and luckily for Mister Gerow, this guy happens to be a pitcher. So the opening day is likely to hear the announcement: "Batteries for Belleville, Utronke and Mills." But Belleville won't be the same no more. Mister Slats Kerr, the king of rooters, what used to be worth 3, 4 runs a game to Mister Gerow's men, has been transferred to Montreal. Mister Kerr was a goat-getter what said plenty about visiting players, and said it in a mild whisper that the natives up back of Stirling could get with loud speaker volume. I ain't betraying no secrets when I tell you that 2, 3 remarks from Mister Kerr used to have the Petes talking to themselves. The only time Mister Kerr was silenced in a ball game was the day Mister Shiner Johnston hit a home run. No, stranger, they ain't no mistake there—I repeat, the day Mister Shiner Johnston hit a home run. Mister Kerr took 1 look at the ball sailing into the Ford line in deep left field, stiffened in his seat, and was heard to speak no more that day. But it was a even brake cause Mister Johnston was so winded running 4 bases in 1 non-stop flight that he couldn't say nothing neither for the resta the game. The boys'll miss Mister Kerr—when it comes to broadcasting that bird could take on both the Blue and Red network in 1 day and get a decision over both.

Well, Mac, that's plenty stewed apple for 1 dose, so airily waving my hand to you and the customers I'll just take to the parachute here.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

BEARS DEFEAT TORONTO LEAFS

Canadian Club Loses Out in a Free Hitting Contest, 9-5.

GAME POSTPONED.

NEWARK, N.J., April 21 (Canadian Press).—The Bears defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs here yesterday in a free hitting game, 15 to 9. The Bruins scored all of their runs in the third and eighth innings. In the early part of the game, they fell on Prudhomme and Songer for nine hits and as many runs.

In the eighth, after the Leafs had tied up the fray, the Bruins got busy and drove home six runs.

Four homers were recorded, three by Toronto and one by the Bears. The greatest drive was made by Alexander. In the seventh he drove the ball over the left centre field fence. It was the first time in the history of the park that the ball has been knocked over it.

Baltimore Orioles scored a 9 to 0 victory yesterday over Buffalo for the third straight win in the series with the Bisons since the season opened. Tight pitching by Bolen, once a Bison hurler, and vigorous hitting by the Orioles accounted for the result. Not only did Bolen hold Buffalo to six hits while fanning an equal number, but he poled out two home runs, the first coming in the fifth with two on base.

Brower also added a homer to the growing list the Orioles have piled up in their three days' play.

PHILLIES LOSE TO THE ROBINS

CARDS WIN 6-2.

NEW YORK, April 21. — Canadian Press. — The Brooklyn Robins had two big innings at Philadelphia yesterday and defeated the Phillies, 3 to 6 evening the series. Five pitchers were used by the Phillies. The Robins scored four runs in the third, and three more in the fifth.

Philadelphia rallied in the eighth, and McWeeny was replaced by Erhardt, who fanned Cy Williams for the final out.

The St. Louis Cardinals made it two straight in the series at Pittsburgh, winning 6 to 2 after the Red Birds drove Grimes from the box in the 7th and scored five runs. The Buccaneers have lost all four games played with St. Louis this season.

In the seventh, with the score tied and one out, the Cardinals made seven consecutive base hits, six of them off Grimes before he gave way to Brame.

Haines was touched for 11 hits by the champions but kept them well scattered.

Grantham, Pirate first sacker, hit his second homer in consecutive days and Holm had a perfect day at bat for the Cardinals with five hats.

Rixey pitched a four hit game to bring the Cincinnati Reds a six to nothing victory over the Cubs at Chicago. His pitching was so good that the Bears seldom threatened to score. The Reds hit Charley Root and Johnny Welch for 12 safeties, including four doubles.

It was ladies' day and a crowd of 15,000 attended, notwithstanding the frigid atmosphere. The Cubs' heavy artillery, which collected 21 hits on Thursday was silenced completely.

BUNION DERBY.

MILLER, Mo., April 21.—(A. P.)—An old fashioned egging at Carthage, Mo., yesterday relieved the monotony of the daily grind of the cross-country Marathon en route from Los Angeles to New York, but the bombardment was not directed at the weary contestants.

The antique-egg hurling was reserved for caravan officials, the pilot car being the object of the barrage, which was interpreted as a protest against passing up Carthage Thursday night to make Joplin, Mo., a night control.

It was reported at Carthage that some of the populace was indignant because Joplin outbid their town for the honor of bedding down the feet-blistered trekkers.

John Gober, Moberly, Mo., who blazed the way into his native state Thursday, finished first again yesterday, completing the 46.7 mile stretch in 6:55:43 for an elapsed time of 452:43:44 that brought him well up in the standings.

Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., race leader, held on to his lead, although he dropped more than an hour in elapsed time to Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, runner-up, yesterday. Payne finished fourth in a tie with Roy McMurtry of Newhall, Cal., and Olli Wanttinen, of New York, in 8:11:26, bringing his elapsed time to 302:27:44.

Gavuzzi was second into the control in 7:06:04 for an elapsed time of 303:03:44. The grizzled Britisher vigorously protested to race officials against what he termed unsportsmanlike acts of motorists whom he charged threw him off stride several times.

Mike Joyce, of Cleveland was third in 7:49:47, elapsed time of 347:29:09. McMurtry's elapsed time was 402:42:07 and Wanttinen's 349:46:33. Louis Perrella, Albany, N.Y., finished fifth in 8:12:16, elapsed time 349:36:16.

SEVEN OF FAMILY BURNED TO DEATH

Blaze of Unknown Origin Destroys House On Farm in Kansas.

ELDORADO, Kansas, April 21 (Canadian Press).—Seven members of William F. Overst's family were burned to death at their farm home near here last night. The blaze, of unknown origin, occurred early in the evening, but the bodies were not discovered until midnight, as neighbors at first believed the family was away from home. Owen, 17, was the only member of the family who escaped. He was visiting in a nearby town.

history, such regiments as the Guards, the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders, the Black Watch, the Irish Fusiliers—regiments which had fought Britain's battles for hundreds of years. Each one had its own glorious history and tradition, and each man was impressed with his personal responsibility in upholding those traditions. This they ably did at the memorable retreat from Mons. But the units which composed the 1st Canadian Division had no history or traditions behind them. The regiments bore no honored names, they were simply numbered: the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Battalions of the 1st Brigade; the 5th, 7th, 8th, and 10th of the 2nd Brigade; the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th Battalions of the 3rd Brigade—they were Canadians, that was all.

In order to understand the importance of the Canadian stand at Ypres we must go back to August, 1914, when Germany set in motion her vast military machine over the borders of France and Belgiume with the expectations of destroying th military forces of France in a short campaign, the same as was done in 1870.

The tide rolled on with irresistible force to the very walls of Paris, where it was stopped, and rolled back by the French and Brities armies at the Battle of the Marne. Germany was forced in her objective, her armies dug in and consolidated a line 300 miles in length from the North Sea to the border of Switzerland. Russia was threatening the German eastern frontier and the general staff had to withdraw forces from the west to meet that menace. This they did successfully in the winter of 1914–1915—and in the spring, 1915, she turned again to the western front to complete that which she had failed to do in 1914.

The German staff had two objectives: firstly, the capture of Paris, by which she expected to destroy the morale of the French nation and break her military forces; secondly, the capture of the ports along the English Channel. By accomplishing this she cut the lines of communication between Britain and France and severed their forces. The ports could be used as bases from which her planes would bomb the British Isles, particularly her cities and the coast along the English Channel, in which were situated the principal British military camps. More serious still, from these ports would go out her submarines to sink shipping entering and leaving British ports, and perhaps eventually starve Britain into submission.

The effect the capture of these ports the Germans had to break a gateway at least four miles wide directly east of Ypres. Once this was done, they had control of the good roads leading through Ypres directly to the channel ports on which they could move their war materials and establish lines of communication.

Behind this front the Germans massed at least five divisions of picked troops, supported by an immense concentration of artillery, and also by a new and terrible weapon of warfare—used for the first time in warfare—poison gas. By the use of the latter they hoped to break the gate through which their infantry could pass to an easy victory.

On the morning of April 22nd, three miles of this fateful gateway was held by the 2nd and 3rd Brigades of the 1st Canadian Division with the 1st Brigade in support. The other mile was held by the Turcos, French Colonials, but not endowed with that bulldog tenacity of purpose which is a characteristic of British troops.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the attack was launched. First, clouds of yellow gas driven by the wind rolled over the ground and flowed into the trenches occupied by the allies. The full force struck the Turcos. They were taken completely by surprise, they breathed the gas, they strangled, a panic ensued, they broke and fled down the road to Ypres and one mile of the gateway was opened to the Germans. Following the gas an intense hurricane of shellfire struck the poorly constructed Canadian trenches, then the German infantry advanced to the assault.

Blinded and strangled by the gas, shaken by shellfire and outnumbered five to one the Canadians never wavered. They held their ground. The 3rd Brigade, without a flank, was forced to extend its line to the left to fill the gap. The 1st Brigade came up to the support of their stricken comrades. They went through their line and one after another the battalion counter-attacked. Several battalion commanders lost their lives in leading their men to the assault. The line was bent back to conform with the new alignment on the left, but the line never broke.

It is needless to go into more details of this historic struggle, suffice it to say that when the Imperial troops came up to the relief they found the gallant survivors of the 1st Canadian Division firmly holding the gateway to the channel ports.

The conduct of the 1st Division had established a tradition for Canadian troops. Henceforth, when their other units came to France, that was the standard held up to them to uphold and maintain.

The history of the Canadian corps' activities during the four years is a record of outstanding achievement. The 1st Division was joined by the 2nd, then the 3rd, and finally the 4th Canadian corps was formed—an army of over 100,000 men. It was commanded first by Lord Byng, and in 1917 came under Canadian leadership when Sir Arthur Currie assumed command. Under these two distinguished generals it attained a high reputation for discipline, steadiness and fighting ability. The staffs were almost entirely Canadian and their efficiency, particularly in the preparation for major attacks, had a great deal to do with the clean-cut and decisive victories which followed.

It is, I think, the general opinion of Canadian soldiers that every thing possible was done at all times to minimize loss of life by perfect arrangements before attacks, and particularly by the staff making sure that all wire and obstacles were removed by artillery fire before the infantry advanced to the assault. On more than one occasion attacks were postpored when it was found by aerial photography that there was uncut wire or other field works which could be dislodged.

It is a matter of great regret that attempts should be made to destroy the reputation of an outstanding soldier who won that reputation fairly and honorably on the battlefields of France.

Gentlemen, war is a terrible game. It is the most stupid and senseless manner in which nations can settle disputes. It is a reflection on civilization.

But there came a moment when the principles dearest to the British—freedom, liberty, justice and equality—were menaced and there is something in the Anglo-Saxon which will not tolerate interference with his rights, even at the cost of life itself.

Canada can be proud of this: that when that moment came, she stood shoulder to shoulder with our Motherland to the full extent of her resources, and when Canadian soldiers did take their place in the armies of Britain they established a tradition which will be a priceless heritage for generations of Canadians still unborn. They maintained and upheld at all times and under all circumstances the highest and most exalted traditions of the British army.

FOURTH PETERBOROUGH TROOP

The meeting of the Fourth Peterborough Troop opened on Thursday with flag break and inspection, followed by a talk on fire lighting. Mr. Corbett told some very useful things about fire lighting and concluded with a demonstration of a fire bow set and how it works. A game of wooden Indian was played before the patrols went to their corners for the instruction period. The duty patrol then arranged the council fire.

The council fire opened with the singing of "O Canada." Then came the feature presentation of the evening the play put on by the Owl patrol. The title of the play was "Waiter Custard Quick," and, judging by the faces of the players, the custard came too quick to suit them. The play was a real success, although some of the players got stage fright. Another song was then sung. Mr. Corbett read some short stories from The Scout Leader. The meeting closed with the singing of God Save the King, the lowering of the flag, and 30 seconds Scout silence. Harold Stuart passed a second-class test. The Troop has started a savings bank to save money for camp. At the court of honor some very important business was carried on. The Troop is going to have a big surprise on May 19.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

CLARA BOW, THE "IT" GIRL WILL BE AT THE CAPITOL ON MONDAY AND TUESDAY IN "RED HAIR". "OMAR" THE MAN OF MYSTERY WILL BE AN EXTRA ATTRACTION. REMEMBER TWO DAYS ONLY, MATINEES AND EVENINGS.

On Monday and Tuesday, the Capitol offers, in addition to their regular picture program, which is headed by Clara Bow in "Red Hair", "OMAR" the Man of Mystery. Ask him any question, love, business, wealth, lost article and etc. and he will answer them, without ever seeing your questions.

Practically the same combination that gave the motion picture world "It" was brought together again to make the new romantic-comedy "Red Hair", with Clara Bow as the star.

"Red Hair", taken from the book by Elnior Glyn, also the author of "It." The adaptation of the story for the screen was made by Percy Heath and Lloyd Corrigan, the latter being responsible for the script of "It", and the continuity is credited to Agnes Leahy.

Clarence Badger, who directed "It" and who is known as one of Paramount's ace directors, was behind the camera while "Red Hair" was being filmed.

Included in the supporting cast are William Austin, remembered for his portrayal of the Englishman in "It", Jacquelin Gadson, likewise a member of the former production's cast, Lawrence Grant and Claude King.

AT THE REGENT.

"SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS."

When a novel read by virtually everyone is produced as screen entertainment, the film producer feels the weight of his responsibility to the followers of the novelist.

Probably no novel of modern times has been so widely read as Harold Bell Wright's "The Shepherd of the Hills," which was not only a "best-seller" for over a year after its publication, but a consistently popular book ever since. For that reason, the bringing forth of its screen version is a real responsibility.

Charles R .Rogers, who produced the story in an elaborate film version for First National Pictures, to be presented at the Regent Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, felt this responsibility so keenly that he spent months in careful preparation before a scene of the film was shot. Albert Rogell, who was not only a notable film director but one enthused over the possibilities of the novel as screen material, was selected to direct, as the very first step.

Then an all-star cast was selected with great care. Acting ability plus fitness to the character type required were the two qualifications that won each player who appears in his role. Then location, as many as possible being on the actual story locale, were mapped out. Meanwhile, the adaptation of the novel was being written by Marion Jackson.

"Probably the most important single item in producing a satisfactory screen version of a famous novel is the selection of actors to portray the story characters," Mr. Rogers observes. "We devoted great pains to the cast selection, and believe that it will meet with the approval of all readers of the novel."

After an intensive canvass of the entire film industry, Alec B. Francis was selected to play the title the approval of all readers of the role in "The Shepherd of the Hills;" 'Molly O'Day and John Boles were chosen to carry the romanttic burden; Matthew Betz to play the villain role, and Romaine Fielding to enact the part of the Ozark patriarch, "Old Matt."

Other notable figures in the cast are Otis Harlan, Joseph Bennett, Maurice Murphy, Carl Stockdale, Marion Douglas, and John Westwood. Beautiful photography that enhances the entertainment quality of the whole production was contributed by Sol Polito and his staff of cinematographers. Part of the picture was filmed in the Ozarks and in Utah.

W.C.T.U. WORK IS DISCUSSED

The Y.W.C.T.U. met at the home of Mrs. Micks, April 17th. After the devotional exercises and regular business, Miss Stephens, the president, led in rotation questions and answers regarding the W.C.T.U. work. Miss Alton told of workers in the lumber camps thirty years ago. Miss Throop described the work of Miss Wiggins and Mr. Beal in the schools in early times. Miss Stephens pointed out how since the formation of the budget fund in 1921, the W.C.T.U. workers are paid to go farther afield. Miss Edna Stephens told of the travellers' aid. Mrs. Micks told of Miss Duff's work in churches and schools. Miss Bamforth described the work of Mrs. George, field secretary, and told how some school inspectors had assisted her. Miss Stephens told about the work being done among foreigners.

Mrs. Edwards gave a most inspiring and interesting talk on the name, stressing 'C' for 'Christian' and 'T' for 'Temperance.' In a very beautiful way, Mrs. Edwards referred to Jesus' commandment, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and thy neigehbor as thyself." Mrs. Edwards felt that the W.C.T.U. has accomplished a great work through prayer.

Temperance refers to controlling oneself in every way. The speaker emphasized the fact that from twelve to fourteen was the danger age for girls and boys. They have ambitions and desires to be in the doings of the world, but lack the judgment derived from experience.

Women control homes, pleasures health of a city and of a nation. It is expected of mankind that women keep a high standard. The speaker told how much harder it is for a girl to regain a lost standard, for more is expected of her. Mrs. Edwards read the pledge asked of Y.W.C.T.U. girls—not to use liquor, not to attend public dances, not to motor with strange men, not to accept presents from strangers, to attend church at least once a week.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Throop, 362 Burnham street, May 15th.

FIRE CAUSES HOT WORDS

Following the blaze that destroyed Maison Grosso, Menton, France, has a war or words over the effectiveness of its fire department. The mayor's confession that the water supply is inadequate brought forth warm replies. One critic says that a municipality which cannot control so vital a public service as its water supply should "go to the most remote part of France and bury its head—or heads" if not to a "region more tropical." The hose is said to have "10 leaks per meter", while the fire department band is declared to look well at festivals and should play Handel's "Water Music" or "Keep the Home Fires Burning" at conflagrations. Another suggestion is that the municipality prohibit all conflagrations, under penalty of a heavy fine, or, best of all, see a film showing "what an American fire-brigade can do."

What CAN a Man Believe?

By BRUCE BARTON

Author of "The Book Nobody Knows," "The Man Nobody Knows"

XXX—Mohammed's Death

HIS tastes were very human. He greatly disliked yellow or decayed teeth and made the use of the tooth-pick almost an article of his religion. He could not endure rank odors; even onion or garlic was offensive to him.

His love for his little girl wife, Ayesha, whom he took at seven and married at ten and who was till death his favorite, becoming an important factor in Moslem politics after his death, shows him at his best. She could do almost anything with him, but she never replaced his loyal memory of Khadidjah.

"Do you not love me more than you loved Khadidjah," she asked him once, "for she was old and unattractive and I am young and beautiful?"

The question was a mistake. He answered with mighty emphasis: "Nay, by Allah! For she it was who first believed in me!"

The prophet was very fond of children, and often stopped to pat their cheeks as he met them on the street. One of his boys died on his breast in the smoky house of his nurse, the blacksmith's wife.

He never cursed. His worst malediction was: "May his forehead be darkened with mud!" When asked to curse some one, he replied: "I have not been sent to curse, but to be a mercy to mankind."

Once, while he was engaged in a religious conversation with an influential citizen of Mecca, a blind man drew near and asked him the way of light and peace. Mohammed turned away. He never ceased to regret this act. The surah in the Koran which tells of this incident is called "He frowned" (Syed, 118). He reproached himself that he should have continued his conversation with the rich when he might have blessed the poor.

Slept Little

He slept little, being in this respect like Napoleon, but his extra waking hours were spent in meditation and worship, for which the pressure of the day left him little time. Yet his devotions were regular, and he never sat down to a meal without a blessing or rose without thanksgiving. Stern as a warrior, and pushing his victories till they became massacres, there are yet attributed to him countless deeds of mercy.

He was proud of the fact that when he clasped a hand he was never the first to withdraw his palm. He visited often with the sick and whenever he met a funeral procession he turned and followed it to the grave.

In 631 he issued his famous command that after four years the Moslems would be absolved from every league and covenant with idolators. That was the warning of unrestricted warfare in the interests of the spread of Islam, and it marked the beginning of the great conquests. But in that same year he had an incurable sorrow. His little son Ibrahim died.

He had no male descendant through whom to transmit the scepter of his power. It was the beginning of the end. His warfare had undermined his iron constitution; he was prematurely old, saddened and tired.

Fought to Last

From his sick bed he sent out a campaign against the Roman border, and as the troops were departing lifted himself and was taken to the mosque, from whose pulpit he addressed his followers, counseling them to fight bravely and give alms to the poor. Having spoken, he laid his head in the lap of Ayesha and waited for death. He asked for a pitcher of water and, when he had wetted his face, he prayed:

"O Lord, I beseech thee to assist me in the agonies of death." Thrice he prayed, and then at intervals said in a whisper: "Eternity of Paradise! Pardon! Yes, the blessed companionship on high."

Gently he stretched himself and relaxed. His head grew heavy on the breast of Ayesha. The prophet of Arabia was dead. But from ten thousand minarets that stretch from the Atlantic shore across Africa and across Arabia to the Gulf, his name is recited five times a day, joined to that of Almighty God:

"There is but one God, and Mohammed is his prophet."

A valued ingredient of the After-Theatre Supper dish

The popular hostess, who is renowned for her after-theatre supper parties, knows a secret about seasoning.

She uses English Mustard, not only to give her dishes zest, but also to bring out hidden flavours and enhance their aroma.

For chafing dish specialities, Welsh Rarebits, Souffles and many other delicacies, English Mustard is indispensable. Its appetizing tang heightens taste and savour and it has been known and used by famous chefs for generations.

Delight your friends and win their admiration by serving them dishes in which English Mustard plays a part. Mustard is healthful because it aids digestion. Have it always at hand in your kitchen.

Welsh Rarebit

1 tablespoon butter; 1 tablespoon flour; ½ cup milk; ½ teaspoon salt; few grains pepper; 1 teaspoon Keen's Mustard, ½ to 1 lb. cheese; 6 slices buttered toast. Heat the milk over hot water. Blend together the butter, flour and seasonings, drop them into the hot milk and cook, stirring constantly until thick. Add the cheese. Beat until melted and serve very hot on toast.

Mine Trading Dull Price Changes Small

TORONTO, April 21 (Canadian Press).—With all the other exhanges closed this morning, trading on the Standard Mine Exchange was erratic and dull Gains and losses were about equal and the price range narrow. Dome was down 65 at $9, Hollonger was firm, and Kirkland Lake was steady around 189.

Wheat Prices Fall Because Of Rains

CHICAGO, April 21 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices averaged lower early to-day as a result of rains in the Southwest and West, with heavy snow in Western Nebraska. Besides, additional moisture was predicted, especially for Kansas. Opening unchanged to one cent off, wheat later showed losses all around, but made frequent rallies

WEDDING BELLS

GREENE—DOWNS.

The Church of the Annunciation, Broad street, Akron Ohio, was the scene of a very beautiful spring wedding at nine o'clock Wednesday morning, April 18, when Miss Della Mae Downs, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Downs, Hastings, Ont., Canada, became the bride of Clayton Edward Greene, of Cleveland, Ohio. Rev. Father O'Keefe performed the ceremony at a nuptial high mass.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march. The bride, leaning on the arm of her father, Mr. Harold A. J. Downs, looked charming in a Paris gown of white romance georgette over satin, with trimmings of brilliants, Her veil was of embroidered white tulle caught with a wreath of rose buds. She carried a beautiful shower bouquet of white roses, orchids and lily of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Etta Marie Downs, looked very pretty in rose crepe de chene, with large picture hat to match, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and orchids, while Miss Loretta Downs as maid of honor, was most attractive in pale pink georgette with corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Little Misses Virginia Simons and Frances Burke, acting as flower girls, were very sweet in white and pink silk frocks, carrying baskets of sweet peas.

During the wedding ceremony Gounod's "Ave Maria," was touchingly rendered on the violin, while a tenor solo, Gounod's "Benedictus" was most impressive.

After the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. J. Downs,where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served to about sixty guests.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold cross set with diamonds; to the bridesmaids pearl necklaces, to the best man a wrist watch, and to the flower girls, gold bracelets.

The young couple were the recipients of many and beautiful gifts.

In the evening the bridal party and friends motored to Cleveland where the young couple were showered with confetti, and good wishes as they boarded the "Big Four" for an extended honeymoon trip to Columbus, Springfield, Cincinnati and and points south. The bride's going away outfit was a smart suit of sand serge with white ermine neckpiece and white velour hat.

The bride is well known in Peterborough where she made many friends during some time spent there ,when she was a member of the staff of the Peterborough Review and was connected with the social and dramatic column of that of that publication.

THERE'S A THRILL IN EVERY MILE THROUGH THE ROCKIES AND ALONG THE PACIFIC COAST

For an ideal holiday, the Canadian National Tour to the Pacific Coast and up to Alaska, offers a world of beauty and pleasure that adds new zest to life.

In the midst of rugged peaks and wooded valleys, Jasper National Park is just the place to break the westward journey. Jasper Park Lodge, an ultra-modern hotel, is the centre of social gayety that outrivals all the gayness of fashionable cities.

From Jasper Park the tour takes you to the most attractive cities on the Pacific Coast—Vancouver and Victoria. Here you can enjoy the pleasures of ocean bathing, and all the summer activities of modern cities.

Now you leave the cities behind for a thousand mile cruise along the famous Inside Passage to Skagway. Comfortable, modern steamers carry you along past scenes that thrill and startle with their beauty and grandeur. White capped mountain ranges —a thousand shades of green in the valleys—sparkling waterfalls and deep blue seas bring an ever changing picture to the traveller.

Jasper Park—Vancouver-Victoria—along the Pacific Coast to Skagway —can all be visited in one complete tour. Ask any Canadian National Railways Agent for full information and illustrated literature, he will help you to plan your itinerary. 2d-10-21

OBITUARY

A. A. SMEATON

On Friday, April 21, there passed away at 191 Rubidge street, a resident of Peterborough for the past forty years, in the person of A. A. Smeaton, well-known member of the congregation of All Saints Church.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, 191 Rubidge street, to Little Lake Cemetery, on Monday, April 23, the Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints' Church conducing the service at 2.00 p.m.

MRS. JOHNSON.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Johnson, daughter of former residents of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McNeely, now of 967 Clarence avenue Toronto, took place to Little Lake cemetery to-day, following the arrival of the C.N.R. noon train, the Rev. Mr. Harton of the Park Street church officiating.

JAMES BROWN.

The funeral of the late James Brown took place last Saturday from the family residence, 218 Perry St., to the Little Lake cemetery.

The Rev. William McDonald, Knox church, conducted a service at the house and again at the grave, making fitting reference to the war service of the deceased.

Many friends accompanied the cortege including fellow workmen from the Canadian General Electric and officers and members of the Sons of Scotland and Caledonian Club.

A Scottish funeral service was read in which over one hundred took part, after which Piper S Thompson played the Lament.

The pall bearers were: a brother, W. Brown, and a brother-in-law, W. Donaldson, two ex-service men, V. Stewart and E. Hardy, and two Scots, R. Veitch and T. Hendry.

Many beautiful floral wreaths were in evidence testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Around the City

At 4.38 p.m., on Friday, the fire brigade made a run to the corner of Antrim and Aylmer streets, when a grass fire was getting well under way. It was extinguished in short order.

HUMANE SOCIETY PLANS PROGRAM

Junior Directors Instructed To Draw Up Plans For Summer.

The Junior Humane Society held its weekly meeting in St. John's Parish Hall.

The opening song was "The Marching Song."

One member reported notifying the inspector about an ailing cat. The matter was attended to.

It was suggested that a program of work for the season be drawn up by the board of directors.

Miss Lilly Bull rendered in her usual pleasing style the song "Gladly Lend a Hand" sung to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne."

The roll was called and showed an attendance of twenty five.

The members then sang the song entitled "The Snow Birds."

Master Gordon Millet gave a reading. He was followed by Miss Vera Kilcher who favored the meeting with a very fine piano solo.

Thelma Buller gave a recitation; this recitation was an impromptu one; Miss Buller not being asked at the last meeting to take part in the program for this week.

Next week's program was then prepared and it promises to be very fine.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, April 26.

WILKINS FLIGHT FAILS TO DISCLOSE LAND

WAR VETERANS COMMEMORATE ANNIVERSARY OF FIRST BATTLE IN WHICH CANADIANS TOOK PART

Second Battle of Yyres Began 13 Years Ago Yesterday, April 22, 1915.

CHURCH PARADE HELD.

Members of Legion, Other Veterans, and Militia Men Visit St. James'.

Commemorating the thirteenth anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres, the morning service at St. James' United Church on Sunday was one of the most beautifully impressive that has taken place locally since war-time days. It was attended by a splendidly large turnout of members of the Canadian Legion in command of Captain J. Abraham; the Peterborough Rangers and No. 3 Company 4th Batt. C.M.G.C., all of whom paraded from the Cenotaph to the church via George and Romaine Streets, headed by the Rangers and Salvation Army Bands. There a large congregation had gathered, so that the capacity of the church was heavily taxed; pastor, choir and organist responded accordingly in conducting the specially arranged service. It was an historic occasion in the life of the Legion and church alike. The officers present with the Militia units were: Lieut.-Colonel W. G. Hall, V.D.; Major H. Dodds, Capt. C. E. Nicholls, M.C., D.C.M., and Lieut. H. J. Devey.

Following was the order of service:

Invocation.

All joining in the Lord's Prayer.

Hymn — "Come Thou Almighty King."

Prayer.

Anthem by choir—"Onward Christian Soldiers" (P. A. Schnecker). J. Worrall, soloist.

Scripture lesson—Psalm 8, Mark 10, 17-22.

Announcements and offering.

Duet—Mrs. E. Kitney and A. Lee.

Event of the Day.

"Dead March in Saul" (all standing)—F. Stevens, organist.

Hymn—"God Send us Men."

Sermon by the Rev. J. H. Dudgeon.

Hymn—"Listen, the Master Beseecheth."

Benediction.

Last Post.

The music of the service was responsible in no small part for the success of the service, for the choir under the direction of F. Stevens, was heard at its best. Reference to the individual numbers but invites more favorable comment. Of the pastor's part, it is safe to say that his address on the event of the day and his sermon left little to be desired.

Event of the Day.

The Reverend J. H. Dudgeon prefaced his remarks by extending a welcome to the officers and members of the Legion and militia units and expressed his appreciation on the honor conferred on his church and congregation by their presence on this memorable occasion. He said: "To-day marks the anniversary of the 2nd Battle of Ypres; on that day the Canadian division held a line of 5000 yards, extending from the Ypres-Poecapelle road, and connecting at its terminus with the French troops. The day had been a somewhat peaceful one, warm and sunny, but between 4 and 5 p.m., the Germans started operations on a carefully prepared plan, by releasing asphyxiating gas of great intensity, with the result that clouds of a poisonous vapor rolled swiftly towards the trenches of the French Colonial division who were holding the lines west of Langemarck. Allowing sufficient time for the fumes to take effect on the troops facing them the Germans charged forward over the practically unresisting enemy in their immediate front, penetrated through the gaps thus created pressed on silently and swiftly to the south and west.

The story of the Second Battle of Ypres is the story of how the Canadian division, comprising the first contingent sent from these shores, made history it was here after weary months of training they received their first baptism of fire. What a baptism! Overwhelmed and outnumbered they doggedly met the onrush of the enemy and by their determination and valor the breach in the line caused by the retirement of the French Turcos was again restored and Ypres was saved. To Canadians this day should be forever kept sacred; yea, not only in Canada but wherever across the world the British flag salutes the sky. Thirteen years ago to-day the British empire stood in deadly danger and it was only saved from that danger by the heroism of Canada's sons who a few months before had blithely responded to the call to arms in defence of her own shores and that of the empire.

"To-day many who fought in that memorable battle are present with us in this service, together with their comrades of other days who fought in other stern battles and as members of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League (the greatest organization of ex-service men) have come to this church.

Chamberlain To Act As Pathfinder

NEW YORK April 23. Canadian Press. — Clarence D. Chamberlin, the transatlantic flier plans to hop off from Hartford Conn. for Greenly Island, Quebec, to act as a pathfinder for the German transatlantic plane Bremen, when it resumes its flight to New York, the airport construction company announced last night.

Chamberlin left New York for Hartford last night and plans a take off about dawn to-day in a Fairchild cabin monoplane. He was to be accompanied by Edward B. Kelly, the head of the airport construction company with which Chamberlin is associated, and a newspaperman.

The schedule announced for Chamberlin called for a short stop at Murray Bay, Que., about noon, to get reports on the progress of relief work for the Bremen and any additional supplies the crew of the ship may need. He plans to reach Greenly Island before nightfall.

SUPREME COURT SESSION SHORT

"Order in Court"—"Court's Adjourned" Entire Proceedings To-day.

NO CASES ON DOCKET.

No cases were on the docket at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario which were to commence in the Court House this afternoon, before Hon. Mr. Justice Raney. His Lordship had been notified previously of there being nothing on the docket so he did not make an appearance. Court Crier Sergt. Thomas in the presence of Sheriff F. J. A. Hall, Court Clerk, G. J. Sherry and Sergeant Wigg, called the court to order, and immediately on instructions from the Sheriff adjourned it sine die.

4TH BATTALION PRAISES CURRIE

Some Argument Occurs at Reunion Before Message is Sent.

APPRECIATE SERVICE.

HAMILTON, April 23.—Whether or not the "mad" Fourth Battalion at its reunion Saturday night approved a message to Sir Arthur Currie, which assured him that the ex-soldiers of the unit endorsed his action on the memorable November 11, 1918, appears to be debatable

First termed a resolution, the officials later decided to introduce the contents as a message, and the words were read to the 400 men present, but there was a great deal of confusion and the speaker's voice was not audible at times. When the vote was called it appeared as if the majority had voted in support, but there was some opposition, but whether it was to the "message" or to the battalion showing its hand in the matter was not learned.

Officials of the unit argued that as the matter is sub judice the plan to take action was unwise. Others held that as soldiers it was the duty of the veterans to stand in support of their leader, especially against the attack of a civilian.

Even the officials were in a quandary at the close of the meeting, but decided to despatch the message, as follows, to Sir Arthur Currie: "The members of the Fourth Battalion wish to go on record as appreciating the splendid service you rendered during the time you were commander of the Canadian Corps, and at no time did we ever feel that in any way you failed to carry out the interests of the men under you and at the same time earned for the Canadian Corps a reputation which, we think, is second to none.

Loses Life When Schooner Capsizes

HALIFAX, N. S. April 23. — Canadian Press — One man was drowned when the 17 ton schooner Gladys Elena of Jeddore, capsized in a sudden squall off the harbor on Saturday afternoon, and became a total loss. Alex. Arnold aged 73, was lost with the ship, but Capt. W. C. Power and the other three members of the crew managed to get in a small boat and reach the shore. Captain Power said that in addition to losing his vessel, he had $400 in the pocket of a coat that went down with the schooner. The mishsap occurred off Thruncap shoals at the entrance to Halifax Harbor.

FINE MEMORIALS ARE DEDICATED

Two Windows and Font Recently Installed at Trinity Church.

MEMORY BEAUTIFUL.

Two beautiful windows and a handsome baptismal font were dedicated in Trinity church yesterday to the memory of former worshippers and workers who have passed on and to the glory and service of the church of God. The windows were in memory of W. C. Switzer and the Minorgan family, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Minorgan and their children Jessie Stewart and George Elliott, while the font was a memorial to Mr. and Mrs Aaron Cox, who had been staunch members of the church when it was Charlotte street Methodist, and whose home had stood on the present site.

Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson, who was pastor when the present church was built, and who had known the people commemorated personally, assisted the present pastor, the Rev. David Wren, in the service of dedication.

There was no set sermon, Dr. Wilson confining his remarks to reminiscences of the lives and examples of those remembered, with a short talk on the value of monuments and other memorials and the beauty of being remembered. A capacity congregation attended.

Dr. Wilson declared that he looked upon himself as pastor emeritus of Trinity church, as he was head of the congregation when the church was built and he recalled the fine spirit of unamity and fellowship which he had always found in the board and congregation. He was glad to see in the congregation the men and women who had borne the burden and laid the foundation, but there were some missing who had passed on. He mentioned among others the late Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Huycke. Those who had gone, he said, had left behind a rich legacy of faith; they had seen the face of the Pilot and were not afraid to go.

"It is sweet to be remembered," the speaker continued. "It is lovely for you to remember me." He reminded the congregation of Jacob's delight in knowing that his son Joseph was alive, and remembered him. The dying thief had asked the Master to remember him in Paradise. Christ Himself had commanded His followers: "Do this in rememberance of Me."

Most people have some tokens of their friends which they value highly, not for their worth but because of the memories associated with them. This church is wonderfully adorned with beautiful windows, all memorials, tokens of love. The speaker expressed his pleasure that the same spirit still exists and that it is the children of those who are gone who are putting in these memorials.

The memorial to the Minorgan family called to his mind the memorial service held for George Minorgan, who was killed in action in 1915. He noticed with pleasure that the congregation had erected one window in honor of those who had served and come back and another to those who had not returned. He also spoke feelingly of other boys who had been killed, who had been particular friends of his, naming Horace Stanley, Fred Cressman, Arthur Ackerman, and Arthur Huycke.

"I don't know," declared Dr. Wilson, "that Jesus intended to be crufied, but He went out to do what His Father willed, even to die, and the boys who went overseas went out to do their duty at any cost."

W. C. Switzer had been associated with the building of the church. He was a good man, rich and great in words and deeds, a man among men. Dr. Wilson recalled his unfailing devotion to his church. He had a great conception of the church's value and influence, and knew that the men and women who came from the churches made the Empire and built the country to what it is, and that no person was made happier at any place than in church.

Mr. Switzer, he continued, had caught God's secret of peace, and carried with him always the peace of God. He was a good man, and there is no grace like goodness. When God made the world, His tribute to it was that it was good.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Cox had not

RELIEF PLANE REACHES ISLAND WITH REPAIR PARTS AND FOOD

Fitzmaurice, Balchen, Reporter and Junkers Mechanic on Board.

BENNETT STILL ILL.

Clarence Chamberlin Leaves New York For Greenly to Welcome Bremen's Crew.

MONTREAL, April 23 (Canadian Press). — The east-to-west trans-Atlantic fliers were re-united to-day when the big Detroit relief plane, transporting replacements to enable the Bremen to be flown to New York, and food and supplies for Captain Koehl and Baron von Huenefeld, landed on Greenly Island at eleven-forty this morning. Major Fitzmaurice, the Irish member of the gallant trio of aviators, who left Greenly Island for Murray Bay on April 14 to arrange for the rescue of his two German companions, was on board the plane when it landed. In addition to the Irish flier, the plane was occupied by Bernt Balchen, a newspaperman, and a Junkers mechanic.

BENNETT VERY ILL.

QUEBEC, April 23 (Canadian Press). — The condition of Floyd Bennett, co-pilot with Bernt Balchen of the Ford relief plane, which is now at Greenly Island, remained serious to-day. Bennett is in hospital, suffering with pneumonia and inflammation of the bronchiel tubes.

CHAMBERLIN ON WAY.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 23 (Canadian Press). — Clarence Chamberlin, trans-Atlantic flier, left here at 10.05 this morning for Greenly Island, where he will welcome the crew of the Bremen.

Chamberlin took off in one of the two Fairchild cabin monoplanes, making the trip, and carried his manager, Linton Wells, Edward Kelly, his business associate, and Ralph Morgan, a photographer, as passengers.

The other plane, piloted by Lieut. Dixon, carried as passengers Lieut. Generous, and Sergt. Charles Arnold. Arnold and Dixon, both fliers, went up to secure photographs, and news of the Bremen's crew on April 17. If the weather is favorable, the fliers will proceed from Lake Ste. Agnes to Murray Bay.

WORK ON LAKES WITHOUT DELAY

Chariman of U. S. Congress Committee On Rivers Issues Statement.

FEARS TIE-UP.

WASHINGTON, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Consideration of the St. Lawrence and Great Lake waterway problems as a unit would tie up the Great Lakes improvement work indifinitely, Chairman S. Dempsey, of the House Rivers and Harbors Commission declared to-day in a digest of recent correspondence on the subject between the State Department and the Canadian Government.

He contended that the channels of the Great Lakes should be deepened without delay and said that the Commission had unanimously passed a resolution asking engineers to report on the project as soon as possible.

BEFORE THE START

(By Baron E Gunther von Huenefeld)

Evening glides down to earth,
And the daylight is slowly dying.
Quietly darkness appeases
Excited and anxious hearts.
Suddenly eve-dreams are broken.
Listen, how strangely a sound
O'er hedges, gardens and meadows
Nears with a roar and is gone.
Glorious dominant victor
High over earth and sea
Plots his course the flier, dreams long-dreamt come true.
Propellers that roar out a greeting
Over pastures, fields and woods—
To live means to hope and believe in
Thyself and thy days to come.

Coal Barge Rescues Crew of Schooner

BOSTON, Mass., April 25.—(Canadian Press.)— The steamer Lackawanna, Norfolk to Boston, with 2,500 tons of coal, arrived here Saturday with the crew of the Greenport, L.I., schooner Sharpshooter, rammed and sunk by the Lackawanna on Friday night, in Vineyard Sound. The captains of the two vessels told conflicting stories of the accident, each blaming the other ships for the collision.

The vessels came together midway between West Chop and Tarpaulin Cove. The Sharpshooter, a two masted auxiliary schooner of 75 tons was struck in the port bow and sank in 25 minutes. Captain Warren Critchlow, master and owner of the schooner; Mate Frank Whalen, and Wesley Small of Chatham, 16 years old, a passenger, escaped in a small boat and were picked up by the Lackawanna. They comprised the entire company of the Sharpshooter. The schooner was returning to Greenport after delivering a cargo of oysters at Chatham.

More than twenty shocks, varying in strength, were felt over the Poloponesus.

WORK TO START ON GAS STATION

Imperial Oil Lets Contract For New Building To C. H. Huffman.

SEVERAL PERMITS ISSUED.

The Imperial Oil Company is going to erect a service station at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets, and has let the contract to C. H. Huffman. The company bought the property some years ago, but put off building until this spring. The station will be 25 ft. x 22 ft., on a concrete foundation and fitted with a hot water heating system. The estimated cost is $4,000 and it is to be completed about June 15.

Permits during the week were granted for the erection of four private garages, reshingling one house and making alterations to another.

At 101 Hunter street the garage of P. Armstrong is being altered into a service station by T. DeForge, at an estimated cost of $550.

George Sloan and Son are making alterations to a house owned by Bradburns Ltd., at 149 Rutherford street. The estimated cost is $475.

MANY ON HAND FOR RE-OPENING

Spectators, Lawyers, and Reporters Gather in Cobourg Court in Good Time.

RESOLUTIONS PROTESTED.

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, April 23. — Spectators assured themselves of sitting room for the afternoon court proceeding by arriving more than an hour before the time set for the opening after the week-end adjournment of the Currie-Wilson-Preston libel action. Many of the early arrivals were women. Counsel for both plaintiff and defendants arrived with their burdens of law books and shortly before the formal re-opening press men rushed hurriedly to wire room to assure themselves that everything there was in readiness before seating themselves in the court room.

Representatives from the Department of National Defense arrived with even more documents than on their initial appearance. Each member of the jury was seated in his place six minutes before His Lordship, Mr. Justice Rose, entered.

Of the principals in the action, F. W. Wilson, editor of The Port Hope Guide was the first to take his seat at the counsel table. W. T. R. Preston, writer of the article, entered the court at three minutes to two, greeting a couple of acquaintances before seating himself at the table. General Sir Arthur Currie was not at the counsel table when the court opened sharp at 2.00 p.m.

Immediately the roll call of the jury was completed, Mr. Preston rose to address the bench. He drew His Lordship's attention to the fact that certain resolutions all over the country were being transmitted over the wire for publication in the newspapers. Mr. Preston said he was not as familiar with these courts as he was with those of the Imperial courts.

His Lordship did not wish to rule on the matter definitely without further reference to certain legal advice. W. N. Tilley, K.C., expressed his hearty concurrence with what Mr. Preston had said.

"You were examining Mr. Wilson," said His Lordship.

Mr. Wilson recalled.

"Who was the first one to speak to you regarding your evidence?" Mr. Regan asked.

In his reply Mr. Wilson stated that Sir Arthur Currie was the first to speak to him.

Questioned further by Mr. Regan, Mr. Wilson said he had heard this gossip. To several questions following, Mr. Tilley objected, and his objections were sustained. Continuing to answer questions, Mr. Wilson said that he had interviewed Sir Arthur Currie in Montreal, and certain conversation took place between them. Since this conversation took place after a letter from Mr. Wilson marked "without prejudice," Mr. Tilley objected.

After considerable argument between counsel, Mr. Tilley waived his objection in order to get on with the trial. Mr. Regan asked Mr. Wilson if he had requested the interview with Sir Arthur, and witness repiled that he had not.

Examined by Mr. Tilley, Mr. Wilson said he knew he had written a letter to Sir Arthur marked "without prejudice."

Mr. Tilley—"Did you plan to visit Sir Arthur in order to get something from him when he couldn't use what you said?"

A.—"Must I answer yes or no?"

A.—"Can you answer yes or no?"

A.—"I cannot and tell the whole truth."

Q.—"Then tell the whole truth in a short, snappy answer."

Witness stated that he had written the letter to Sir Arthur himself, and used the words "without prejudice." The letter had not been drafted by a lawyer. During the interview, Gen.

REPORT OF FIRST PLANE JOURNEY ACROSS NORTH POLAR REGIONS MENTIONS NO MASSES OF LAND

Royal Couple Will Have Brief Honeymoon

ROME, April 23. — Young couples who may be grouching because the fiance's boss won't allow them more than his regular two weeks' vacation for their wedding and honeymoon, are no worse off than Philbert Ludovic Maxmillien Emanuel Marie, Prince of Savoy-Genoa Duke of Pistola, and his fiancee, little Princess Lydia of Alenberg.

They are to be married here on April 30, and albeit that the ceremony will be attended by most of the available crowned heads of Europe, and by members of Princely houses, and although the fiance is a cousin of the king, they will get even less than two weeks' honeymoon.

TWO CONFESS TO ROBBERIES

Admit Stealing Two Cars and Money—Remanded For Sentence.

RECORD BEING CHECKED.

TORONTO, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Before Magistrate Jones in Police Court here to-day, Kenneth Kirkwood pleaded guilty to charges of robbing A. Smith of $5.75, stealing an automobile and $5 from Robert Greer, and stealing an automobile from Charles Arundel. A companion, Allen Greenfield, pleaded guilty to the two latter charges and both were remanded for sentence until April 30 on the request of the Crown.

Kirkwood and Greenfield were arrested in Brampton on Saturday last and brought here by Toronto detectives. They later made statements to the Toronto police authorities which have been communicated to the police of Windsor, London, and Chatham, where a series of robberies has occurred within the last ten days.

Visibility Was Good and Plane Crossed Land Formerly Reported Says Stefansson.

HARBOR STILL FROZEN.

Northwest Passage Over World Brought Nearer Through Practical Achievement.

NEW YORK, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Five reported or imagined masses of land have been eliminated from the maps by the flight of Capt. Wilkins and Lieutentant Eielson over the roof of the world. Vihjalmur Stefansson, Wilkins' former chief, after considering the data received by radio, noted to-day that on the flight from Point Barrow to Green Bay, over the Polar Basin, the two men failed to see Henan Land, Harris Land, the land which Frederick Cook reported in his tale of a visit to the North Pole; that reported by Admiral Peary and that which Stefansson thought he had just missed finding in 1917. Going over the flight story of Wilkins systematically, Stefansson traced his course and concluded that the visibility would have allowed the fliers to see any or all of these land masses if they had existed.

Spent last Cent.

NEW YORK, April 23. — Canadian Press. — Captain George Wilkins, aerial conqueror of the Arctic, spent his last cent on his history making flight. Burt McConnell, one of his closest friends said: "Wilkins has been a bigger thing than many people realize. The flight he made is much more difficult in a navigation way than any flight ever made by by anybody else. He spent his last cent on this expedition. He didn't tie up with anybody. He bought his own machine with his own savings, and paid for it in whole."

Will Come South Soon.

LONDON, April 23. Canadian Press —An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen to-day said that it was understood that Captain George Wilkins will leave Green Harbor, Spitzbergen, where he landed from Point Barrow, Alaska, within the next few days. He is expected to reach Oslo in about a week's time.

The whole of the part of the Polar region is still frozen and ships cannot enter Green Harbor, as the ice extends far out to sea. The general thaw begins around the first or second week in May, so that unless the airmen decide to fly they must remain until that time.

Flying Conditions Good.

Discussing Captain Wilkins' flight, Raold Amundsen, who flew with General Umberto Nobile in the dirigible Norge over the North Pole in 1926, said it was a great surprise and a brilliant achievement. It is his belief that conditions for flying in the polar regions are more favorable now than in May when fog generally sets in. Apparently, he said, Captain Wilkins had not been troubled with the difficulty of ice freezing on the plane, as the Norge suffered in 1926. While it was impossible yet to say whether Wilkins actually flew over the Pole, they had surely crossed the Polar basin, Amundsen said, and expressed his belief that they followed the same line as the Norge did.

"Besides being a splendid sporting enterprise," the explorer went on, "such a flight has great scientific value, adding much geographical knowledge, for if the weather was good Captain Wilkins might have made important observations and perhaps made new land discoveries."

Dream of the Ages

NEW YORK, NY, April 23 (Canadian Press).—A dream of the ages—a Northwest passage across the world—has been brought nearer practical achievement through the pioneering of Captain George H. Wilkins, who Saturday completed a 2,100 miles flight across the Arctic region, Vilhjalmur Stefasson, veteran Arctic explorer, said.

The flight of Captain Wilkins—the first airplane journey from America to Europe over the Polar area—was over a course that will shorten by hundreds of miles the distances between continents, Stefansson pointed out. He pictured the North Pole as the new crossroads of the world when air caravans of the future will meet in their journeys from continent to continent.

While Stefansson voiced great praise from the latest achievement of Wilkins and his pilot, Carl Eielson, he declared his work preliminary to the flight was of far more importance to the development of air transportation in the Arctic region.

Whether Wilkins was able to make any land observations during his five-day stop en route from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen, Stefansson indicated he had strengthened his theory that there were numerous landing places in the Polar region, a theory disputed by Roald Amundsen and Commander Richard Byrd, who have flown over the Arctic area.

Stefansson mentioned Amundsen's theory that landing sites are avail-

RUNNING GUN FIGHT PRECEDES CAPTURE OF HAMILTON YOUTH AT STRATFORD FOR ROBBERY

Elton McKay's Car is Riddled Before He Surrenders to Police.

IS WOUNDED IN CHEST.

Charged With Robbery at Preston and Hamilton, Young Man Runs Police Gauntlet.

STRATFORD, April 23. — After a running gun battle through the main street of Stratford, Elton MacKay, 20, of Hamilton, was on Saturday night captured by Stratford police. MacKay has one rifle shot through his chest and other wounds, but officials of the General Hospital here expect that he will recover.

Stratford's most sensational gun battle did not end until MacKay's car was riddled with bullets. Twelve out of 18 shots fired by Traffic Officer Jack Clements registered, though both autos were travelling at 65 miles an hour. Every drop of gasoline had leaked through the punctured tank when the chase came an an abrupt halt.

Before the fusillade started in Stratford MacKay had run the gauntlet of Preston, Galt, and Kitchener police and had escaped unscathed. He played hide and seek with the Kitchener traffic squad and escaped by racing his auto through Saturday evening traffic at 50 miles an hour. Chief Boyd, of Galt, lost him in the traffic.

MacKay is wanted on charges of robbery at Preston and stealing a car at Hamilton. At 9 o'clock on Saturday evening Stratford police were told he was on his way from Kitchener. A Baden man chased him out of Kitchener, but losing out in the furious chase, stopped and telephoned Stratford.

Armed with revolvers and a high-powered rifle, Chief Constable Broadley and Traffic Officer Clements and Detective George Walker were waiting at the city limits in the police car. MacKay stepped on the gas when he saw them cut in behind him. The two cars roared through the main street of the city at over sixty miles an hour.

Just before they reached the Court House and the turn on to the Huron Road the police started firing, and a running battle ensued through considerably over a mile and a half of city streets until the cars hit the open country on the Huron Road.

The driver of the car, the police say, shot at them three times, and, it is believed, threw the gun away. No gun was found on him or in the car. MacKay was finally forced to stop about two miles this side of Mitchell, ten miles from the city. It was found that his gas tank had been riddled with bullets and that one had passed through his body, besides some wounds from flying peices of metal from the body of the car. He was brought back to the city and taken to the hospital, where his condition yesterday was reported as being quite satisfactory.

MOTOR SHOW IS HELD AT STIRLING

Interesting Program Given at Entertainment By Durant Agency.

STIRLING, April 23. — If our village fathers could be guaranteed an audience such as greeted the Durant Motors Limited on Thursday evening when they held one of their demonstrations, the payment of the extra debt incurred by the erection of this building could be easily taken care of without increasing the taxation. Edward Baker & Son, the local agents Durant Motors, had intimated that their firm were going to give a night of entertainment, and they certainly fulfilled their promise. After Clifford Baker had announced the objects of the meeting, Clifford Hatton took charge of the meeting, and the following took part in entertaining the large audience for more than two hours.

P. J. Duggan, sales manager for the company, outlined the growth and progress of the company in Canada; J. H. Cameron, the noted entertainer, took his part well; several solos were given by Mrs. G. Scott; P. David personated a young lady with good effect in songs and readings; F. Shuttleworth was the pianist for the evening.

Mr. W. D. Kirby, brother of the general manager of Durant Motors, was the demonstrator and in his address, emphasized the points where the Durant, in his opinion, excelled all other cars. Following his address, moving pictures were shown of the company's factory at Leaside, Toronto, as well as the working within, showing cars at the various stages of construction, which was very interesting. The program was still continued by the entertainers in songs, readings, etc.

The degree team of Stirling Lodge, No. 239, I.O.O.F., made a fraternal visit to Madoc Lodge on Wednesday evening, where they conferred the second degree. Those who took part were: W. H. Farrell, H. Ashley, E. R. Carlisle, G. Carlisle, J. B. Thompson, E. Jackman, S. A. Murphy, P. C. McGuire, E. J. Pyear, G. A. Weaver, Roy Thrasher, Roy Walker, V. Taylor, F. T. Halin, E. T. Ward, H. E. Halin, M. Fraser, B. R. Searles, J. M. McGee G. Sine, and F Ashley.

Guild Meets.

George Green had charge of the Guild meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last week, while the Scriptural reading was given by Miss Thelma Green. Rev. A. N. Reid introduced the second book of the Teachers' Training Course. The topic, "Why and How Should Christians Support the Eighteenth Amendment" was given by Miss Willmore Morton, who also conducted a spelling match at the conclusion of the program.

The first course of the Teachers' Training Class having been completed, Mr. Reid announced the results at the service on Sunday night, those obtaining certificates being: Mrs. Harper Rollins, Mrs. A. G. Mackenzie, Miss Frieda Matthews, and Miss G. Spry of Stirling, and Miss J. Dougan and L. Haggerty of St. Andrew's, West Huntingdon.

The program of St. Paul's League was under the direction of the literary department, conducted by Miss Irene Bailey, 3rd vice-president. Mr. A. E. Dobie gave an address on "Religion," and solos by Mrs. Cecil Mackins were greatly appreciated.

The early train from Belleville, failed to arrive here on Thursday morning due to an accident near Foxboro. After the mail arrived about 12.30, the post office was a busy place between one and two, when the several mail carriers were

BYRD ANXIOUS OVER BENNETT

Co-Pilot With Balchen Taken Seriously Ill at Murray Bay.

REMOVED TO HOSPITAL.

NEW YORK, April 23.—(Canadian Press.)— Anxiety over the illness of Floyd Bennett, second-in-command of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, caused Commander Richard E. Byrd last night to cancel all his immediate New York engagements and appointments and prepare to start at once from his home in Boston to Quebec.

Bennett, co-pilot with Bernt Balchen, of the Ford relief plane en route to Greenly Island, Que., with repairs for the German monoplane Bremen, caught a heavy cold on the flight from Detroit to Murray Bay last Friday. Information received in New York said that pneumonia of the right lung developed Saturday, and yesterday Bennett was removed by aeroplane to the Jeffrey Hale Hospital in Quebec.

Specialists Enroute.

Mrs. Bennett, wife of the aviator, left New York last night for her husband's bedside. Although she has been ill, she insisted on making the trip and was accompanied by Dr. A. L. Barach of the Presbyterian Hospital in New York, who is widely known as the inventor of the oxygen tent for the treatment of pneumonia.

Dr. Barach was accompanied by his assistant, Dr. Silman, and took with him two high-pressure oxygen tanks for use in the treatment of the flier. Efforts also were being made to locate four additional tanks in Montreal and Quebec, should they be needed. Mrs. Bennett and the physician expect to reach Quebec this afternoon.

At New York, offices of the Byrd Antartic Expedition it was said that Commander Byrd planned to leave Boston last night at nine o'clock by rail and expected to reach Quebec early this afternoon. The commander was not aware of the seriousness of Bennett's condition until late yesterday and immediately cancelled all his engagements for early this week to hurry direct from Boston to Bennett's bedside.

PRESENTATION MADE WARKWORTH FOLK

Mr. and Mrs. Carman Carlow To Take Up Residence at Nestleton.

WARKWORTH, April 23.—On Wednesday evening, about fifty neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Carlow gathered at their home and presented them with a walnut chesterfield table, prior to their departure to Nestleton where they will reside. John Carlow was also presented with a sum of money.

Before presenting the table, K. B. Booth, on behalf of the neighborhood, made a very fitting address emphatically pointing out their excellent qualities as neighbors and expressing regret in losing them from their midst. Mr. Carlow made an excellent reply in expressing their gratitude also he regretted their leaving the neighborhood.

Mail Delayed

Owing to a wreck of the train near Foxboro, on Thursday, the Hastings mail courier did not make the trip.

Personals

Mrs. J. W. Mowat is visiting relatives in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walker have returned after spending a few days with friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gregory have returned to Uxbridge after visiting friends in town and vicinity.

A play "The Colonel's Maid", is being presented by the Women's Institute in the town hall in the near future.

Presentations Made

A very delightful evening was spent recently by a large number of friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Merrill, when Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Jones were presented with a wicker living room suite prior to their departure for Nestleton, where they will reside.

The accompanying address was signed on behalf of their friends of Sleepy Hollow, S. S. No. 7, and vicinity: Louisa Brooks, Mary Gorman, Mary Duff, Reta Gorman, Lydia Isaac, Flora Hoare. Mr. and Mrs. Jones thanked their many friends in a few well-chosen words.

A few days previous the pupils of S. S. No. 7 Percy, also presented their teacher, Mrs. Jones, with a coffee percolater and address.

POINCARE LEADS ON FIRST COUNT

Swing Towards Present Premier Seen in French General Election.

MAJORITY ASSURED.

PARIS, April 23.— (Canadian Press.)—A strong drift to Premier Poincare, with the disintegration of the parties opposed to him, was indicated to-day to have taken place in the national election. With but eight districts missing, the Premier appeared certain to end with a majority sufficient to enable him to complete his program of financial rehabilitation. One hundred and seventy-nine deputies were elected on the first ballot. Of these the Poincare Union Government was sure of a hundred and thirty and counted upon thirteen others to support it.

FAVOR POINCARE TO WIN ELECTION

Results of General Election Show Poincareists Far Far in the Lead.

PARIS, April 23 (Associated Press).—The first day constituencies reporting on yesterday's general election for a new Chamber of Deputies gave great encouragement last night to the supporters of Raymond Poincare, who had appealed to France for a continuation of the union government.

Twenty-six of the constituencies gave outright majorities to followers of the Premier, and these included three members of the Cabinet, Aristide Briand, Minister of Foreign affairs; Edouard Herritt, Minister of Public Instruction, and Andre Tardieu, Minister of Public Works. On the heels of these results came the word that Louis Monin, Mayor of Paris and President Bouisson of the Chamber of Deputies, also had been returned to their seats.

The only fly in the Cabinet ointment at that stage was the fact that Paul Painleve, Minister of War, had fallen seventy votes short of the absolute majority necessary to elect, and therefore would require to go before the voters next Sunday.

Only one opposition delegate had been successful out of the fifty districts reporting. He was a Socialist. Twenty-four other districts failed to register a majority for any one candidate, and will therefore be the scenes of a second balloting on April 29.

Except for fights with fists and canes, there was no appreciable disorder anywhere in France. In Paris, Communists who were watching returns posted by their official newspaper Humanite, clashed with the police. It was a lively affair while it lasted, and several of the Communists were hurt but none seriously. Except for this fight, Paris was quiet.

Later returns continued to pile up the Poincarist lead. With 110 constituencies reported, there were 44 outright elections, of which only ten, including four Socialists, were won by the Opposition. Sixty-six of these constituencies must ballot again next Sunday.

Among the later returns was word that Georges Leygues, Minister of Marine, had been returned to the Chamber.

RIVER STILL HIGH.

Much Damage Wrought By High Waters in Springville District.

SPRINGVILLE, April 23.— The river still continues to remain at a very high level on the low lying farm along its banks. Fences have been turned over and culverts washed away. The high gale sweeping the country last week roughened the waters giving the country a very dreary cold appearance. Large flocks of wild geese almost daily find rest beside the ponds and ditches of the fields that are as yet above the river level.

Personals.

Miss Hazel Whitfield, R.N., graduate, Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, left last week for Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio, where she will continue at profession.

Miss Rosella Wood, R.N., who has recently specialized in administering anesthetics has returned to the States, where she has accepted a position in Shenango Valley Hospital, Newcastle, Penn.

Miss Grace Whitfield, R.N., has returned to Cleveland, Ohio, where she will resume nursing duties after two weeks' vacation at home.

Miss Ethel Whittington, R.N., of St. Catharines General Hospital, was home attending the funeral of her mother, Mrs. William Whittingon.

Mrs. Thomas H. Blanchard of Peterborough is spending a few days at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Whitfield.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Whittington and little son Clark, of Toronto, were at home attending the funeral of the former's mother, Mrs. William Whittington.

A great many Springville friends attended the funeral of the late Maxwell McCall, of Detroit, Mich., which took place recently in Peterborough. Springville people were well acquainted with his father, the Rev. George McCall, of Brant avenue United church, Brantford, Ontario. The Rev. McCall was born at Springville and spent his boyhood in this district.

POUT AND CRY FOR BEAUTY

Patients of a London beauty doctor must pout daily and cry at least once a week in order to acquire or preserve youthful looks. Facial exercises are the latest beauty cult in the English city, and the doctor declares that if women will pat their cheeks and yawn and smile with their eyes wide open, and wrinkle their noses six times a day before the glass, such exercises will benefit the face fully as much as the "daily dozen" helps the figures. He also says that such exercises will eventually do away with creams, lotions and powders.

EUCHRE PARTY AT LAKEFIELD

Held Under Auspices of the Fire Department—Prizes Given.

DISTRICT NEWS.

LAKEFIELD, April 23.—Thirty four tables of euchre were played at the card party given recently under the auspices of the Lakefield Fire Brigade. This was the largest card party ever held in the village. The committee consisted of C. H. Hunter, T. A. Simpson and Milford Hampton, with Ted Webster as convenor. The brigade served refreshments in the thorough systematic manner with which they respond to the call of duty being careful in the smallest details. The prizes were won by Mrs. G. E. Renwick and Ernest Waldon. Miss Madeline Junkin and William Moore winning the consolation prizes. Following the refeshments, an informal dance was held. It is two years since the Fire Brigade had given a card party and the results were better than ever before. The proceeds of the euchre will be devoted to the purchase of some equipment to the main item being a smoke and gas helmet.

Has Many Calls

The Fire Brigade responded to two calls on Saturday for chimney fires. The first was at 11 a. m., to J. M. Simpson's home on Queen street and the second at 9 p.m., to Mr. Sarsen's home on Albert Street. No damage was done in either case. The new truck made its first trip that day.

On Thursday afternoon they had another busy time, all chimney fires;

TWO MANHOLES ARE BLOWN OPEN

One Cover Red Hot When Found—Goes Over Trolley Wires.

IN TORONTO STREETS.

TORONTO, April 23.—Inside three-quarters of an hour Saturday night two explosions occurred in manholes on Richmond and Adelaide streets. In both instances the heavy covers were hurled several feet in the air. Fortunately, no one was hurt.

The first explosion occurred about 10.15 at the south-east corner of Adelaide and Bay streets. The force of the explosion lifted the cover high in the air. A number of workmen employed in laying the new intersection heard the explosion and managed to jump clear of the manhole top as it fell.

At 11 o'clock a second explosion occurred in the centre of the roadway at Richmond and Victoria street at the time. The report was the louder of the two explosions, and police report that the iron manhole cover was blown as high as the trolley wires and when it crashed down on the pavement it burst in two.

The pieces of the cover were red hot, and could not be moved for many minutes

Both explosions were reported to have been caused by T.T.C. workmen drilling through underground cables.

The culmination of the most remarkable news-picture scoop in news paper history in shown in the above layout of the first pictures to be published anywhere in the world, showing the transatlantic airplane Bremen in the ice-locked prison at Greenely Island, together with the three intrepid conquerors of the ocean and their rescuers "Duke" Schiller and Dr. Louis Cuisinier, who as our special representative reached Greenely days ahead of anybody else. No. 1 shows the Irish- German aviators and our representatives, standing in front of the big German Junkers plane, Bremen. In the group from LEFT to RIGHT are: Avine Thibeault, "Duke" Schiller, Baron von Huenfeld, Major James Fitzmaurice and Captain Koehl. No. 2 is a small boy who constitutes one of Greenely Islands population of 14, and who was one of the first among the group of natives who rushed out to greet the Bremen when it was forced down on the island. No. 3 is a close up of the front of the Bremen, which clearly illustrates the seriousness of the damage done to one of the blades of the propellor when the plane sank into the soft ice. No. 4 shows a group of Greenely Island and mainland natives who crossed the ice, to greet the fliers on their arival. No. 5 is a side view of the Bremen, showing how it has been propped up on gasoline drums to keep it from sinking deeper into the ice and to give the mechanics a chance to effect repairs of the damage which the under-carriage of the plane suffered. These pictures were secured by Schiller at the request of the Star and were flown out by him in his Canadian Transcontinental Airways plane with Fitzmaurice. So far as is known they are the only pictures in existence taken at the actual scene of the Bremen's forced descent. Schiller reached Murray Bay with them on Wednesday. So great was the demand for them that offers of $15,000 and $5000 were turned down. We have already negotiated complete rights on the film.—Photos copyright by the Toronto Star Reproduction forbidden. Copyright, 1928, in all countries by North American Newspaper Alliance.

FOREST SITUATION IMPROVES

The forest situation throughout the Dominion is undoubtedly serious but within the past two years public opinion has given evidence of a growing appreciation of the factors and results involved, which is reflected in the better protective measures being taken and a decrease, on the whole, in the reported fire losses.

LARGE AREA OF FOREST LAND

Of the total non-agricultural area of Canada about one-half can be made to produce timber crops if permanently dedicated, protected, and managed to that end. Investigations show that the only economic use for one-third of the land area is in the growing of wood.

Carelessness in the woods has cost Canada untold millions through forest fires, which have destroyed 60% of the original forest.

JACK MINER AND THE BIRDS

AND SOME THINGS ABOUT NATURE

CHAPTER 23.

The Canada Goose.

It was not until the next spring that the flood of sneering questions poured in upon me! "Jack, when do you expect the six geese to return?" And another smart fellow said, "Jack, which direction will they come from?" But feeling confident I would be able to laugh last I just gritted my teeth inwardly, and smiled from the outside, and answered as kindly as I possibly could. I only remember answering one fellow short. He said, "Jack, when are the geese coming." I said, "Likely they will come when they get ready."

Sunday morning, March 18th, 1909, the ground was frozen as hard as Pharaoh's heart. I was out watering our self-starter. While she was drinking out of the trough I was putting in the time talking to my pet geese which were not over thirty yards away. All at once they all started honking at the very top of their voices and acting extremely strangely; but in spite of their chatter, when I pricked up my ears I could hear strange geese honking, and looking over my right shoulder I saw something that caused my heart to fairly jump. Here was a string of Canada geese, with wings bowed, coming right towards me. Finally they dropped their black feet and lit on the ground, some of them not over twenty-five yards from where I was standing, and I had the great pleasure of seeing these wild geese dance and flap their wings with joy as they honked aloud to each other, apparently introducing their families and friends. I fully expected to see them fly away at any instant, but no. As they saw me, the leader spoke quite sharply, and all was as still as night in a graveyard, with their eyes rivttted right on me. But they were quiet for only a few seconds; then they honked louder than ever, and our geese flapped their wings and shouted, apparently for joy.

Well I finally withdrew, coming away as slowly as a pall-bearer waiting to cross on the Detroit-Windsor bridge. I put the old nag in the shafts and we went to church; but for all the good that sermon did me, I might as well have stayed home. He evidently preached from somewhere between "Generations and Revolutions" but you could not prove it by me. All I could think about were these twenty-six Canada geese that the six had brought back with them, thirty-two all told. Best of all, it was my turn to laugh, and I wanted to get back home to give vent to my feelings, and as soon as the benediction was pronounced I was the first one out the door, got into our machine, and, believe me, we went home in high.

A day or so later I gave the signal and the gunners all came. We shot ten and let twenty-two go. And on May 1st they all circled high and took the airline Hudson Bay Limited.

That year did not bring me quite so many inquiries. One interested man asked how many I thought would come next spring; I said, "Possibly sixty or seventy-five." He said, "Is that so?" I replied, "I don't know." But on March 4th, 1910, they started coming again, and for two weeks the flock kept getting larger until there were over four hundred. We shot twenty-six and allowed the rest to go north, although we could just as easily have shot two hundred. But before they left I was fortunate in getting this picture, which gives you a glimpse of what game protection will do. Do not kill all you can but "Let the mother go, that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest prolong thy days."

The last contingent left April 27th. By the way, this is the earliest we ever knew the last of them to leave.

Right here I wish to make an explanation, that although we shot twenty-six, they were not all eaten by us shooters, but were given around to our nearest neighbors.

On February 20th, 1911, they started coming from the South again, and in less than three weeks there was a small cloud of them. Really I did not know there were so many Canada geese on earth.

As I have previously stated, my home is three miles north of Lake Erie, and these geese most always go to the lake for the night; and by times when the first bunch would be alighting in and around the ponds at my home, you could not see the south end of the string of them, coming.

Now I faced another problem: Where was the feed coming from? Very true. I have made a little park just west of my house and have graded out a pond one hundred and ten feet in diameter; yet this does not furnish them with feed. So I quit feeding them in what we now call the north pond, and just fed in the park, thinking the wilder ones would go on and that only the old acquaintances would come to the house. But that did not work out very satisfactorily; they were bound to make my home their home.

One morning we neighbors were shooting a few at the north pond. We shot into a family of five. I shouted "Don't shoot, boys, they are too far off," but the words were too late. The bangs of the guns were the only reply I heard, and two geese fell dead, one extremely large gander fell with a broken pinion; the other two flew away to the lake. At my request the boys gave me the big gander. I took him to the house and performed a surgical operation on him, myself. I first tied the severed arteries with strong linen thread, then cut the end of the wing right off and let him go in the park. In about an hour the other two geese came back, circling very high. By this time there were fully one thousand geese around the premises; all seemed to be honking to bring them down. Finally they circled over the park and this big, broken-pinioned fellow gave a honk, and instantly they answered and started to lower, making the air fairly hum as they descended. They lit near the house, with their wounded brother. To be brief, on May 2nd, the goose migrated with the big flock, but the big gander never left his broken-pinioned brother. Really it was one of the most self-sacrificing sights of my life to see this big gander give up all his liberties of this North American continent, and voluntarily live in captivity with his brother. We named them David and Jonathan.

Dear old Jonathan ! How he would get David to back clear across the pond, then run against the wind and try to fly! Yes I have seen this happen fully twenty times a day; Jonathan would fly across the pond, but when he saw his brother David was not coming he would alight and swim back to him. This sight took the desire to shoot out of most of my neighbors, and there has not been a goose shot on my premises since.

When fall came we thought possibly Jonathan might go South, but no; neither our cold zero winters, nor the extremely hot summers could drive him from his brother.

Jonathan's noble ways soon won the admiration of every visitor that came on our premises. While David was one of the heaviest wild geese I have ever seen, Jonathan stood a little taller, but not quite so heavy-set, He was very powerful and active; more so than any goose we have on the premises. Having both wings to defend himself with he always faced an approach ing enemy. They lived together in the park for seven years, but sad to say, in January, 1918, one morning when I looked out the window, here was dear old Jonathan lying dead on the snow near the centre of the pond where they always roosted. The hand-writing on the s now told the story. A great horned owl had attacked them in the night. The other eight or ten wing-clipped geese, including David, had run under the evergreens and shrubs. Jonathan, having both wings, gave the enemy battle, but being handicapped in the darkness, the owl sunk his grappling-hooks into Jonathan's head and put his eyes out, killed him and ate his neck off right at the breast bone, drew some of his entrails and ate them. Useless to say we all felt sad, and the telephone rang time and again that day. "Is it true an owl killed old Jonathan?" "Yes." And with a sigh they would hang the receiver up.

But I was determined to avenge his death. The other geese did not come out that day. When night came I concealed a trap in dead Jonathan's feathers, as I knew this murderer would come back. And the nest morning this bird-eating devil was fast. Really I could have burned that owl at the stake with a good heart.

In 1912, owing to the weather being very cold and snowy, the geese did not come until March 16th.

In 1913 they came on March 10th. On Good Friday of the last-mentioned year the wind blew a perfect gale, and there was a five-acre field full of geese here, as thick as in any picture shown with the exception of the one where the ladies have driven them into a huddle. A piece of sheet iron blew off the engine room at the tile factory and rolled end over end until it struck the wire fence that enclosed the goose field. Every bird screamed and took flight going with the wind. When they were about a half mile away they turned to come back, but this iron was bright on one side and they could see it. There they stood, floating in the air. Only we older people that have seen the clouds of passenger pigeons, back in the seventies, have any idea of what this skyfull of geese looked like. I stood and looked at them for a few minutes. Then I went and took the tin and rolled it up. This took me two or three minutes, as the tin and the wind were both stubborn. All at once I heard "Honk!" and behold, here were these thousands of geese alighting in the field again, some within one hundred feet of me. I finally took the roll of tin or sheet iron back to the buildings. Stopping on my way to rest and glancing back at the wild geese I was fully convinced that they knew me from a piece of sheet iron, for by this time they were all on the ground again, lying down facing the wind, and were equally as thick over all that five-acre field as they are shown in any one of the accompanying photographs.

Another advantage comes with the wild birds: There is always something new cropping up.

In the winter of 1909-10 I had eleven of my own, pinioned, wild geese. And as we youngsters wanted the ice good and clean in the park for skating, I turned the geese out and they were living over the fence, to the north. One stormy, cold day, as they were sitting in the lee of the tile factory buildings, two big American eagles attacked them. I ran in the house and grabbed my high-powered rifle in one hand and three or four cartridges in the other; out and down the road I went, just as fast as my mocasined feet would carry me. Soon I had gotten into the south end of the shed without being observed by the eagles. I at once ran upstairs, and went quickly but quietly, and fortunately to help muffle the sound of my moccasins, a little snow had drifted in on the shed floor. Soon I was at the north end.

Peeping through a crack in the side, I saw a sight that to me was beautiful, and I only wish I could give you the picture. For here, upon the crusty snow, were these two big, bald eagles, one about ten feet in front of the geese, the other fully four rods away. But where was the old gander that we called Tom Johnson, and his opponent, whom I have seen fight for fully half an hour for supremacy of the premises? Had they run under the shed, or flunked in any way? No, no. The nine weaker geese had huddled together and could have been covered with an ordinary wagon-box, but Tom Johnson and this other powerful gander were standing shoulder to shoulder, right in the face of this monstrous eagle. As the eagle would walk a little sidewise, on the crusty snow, the geese, with eyes riveted upon him, were doing likewise. There wasn't a sound uttered, but it was a great sight to see these faithful, self-sacrificing old ganders at the head of their little bunch with their wings up, ready to strike, saying by their actions, "You must cut us down before you can have one of our loved ones."

There I stood for fully five minutes, with my nerves just tingling, at the highest tension. Finally I couldn't stand it any longer, and I slid the three cartridges into the magazine of the rifle and quietly worked the lever which threw one cartridge into the barrel. As the north slide door was about one inch open, I sneaked over there. If those eagles had touched a goose I would have knocked a hole in one big enough for a dog to jump through.

But good things always come to those who wait, and eventually the eagle farthest away turned her head sidewise and began to show signs of moving, which she did, but not towards the geese. She just simply squatted, opened up her broad, powerful wings, and with a few strokes she started straight west. In a few seconds the other turned half around, rose up against the wind, and followed. But the geese kept their eyes continually fixed on them as far as they could be seen.

Yes, they apparently settled by arbitration. When I saw how it turned out my heart bubbled over with more love than ever for these two beautiful birds, and as I started for the house I couldn't help but thank Almighty God for the Canada goose and the American eagle, and ask Him to hasten the day when this whole world mass of humanity will settle their differences as these lovely birds did on this occasion. As I took the cartridges out of the rifle and hung it on the gunrack; I caught myself singing the chorus of an old song my mother used to sing:

"If I were Queen of France,
Much more the Pope of Rome;
I would have no fighting men abroad
Nor weeping maids at home;
All this world would be at peace,
Every king should have his rights,
For I'd have them that makes the quarrels
Be the only ones to fight."

Yes, such good lessons as this are continually darting at one who is on speaking terms with the Canada goose

Some time ago I purchased a pair of Egyptian geese from a breeder in Illinois. As they have such beautiful plumage I thought they would add to the attractions around my home, but they turned out to be meaner and far more treacherous than stagnant ditch-water, continually hunting trouble with any creature whom they can dominate. November 14th, as I was out feeding the birds, they caught a wild duck and both piled in, and would have killed her in less than a minute only that a big wild Canada gander heard her squawk. He left his family, who were feeding, flew across the pond and with one blow from his powerful wings he knocked that Egyptian goose all but cold; the other Egyptian took the hint, just in time, giving the duck her liberty. And that Canada gentleman was back at his post in less than twenty seconds.

Millions and millions of dollars' worth of wealth belonging to the people of Canada have been lost because men thought camp fires would burn out by themselves. Sometimes they do. But if they don't we pay dear for it.

IS TORONTO GOING TO THE DOGS?

If a Peterborough man were to attempt to tell a Toronto friend that the Queen City is a place of empty stores and houses, where unemployment is rife and soup-kitchens are necessary, a heated argument would ensue, and probably the ties of friendship would be broken forever.

The Toronto citizen would undoubtedly resent any such reflection upon his home city, and would lose no time in telling the man who was criticizing it that he didn't know what he was talking about.

And yet Toronto members of Parliament rise to their feet in the Ottawa House and picture the city of which they are representatives in terms that would lead a stranger to believe that Toronto is tottering on the brink of total ruin, with no employment for those who want to work, houses for which no tenants can be found, and stores that are empty because there are no customers.

If they are right we outsiders who visit the Queen City occasionally must be very incapable observers, for we have failed to notice any of the signs of disaster that Messrs. Spence and Church have been depicting for the benefit of Parliament and as an indictment of the sins of the Federal Government.

Talk of that kind is not only decidedly poor advertising for Toronto, but it is most foolish politics, weakening instead of helping the cause in which it is uttered.

ANOTHER EPOCHAL ACHIEVEMENT.

Aviation history is being written at such a rate that it is difficult for the world to read all the pages that daring spirits are putting into the records.

In the last fortnight the westward flight of the Atlantic has been accomplished by a German-Irish crew; the two great French flyers, Costes and Lebrix, have successfully completed a 35,000 air jaunt around the world, during which they hopped from Tokio to Paris in six days; and now comes word of another outstanding flying achievement in the 2,100-mile flight over the top of the world from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitsbergen by Captain Wilkins and Ben Eielsen, a performance that must be ranked as among the most remarkable in the history of aeronautics.

The North Pole has been seen from the air on two previous occasions, Commander Byrd circling over it and returning to his base at Spitsbergen, while the dirigible "Norge" covered the air journey from Spitsbergen to Point Barrow. Wilkins' flight was the longest Arctic dash by a heavier-than-air machine and a triumph for the intrepid explorer, coming as it does after three years of effort.

Wilkins is an Australian, who has crowded into his life enough adventures for a dozen men.

Were he an American his name would by this time be almost as familiar as that of Lindbergh.

He has been flying since 1912, and earned his way round the world taking pictures from his aeroplane.

Since then, beyond serving in the Stefansson Arctic expedition, command the Australian photographic section on the Western front during the Great War, acting as second in command of the British Imperial Antarctic expedition in 1921 when he made a 300-mile trip in a whaleboat, serving with Sir Ernest Shackelton on the Quest expedition, doing special investigating work in Russia for the British Government, spending two and a half years in command of the Wilkins' Australian and Island expedition and flying 2,100 miles in a monoplane over the North Pole, his life has been an uneventful one.

EMPIRE SHOPPING WEEK.

If something of the thrill that enters into the story of the far-flung British Empire, something of the romance that is to be found in the history of the Empire products on sale in Peterborough stores, this Empire Shopping Week would seize upon the imagination of the people of this city and the campaign would be fruitful beyond the wildest dreams of its promoters.

Unfortunately, we know far too little about the origin of the goods we buy or sell, as the case may be.

From one end of the Empire to the other come articles for sale here, and none of us give a thought as to where or how they were produced or as to the colorful history that lies behind their production.

This Empire in itself is a wonderful thing to study; the list of self-governing dominions and of the colonies and protectorates under the British flag is a romance in itself.

Starting with the Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, it includes seven dominions, Canada, Newfoundland, Union of South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, the Irish Free State and Southern Rhodesia, India, and the following colonies and protectorates:

In Europe—The Isle of Man, Channel Islands, Gibraltar, Malta.

In Asia—Aden, Baluchistan, Bahrein Islands, Borneo, Sarawak, Ceylon, Cyprus, Hong Kong, Nicobar and Andaman Islands, Straits Settlement, Iraq and Palestine.

In Africa—Basutoland, Bechuanaland, Egypt, Gambia, Gold Coast, Kenya Colony, Mauritius, Nigeria, Nyasland, Northern Rhodesia, St. Helena and Ascension Isle, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Somaliland, Sudan, Swaziland, Uganda, Zanzibar, Cameroon, Tanganyika.

In America—Bermuda, Falkland Islands, Guiana, Honduras.

In West Indies—Bahamas, Barbados, Jamaica, Leeward Islands, Trinidad, Windward Islands.

In Oceania—Fiji, Pacific Islands, Papua, Territory of New Guinea, Western Samoa.

It would be of great interest to know how many of these links in the Empire are represented in the goods on the shelves and counters of Peterborough stores.

SOME STUFF OF SUCCESS.

Precise calculation may not be a characteristic of only Americans in their undertakings, but they evidently leave as little as possible to chance in their preparations and in their anticipations of the obstacles and hazards that may confront them. If precaution is a sign of prudence in perilous enterprises, such as Commander Richard Byrd's projected flight to the South Pole, it seems also to be an element of assured success borrowed from the world of business. There, success means practicability, utility, sales and profits, and part of its price is the prolonged and exacting tests intended to seek out and forestall any weakness which might be a belated discovery in actual service.

And if this policy applies to the production of a new machine of any kind, in which there may be financial but certainly no human risk, so much the more may this attitude be expected in the dangerous paths of glory and high emprise, and, as these valiant adventurers themselves would say, in the cause of science.

Hence, in his forehandedness, Commander Byrd recently subjected a big Ford tri-motor monoplane—incidentally, the same type of machine as passed over Peterborough on Friday—to the winter conditions of Reindeer Lake in Manitoba, 500 miles from the Arctic Circle. A complete and convincing achievement is the purpose of the Antarctic expedition next fall, and for that success it is necessary to ascertain in the preliminary stages how the plane performs under weather conditions that will be duplicated or worse in the non-stop flight of 1,700 miles from the most southerly base on Whale Bay.

So in the selected far north location the big plane was put through some of the ordeals of landing and taking off and flying that may be experienced possibly in a more rigorous degree beneath the Southern Cross. This may be called a "checking up" of some of the details, at least to the partial extent permitted by the frozen surface and loose snow of Reindeer Lake.

This test is but one of the episodes in the approaching volume of the Byrd saga, and if it yield fresh laurels and renown for the young Virginian it also throws a light upon the answer to that post-war cynicism, "What price glory," as it might be applied to these hyperborean flights. In mere money Commander Byrd's attempt will cost more than $500,000, which has been pledged by Henry and Edsel Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and others, who financed the Byrd Arctic expedition. And if, toward the end of the year or early in 1929, when the nights are brief in the far south, the cables flash the news of his success, we shall remember something of its background, of its spiritual and material elements, something of his invocation to safety, or perhaps to what men call a fifty-fifty fighting chance, and we shall remember that success is rarely achieved by a reckless leap into the dark.

THE DESIRE TO GET SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

Two men, charged with having swindled Canadians out of $500,000 through fraudulent stock sales, have been arrested in Atlantic City. Their apprehension, a tribute to the efficiency of the police, is a good thing, but, unfortunately, it will hardly restore the cash they extracted from their victims. It is for precisely this reason that the Blue Sky law recently introduced by the Ontario Government is so completely desirable.

No law, of course, will ever entirely eradicate crooks, or prove to be fool-proof; Barnum's dictum that a sucker is born every minute probably applies as much to this age as to any other. Still, any law which compels dealers in stocks and their salesmen to be registered, involving examination of their standing and propositions by competent authorities, ought to go a long way toward protecting the least wary.

It is recalled that a few months ago many Ottawa people were tempted into correspondence with an alleged firm in Montreal using nice stationery bearing the address of a big office building. At first the correspondence was limited to advice about investments in well-established securities, but later the prospects were to be put "on the ground floor" of a mining proposition that would yield startling profits. But the "go-getting" salesmen overstepped themselves when they used the long-distance telephone. Their voices, with the accents of the American bucket shop, created suspicion and in many cases fortunately undid the effect of a good office address and nice stationery. It is possible these operators later removed their headquarters to Toronto.

Today, more than ever before in this country's history, Canadians have become addicted to trading in stocks and bonds. It is, generally speaking, a quite legitimate practice, and, if carried on in a good sense, may be reasonably profitable. Ordinarily, there is, in such a field, an almost inevitable tendency on the part of some to gamble for high stakes, to get rich by some marvellously short cut, to [illegible] for little or nothing. Such adventures bring [illegible], disillusionment. If people who are [illegible] such ideas will consult experienced investment [illegible] market traders, they will find, if they are [illegible] ming, that there is no royal road to riches, [illegible] hordes of [illegible] are few fools quite so foolish as the man (1) Rev. [illegible] that by some strange prank of fate or [illegible] parka and the process of his own colossal intellect, he can become a Rockefeller over night.

It is this class of people, almost invariably—people who have little respect for the advice of any conservative trader—who provide a rich harvest for the type of "High Pressure" salesmen now under arrest at Atlantic City. Instead of going to legitimate brokers, who would advise them sanely, or dealing in stocks and bonds that offer but fair rewards, they prefer to deal with slick, plausible scoundrels with bags of gold at the end of their rainbows. The consequences, of course, are disastrous.

It will not be easy to protect such people from themselves. The step taken by the Attorney General, however, is in the right direction; and none should welcome it more than those who are marketing legitimate securities.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Empire buyers are Empire builders.

If that Cobourg trial continues much longer the reporters on duty there will be able to boast that they have written as much about the war as Sir Phillip Gibbs.

The Peterborough Automobile Club reports that the roads in the district, with the exception of the highway to Bewdley, are unfit for pleasure driving. Motorists, please note.

The responsibility of protecting Canada's forests is a general one. Remember, it is much easier to prevent a forest fire than to deal with one after it has started.

Thirteen years ago the 1st Canadian Division was having its initial baptism of fire and winning imperishable glory in blocking the road to the channel ports, and earning the official praise, "Their gallantry and determination undoubtedly saved the situation." The anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres should always be observed in Canada, and a debt of gratitude is owed to the Canadian Legion for seeing to that the occasion was fittingly marked here yesterday.

As we understand it, a he-man is one who possesses a high degree of male masculinity. — Florence (Ala.) Herald.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 23 (Canadian Press).— The demand from local and foreign buyers for grain here on Saturday was of a limited character and no sales of importance were recorded. Spot prices were unchanged.

Further strength developed in the market for winter wheat flour and prices were marked up another ten cents per barrel. The demand was quiet. Prices for spring wheat flour were firm under a moderate demand.

A feature of the millfeed trade was the improved demand from United States buyers for bran and an active business was done. The domestic trade was also good and values were unchanged. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but firm.

Prices for all grades of eggs were firmly maintained under a quiet inquiry. The receipts on Saturday were 3,454 cases.

A fair amount of business was done in butter, and the undertone to the market was firm. The receipts on Saturday were 1,085 packages.

The cheese trade continued quiet, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 301 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 23 (Canadian Press). — Wheat went downward in price on Saturday and corn up. Wet weather beneficial for wheat, especially west and south-west, was a wide-spread hindrance to planting of corn. Meanwhile prospects were reported good for a welcome general drenching in Kansas wheat fields before to-day. On the other hand, damage to some newly seeded wheat in spring crop states north-west was talked of as having resulted from low temperatures.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ¾c to 1⅛ net lower, with corn at ¾c to ⅞c advance, oats ¼c to 1⅛c down, and provisions showing 5c to 15c decline.

Rains and snow west and south-west appeared on Saturday to have done a good deal to improve moisture conditions for wheat in districts which have been complaining of drought. Many traders, however, asserted that the moisture supply was still insufficient ,and there was good buying on the breaks in prices. The result was a typical weather market throughout the day, fluctuations being both numerous and rapid from start to finish.

Rallies scored during the late transactions in wheat on Saturday were more or less due to buying on the part of speculators, who said that the 60 cents setback from the week's top prices was enough to warrant reinstatement of the lines. Purchasing toward the last was also done by previous sellers, who were in a position to collect a profit. Export demand on Saturday for wheat from North America was light. Compared with a week ago, wheat closed ½c to ⅝c lower for May delivery and ⅝c to ¼c higher for July.

Corn showed a disposition from the outset to break away from the influence of wheat. Not only were weather conditions unfavorable for field work and thus bullish as to corn, but cash demand for corn was fairly good and country offerings light. Oats were weak owing to central Illinois reports that frosts of late had only checked growth, but that little of the oats crop had been killed.

Scattered selling pulled the provision market down, despipte the fact that hog values were firm.

C.N.R. RADIO CHAIN IS BEING EXTENDED

Toronto Will Be Added To Eastern System of Company.

MONTREAL, April 23.—Toronto will be added to the Eastern chain of broadcasting centres operated by the Radio Department of the Canadian National Railways, the new tie-in becoming effective with the first program in May. By this addition the eastern chain will include CNRQ CNRM, CNRO and CNRT, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto respectively. The inclusion of Toronto in the chain will considerably widen the scope of these broadcasts and enable radio reception in certain sections of western Quebec and eastern Ontario now regarded as 'blind spots' in-so-far as some of the Canadian stations are concerned.

This hook-up will be entirely by means of Canadian National facilities, the land wire connections between Quebec and Toronto being through channels furnished by the Canadian Telegraphs.

The telegraph facilities are being continually improved by the extension of the carrier current system and as the latter method is advanced, the radio chain will be lengthened. The present plan calls for the inclusion of CNRW, Winnipeg, with the eastern stations during the Autumn, after which it is hoped to add CNRA, Moncton, to the chain, making a wide sweep across the Dominion. The plans do not end there but also provide for the inclusion of CNRV, Vancouver, as soon as the carrier current systems reaches the Pacific Coast. With Vancouver in the chain a new condition arises, that of the difference in time between Eastern Standard and Pacific Standard, three hours, so that it will not always be convenient to broadcast a coast programme in the east, or in the reserve direction. There is a difference of one hour between cities in the eastern group and Winnipeg, but that does not offer any serious difficulties.

Chain programmes now originate in the studios of the National System at Montreal and Ottawa and as soon as additional equipment is installed at Toronto, the latter city will be called to furnish a share of the entertainment, the cities rotating with programmes. The chain programmes, which begin with the programme of Thursday, May 3, will begin at 7.15 p. m. and continue until midnight and will be offered each Thursday. This plan will add to the value of the present programmes and offer greater diversity of entertainment.

With the inclusion of Toronto in May an additional feature will be added during this month. Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto shelter the largest group of golf enthusiasts in the Dominion and to reach this special audience Albert H. Murray, professional of the Beaconsfield Club, will give four ten minute talks before the microphone. Twice open champion of Canada, a player of undoubted skill, and noted for his sound method of instruction, Mr. Murray's talks should prove invaluable to many of the fraternity, whether highly polished or merely plodding.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS IN THE PROVINCES

Scheme Is Already In Force In British Columbia.

OTTAWA; Ont.; April 23 (by the Canadian Press).—Old Age Pensions in Canada are an established fact, and have been so since last September, when British Columbia, taking advantage of legislation by the Federal Parliament, embraced a scheme for providing for the aged citizens of the Pacific Coast by means of a monthly cheque. In so doing British Columbia inaugurated the system in Canada, and now the example is to be followed by two more western provinces of the Dominion, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

As between federal and provincial governments, the Canadian old age pension scheme is a fifty-fifty proposition. That is to say, each unit pays one-half of the pensions. The act which brought the system into being was passed by the federal government two sessions ago. It provided for a distribution of responsibility between the provinces and the Dominion. The Dominion Government undertook to pay one-half of the pension and the offer became applicable to any province that cared to adopt the plan.

Briefly, the proposition is that all citizens who have been residents in Canada for twenty years prior to reaching the age of 70 and who have not means exceeding $240 per annum are entitled to a pension. Should their private means be under the $240 total, then the pension paid will be just sufficient to bring the amount up to that figure. The Dominion Government further provided that the scheme would be applicable to any of the nine provinces which cared to take it up, but that the participating province should pay one-half of the pension, the other half being paid out of the federal treasury. There are several other qualifications that enter into the project, but in general terms the main features of the scheme are as outlined. This provides for a pension of $20 per month to the aged and destitute.

Last September British Columbia embraced the scheme, while the federal district of the Yukon also authorized its chief administrative officer, the gold commissioner, to enter into an agreement with the federal government so as to have the plan applied to that territory. (The Yukon is not a "province" but is administered by the Dominion Parliament through a legislative council which sits at Dawson City.) Arrangements were completed several days ago to render the provisions of the act applicable to the Yukon.

The scheme has steadily expanded, however, and this year both Saskatchewan and Manitoba adopted the plan. At present negotiations are in progress between the authorities concerned with a view to beginning the pensions payment in those two prairie provinces, and it is anticipated that by the first day of May the scheme will be inaugurated there.

One section of the Old Age Pensions Act sets forth that as soon as two provinces, contiguous to the North West Territories, adopt the plan, then the scheme will be made applicable to these Territories. This provision is met by the entry of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, since the northern boundary of each province is on the 60th parallel—the southern boundary line of the federally administered North West Territories.

Three of the nine provinces have thus accepted the scheme; which leaves six provinces still to adopt it. In each of the legislatures there have been strong efforts made to have enabling legislation passed, and it is anticipated in federal government circles that before the end of the present year the majority of the provinces will have come within its scope.

5 hours—OR 3 minutes?

FLOYD W. PARSONS, the well-known publicity expert said that on his last trip to France the telephone authorities told him it would take five hours to give him telephone connection between Paris and Havre. It only takes a railway train five hours.

Here, he could have been talking as great a distance in three or four minutes—if he gave the operator the distant number.

If you don't know the distant number, Long Distance will look it up for you, and tell you what it is, so you can make a memo. of it for future use.

A wise move is to give us a list of the firms you talk with by Long Distance, and let us supply the numbers. We will, gladly.

Newspaper Advertising

Is the Wind That Fills the Sails of Business

DAILY NEWSPAPERS seldom blow their own horn. Modesty forbids. Newspaper men prefer to do their work quietly and unostentatiously. They leave results to speak for themselves. Those results are tremendous. But there comes a time when it is no longer dutiful to sacrifice truth to modesty.

If the day of "personal" journalism is gone—the day when editorial opinion was almost as powerful as the edict of a king—the day of absolute dependability upon News is here as never before, and more than takes its place. Of all human institutions, the Daily Newspaper Press is still supreme.

WITHOUT the Daily Newspaper society could not function, could not progress, as it does to-day. There would be national paralysis. The people would perish for lack of knowledge. Corruption in municipal and national life would abound. Justice would be throttled. Power would be centred in the hands of the few. Stock Exchanges would dwindle to nothing. Business would perish of pernicious anaemia. Suspicion and distrust would usurp the place of faith and confidence. Foul rumour would encircle the land and chill the hearts of the people.

Recognising its supreme importance, every civilised nation upon earth long ago gave freedom to the press.

BECAUSE it so effectively lubricates the wheels of Business, Business has in the Daily Newspaper its most powerful ally. Because of the influence it wields with the public, Advertising in the Daily Newspaper yields a rich and certain reward. Honest and informative advertising is the greatest auxiliary any Business or Industry can have.

A NEW DAY is dawning for CANADA

The radiant beams of increasing prosperity are already well above the horizon and illumine the land from coast to coast. By planting the seed of Advertising in Canada's Daily Newspapers NOW, Business and Industry are sure of a steady and legitimate harvest, measurable only by the limits of human needs.

Leon Trotsky, who with Lenin, led the Russian proletariat revolt in 1917 in Russia was reported to be the victim several weeks or more ago of a murder plot, being fatally shot in the back by an Armenian while hunting in a lonely part of Turkestan, where he was exiled by the faction now dominating the union of Soviet republics but confirmation of the report is lacking, but it is credited in Moscow where adherents of the former Soviet war commission are reported to be wearing mourning bands on their arms. Official statements deny the report. According to report via Riga, Trotsky's friends allege that the present regime at Moscow, led by Stalin, Soviet distaator, were determined to silence Trotsky forever, thus ending his powerful opposition, together with that of Zinovieff and other "diehard" reds, to the new economic policy of Russia which compromises to a certain extent with capitalistic theories. CANADA'S FOREST FIRE LOSSES LESS IN 1927, SAYS MINISTER; GREATER CARE GREAT FACTOR

WEATHER FAVORABLE.

Public Realizing More and More Value of Forests and Need For Care.

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, is glad to be able to state that forest fire losses in Canada during 1927 were the lowest in recorded annals. In all 3,766 fires were reported in Canada during the last calendar year and these burned over an area of 481,373 acres, the total damage and loss sustained being placed at $1,396,055. This low record is equal to about 20 per cent of the loss suffered in 1926.

Although weather conditions had a large influence in the favourable fire season experienced in Canada last year, improved protective organization and the increased care taken by the general public in the handling of fire in the forests were undoubtedly most important factors. The heavy snowfall of the preceding winter followed by copious rainfall and cool weather through the spring months, practically did away with the usually dangerous period that occurs in the month of May. Thereafter the heavy growth of vegetation and frequent showers during the summer combined to produce a phenomenally favourable year in so far as fire hazard was concerned. In the northern parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan and the valley of the Mackenzie river the summer season was very dry and considerable areas were burned over, but with these exceptions Canada enjoyed comparative immunity from coast to coast.

The following table, which is subject to further slight revision, gives the figures for the year 1927 in detail and also by way of comparison the averages for the 5-year period, 1923-7:

	1927	Average for 5 years 1923-1927
Total number of fires	3,766	5,317
Total area burned (acres)	481,373	2,380,416
Merchantable timber—
Area burned (acres)	114,708	571,579
Timber burned (M.B.M.)	538,373	3,894,735
Estimated stumpage value	$ 831,492	7,510,013
Young growth—
Area burned (acres)	137,124	701,471
Estimated value	$ 193,481	2,287,314
Cut-over—
Area burned (acres)	35,875	448,802
Estimated value	$ 36,449	493,937
Non-forested—
Area burned (acres)	184,171	658,564
Other property burned—
Value	$ 91,670	815,977
Actual cost of fire-fighting	$ 242,963	638,644
Total gross damage and loss	$1,396,055	11,745,885

Note.—The general high average is due to the exceptional losses in 1923 when the total losses were over $40,000,000. The average for the last four years, i.e., 1924 to 1927 inclusive, was $4,463,995.

Following is a summary by provinces:

Maritime Provinces.—In Nova Scotia 125 fires burned 128 acres of merchantable timber and 976 acres of young growth along with 1,537 acres of non-forested land, causing a total loss of $3,338. The total area burned over was 2,750 acres, of which less than 5 per cent carried mature timber.

In New Brunswick 77 fires burned over 2,424 acres of which 20 per cent carried mature timber and 30 per cent young growth. The total loss of timber, old and young, reached a value of $1,847 and of other property, $5,686. The loss sustained in this province was only one-quarter of that in 1926 and the lowest on record.

Quebec and Ontario.—Although the Quebec statistics for the 1927 fire season were not fully compiled when this report was prepared, the Chief of the Forest Protection Service advised that conditions were most satisfactory and the losses smaller last year than ever before. This favourable summary was fully upheld by the reports of the six Forest Protective Associations which guard an area of 74,258 square miles. The Associations reported a total of 240 fires with almost negligible losses, 1927 being "a record year for low number of fires, small damage to limits, and low cost of fire-fighting."

In Ontario fewer fires occurred than in 1926 and the total area burned over, namely, 35,742 acres, was only 40 per cent as great as the 1926 total, and 20 per cent of that for 1925. There were 924 fires in 1927.

The Prairie Provinces.—In Manitoba 110 fires occurred. Eighteen of these were in National Forests, but covered only 197 acres out of the total of 26,225 acres burned over. Although the favourable fire conditions which prevailed throughout other parts of the Dominion were experienced in the southern parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta, a period of extreme hazard occurred in the north of these two provinces. This situation accounted for the relatively heavy fire losses reported from northern Saskatchewan. In this province 40 per cent of the fires occurred in or near national forests, and these burned over 10,000 acres, confined largely to hay sloughs, causing only $8,000 damage. The other 60 per cent, which occurred mostly in the unsettled north country covered approximately 224,000 acres and occasioned a loss of $755,000 chiefly in pulpwood or cordwood material. In Alberta there were in all 231 fires, only five of which occurred in the extensive national forests where less than three acres was burned over. Eighty per cent of all fires in Alberta were detected and put out before reaching a size of ten acres. The total area burned over was 36,998 acres, of which 6,433 acres carried mature timber and 3,902 acres, young growth.

British Columbia.—The year 1927 with its well distributed rainfall brought a welcome relief from the strain and heavy losses of several bad fire years in this province. There were, however, a number of dry electrical storms which caused, on provincial lands, 40 per cent and on Dominion lands 50 per cent of the number of fires which occurred. The tota l number of fires was 1,478; these burned over 105,956 acres of forest land, carrying 13,004 acres of merchantable timber and 20,193 acres of valuable young growth. The loss in buildings and other property amounted to $74,944. The losses in 1927 were almost exactly one-tenth of the corresponding losses in 1926.

Other Features.

Although over ten per cent of all the reported forest fires in Canada last year were of railway origin, they were responsible for less than one per cent of the total area fireswept and of the total loss. From Nova Scotia to Yukon 390 railway fires were reported. These burned over 4,181 acres, of which 412 carried mature timber and 906 acres, young growth. This fine record is largely due to the widespread co-operation between the various forest protective agencies and the railways to prevent fire loss.

In parts of Ontario and Quebec and the Prairie Provinces aeroplane patrols were again active and in some cases this feature of forest protective work was extended. The lessened fire hazard over the greater part of the Dominion provided an opportunity for the various services to carry out exceptionally heavy programs of work to improve fire detection and suppression facilities.

Without exception the reports received from every part of the Dominion call attention to the very encouraging co-operation between forest services and the public, an evidence that everywhere there is a growing appreciation of forest values and a greater realization of the urgent need of preventing further unnecessary destruction and waste of our forest resources.

MEN PLOWING AT BAILIEBORO

Find Soil in Fairly Good Shape —Roads Much Better.

FARMERS BUSY.

BAILIEBORO, April 23.—Albert Dawson and Hilliard McMahon are the first farmers of the district to commence spring work on the land. H. McMahon commenced at the end of the week to plow a field that had grown a crop of peas last year. He stated the land plowed exceptionally well, as it was fairly light soil. On Saturday, A. Dawson plowed all day in a field of sweet clover sod. The soil was a heavy clay. The sod was turning over in good form and a good day's work was accomplished. The farmers are awaiting two or three fine warm days which will put the land in excellent condition to commence spring seeding.

Owing to the continued cold, windy weather there has been no growth during the past fornight, but the wheat and seeds are apparently holding their own.

Farmers are mostly engaged in repairing their fences and building new ones around their farms, while others are doing their statute labor on the township roads, to save time when spring does eventually arrive.

The township roads which have been in such a terrible condition during the past month are now becoming quite firm and motor traffic is once again being carried on over the major portion of the roads. There are still some rough holes here and there in the road-beds, but the past week has made a noted improvement upon the roads in general.

The provincial highway between the village and Bewdley is now in first-class condition for light car traffic.

HEARINGS ON TARIFF TO CONTINUE IN MAY

Canada Crayon Company Has Applied For Increase in Tariff.

OTTAWA, April 23.—Immediately the advisory board on tariff and taxation resumes its sittings May 15, the application of the Consumers' League for a downward revision in the tariff on rubber goods will be considered for the second time. The board heard some of the arguments last fall.

Several new applications will be considered May 16.

The application of the Roofers Supply Co., Ltd., of Toronto, for a reduction of tariff on tile roofing from 35 to 10 per cent., a plea of Alexander Murray and Co., of Montreal for a lower tariff on celotex, and the application of the Canada Crayon Co., Ltd., of Peterborough, for an increase in the tariff on wax, mill and railroad crayons, and carpenters' chalk, from 17½ per cent. to 40 per cent. general, 35 per cent. intermediate, and 30 per cent. preferential.

The forest supplies work for thousands of men—in the woods and the mills and the wood-working and paper-making factories. These men support families and schools, churches, stores, factories, villages, towns and cities. Forest industries rank second in importance only to agriculture. They provide a big market for farm products. Think twice before you light the match; think twice again before you throw it away. Your camp fire may burn itself out. But don't let it go at that. Put it out with water. Don't leave it until it is dead. To save the 27% of our forests that remains means continued prosperity. It means hard times and unemployment if we go on burning our forests up as we have been doing. Be careful with fire wherever you are. But be more careful than ever in the woods.

If every man, woman and child in Canada would realize the danger of fire, practise carefulness at all times, and back up the fire ranger in his efforts to control fire outbreaks, Canada would save millions of dollars worth of timber every year.

TWO COUNTRIES WORK TOGETHER

Speakers Will Be Exchanged During Save-the-Forests Campaign.

CLUBS CO-OPERATE.

Arrangements have been completed by the Honourable Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, with the United States authorities for an exchange of speakers during the Forest Week campaigns which are being conducted concurrently in the United States and Canada during the week of April 22 to 28. The Canadian Clubs are co-operating, and Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, chairman of the American Forestry Committee, will address the Canadian Club at Ottawa, and Colonel W. B. Greenley, Chief Forester of the United States, will speak before the Canadian Club at Toronto. Hon. Charles Stewart goes to Washington to address a joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the American Forestry Association. A national hook-up of American radio stations has also been arranged and Mr. Stewart will follow the President of the United States in a broadcast address.

Hon. T. A. Burrows, Lieutenant Governor of Manitoba, will speak before a convention of the International Order of Hoo Hoo, the largest lumbermen's fraternal organization on this continent, at their international headquarters in St. Louis, Missouri. Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario is to address the Canadian Club of New York City and Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Minister of Lands and Forests for British Columbia, is going to Portland, Oregon, to speak before the Chamber of Commerce in that city.

Negotiations are in progress for additional United States speakers to come to Canada, and for other Canadians to address further meetings in the United States. The forest problems with which the speakers are individually concerned will provide the topics of these addresses.

DENOUNCES SCHEME FOR PAPER MERGER

Leeds Man Fears Rothermere Syndicate's Invasion of Northern England.

LONDON, England, April 23.—(Canadian Press).—Dr. James Graham, director of Education for the City of Leeds, has publicly voiced his apprehensions of the possible results of the invasion of Northern England by a great London newspaper syndicate, headed by Lord Rothermere. He was speaking at a gathering of a social character promoted by one of the old-established Leeds evening papers.

"This proposal to establish new evening newspapers in all leading provincial cities fills me with anxiety and alarm," declared Dr. Graham. "These papers can succeed only at the cost of the life of some existing local newspapers. Suppose Lord Rothermere does succeed in setting up completely efficient papers that are the last word in modern evening journalism, what will be the price which the public in the provinces will have to pay?.

"It means that instead of the organs that are locally controlled, that are really native to the city and the county, that understand and express our local provincial sentiment there will be a ring of gramaphones that have their inspiration from a high and mighty potentate in London. A good newpaper has an individuality. It has personality. And it is not in the public interest nor to the public benefit that this individuality shall be destroyed in a common mould. Automata operated from a London office are no satisfactory substitute, alternative, or exchange for a living individuality such as the local evening papers possess.

"Our local papers are our friends. The feelings of the people react on the paper, and the paper reacts on the people. The effect is to develop and bring about an improvement in the working conditions, in the purity of public life, and in a hundred and one ways to bring about betterment of the city and county as a whole."

VALUE OF FOREST PRODUCTS

The value of the annual harvest of Canada's forests is not far short of $500,000,000 even with the present somewhat wasteful methods of exploitation. It has been estimated that by proper protection and management the accessible forest land of Canada can be made to produce at least three times the present annual cut in perpetuity.

NEW CADILLAC POWERFUL CAR

Largest and Most Luxurious Model To Bear Name Placed On Market.

OF BEAUTIFUL DESIGN.

The largest, most powerful and most luxurious Cadillac ever produced is on display at this year's automobile show. The engine is bigger and more powerful than in the cars shown at the 1927 show, the chassis is larger, bodies are more spacious and their designs, colors and appointment are entirely new since that date.

The latest Cadillac is pointed out as the crowning achievement of a quarter century of manufacture by an organization which has always produced cars of the highest grade. Incidentally the Cadillac Motor Car Company of Canada is this year for the first time showing two different cars—the LaSalle and the Cadillac.

At the time of its introduction last September, the new Cadillac, known as model 341, was announced as being designed for the ultra-exclusive class of owners who desire, irrespective of price, the finest automobile obtainable, with all of the prestige and satisfaction that go with the ownership of a vehicle closely approaching motor car perfection.

The "341" model is large in every dimension exception height, distinguished in appearance, an extra comfortable. The chassis is more rugged, and has been lengthened to a 140-inch wheelbase. The engine is larger than in previous models, having a 341-inch piston displacement, instead of the former 314, with an S.A.E. rating of 35.0, actually developing 90. It is of the V-type eight, proved in a quarter of a million Cadillacs. The car is presented in 26 body styles—fourteen by Fisher and twelve by Fleetwood.

It is evident from the examples on display at the show that the body styles follow the modernistic trend, yet possess great retraint and dignity. They reflect a sincere and successful effort on the part of the designers to create a line of bodies distinctive in their beauty, comfort, luxury and richness.

From the handsome, distinctive radiator, deep slung in the chassis, creating a low, fleet and powerful appearance from the front, to the detail of the slat-covered gasoline tank in the rear, these bodies are a plainly evident departure from the past.

The radiator itself—which has set a new fashion in the automobile industry—is of a design originated by the Cadillac Company and first used in modified form in the LaSalle—deep and narrow, with its depth emphasized by vertical shutters which are operated thermostatically. Its base is a beautiful curve instead of the more usual straight line base and a large crank cap is let into its lower portion, emphasizing the depth.

The head-on appearance of the car is deeply impressive. Headlamps are large—twelve inches in diameter—of the bullet type, with a windsplit tapering to the apex. This device is duplicated in the bullet-type side lamps which are mounted on the nickeled cowl band.

A new feature is the battery box let into the front of the right-hand dust shield, the cover of which forms a "kick pad." Another "kick pad" is located in the dust shield beneath the rear door, a step light being placed between. In the left side dust shield is a tool box with combination cover and kick-pad and a second kick-pad beneath the rear door.

It is interesting to note in the instrument pad a new development which is really an old one. The instruments are not arranged in a central group but across the dash in individual assemblies. The dash color is also a return to plain black. Numerous other features are incorporated in the car, not the least of which is a simple device by which the driving seat can easily be adjusted to sit a small woman or an extremely tall man.

USES MADE OF OUR TIMBER

Of the total of 2,500,000,000 cubic feet of standing timber cut in Canada annually during the period, 1922-6, the proportions put to various uses were approximately as follows: fuelwood, 35 per cent; lumber, etc., 29.8 per cent; pulpwood, 21 per cent; railway ties, 7 per cent; shingles, 2.5 per cent; posts, poles, mining lumber, logs, and square timber exported, 4.7 per cent.

When will Canada learn that her forests must be "cropped," not "mined"?

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Strangle Fire Before it starts!

Don't forget

What takes years to replace may be destroyed in a few minutes.

The tremendous developments now taking place in Canada from coast to coast would be handicapped should our forests be further seriously depleted by fire.

In the past it is stated that forest fires have destroyed more of our standing timber than was consumed legitimately by manufacturer and builder.

Any program that has as its object the protection of our forests from fire should have the hearty co-operation of all our citizens.

The Quaker Oats Company, Limited

Peterborough - - Saskatoon

Fire Prevention is a Necessity if we are to Keep Our Woodworking Factories Going!

To compute accurately the actual value in dollars and cents that the Canadian forests are to the city of Peterborough is a task that few would willingly attempt. A thought of the numerous industries in the city which depend solely or at least partly on the products of the forests as material from which to fashion their finished products carries an appalling sense of defeat; the numbers of men employed incidentally and the weekly payroll of each industry are all factors to be taken into consideration and added to the sum total of all these is the task of figuring just how many of those industries would exist where the forests in this country or of the entire continent passed out of existence.

Count up the industries locally which should be considered as using lumber in production of almost all of their products. One thinks of the McDonald Lumber Company, the Peterborough Lumber Company, the Canadian Aladdin Company, Canadian Canoe Company, and the Peterborough Canoe Company. Others, such as the C.G.E. and De Laval, use lumber to some extent.

The Canadian Aladdin Company is one firm which uses wood almost exclusively in the production of its houses which are so rapidly gaining in popularity. With a staff of twenty-five men now on the payroll and promise of this number growing as the busier summer season draws near, this firm is using up more than one million board feet of lumber per year and still more significant is the fact that at least 25 per cent of this firm's business is in the city of Peterborough. Kitchen cabinets, book cases and other household effects are also produced by Canadian Aladdin. Certainly it would not be the industry it now is were the forests to be completely lost to Canada.

In addition to his own personal desire as a citizen, B. G. Robinson, the manager, has, therefore, a very keen interest in the preservation of the forests whatever be the method employed. He voiced his hearty approval of the "Save the Forests" campaign and expressed the belief that his employees as well as himself are hopeful for the day when campers and bushmen will have realized the importance of taking every precaution against the forest fire.

Employing in the neighborhood of eighty men the year round, the McDonald Lumber Company is another Peterborough industry which would not exist as it does to-day were it not for the timber wealth of the Province and Dominion. During the winter, the majority of that number of men go into the camps of the company while in the summer they are employed in the Peterborough plant. From an ecomonic standpoint as well as civic those employees and Peterborough citizens are interested in the preservation of the forest wealth.

The Peterborough Lumber Company is similarly situated, depending entirely upon the forests of the country.

In approving the value of a Save the Forest week, W. A. Richardson, of the Peterborough Canoe Company spoke from the viewpoint of a business man. "As our industry uses wood almost exclusively", said he, "we cannot get along without the forests and as industries like ours try to locate as near to the source of supply as possible, we have found Peterborough among the best. We must not only be able to get the wood but we must get it at a reasonable figure; if the source were seriously depleted by fires the prices would go up and competition with others more ideally located would not be practicable.

"We employ about one hundred men all the year round and we purchase most of our wood right in this province, a fact significant in itself", he concluded.

The Canadian Canoe Company, like the Peterborough Canoe Company, depends on the forests for much of its supply and, so far as this city is concerned, might not exist were the forests of the province seriously depleted. The value of this firm to Peterborough is well known—it is another argument in favor of care and caution in the bush.

PREVENT FIRE

Save the forest and reduce the cost of wood manufactures to you. If wood grows scarcer and still more scarce, then necessarily all products manufactured of wood must increase in price.

This applies to so many articles, from tooth picks to furniture, that it affects everyone.

A lighted cigarette carelessly thrown away, a cigar not entirely out, a spark from a pipe, a match dropped before it has ceased to burn. Any of such causes may start a conflagration that will destroy acres of standing forest, wipe out homes and other buildings, and endanger human lives.

IT IS EASIER TO PREVENT A FIRE THAN TO PUT ONE OUT.

The De Laval Co. Limited

There are many years of prosperity to look forward to in Canada if we appreciate our natural resources, one of the chief of which is the enormous heritage of timber of all kinds we are possessed of. Let us protect this valuable asset by assisting in every way we can to prevent forest fires, which is the chief enemy of the lumbering industry.

Prevention of Fire

in our forests will preserve the forest wealth of our country. As users of wood in a big way in the manufacture of our ready-made homes and other products of our plant, we can assure you that the ravages of fire in our forests will do more to increase the cost of buildings in this country than any other single agency.

Canadian Aladdin Company Limited

There Is No Doubt

of every loyal Citizen in the Dominion gladly assisting the different organizations that are doing all in their power to bring forcibly before the people of this country the necessity for the protection of our Forests from the ravages of fire. The activities of all such should receive the hearty co-operation of our citizens. No greater catastrophe could come to the Dominion at this stage of development than for it to experience the same timber loss as in the past.

Peterboro Canoe Co. Limited

Fire Prevention

Having been in the lumbering business for almost three quarters of a century, our firm can speak from experience of the terrible loss a forest fire occasions to those engaged in the industry. Not only does the individual lumberman suffer, but the country as a whole when our standing timber is destroyed by fire.

It costs less to prevent fires than to suffer one, and if we in this district of Central Ontario will do our bit in forest fire prevention, with other parts of the Dominion, it should be reflected on industry in general ,and help to keep our workmen busy.

Alfred McDonald Lumber Co.

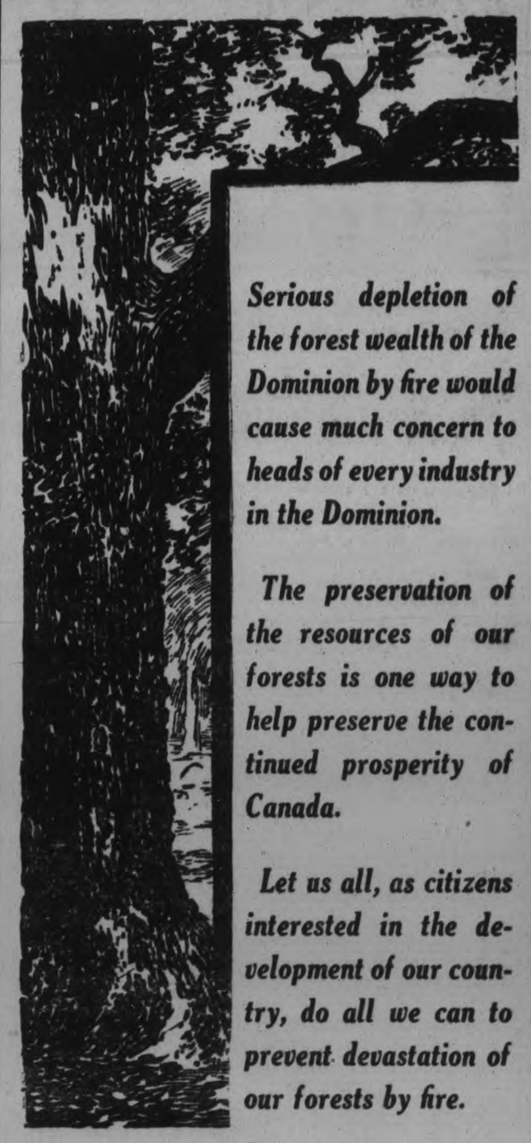
It Would Be Disastrous.

Should this country be subject again to the same loss by fire to the natural resources of our forests as it has been in the past, it would be one of the greatest calamities that could happen to us as citizens.

Many industries are dependent upon the products of the forest for much of their business, and in our close contoct with the lumberman in the distribution of our lumbermen's ranges we know the menace of a forest fire causes grave concern to all in any way connected with the lumbering business.

Let us do all we can to co-operate with any agency that is endeavoring to protect our forests from ravishes of fire.

Adam Hall Limited



Serious depletion of the forest wealth of the Dominion by fire would cause much concern to heads of every industry in the Dominion.

The preservation of the resources of our forests is one way to help preserve the continued prosperity of Canada.

Let us all, as citizens interested in the development of our country, do all we can to prevent devastation of our forests by fire.

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

SALES MANAGER FOR TWO FIRMS

J. J. L. Ardiel Appoints Local Agents of Oldsmobile, Cadillac, and La Salle.

Few men are sales managers of two companies at the same time. Yet that is the position of J. J. L. Ardiel, who is responsible for the appointment of Howson Motors as local dealers for Oldsmobile Cadillac and LaSalle cars.

Both the companies of whose products Mr. Ardiel directs the marketing are members of the General Motors family. One, the Olds Motor Works of Canada, manufactures Oldsmobile sixes; the other, Cadillac Motor Car Company of Canada, produces the smart LaSalle and the Cadillac which this year has been styled "the ultimate in motordom."

In appointing T. H. Shield and W. S. Howson as local dealers for the three lines manufactured by his two divisions, Mr. Ardiel emphasized the opportunities provided in the Peterborough field, not only on account of the purchasing power of this district but because of the great refinements and improvements in the cars themselves.

Speaking of the Oldsmobile particularly, Mr. Ardiel pointed out to an interviewer that this radical new car could properly be termed the fine car of the low price. For more than thirty years Oldsmobile has been steadily revising and improving its product, while at the same time it had steadily been turning over to the public in lowered prices the benefits of increasing sales. The new Oldsmobile six, now on display in Howson Motors' showrooms, represents the year's greatest contribution to the field of medium-priced sixes.

It will be something new for the residents of Peterborough and district to have the opportunity of inspecting and purchasing such luxurious cars as the LaSalle and the Cadillac. The appointment of local dealers for such distinguished lines indicates a growing appreciation of beauty and quality, together with a growing number of residents able to gratify their desires. Yet it is emphasized by Mr. Ardiel that LaSalle models run as low as $3,600 in delivered price here.

Interest in Cadillac and LaSalle cars in Ontario is greater than it has ever before been. Recently he arranged a display which occupied almost the entire ground floor of the Bloor building in Toronto. Thousands of people viewed the display, which was one of the largest ever held in Canada, and a large number of sales resulted. Newspapers in the States, incidentally, commented on the excellence of the display.

Both Cadillac and LaSalle lines, it is emphasized, are now exceptionally complete. Five new body models were recently added to the LaSalle array, while the latest Cadillac was announced only last September. It is the largest, most powerful and most luxurious Cadillac ever manufactured.

able only for flying boats in openings in ice packs 200 miles or more apart in the Arctic Sea, and Commander Byrd's belief that few if any landing spots are available. He indicated, however, that observations by Captain Wilkins during his preparations for his flight supported the theory that safe landings can be made.

Made Three Forced Landings

In support of Wilkins' belief that landing places exist about every five miles in the Arctic, Stefansson told of three forced landings that Wilkins and Eielson made far North of Point Barrow a year ago. Each time the landing was made without injury to the occupants of the plane and when a wing was damaged on the last forced descent, Wilkins and Eielson dismantled their plane and made of it emergency equipment with which they treked back to civilization, meanwhile living on wild game.

These adventures coupled with the aerial conquest of the Arctic tend to prove the greater safety of trans-Polar flight over trans-oceanic flight between continents, Stefansson believes.

Flying conditions in the Arctic generally are far more favorable than those over the North Atlantic, he said, and air travellers in the event of a forced landing have an obviously greater chance of surviving.

Stefansson summarized Wilkins' work: "He has at last achieved the Northwest passage that the Elizabethans dreamed of—the short route to India."

No "Lost Continent."

Capt. Wilkins was second in command of Stefansson's expedition of 1917-18. Referring to his five-year adventure in the Arctic with Wilkins, Stefansson scouted the legend of a "lost continent" in the Arctic. He indicated in the section of the Arctic still unexplored there is not room for land the size of Cuba or Labrador. He added nothing but deep sea had been found by his expedition in the area where the "lost continent" was supposed to lie.

During the time of his 1913-18 expedition, Stefansson said Wilkins became the first aviator to study the floating ice pack, making observations far from land and securing data from which he evolved his theory that safe landings could be made in the Arctic.

Wilkins' expedition was known as the Detroit News-Wilkins Arctic Expedition, of which Stefansson is a director. The scientific side of the expedition was under the auspices of the American Geographical Society of New York.

ISSUE DIRECTORY OF PUBLICATIONS

A. McKim, Ltd., Put Out Annual Book of Statistics About Papers.

Advertisers throughout Canada and in the United States will welcome the 1928 edition of McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications which has just been released.

This publication which has been issued annually with few exceptions since 1892 is now regarded as the most authentic and informative work of its kind in Canada.

It is the twenty-first edition, and it has been the endeavour of the publishers at all times to make each number more complete and more dependable than previous editions.

In fact, this Directory is accepted as a reliable source of information on Canadian Publications, and is regularly consulted for Canadian geographical and statistical particulars twelve months in the year.

A CHORUS ROWS, for this is part of their daily work in keeping fit for nightly duties. "Smiles," Misses Dora Burns and Ada Lind tell us, "are kept dazzling white by Pepsodent."

Let These Smiles

Show How to Keep Teeth Dazzling White

It's been found that dingy teeth come from a film that forms on teeth. A stubborn film ordinary dentifrices do not successfully remove.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel that film now—a sort of slippery coating.

It absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It invites tooth decay, gum troubles and is the chief cause of pyorrhea because it breeds bacteria and is the basis of tartar.

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, scientific combatants are found. Leading dentists widely urge it. All druggists have it. Ten-day test free.

Bullet From River Hits Windsor Car

WINDSOR, April 23. — With a bullet hole through the windshield of his automobile, and with his face badly cut by flying glass splinters, as a result, it is believed, of a shot fired by the United States river patrol, or during a rum-runners' feud, Edward Warren, aged 35, of 656 Oullette Avenue, Windsor, on Saturday night asked the City Police Department to conduct an inquiry.

Warren was driving east on Sandwich Street East shortly after 8 o'clock on Saturday evening, almost opposite the water works, when a bullet, coming from the direction of the river, crashed through the windshield of his car, and buried itself in the upholstering of the seat on which he was sitting.

According to Sergeant Willis Brumpton, who was on duty at Police Headquarters, Warren narrowly missed death from the mystery shot. The sergeant immediately registered a formal complaint with Detroit officials of the patrol, but the officers across the river denied all knowledge of any shooting in which the patrol was involved.

Railway Shares Soar Other Selling Checked.

NEW YORK, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Stock prices showed to-day a revival of activity and strength in railroad shares, under the leadership of Delaware and Hudson which soared 17½ points to new high price record at 210½, checked selling in other quarters. Early losses of 1 to 12 points were substantially reduced or wiped out by mid-day rally. Trading continued in fairly heavy volume, sales crossing the 2,000,000 share mark before the end of the third hour.

Early selling was directed principally against tobacco stocks as a result of cigarette price cutting war by leading manufacturers. Official predictions that lower cigarette prices would result in large sales and increased profits brought about a sharp rebound in those issues. New York Tractions were again strong on rumors of an early and favorable decision in the seven cent fare case. Hudson and Manhattan which is not involved in present court proceedings, ran up six points to a new high record at 68¼.

Active Leaders Move Slowly, Lesser Issues Gain Strength.

TORONTO, April 23 (Canadian Press).—While the active leaders on the Toronto Stock Exchange moved within a narrow range in this mornings busy session a number of stocks in which trade actions are much less frequent, advanced sharply and lent strength to the market. Hamilton Theatres registered the smartest gain closing strongly at noon at 21½, for a gain of five points over Friday nights quotation, while Gilman Preferred, although only a few sales were made jumped four point to 125. Bell Telephone was in demand and was carried to 170, where it showed an advance of 2½ points, but at noon it had sagged to 169, where it showed 1½ point gain. Consolidated Smelters moved up three points on light trading to 273½. Loblaw at 100 was up two. International Nickel again outdistanced all other stocks in point of activity, 3,460 shares changing hands, the price remaining steady. City Dairy was also active, selling unchange at 53 throughout the morning. Declines were not numerous; Brompton again lost ground being off 3⅝ at 623; steel of Canada was off two at 220.

Market Shows Weakness Hudson Bay Down Forty

TORONTO, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Prices developed a slightly weaker tendency on the Standard Mining Exchange in a comparatively dull session this morning. Sales totalled approximately 800,000 shares. Noranda ran contrary to the general trend of the market, spurting upward to 18.10 for a gain of seventy cents. Hudson Bay Smelting led the declines, being off 40 points at 17.60, while Pend Oreille continued to lose ground being 15 cents lower at 19.75. Hollinger was off ten at 15.90. There were a number of other losses, but generally they were insignificant.

Insufficient Moisture Reports Add Strength to Wheat Price

CHICAGO, April 23 (Canadian Press).—With reports at hand that the moisture in the Southwest and West has proved to be insufficient, wheat prices moved upward to-day in the early dealings Besides, Liverpool quotations were relatively firm and European crop advices bullish. Opening unchanged to ¾ cent higher, Chicago wheat later showed an all around advance. Corn, oats, and provisions were also firmed with corn starting ⅛ to ½ cent up and subsequently continued to show gains.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 154¼, July 154½. Corn, May 105⅝, July 109¼. Oats, May 63, July 54⅜.

Currie showed Mr. Wilson a map which he used to picture the movements of the Canadian troops. Mr. Wilson said the map produced in Court was something like it. He would not positively identify it as the one he had seen in Montreal. On that occasion Mr. Wilson stated that General Currie had produced certain army orders and later sent him copies of them. These orders showed that had General Currie followed these orders, he would have been beyond Mons by November 9. Mr. Wilson knew General Currie was inviting him to withdraw what he (Currie) believed to be a very unfair article.

Story for Privates.

Mr. Wilson made no comment, and returned to Port Hope to take up the matter with Mr. Preston. He brought back a fair report of what Sir Arthur had said. Mr. Preston was willing that Mr. Wilson should withdraw, but Mr. Wilson would not. He wanted to have the privates share in the glory of taking Mons.

Mr. Tilley, "You thought there was glory attached to the taking of Mons."

"I would not say that. If there was glory I wanted the privates to share it."

Mr. Wilson still refused to withdraw. He had talked with men who had taken part in the capture of Mons. He could only remember one name, Hill. In answer to a positive question by Mr. Tilley if he could only identify one of these men, Mr. Wilson replied in the affirmative.

Asked regarding a copy of the Globe which referred to the unveiling of the Mons Memorial, Mr. Wilson said he had no advance notice that the article would appear. The Guide is a small paper and does not take cable news. It is on the street at five o'clock.

Mr. Preston happened to be in Mr. Wilson's office when the Globe came in. Mr. Preston agreed to write the article and Mr. Wilson to publish it. The article was written that afternoon and published the same day. Mr. Wilson made certain alterations before publishing. He visited Sir Arthur with an opeh mind, ready to make the amend honourable, were he convinced of his error. He was not convinced.

At ten minutes to three after, fifty minutes of which was taken by Mr Tilley's examination, Mr. Wilson was allowed to step down.

AUSTRIAN WAR PLANS REPORTED STOLEN

Orders Governing Communications In Event of Mobilization Sent To Poland.

VIENNA, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Important secret plans containing the regulations governing telephone and telegraph in the event of army mobilization or the declaration of Austrian neutrality in the event of war are stated by the Vienna Morgen Zeitung to have been stolen from the Austrian Telegraph Department.

The newspapers say that two former Austrian officers, both convicted on previous charges, were arrested. They are stated to have called at the Telegraph Department, and, presenting forged orders from the War Office, obtained the documents which the paper says were sent to Poland.

THE CHURCHES

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Announcement of a Mission to be given by three Redemptorist Fathers, to commence on Sunday, May 6th, was made by Rev. P. Costello at the morning Masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday. It is five years since such a Mission was preached here.

Speaking on the Gospel narrative which presents a picture of Christ as the Good Shepherd, drawing His flock into the one true fold, Rev. Father Costello referred to this as the simile used by Our Lord in speaking of His Church. A figure of the same type was used when reference was made to the Vine with many branches.

"The church was not created for a portion only of the population of the earth. It was to be a world empire, because Christ, in His infinite love and goodness and mercy, came to shed His sacred blood for the salvation of all mankind. He was the Good Shepherd and He sent His apostles out to speak the Gospel to every living creature. The Gospel excludes private judgment. The commission given by Christ was to go forth and teach the message given by Himself. The Church has no doubt about her faith. She goes on, in season and out of season, teaching the same old truths which are always the same and are never divisible. She has no country, no color nor race, and is bounded by no earthly empire. Christ made no distinction in souls. He came to save them all."

IN POLICE COURT

John Elliott was granted a week's remand on the charge of stealing a pipe and jewelry from the Woolworth store. E. Sheehy appeared for the accused.

A girl from Trent Bridge pleaded not guilty to a charge of vagrancy, and was remanded for one week.

His Worship dismissed the charge of assault against a local merchant, laid by a former employee. No witnesses were called for the defendant as His Worship ruled that no undue force was used in ejecting the woman from the store. J. A. O'Brien appeared for the defendant and E. Sheehy for the accused.

DIVISION OFFICER VISITS LOCAL CORPS

Major Ritchie Conducts Services at Salvation Army During Week-end.

Major Ritchie, who has recently been appointed the Divisional Commander for the Toronto East Division, accompanied by Staff Capt. Ritchie, chancellor and young people's secretary, visited the local corps this week end. During the afternoon service His Worship Mayor R. Denne was present and accorded the visitors a welcome to the city. "It is a privilege to be here," stated His Worship, "as it is indeed a pleasure to help the Salvation Army at any time. Since I have occupied the Mayor's chair of this city, I have more than ever realized the value of the work of the Army in our city and I assure you I am at all times glad of the opportunity of helping the local corps. I might suggest to Ensign Green that he extend an invitation to the whole city council and its officers to attend in a body. It will probably do them good. (Applause.) To you, our visitors, I wish to extend a hearty welcome to our city. We have a wonderful city, a wonderful people, and are glad to have you as our guests. I will not stop to say much this afternoon regarding our city, as you will doubtless be seeing something of it during your stay. Major Ritchie and Staff Capt. Ritchie, on behalf of our city I extend you a real cordial welcome."

Major Ritchie, in reply said: "I must be honest with you, Mr. Mayor and say that I can hardly find words to express my appreciation of your cordial welcome. We do sir, thank you for your words. Your city is well known from coast to coast, for it has been my privilege to hear of you way east, yonder where the Atlantic waters wash the shores of Cape Breton, N.S., and in the city of Halifax where I was privileged to work in the Salvation Army. I am delighted to meet you all here this afternoon and more especially to see this fine crowd of young people and pray that God will guide them aright and that a foundation will be laid in their lives that will make of them all good citizens of this fair city and good Christians."

Interesting items during the service included the presentation of proficiency badges to the Boy Scouts by His Worship, who urged that they remain true and firm to the principles of Scoutcraft. Staff Captain Ritchie presented to Deputy Bandmaster Austin, who is the chum leader, (the chums are the young boys up to seven years of age) the registration certificate of the No .4 Brigade of Chums, which at present has a role of forty-six. This is the fourth chums brigade that has been formed in the Eastern Canada territory.

Major Ritchie presented a long service badge to Bandsman C. Breadman, a veteran with thirty-nine years of Salvation Army service as a bandsman, who for a number of years was the band color-sergeant. To a son of this veteran was presented a new flugel horn for use in the band, this being the third new instrument that has been acquired by the Peterborough Temple Band within the last two weeks It is interesting to note that these instruments are manufactured by the Salvation Army in St. Albans, England, and the presentations are coincidental to the Empire Shopping Week that is being celebrated in the city.

Ensign Green announced that tonight will be English night, the second of a series of national evenings. And that sausage rolls and tea will be distributed among those present.

WAR VETERANS COMMEMORATE

as they do each year at some place of worship to pay a tribute to the memory of the thousands who laid down their lives, fighting as they did with their backs to the wall, building of their bodies a barricade, launching with their last breath as the poison gas crept through their lungs, a superb defiance to the grey clad hordes that outnumbered them at least five to one.

"As Canadians we are not given to celebrating great achievements of the past, but surely if there is one day of undying memory sacred to a high reunion, it is "Ypres Day," and as we cast our minds back thirteen years ago, this day, with its poignant memory for many homes in our city, let us bow our heads and thank God for the men who died and yet saved the day. And as we bow our heads in silence, let us cast our thoughts to the far off graveyards of Canada in Flanders; those who lie there have left their mortal remains on alien soil. To Canada they have bequeathed their memories and their glories.

"Amidst the poppies their spirits hover
On fame's eternal camping ground,
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead."

"Real Manhood."

Taking his text from the second chapter of the first book of Kings, "Be thou strong and show thyself a man," the minister began what proved to be a most inspirational sermon. From his text, he said, would spring a natural question, "what is a man," and to this he would answer that man is the best God can do though the stamp which He has put upon man may have, in some cases, become sadly defaced. As God makes him, man should have four sides, physical, mental, social and spiritual .A second question follows: "What kind of a man are you?"

Mr. Dudgeon's definition of a man was that "a man is the individual who recognizes that he is the handiwork of God and endeavors to honor his maker in all four departments." If he is lacking in any one of these, then he is not a man for physique is not everything; knowledge is not all that should be gained but these, combined with a religious desire to live a good life all count as one.

"What our country needs is not a generation of men going out into a life of sin, not a set of individuals who say the world owes them a living, but men who are ambitious to be worth while to themselves and to society," he said. "We need men who will look ahead and live positively and aggressively for manhood belongs to both worlds, and money only to this one."

A particularly impressive part of the service followed the closing hymn and benediction when, from the rear of the church came the resigning, yet challenging bars of "The Last Post." The service was over.

Spring

Grandmother was a wonderful housekeeper in her day and generation. Every spring, up came the carpets; down came the pictures and heavy lambrequins; out went the furniture, and in came soap and water and scrubbing-brush. Soon the floors and woodwork gleamed like new; the carpets were replaced after a beating that sent every particle of dirt swirling away in a cloud of dust; the furniture was cleaned and returned to its accustomed place. Everyone was miserable, including grandmother—but it simply had to be done.

Women are better housekeepers than grandmother ever was or ever could be, for they have the modern conveniences to make them so. They have learned, through advertising, of the many utensils that make housework lighter and do it better. They have learned, through advertising, of better foods and how to prepare and serve them more attractively. They have bought, because of advertising, the many time and labor saving devices that we have come to regard as every-day necessities.

Because of advertising, women have more time for relaxation and the social amenities. They look younger. They are younger—by years—than grandmother at the same age. Advertising has made that possible.

"When England Is Our Market Place"

"The strength of England lies not in armaments and invasions; it lies in the omnipotence of her industry."—Walter Savage Landor.

Her "wooden walls" have brought the Motherland supremacy on the seas in times of war, and her "steel walls" have preserved this heritage. They have also brought fame in the peaceful pursuits of commerce and trade. England, cut off from Europe and her colonies by great stretches of water, has been forced to depend on fleet argosies of the seas to bring her world recognition. To-day every corner of the civilized world feels the sway of England's power, receives a contribution of her industry and agriculture, and recognizes the high standards that have been attained for England-produced goods.

Canada as much as, if not more than, any other country has explored the possibilities of trade with the Motherland. Canada, like every other country, has discovered the infinite variety and general quality of England's products.

Such an immense range of goods is imported every year that it is impossible to convey any adequate impression of what this country really buys from the Motherland, but the following lines are representative. They are all imported from England for the Teco Store and are being featured in this week's Store-wide exhibition of Empire goods:

Woollens, cottons, silks, rayon, china, cutlery, millinery, confectionery, travelling goods, boots and shoes, towels, blankets, men's hosiery.

These represent only a very small part of the merchandise on display in the Store during Empire Shopping Week. There are a host of attractions for young and old throughout the Store this week.

PERSONALS

On Friday evening, a number of the neighbors and friends of the Misses M. and L. Flaherty assembled at their homes to bid them farewell prior to their departure for Port Arthur. During the evening Neil F. Porter spoke briefly, expressing the regret of those present at losing friends who have been ever kind and thoughtful and always willing to render assistance when needed. Presentations of a silk umbrella to each of the sisters was then made by Mrs. R. Laing and Mrs. W. Petty. Appropriate acknowledgment was made by each in turn, voicing their appreciation of the kindness and friendship found in Peterborough. Progressive euchre was then played, Mr. R. Laing winning the first prize and Mrs. Laing the consolation. A dainty lunch was then served by Mesdames J. Rhodes and E. English, with tea poured by Mesdames F. Lapp and W. Petty. An impromptu program followed, with vocal solos by N. Porter and G. Chandler and instrumental numbers by C. Lapp. The dancing which followed included an exhibition of the Norwegian Shuffle by Miss L. Flaherty and Mr. G. Chandler.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY SLOGANS ARE EFFECTIVE

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.

(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

In a recent article on "Why We Fall for Slogans" we credited the wrong company with the slogan "Eventually, Why Not Now?" Our office was immediately flooded with letters from the readers reminding us that they knew the slogan belonged to the Washburn Crosby Company and not to Pillsbury. One could scarcely ask for a more eloquent testimony to the effectiveness of slogans.

It justifies our emphasis upon the effectiveness of slogans. We said that slogans take advantage of the psychological law of appeal and response and of the force of repetition, imitation, and suggestion.

We might go further and say that these laws are effective in fields other than advertising. A certain small college in New England gained a great deal of prominence a few years ago by turning out championship debating teams who met and conquered the strongest colleges and universities in Europe as well as in this country. The coach was asked to explain the phenomenal success of his teams. He wrote an article describing his method. The central idea of his plan was to make effective use of slogans, to concentrate on one outstanding point and drive it home with telling effect by the force of repetition.

The accumulative effect of repetition is fatal. No one can escape it. If you hear a thing often enough you will is fatal. No one can escape it. If believe it. Belief based on logical proof is not necessary. It is more effective to avoid all possibilities of contradiction and counter suggestions. Simply repeat a statement over and over again. It gets results because the mind is so organized that a dominant idea tends to work itself out in action unless it is hindered by some other idea hence the importance of removing all possible conflicts of ideas.

Slogans are effective because they are positive suggestions. They do not antagonize the reader or raise counter suggestions. They fill the m and the law of idea-motives does the rest. Slogans represent a scientific method of utilizing fundamental psychological principles in a practical way.

Climbs Stairs, Runs, Woman Gains 15 Lbs.

"A hard day of housework, running and climbing stairs, doesn't tire me since taking Vinol. I've gained 15 pounds."—Mrs. A. Saunders.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. The very FIRST bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Tastes delicious.

This is the pattern diagram that comes each week with the Mary Marshall fashion service.

Petal Cuffs and Flowers Add Last Touch to Spring Frocks

HERE is the diagram and sketch of the little flower we have been talking about.

There is a pattern to be used for the petals. If you want the flower larger or smaller, then enlarge or decrease the size of the petal pattern. Cut one from cardboard, not too stiff to cut easily, but stiff enough not to bend easily. Then, with a piece of French chalk or a lead pencil mark out the outline of the pattern on the material of which the flower is to be made.

You can use organdie, georgette, crepe de chine, taffeta. The organdie and taffeta make somewhat stiff flowers that give a perky air to any frock.

When you have the petals marked, take them to have a picot edge stitched on. That means, you know, that the outline will be machine hemstitched. Then you yourself cut the hemstitching in half and thus make a pretty picot edge. If the material has been mussed in the stitching, then press it with a fairly hot iron before cutting out the petals.

Don't have them picot edged along the straight side. Gather this space and form each flower of eight or more petals. You can use fifteen petals, if you want, a second row somewhat shorter than the outer row, making a rose-like flower instead of the flat one shown. The center is made as neatly as possible, and then a big bead is used to cover it.

The cuffs are made of slightly gathered petals stitched into a band an inch wide of the same material. This band is snapped together, to make it small and dainty about the wrist.

You can make collars in the same way. I saw a lovely organdie frock with no trimming save cuffs, a shoulder flower and a row of these petals fastened with a bias band around the rounded neckline.

STOP WASTING FOOD!

It has been said that a dollar saved is a dollar earned. There is no doubt but that most people literally throw away good money every day by practicing bad dietetic habits. Two or three times as much food is used as the body by any means can convert into normal tissue. This is of course a direct loss, greater than if the excess of food were thrown into the garbage can, as the body is consequently weakened by the useless effort made in attempting to digest more food than needed. Enervation is the natural result, with a loss of time and energy from useful daily work, with more doctors' bills. You live on one third of what you eat, and the doctors and undertaker live on the other two thirds.

The daily cost of food used by the average person is sometimes between two and five dollars, and of course a great deal more than this by those who give "feasting" parties once or twice weekly. If only the essential foods are used, the actual daily cost should not exceed one dollar for the child or adult. This diet would include eggs, meat, fruit, and all of the vital vegetables. For example, a breakfast of two eggs, toast and stewed fruit would not cost over twenty-five cents at the most at the present prices.

For luncheon, a meal of wholewheat bread, with a choice of such cooked vegetables as spinach, string beans, asparagus, carrots, turnips, beets, parsnips, summer squash, chard, etc., would be satisfying and thoroughly nourishing. Add to this a salad of the leafy vegetables. You could not eat over twenty-five cents' worth of these vegetables if you tried to, as they are very "filling," but equally vital.

At dinner, if you use the same kind of vegetables, and one-fourth of a pound of beef or fish, you will have a dinner which, if prepared properly, is fit for a king!

These meals do not include pastries, candy, puddings and cakes, lobster, shellfish, or unwholesome and expensive food which is often as indigestible as it is costly.

If you have been spending two to five dollars daily for your food, you see you have been spending two to five times too much! You could buy something you need each day for the money you waste. You could buy a good book daily with the money thus saved, and even though you couldn't read all of them, you would never suffer from "mental" indigestion in trying to do so.

If you have been suffering from any chronic illness, a fast from all food for a week or two would add a tidy sum to your bank account. In France, a doctor recently proposed that all Frenchmen should fast one day a week and thus be able to pay off the National debt and restore the Franc, which seems to have fallen below all help. He suggested closing all food stores, restaurants and cafes one day each week. But his advice did not strike a happy response from his comrades who were so willing to march to the trenches for France, but unwilling to fast for the Franc when it would mean so much for the future of their beloved country.

You to whom this writing may come can help yourselves both financially and physically if you will eat less and fast more, and, as an addition to your new rules for health—MARCH MORE!

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. R. H. writes: "I am enclosing an advertisement. Can you recommend this prescription for reducing, and will it affect the heart? I have a slight touch of heart trouble."

Answer: I do not at any time recommend remedies of any kind. I conduct this column daily for your benefit, to teach you how to take care of yourself so there will be no need for queer remedies to correct conditions caused by injudicious living. If you will diet as I recommend in my reducing articles, your weight will surely come to the normal, and your "touch" of heart trouble will disappear as you stop burdening your heart by making it take care of excessive weight.

Question: Anna M. asks: "Do not cherries and milk make a bad combination? I always believed this combination formed a poison."

Answer: Cherries and milk form a perfect combination. But, remember do not use any starchy food at the same time, for therein lies the source of the mischief that is blamed upon an otherwise good combination.

Question: W. K. M. writes: "What is the cause of the upper and lower eyelids being swollen all the time, also what causes a person to see his nose when reading?"

Answer: Inflammation of the eyelids is caused by the same bad habits which produce gastritis, interitis, colitis, or any inflammation of the digestive organs. When the stomach or intestines are inflamed, it is liable to affect any of the mucous membranes of the body. If you are bothered in seeing your nose when you read, it may be because your eyes do not focus properly. Go to a good optometrist and see if properly fitted glasses will not correct this trouble.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 24, 1928.

According to astrology the sun in benefic aspects dominates this day which should be fortunate for most persons.

It is a day auspicious for seeking employment making for ability to produce a good impression.

There is a sign supposed to impart clear vision regarding one's capabilities and for this reason it should be possible to choose the right place in the economic machine.

The planetary government favors all who hold the reins of authority. While there may be changes in personal established method methods or organizations will be undisturbed, the seers prophesy.

Astrologers explain that while the old order of things in the world is changing the process is slow and progress must be made through stable mediums.

This is not a lucky day for love affairs and women should avoid making new acquaintances among men.

There will be much romance in the world this year, it is announced, but it is wise to let the head guide the heart, especially today.

There is a good aspect for shopping for women should be keen in their judgment and wise in making selections.

Although this is not an especially promising rule for theatres the greatest progress is foretold for them. Novel features will arouse enthusiastic interest.

Warning is given that the eclipse of the Moon next month is held to be a sure forecast of great floods and storms in many places.

All places ruled by the Pleides may expect disturbances of many sorts, revolutions as well as storms are foreshadowed.

Southern Mexico, China and India will be especially affected by the malefic influences of the stars, astrologers forecast.

Persons whose birthdate it is should not make hasty decisions or unnecessary journeys in the coming year.

Children born on this day probably will be clever in industrial occupations. The subjects of this sign may be wanderers.

FINE linens—embroidered towels—things beautiful with your own handiwork—don't let them begin to wear out. Here is how you can keep them beautiful.

First, in washing them, use only good, pure soap. After testing many soaps I recommend Princess Soap Flakes, made from finest soap.

The thin white flakes foam into a powerful cleansing lather which removes dirt and grease quickly and efficiently, but gently—they will not hurt your daintiest, loveliest things, if those things will stand plain water. If you are in doubt, test a corner of the garment or piece in plain, tepid water. If it is not harmed, it is perfectly safe to wash it with Princess Soap Flakes. And you can keep your hands soft and white, too, if you use Princess Soap Flakes. They do not contain any harsh chemical filler or harmful free caustic, the elements in soap which are so hard on fine fabrics and on your hands."

Big Yellow Package

DON'T HAVE RED HANDS

Princess Soap Flakes will not harm your hands because they contain no harsh chemical filler or free caustic.

OUR GUARANTEE

We guarantee to replace any washable garment which, by reason of its having been washed with Princess Soap Flakes, has been damaged in texture or its color made to run, provided such garment has been washed in accordance with our instructions.

LYRICS OF LIFE

A PENNY'S WORTH.

The world is full of common things.
The copper coins are stamped with kings,
But I am sure there aren't many
Who love the king and not the penny.
The copper buys the cotter's bread,
Or buys the traveler his bed;
And, while to love the king is proper,
There are few traitors to the copper.

There are few traitors to the copper,
There have been many songs to gold,
But there's a friend whose love is cold
He's here today and gone tomorrow,
And hard to keep and hard to borrow.

But few the men who cannot find
A token of the copper kind,
And few a copper will not lend;
So copper is the better friend.

I think that I shall cease to wish
For songbirds in a golden dish,
I think that I shall quit repining
For pockets with a silver lining,
Shall use a little common sense
And in my pockets look for pence;
And then be just as glad as any
If in my fist I find a penny.

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID AGED LADY

The high respect in which Mrs. E. H. Dewart was held during her long life was emphasized by the tribute she received as her body was borne to its last resting place in the Toronto Necropolis besides her late husband and her son, Hartley Dewart, Ontario's former Liberal premier. A public funeral service was held in Sherbourne St. United church, Toronto, attended by large numbers of friends. In the above layout (1) shows the casket being carried from the church following the service with George L. Robinson, a nephew, on the left, and Edward R. Dewart, only acted as pallbearers; (2) the profusion of floral tributes banked on the grave; (3) Justice W. E. Raney, honorary pallbearer; (4) Sir Edward Kemp, also an honorary pallbearer; (5) a grandson of the deceased, greeting Mrs. J. Morrissey, an old friend of the late Mrs. Dewart.

Kotex at all Stores

Doctors advise women always to use it, for these 4 reasons:

UNNECESSARY risk of health is folly, and women who formerly employed home-made sanitary pads have been quick to see the safety and comfort of Kotex, the new scientific sanitary napkin.

Today at all stores you will find it. Ask any doctor or nurse and they will advise it. Ask your friends who employ Kotex. They will tell you.

1 Kotex fits the figure; is made of softest materials. Is scientifically shaped to give the greatest comfort. It is non-detectable when worn.

2 It is 5 times as absorbent as cotton. Absolute protection.

3 You dispose of it without embarrassment. A very simple way to dispose of Kotex is given in the directions in each box.

4 It deodorizes, hence ending all fear of offense.

Learn for yourself why Kotex is used by 8 in 10 women today. Buy a package at any drug, dry goods or departmental store. You owe it to yourself.

Ray Keech Sets New Automobile Speed Record

AVERAGES 207 MILES AN HOUR OVER COURSE

Lessens Campbell's Record By Mile to Bring Honors Back to U. S.

OFFICIAL TEST.

Makes an Average of 17.25 Seconds Per Mile on Two Runs.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 23 —Ray Keech, driving a monster speed car built for J. M. White, a Philadelphia sportsman, yesterday set a new world's record for automobiles when he averaged 207.55260 miles per hour in two runs over the official beach course, sending the 36 cylinder special against the wind in an official test at an average of 201.-56774 miles per hour; he covered the first mile in 17.66 seconds. Coming back down the beach with the wind at his back Keach flashed over the mile in 16.63 seconds, making 213.-90374 miles per hour.

His average for the two runs was 17.25 seconds.

After bringing his car to a stop Keech alighted amid the roar of the crowd.

"Boy, howdy," he said as he got out of the machine with a big grin on his face. "I have never done so much running in all my life."

Spectators rushed to the pilot who brought the record back to the United States, and hoisted him to their shoulders to bear him to the grandstand in triumph.

"I'm mighty glad to bring the record back to this country," Keech said, while White jubilantly seconded his driver's words.

Keech's time was less than a mile better than that of the former titleholder, Captain Malcolm Campbell, the British driver, who in February sent his Napier special roaring over the sands of the beach here to average 206.956 miles per hour.

DE LAVAL-JAGS 3 GOALS EACH SOCCER GAME

Mayor Denne Kicked Off and Officially Opened the Soccer Season.

THISTLE LUCKY.

Play Was of a Ding-Dong Nature From Start To Finish of Game.

Mayor Denne officially opened the local soccer season on Saturday afternoon when he kicked off the ball in the De Laval versus league fixture. Three minutes from the finish, the Thistle were very fortunate in equaling the score, while the De Laval were entitled to the brace of points on the run of play. A good crowd witnessed the game, in spite of the cold prevailing.

The City Council deserve credit for the manner in which they co-operated with the soccer executive in making so many improvements to the playing pitch which was greatly appreciated by the soccer players.

There was no advantage in the spin of the coin which fell in favor of the De Laval who were the first to be dangerous from a right wing attack. Bolton picking up two smart grounders from well manouvered attacks, then Watkins missed the crossbar from 10 yard line. Eventually the Thistle found their bearings to keep the opposing defence on the check when inside shooting area. Downer cleared the situation repeatedly by his timely punts which allowed McLeod two long drives for goal from mid-field.

A. Beggs Opened The Scoring

In the ensuing play, Beggs dribbled through the defence with the ball, picked the bar corner of the goal for the opening counter. A few minutes later, the same player placed the ball across the goal looking for a timely touch that failed to be accepted. The first corner-kick fell to the De Laval that terminated in a fruitless scrimmage in front of goal.

De Laval Energetic

De Laval now had the better of the exchange, but their forward failed miserably in front of goal. Time and again, the youngsters would inaugurate splendid attacks that were frustrated by Thistle fullbacks but Bolton in the latter stage of this half had to concede defeat, after he he had made two splendid saves from close in, he had just made a clearance and did not get back in time to prevent Fowler's drop shot hitting inside the post for the equalizer. Before the interval, the Thistle forwards endeavored to gain the lead again but found a strong defence awaiting them. Half-time—one goal each.

Half Time

Just after the restart, the De Laval were more aggressive than ever around the goal area and had Thistle defence running from one wing to the other, through De Laval long swinging passes.

De Laval Take the Lead.

Three times in succession the Separator boys worked inside the defence to keep Bolton busy with all kinds of shots. Jones kept his extreme wing men well placed with the ball. It was from this method that Gravell put his team on the lead. The Thistle were seldom in the picture, no doubt, brought upon them through players failing to make an appearance, thereby making eleven men against ten. Even exchanges continued for a while, until the slow clearance of a De Laval player, allowed A. Biggs the necessary time to let Griffine even up the count again.

Both Teams Score

As time wore on, both teams endeavoured to get the winning goal that finally went to the De Laval when Warde followed up his play with a touch into goal a few yards out. Excitement ran high amongst the supporters. With three minutes to go, the Thistle forwards went down in a body to end up in a scrimmage and a free-kick against the goal-keeper outside the goal-area line. The first attempt was nullified through an infringement which allowed Griffin to equalize through a sea of legs. Full time—De Laval 3, Thistle 3.

The Teams.

De Laval:—Goal, Coleman; Downer and Cross, full-backs; Leviston, Warde and Dyer, halves; Watkins, Pulley, Jones, Fowler and Gravell forward.

Thistle:—Botton, goal; McLeod and Hyslop, backs; R. Beggs, Bromley and McPhate, halves; House, Griffine, Hallan and A. Beggs, forward. Referee—Alex. McKinley.

VIEWS ON SPORT

Why does not the Collegiate Institute enter a softball team in Girls' City League. Surely there are enough players there to compose a team that would be a boost towards the forming of a league.

With a movement of increased interest in track and field athletics on foot, the prospects of having a ten-mile road race again this fall seems very bright. For two years the ten-mile relay race has been run and on both occasions has drawn a large crowd of spectators. Last year eight teams competed, three of them from the Monarch club in Lindsay. The "Y" sponsored the one hundred-mile grind from the Toronto Central "Y" to the Peterborough Exhibition grandstand. Twenty-six runners took part in this event, and the course was covered in record time. This year a similar event is looked forward to with much interest by the patrons of this sport.

DAYS OF GREATNESS

Canada may never again make the showing in the Boston marathon that Hamilton runners did just 28 years ago Thursday. On that occasion five runners from this city started and four of them finished among the first six. The late Jack Caffery was the winner on that occasion, with Billy Sherring second and Fred Hughson third, Walter McMullen recalls.

The visit of the Canucks resulted in the Yankee runners changing their methods of training for long-distance affairs. Before that they never attempted to cover the entire course during their training, but were content to take runs of 5 or 10 miles.

When the Hamilton men started off like sprinters, the New England folks were amazed and figured that they would not keep the pace up long, but they did.

The rivalry between Sherring and Caffery was keen at that time and there was considerable wagering. Sherring went to the front shortly after the start of the race and opened up a lead of about a mile on Caffery, but the heat was intense that day, and Billy fell prostrate at the 18-mile post. It took some time to revive him, and when he was able to start again, five runners had passed him, with Caffery in front.

Sherring did not know what quit mean and ofertook all runners but Caffery, who lowered the record by over half an hour. He went back the next year and clipped ten minutes more off the time, and his record stood until Tom Longboat appeared on the scene in 1907.

Longboat had jumped into fame the fall previous, when he won the Herald race, furnishing a big surprise. He was trained by bill Davis, who ran second to Caffery at Boston in 1901. Tom was 100 to 1 in the betting, of which there was plenty at that time, as the layers posted their prices some days before the race.

Hamilton's next successful entrant was the late Jimmy Duffy, who won at Boston in 1914, and was later killed in action in the world war. This city has sent runners there since the war, but none of them managed to bring back any laurels.—London Morning Advertiser.

WHITE SOX WIN OPENING GAME

Taking Lead in Initial Inning Chicago Defeats the Tigers 9-3.

BOSTON WINS 9-3.

NEW YORK, April 23 (Canadian Press). — Chicago took the opening game of the series from the Tigers at Detroit yesterday, 9 to 3. The White Sox jumped ahead in the first inning when two errors by Mervin Shea, Tiger catcher, gave them three runs.

Ted Lyons pitched the full route for Chicago, and kept the Tiger hits scattered until the eighth, when they escaped a shut-out by bunching four hits with an error for three runs.

The Boston Red Sox shelled four pitchers at Washington to win 8 to 5. Hadley, ace of the Nationals' pitching corps last season, who recently recovered from an appendicitis operation, was given a three-run margin in the first inning, but was driven from the mound in the second inning when Boston converted five hits into five runs.

Ruffing kept Washington's ten hits well scattered and was given excellent support. Sam West, fleet Washington fielder, circled the bases on a liner inside the park in the fourth inning.

Two singles and a sacrifice in the fourth, coupled with another tally in the eighth, gave the Cleveland Indians a victory over the Browns at St. Louis, 2 to 1.

The win brought Uhle his third straight mound triumph of the season. O'Rourke's double in the eighth pushed across the lone tally for the Browns.

LAKESIDES LOSE TO EDMONTON GRADS

Play To Tight Score in First Game For Basketball Championship.

EDMONTON, Alta., April 23.—(Canadian Press.) — Toronto Lakesides, champions of Eastern Canada, gave the Edmonton Grads, basketball champions of the Dominion, one of the hardest games the Edmonton girls have had in a long career here Saturday evening when they played them to a score of 29-27 in the first set-to of a two-game series for the Canadian ladies' basketball championship.

The Grads took an early lead, led at the first quarter 10-4, were up 17-9 at the half way mark and had a 24-15 margin at the end of the third period. In the final frame, however, the Easterners unleashing a burst of speed that had the Grads somewhat puzzled, narrowed the gap, and largely through the fine sharp shooting of Nora Gordon, put on a finish that had the big crowd of spectators on their feet and made the final count 29-27.

The Lakesiders proved themselves worthy challengers for the Grads' title and fully upset the fine reputation that preceded them from the East. The second game will be played Monday, and a bumper house is assured.

Millie McCormick with 11 points and Margaret MacBurney with 10 were high point getters of the Grads, while Nora Gordon with 11 and Bobby Rosenfeld and Mina Swan with half a dozen apiece got most of the markers for the Toronto team.

In an exhibition game between the British Columbia Varsity team, champions of Western Canada, and the Edmonton Y.M.C.A., the coast team, playing superb basketball, ran off with the match by a score of 38-22.

Win First Game Of Semi-Finals

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press). — Glebe Collegiate, junior Canadian champions for the past two seasons, showed all of their old time form when they defeated Montreal Young Men's Hebrew Association team 44 to 29 in the first game of the eastern semi-final series played at the Auditorium here on Saturday night. The locals will enter the second game of the series here this afternoon favorites to repeat over Montreal.

QUEBEC CHAMPS CAPTURE HONORS

Defeat St. Catharines For Eastern Canada Intermediate Basketball Championship.

MONTREAL, April 23 (Canadian Press). — In a spectacular rally that swept all before it, Sun Life, champions of Quebec, fought their way through to the finals for the Eastern Canada intermediate basketball championship when they defeated St. Catharines Collegiate Grads, 37-17, here on Saturday. Sun Life won the right to meet Woodstock Senators, Maritime champions, in the final by winning the round by a 51-47 score after losing the first game of a home and home series in St. Catharines 30-14.

Sun Life accomplished the almost impossible in the second half of the final game to enter the finals. They started the contest 16 points down as a result of the first game, and when the whistle blew for half-time in Saturday night's contest, the margin of the Ontario champions had been increased to 17. Though play was comparatively even for those first twenty minutes, the margin looked large enough for St. Catharines to win, and Sun Life had shown no indication in their play of being able to overcome the apparently safe lead of the visitors.

Taking their cue from the stellar playing of Bill Opzoomer, defenceman of the Sun Life squad, the locals went on an attack in the last ten minutes of the game that saw St. Catharines' huge lead cut point by point. Three minutes from the final whistle, Opzoomer tied the round score 47-all, and the Ontario champions, sensing defeat, called time out to rally their disorganized ranks for a final bid for victory.

Upon resumption of play, St. Catharines still showed no improvement in their scoring attempts, missing four free throws in succession, while Opzoomer and Merritt were each notching a basket to give Sun Life a four-point advantage on the round.

The game was played under protest, St. Catharines claiming that the Sun Life court was not of the dimensions required under the Eastern Canada play-down regulations.

Greater London's population increased 75,000 in the past 12 months.

Canadians ate 10,400,000 pounds of American berries last year.

Jones Will Lead Walker Golf Team

AUGUSTA, Fla., April 23 (Canadian Press).—Robert T. Bobby) Jones, Atlanta golf wizard, will captain the United States Walker team this summer in defending the amateur trophy against the invasion of Great Britain, Malvin K. Traylor, President of the United States Golf Association announced Saturday.

Jones' team mates in the fight to retain the trophy, won five times in succession by this country, will be Jess Sweetser, George Von Elm, Charles Evans, Jr., Francis Ouimet, Harrison R. Johnston, Watts Gune and Roland MacKenzie, all of whom were on the last cup team with the exception of Evans and Johnston. These two take the place of Jess Guildford and Robert A. Gardiner.

The team, selected by the executive committee of the Golf Association at its meeting here this week, probably will meet the British team about the first week in September. The place was not announced. The date, however, would fall a week before the national amateur at Brae-burn, West Newton, Mass.

CONWAY, Mo., April 23 (Canadian Press).—Giusto Umek, Italian walking champion, led the transcontinental foot racers into the fiftieth control station here yesterday, covering the 43.1 miles from Springfield through a drizzling rain in 6:12:03. His elapsed time for 1,885 miles covered from the start at Los Angeles was 369:27:09.

John Salo, Passaic, N.J., Finn, kept his grip on third place by finishing in 6:52:07; elapsed time, 348:22:05. Ed. Gardner, Negro, Seattle, finished third in 7:07:53; elapsed time being 359:31:28.

LONDON, April 20.—Six days after a cat had been missed from its home at Framlingham, Suffolk, it was found sitting on the doorstep of the residence of Dr. W. Dunn, of Uppingham to whom it had belonged until a few weeks earlier. The cat, a gift to Miss Walker, of Framlingham, had walked a distance of 100 miles from its new home in Suffolk to its old home in Rutland, and was no worse for its long tramp. How the cat found its way was a mystery. It had experienced bad weather on the route but it was not footsore or fatigued.

Jones Holds Pirates to Five Hits to Win 3-2 Victory.

PLAY AT CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, April 3. — (Canadian Press.) — Fifty thousand fans, the largest crowd ever to witness a baseball game in Chicago, watched the Cubs win a 3 to 2 victory in the opening game of their series yesterday.

Percy Jones' masterful pitching and Rigg Stephenson's hitting were responsible for the victory. Jones held the Pirates to five hits, while Stephenson drove out three hits and scoring the winning run in the eighth inning. His triple in the eighth inning was protested by the Pirates, however, on the claim that ground rules limited it to a double. Stephenson brought in the winning tally when Butler sent out along sacrifice fly.

Rangers Will Play At Ebbets Field

NEW YORK, April 23 (Canadian Press). — The Glasgow Rangers, Scottish Cup winners and champions of the Scottish Soccer League, will make the first appearance of their scheduled American tour on Memorial Day at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

The opposition for the Scottish champions has not yet been selected.

The Rangers plan to bring their playing line-up for the tour as well as some youngsters just signed for League play next season.

ROVERS DEFEAT HUDDERSFIELD

Win English Football Association Cup By Three Goals to One.

PLAY GOOD GAME.

LONDON, April 23 (Canadian Press Cable)—Blackburn Rovers, who Saturday defeated Huddersfield Town at Wembley Stadium by three goals to one in the final for the English Football Association Cup, well deserved their victory. Their forwards were the most incisive in their work, although, as expected, the great strength of the team was in the half back line. Campbell of the Rovers looked after Jackson, the Huddersfield star, and blanketed him very thoroughly. Healless also played a fine game for the Rovers. Puddefoot will go into the soccer hall of fame, of course, for the perfect lob in the first minute of play which made it possible for Roscomp to put Blackburn ahead. Stephenson was the best player on the Huddersfield side, though Jackson got the Town's only goal. The Huddersfield halves got panicky in emergencies and were unable to find touch with their forwards. Mercer, the Huddersfield goalie, was not in his best form.

By winning the cup Saturday Blackburn Rovers equal the record of Aston Villa for having won the trophy six times.

King George, who attended the match with Queen Mary and the Duke and Duchess of York, handed over the cup to the Rovers.

New Record Set

LONDON, England, April 23 (Canadian Press Cable).—A new league club record for goals scored in a single soccer season in England was set up Saturday by Millwall, who now have 125 tallies to their credit. The best previous figures were held by Middlesbrough, 122. Millwall have proved themselves the finest team in the Southern Section of the Third Division of the English League this season and have already earned promotion to the Second Division.

If Everton, now putting up a game fight for the championship of the First Division, come out on top it will be largely owing to the consistently fine play of their international centre-forward, Dean. Against Aston Villa Saturday he scored two of Everton's three tallies and was responsible very largely for his club's opportune victory, which puts them in the lead in the league standing and gives them a surplus in points against the time when Huddersfield Town, now runners up, begin to wipe off their arrearage of games. Weldon got Everton's other counter. The match was full of thrills. Waring registered for the Villa in the second half, after the Aston team had been two behind at the interval. Dean got a point five minutes from time and Gibson found the net for Aston Villa when there was only a minute to go.

Carr scored for Leicester City in the first half of their game with Middlesbrough from a free kick. Pease equalized after the turn round for Middlesbrough.

Cardiff City outplayed Sunderland. For the Welshmen Warren, Davies and McLachlan scored, while Hargreaves tallied for Sunderland. All the scoring was done in the first half.

Bolton Wanderers made a show of West Ham United. They were two up at half time through goals by McLelland and Nuttall, while Murphy and Butler scored later. Watson of West Ham was injured and carried off the field. The Hammers were thus one man shy for most of the match.

The Wednesday put up a gallant fight to get points and avoid relegation and collected a couple when they beat Portsmouth. Trotter and Allen scored for the Sheffield team.

Bury smothered Tottenham Hotspurs in the second half. Linday scored for the 'Spurs, and Ball for Bury in the opening half. Ames, Ball and Smith tallied for Bury after the rest-up.

Bradford scored both of Birmingham's goals against Liverpool. Manchester United were forced nearer to relegation by Sheffield united, who are also very near demotion. Tunstall, twice, and Partridge did the scoring for Sheffield, while Rawlings found the target on a couple of occasions for Manchester.

Hat-tricks were performed by Cook for Millwall against Gillingham; Varco for Norwich against Queen's Park Rangers, and McLean for Bradford against Wigan Borough.

FLIES TO RESCUE CREW OF BREMEN

Filled with pride were the parents of Clarence A. Schiller, better known as "Duke," when they learned that their son had safely reached Greenly Island on his relief expedition to the German-Irish aviators who came across the ocean on the Bremen. Lower left is Kenneth, a brother of "Duke," while in the centre is "Duke" himself—the technical director of the Canadian Transcontinental Airways. Another brother, Donald Victor, is married, and lives at 15 Palmerston Gardens, Toronto.

OFF HIS GAME WALTER SAYS

Professional Champ, Armour, Sarazen and Melhorn Depart For British Open Tourney.

WILL ASK POSTPONEMENT.

The former British open champion game as he sailed for England to play Archie Compston a special seventy-two hole match to tune up for the British open Walter Hagen told the Associated Press that he would ask his British opponent to a postponement of a few days of the match, booked for April 27-28.

"I expect to ask a postponement", Hagen said, as he boarded the Aquitania. "If we play April 27, I will have only one day to practice, and as I have played practically no golf this Winter, I will need a few days to get in shape to play good golf.

"I have been engaged in making a motion picture in California and left there Friday, go there this afternoon and have been busy since my arrival in New York getting another passport. The passport I got in California was packed in a bag that was left behind.

"I feel fine physically and will work in the ship's gymnasium all the way across and hit a lot of golf balls from the ship, but I will need some shots on the golf course to get an idea of distance."

Praises Compston.

Hagen paid tribute to Compston's golf as he told of his lack of practice. "No one not in golf shape should run up against that big boy", he said. "He can hit 'em both with his woods and irons."

The forme British open champion looks forward with pleasure to playing the Moor Park course, where he is to meet Compston. "It's a good course", he said. "Bobby Jones and I played Abe Mitchell and Cyril Tolley there."

It was suggested that Sandwich, where the 1928 British open is to be played, is also a good course. "I should say it is", Hagen replied. "That's where I won my first British open in 1922."

This is Hagen's sixth invasion of England on a golfing mission. "My first shot was at St. Andrews" he said. "I qualified fourth and finished fifty-third."

Regrets Jones' Absence.

He won in 1922, was runner-up in 1923 and won again in 1924.

"I'm sorry Bobby Jones is not going to try to make it three in a row", he said.

"Bobby is playing good golf now", someone said.

"He always plays good golf", Hagen replied.

Hagen has played no tournament golf since he won the professional championship for the fourth successive time at Dallas last Autumn. He plans to make up for lost time now. After playing Compston he will go to the British open, then jump to France to play a match with Aubrey Boome, the Saint Cloud professional.

Tommy Armour, American and Canadian open champion, Gene Sarazen, "Wild Bill" Melhorn and Si Newton, amateur, sailed with Hagen, and will also compete in the British open.

"OMAR" THE MAN OF MYSTERY, WILL BE AN ADDED STAGE ATTRACTION, WITH CLARA BOW, IN "RED HAIR" AT THE CAPITOL TO-NIGHT AND TO-MORROW.

If you are in doubt about any question, whether it be love, or business problems, visit the Capitol tonight or to-morrow and ask "OMAR" the man of mystery, and he will solve your problem.

Clara Bow, the "It" girl, in "Red Hair" will be the entertainment given on the screen.

The flaming haired flapper of the screen is shown as a beautiful manicurist who causes complications, when she carries on three flirtations simultaneously. Clever situations are presented by Elinor Glyn in her story and those situations were just what Miss Bow was waiting for.

The production of "Red Hair" was made by virtually the same Paramount unit that turned out "It." The story is by Elinor Glyn, Clara Bow is the star and the direction was by Clarence Badger, who directed "It."

In the supporting cast are William Austin and Jacquelin Gadson, both of whom are remembered for their performances in the first production. In addition, Lane Chandler, leading man, Lawrence Grant and Claude King support the star.

AT THE REGENT.

"THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS" Ten Million People Say "It's Great," And Ten Million People Can't be Wrong.

As picturesque as their dialect are the people of the Ozarks' elder generation. Wright's "The Shepherd of the Hills" which topped the list of fiction best sellers, and "The calling of Dan Matthews" are considered to be the finest word pictures of the Ozarks in the language. Something of the primitive beauty of the country as well as the equally primitive simplicity, passions and customs of its picturesque inhabitants were given the public through Wright's Works, written from intimate knowledge of his subject matter.

It remains for the screen however to bring the Ozarks of the recent past before us with all their beauty, quaintness and quality of the picturesque. "The Shepherd of the Hills," produced by Charles R. Rogers for First National Pictures on an elaborate and realistic scale, now playing at the Regent Theatre here, immortalizes in celluloid the epic of America's most primitive people and country, now almost engulfed by civilization and lost.

Ozark Life.

While the film story, like the book, contains a plot that reaches high dramatic climaxes, a love story of exceptional appeal, and much comedy, its outstanding feature is its wonderfully accurate presentation of Ozark life. The veritable mine of rustic beauty, picturesque characters and quaint customs afforded by this backwoods locale was fully exploited by the director, Al Rogell, the artist-cinematographer Sol Polito, and their assistants.

Great pains were taken to bring to the screen even more Ozark color than Wright's famous novel contains. For instance—the selection of Marion Jackson, noted scenarist, to adapt the book, resulted not only from her ability as a writer but her familiarity with the story locale. She knew the country and the people of "The Shepherd of the Hills" at the time Wright knew them.

Hand Picked Cast.

A hand picked cast of the best character artists available in the motion picture industry bring Wright's characters from the pages of "The Shepherd of the Hills" to the screen. The title role is enacted by Alec B. Francis. "Sammy" is portrayed by Molly O'Day. "Young Matt" comes to life as depicted by John Boles, and "Old Matt" by Will Walling. Matthew Betz plays "Wash Gibbs," Edythe Chapman plays "Aunt Molly," and the other roles by equally qualified artists.

"The Shepherd of the Hills," is an excellent motion picture offering, regardless of its historical significance and local color. But it is as a moving, truly living document that will immortalize the most picturesque, primitive and interesting phases of Ozark life, that it should be remembered and treasured.

BLAME WIFE FOR TROUBLES

Movie Wife of Dempsey Brought About Quarrel With Kearns.

CLAIM NAME FORGED.

NEW YORK, April 23.—(U.P.P.) — Estelle Taylor, movie actress wife of Jack Dempsey, was blamed for the quarrel of 'the two Jacks" when the trial of Jack Kearns' suit against her husband began in federal court yesterday.

Arthur Sager, counsel for Kearns, charged that the break between the former heavyweight champion and Kearns was caused by the boxer's marriage to Miss Taylor

In outlining his case to the jury, Sager said that he would prove that "those family troubles" caused Dempsey to cast off Kearns. Dempsey has insisted that his wife had nothing to do with the split and that it was brought about solely because of business reasons.

Kearns is seeking to collect $701,026.60 which he claims under a contract specifying that he should receive a third of Dempsey's ring earnings.

Dempsey was jovial in court yesterday, while Kearns appeared moody and took little interest in the proceedings. Miss Taylor was not in court.

Arthur N. Driscoll, Dempsey's attorney, startled the court room when he said he would prove Kearns committed forgery by signing Dempsey's name to a contract. Kearns, as Dempsey's manager, had been working under an oral agreement by which he would receive 50 per cent. of Dempsey's earnings, Driscoll said. That the lawyer charged, was a violation of the New York boxing commission's rule, which provides no manager may take more than 33 1-3 per cent. of his fighter's income.

In 1923 Kearns took a contract to Dempsey, calling for the 33 1-3 division. Driscoll told the court that at that time Kearns said: "Sign this, Jack. It doesn't mean anything, because we will still split fifty-fifty, but we'd better have it."

At that time Dempsey was in Saratoga Springs, Driscoll said, training for his bout with Luis Firpo, and was too engrossed to bother with contracts. Kearns then was said to have appeared before a notary and signed Dempsey's name to the contract

Driscoll denied the men quarreled when they finally agreed to end their business relations. He said they were friendly when they divided their joint real estate holdings in Los Angeles. Dempsey receiving a hotel and an apartment house going to Kearns.

The boxer's holdings in the real estate exceeded those of Kearns by about $100,000 and at the time Kearns is said to have raised the question of their shares. Later he was quoted as having said: "Dempsey and I have made too much money to quarrel about $100,000."

Dempsey on Stand.

NEW YORK, April 23 (Associated Press).—A parade of famous sport figures under names little known to fight fandom, a personal appearance by Jack Dempsey, and a legal tiff that almost required a ring for settlement, featured the middle rounds yesterday of Jack Kearns' battle of the $701,063 with the former heavyweight champion in United States District Court.

Kearns, the "perfumery Jack" of the fight racket, came into court as plain John McKiernon. Tex Rickard was there, but only as George Lewis Rickard to interrogating attorneys. The old Manassa Mauler himself twice answered a call for William Harrison Dempsey. Billy Gibson, manager of Champion Gene Tunney, became a dignified "William H." on the witness stand. The court failed to ask Lew Raymond, New York matchmaker, his real name.

All but Kearns were called to the witness stand to establish contracts Dempsey entered into the sums of money he earned between 1924 and 1926. Kearns charges breach of contract in that he was not paid one-third of the former titleholder's earnings during that time. Raymond testified that Dempsey still considered Kearns his manager in September of 1925 when a bout was being arranged between Jack and Harry Wills, the black menace of that time, at South Bend, Ind.

There was no gong in the courtroom to halt hostilities when the going became hot in the late afternoon, and Arthur N. Driscoll, chief attorney for Dempsey, accused Arthur N. Sager, head of the Kearns legal array, of conducting the plaintiff's case "sloppily." Judge John Knox spiked hostilities when he warned all hands that he was the referee and that "I'm running this trial."

Kearns surprised the rank and file of the boxing game, all crowded into the United States District Court room for the show, when he called Dempsey as a witness. Over the strenuous objection of his own counself, Dempsey told of earning various sums through exhibition bouts between September 1, 1924, and July 1, 1926, for which he made no accounting to Kearns. The former champion said he received $450,000 and Gene Normile, then his business manager, $300,000 for the fight with Tunney in 1926. Earlier in the day, Tex Rickard testified that he paid Dempsey $700,000 for that match.

Lew Raymond, associated with Paddy Mullins in the management of Harry Wills, testified that Dempsey signed to fight the negro in South Bend in September of 1925. Raymond declared that in his presence Dempsey said:

"Kearns will get his end of this. I just want to keep him away from my camp. Kearns is still my manager."

Dempsey was recalled to the stand ta testify that this match never took place because of failure to post the guarantee he demanded.

MISS M. CLARRY CLUB PRESIDENT

Women's Music Club Elects Officers — Reports Show Balance On Hand.

Miss Mabel Clarry was elected president of the Women's Music Club at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon in the studio at the Conservatory of Music, when election of officers took place, reports were read, and the program concluded with a program of music and service of afternoon tea. This portion of the program is outlined more fully in another column.

The election of officers, for which Miss Margaret English took the chair, resulted as follows: Honorary president, Mrs. R. Gliddon; president, Miss Mabel Clarry; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. F. Allan; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan; treasurers, Miss Annie Wood and Mrs. T. H. Gillespie; secretary, Mrs. G. E. Porter; members of executive, Mrs. D. Walker, Mrs. W. A. Logan, Mrs. W. Blackwell, Mrs. M. B. Chenhall, Madame Masson, Mrs. G. F. Liddle, Mrs. L. Potvin, Mrs. J. H. Vernor, Mrs G N. Gordon, Mrs. W. R Widdess, Mrs. D. Carmichael, Mrs. W. Thackeray, Miss L. Hurley, Miss F. Edwards, Miss F. Gladman; Social Committee, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan (convenor), Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, and Miss L. Belleghem.

The retiring president, Mrs. J. F. Allan, reviewed briefly the work of the past season and thanked everyone, particularly the officers, who had assisted in any capacity during the year.

The report of the secretary was given by Mrs. G. E. Porter, and the treasurer, Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, also gave her report, showing a balance on hand of about $35.00, after all expenses were paid. The secretary's report will appear in full in a later issue.

It was decided to make the membership fee $2.00 a year, and to hold meetings of the club once a month, instead of fortnightly, as has been the custom. Afternoon tea will be served at the meetings.

JERSEY CITY, April 21 (Canadian Press). — Two men were suffocated and several others rescued when fire early to-day swept through a rooming house and drug company building.

TO REPEAT PLAY.

Immaculate Conception Dramatic Society Will Present Comedy Again.

The play, "Now Fawncy That" which was such a decided success on its presentation last week under the auspices of the Dramatic Society of the Immaculate Conception parish, will be repeated early next week at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum.

This play, in three acts and seven scenes, is a very interesting production, with the desirable elements of romance, mystery and suspense sustained until the last moment. It is cleverly written and staged and the audiences which witnessed it on its double presentation last week were very enthusiastic over its merits. It is a story of modern type, set in Ireland and France ,and includes in its production several attractive songs and dance numbers. The cast is an exceptionally good one and is directed by John Primeau.

Argentina's presidential campaign this year had no effect on commerce.

What CAN a Man Believe?

By BRUCE BARTON

Author of "The Book Nobody Knows," "The Man Nobody Knows"

XXXI—Jesus

THE cathedral of Strassburg, with its spire four hundred and sixty-five feet high, was one of the glories of the Middle Ages.

One day when the canons were showing Erasmus through it, they reminded him proudly that no one could be admitted to their chapter unless he had at least fourteen noble ancestors on his father's side and as many on his mother's. To which their guest, with characteristic wit, replied: "Then Christ Himself could not have been received into this chapter unless He got a dispensation from this rule."

If Buddha would be shocked by the prayer-wheels of India, grinding out their mechanical petitions to him; if Confucius would be dismayed by the costly ceremonies and the sacrifice of animals in his worship, it is likewise true that Jesus of Nazareth might feel uncomfortable in some of the temples erected in His name.

There was a very flourishing religion of forms and ceremonies in Jerusalem when He was born: He took little interest in it. His message was that God is a Father who may be approached directly by any of His children, without the mediation of temple or priest. Yet He had hardly gone from the earth before the process began of formalizing this simple doctrine into an imposing structure of cathedrals and creeds.

Is More Familiar

The story of His life is much more familiar to us than the stories of Buddha, Confucius and Mohammed; hence, we shall treat it rapidly, giving ourselves more space in which to answer the questions: What did He teach? Wherein does His teaching differ from the others? How, if at all, is it better?

The first disciples of Buddha regarded him as a man, but of far nobler quality than themselves. Later disciples made him the son of a god and a virgin, and surrounded his birth with heavenly portents of many sorts. Similarly, the birth of Confucius was said, by later followers, to have been accompanied by supernatural happenings.

Years After His Death

The four Gospels which record the life of Jesus were written many years after His death: in two of them He is described as the Son of God, born of the Virgin Mary. Belief in His supernatural birth has become a doctrine of the Christian Church, very precious to many of its members.

He grew up in the city of Nazareth and worked in the carpenter shop of Joseph, His mother's husband. It is presumed that Joseph died while Jesus was still a lad, and that He was responsible for His mother's support until the younger members of the household were old enough to take care of themselves. At about the age of thirty, He laid down His tools and appeared at the bank of the River Jordan, where John, a brilliant young cousin, was preaching to crowds from Jerusalem and the surrounding territory and signalizing the repentance of converts by baptism in the river.

Jesus submitted Himself for baptism and afterward retired into the wilderness for a period of self-examination and prayer.

Returning after forty days, He began to preach. His first public utterance followed the pattern of John's, a call for repentance based on the assurance that the Kingdom of Heaven was at hand. The two preachers were very dissimilar in taste and temperament. John was austere and lonely. Jesus was happy by nature, fond of the companionship of friends

Chose His Own Course

He soon saw that John's message and methods would not do for Him. He stayed in the towns or cities, or walked along the shores of the Lake of Galilee, surrounded always by a cheerful crowd. Gradually His own message took shape in His mind and began to have a character quite different from John's.

He told these simple people that God was their Father, and they themselves heirs of immortal life. They heard the news gladly.

> "He went about doing good, and healing all oppressed by the devil; for God was with him."

With His increasing popularity His words took on a more authoritative tone. The crowds regarded Him as one who would drive the Romans from Jerusalem and restore the throne of David. The rulers began to take uneasy notice; His close friends were distressed, saying, "He is beside Himself," and fearing that His rash words would involve them all in trouble.

Thought Him Disturbed

On one occasion His "mother and His brethren" came to interrupt Him in the midst of His teaching and healing, and while the narrative does not explicitly state that their purpose was to restrain Him, scholars have assumed that they too regarded Him as mentally disturbed and were eager to persuade Him to retire from this dangerous enterprise.

His reception of their visit indicated that He was well aware of their lack of faith, for He said to those who brought Him the news that they were outside and desired to see Him:

> "Who is my mother? and who are my brethren? And he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren! For whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother."

Tomorrow—Crucifixion.

been so well known to Dr. Wilson, as he had not been their pastor. When he was at George Street Church they had been great workers at Charlotte street, and he had met them socially. Mr. Cox had been a man of character, and he had had a very charming helpmate.

The Rev. David Wren expressed the gratitude of the congregation to those who had presented the beautiful windows and font. The windows completed this portion of the church, and were of great beauty, fit to compare with those of the great cathedrals of Europe.

They would, he said, remind the congregation of all that had been so well said by Dr. Wilson about the people commemorated, and he prayed that the congregation might imbibe into their lives and characters something of the beauty of the windows and of the scriptural teachings they contained.

Special music was sung by the choir, including "There Is No Death" and a Baptismal Hymn, also a solo by M. H. Park. Miss Mabel Clarry was in charge of this portion of the service.

OBITUARY

JOHN CHRISTIE.

On Tuesday, April 3rd, the death occurred of a very highly respected resident of Asphodel township in the person of John Christie at the age of 78 years.

The deceased underwent an operation in St. Joseph's hospital a few months ago and never regained his usual good health. His wife predeceased him about a year and five months ago.

There are left to mourn his loss one son, Joseph, two daughters, Mrs. Wilfrid Quinlan and Mrs. William Cavanagh; three brothers and five sisters.

The funeral took place on Thursday morning from the residence of his son, Joseph, and proceeded to St. Paul's Roman Catholic church. Interment was made in the Asphodel R. C. cemetery.

The pall bearers were Patrick Cavanagh Michael English, Edward Herr, Andrew Quinlan and John Quinlan.

CHESTER G. McKNIGHT

KINGSTON, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press).—Chester G. McKnight, who was Warden of the County of Frontenac in 1917, died suddenly on Sunday at Sydenham. The deceased was Reeve of the Township of Hinchinbrooke for several years. He was twice president of the Conservative Association of Frontenac.

STUDIO RECITAL.

Pupils of Miss Marguerite Rome Play Pleasingly.

A pleasing studio recital, with a very enjoyable program provided by the pupils, was presented on Saturday at the home of Miss Marguerite Rome, when the piano pupils were assisted by Vera Downes and Kenneth Gadd, violin pupils of Roy Rome. At the conclusion of the recital, dainty refreshments were served. The following program was given:

"Blue Bell" and "Columbine," by Marjorie Hall; "Daffodil" and "Tulip" by Rose Byers; "Red Rose," by Muriel Stinson; "Wallflower" and "Violet" by Iva Pilling; "Germania" Waltz, by Gertrude Adamson; "Moon Winks" and "The Blue Danube," by Irene Parsons; "The Cat and the Fiddle" and "Mountain Gnome," by Marie Allen; "Heartsease" and "The Dormouse's Dream," by Irene Houghton; "Skating" and "Happy Go Lucky," by Jennie Herd; "A Curious Story" and Beethoven's "Sonatina" by Jean Cowling; Mendelssohn's "Consolation" and "At Evening," by Gladys Byers; "A Japanese Sunset" and "Evening Calm," by Harold Frost; "Seguidilla" and Opus 327, No. 14 (Carl Bohn), by Mabel Copson; "Country Gardens" and "Pervenche," by Mrs. A. Cann; "Dancing Waves" and "Pieczonka," by Olive Rome.

Vera Downes played in violin solos, the "Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman" and Hauser's "Cradle Song" and Kenneth Gadd's violin selection was Raff's "Cavatina."

At 2.18 p.m. on Saturday, the fire brigade was called to 191 O'Carrol Avenue, where a grass fire had started. It was easily extinguished, however.

The next call that came in was from 573 Donegal Street, where a pile of ashes in a cellar was found burning. It was with considerable difficulty that the men were able to extinguish the fire. The residence was seriously endangered.

Fire Chief Gimblett, in conversation with The Examiner this morning, sounded a warning to the public against allowing piles of ashes to accumulate in their cellars. Such piles often constitute a fire hazard, and the Chief is anxious that his warning be heeded.

MISSION BAND MEETS.

Good Program Given By Park Street Children at Open Meeting.

The Mission Band of Park Street Baptist Church held its annual open meeting last evening in the Sunday School auditorium. There were a goodly number present and the children took their parts exceedingly well in the program which followed the devotional meeting.

The meeting opened with a hymn and the Scripture lesson read by Stanley Young, after which all repeated the Lords Prayer in unison. The work of the Grand Ligne Mission was taken up by ten members of the band in a very creditable manner. Rev. J. L. Harton presided as chairman for the following fine program:

Solo, Roy. McCabe; Recitation, Annie Sands; Piano Solo, Jean Whatley; Recitation, Eileen Sillon; Selection by Junior Choir of Church; Recitation, Hael Scriver; Recitation, Doris Scriver; Duet, Margaret Harton and Dolly Custance; Recitation, George Campbell; Solo, Bruce Harton; Chorus, Junior Choir of Church; Recitation, Hazel Scriver; recitation, Talk" by Mrs. McClelland of Murray Street Mission Circle, which was very much appreciated. She spoke on the beginning of the Gospel by John the Baptist, the forerunner of Jesus Christ, and how it has spread down through the ages.

Rev. Mr. Harton closed the meeting with prayer and the singing of the Doxology.

Before the meeting the children of the Mission Band and all taking part in the program were entertained at supper at 6.30 by the ladies of the Missionary Society.

PETERBOROUGH C.C. STARTS PLAY MAY 5

Various Matters Are Arranged at General Meeting For Season's Opening.

A general meeting of the Peterborough Cricket Club was held at the Paragon Tea-Rooms on Friday evening. A good number of members were present. There were also a few new men who intend joining the club. A considerable amount of business for the coming season was transacted and the prospects are bright for it being most successful.

The playing schedule is almost complete, and enough games are assured to give every member a number of games. Several of the present by-laws were rescinded and new ones added.

The financial statement was given by the treasurer, and it was decided to reduce the membership fee, thereby enabling everyone who is interested in the game to join. A certain amount of new equipment is to be purchased at once. New badges for the caps have been decided on.

The playing season will open (weather and grounds permitting) with a game at Lakefield on May 5th. About twenty matches will be played during the season.

Arrangements have been made to entertain the visiting teams as in the past. The Peterborough Club is well-known to out-of-town teams for hospitality, several letters being received by the secretary to this effect.

A letter was read from the cricketing editor of the Toronto Star, saying that he would give the club any assistance in the way of publicity.

Work will be commenced on the ground as soon as the weather permits. Charles Coleman, as an honorary member, was present, and gave his personal views on several questions which were appreciated.

A vote of thanks was also passed, thanking him for the use of the Paragon Tea-Rooms for club meetings.

LOCAL DELEGATE TELLS OF SESSIONS

Mrs. B. F. McNeely Reports on Liberal Women's Convention in Ottawa.

Mrs. B. F. McNeely, president of the local Women's Liberal Club, returned on Saturday afternoon from Ottawa, where she attended the meetings of the first National Assembly of the Liberal Women of Canada. Mrs. McNeely reports this as a very large and successful affair, attended by over five hundred women, representative of various Liberal organizations throughout the Dominion, and with an interesting program of business and social sessions.

The addresses given during the convention were in English and French. The general business was also carried on in the two languages. Among the feminine speakers were Mrs. Peter Heenan, Mrs. Annie C. Hall, of Brampton, who is president of the Ontario Liberal Women's Association, and who spoke on Provincial Federations; Mrs. C. J. Stewart, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., who introduced herself as a native of the Province from which comes "the coveted silver fox and the famous potatoes"; Dr. Grace Ritchie England, of Montreal, who spoke on "Women's Part in Campaigning"; and Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, of Winnipeg ,formerly of Peterborough.

At the great banquet, attended by nine hundred women, held in the ballroom of the Chateau Laurier, addresses were given by Premier King, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, M.P., Minister of Justice, and Hon. Robert Forke, M.P., Minister of Immigration.

Ladies presiding at the various sessions were Mrs. Charles Thorburn of Ottawa, Mrs. W. R. Motherwell of Melville, Saskatchewan, wife of the Minister of Agriculture, and Mrs. Pierre F. Casgrain, of Montreal.

The social events in connection with the convention included a reception by Premier King at Laurier House, a reception by wives of the Cabinet Ministers in the restaurant of the House of Parliament, a visit to Rideau Hall, a drive around the city, and a carillon concert.

A wreath of crimson rosebuds, tied with crimson ribbon, was deposited at the foot of the Laurier Monument by the ladies, and a representative of the Women's Liberal Committee of St. Jacques, Montreal, also placed a wreath of beaded flowers on the monument, with an inscription quotwords spoken by Sir Wilfrid in his lifetime:

"I do not know whether my political career or my natural life shall be short or long, but whether short or long, I cherish the hope that I shall have lived that when deposited in my grave, every Canadian, be he friend or foe, be he English-speaking or French-speaking, Protestant or Catholic, will have to say: 'There rests a man who has given the best of his life, his soul, his heart, to make a united people.'"

Miss Littlefield, preparing at the Y. W.C.A. for forthcoming annual Pageant, asks children to have parents place streamers on cars. One child approaches and asks for banner. She says: "We haven't a car yet, but we're getting one soon. My father is working on The Examiner puzzle.

A Peterborough 'bus was approaching the railway track on McDonnel street. A small boy rushed toward it excitedly and said: "Stop, mister, there's a train coming." The driver stopped and an excitable woman passenger craned her neck both ways. No train was in sight. A woman ran panting down the street and climbed aboard. "All right, mister, you can go on now," said the small boy, who had done his bit to assist the late feminine arrival.

BAN ON STATION IS PROTESTED

Charges of Discrimination Made Against Government By I.B.S.A. Speaker.

MASS MEETING HELD.

Charges of rank discrimination against the International Bible Students' Association by the Federal government was made last night by T. M. Carman, of Toronto, at a mass meeting held in the Regent Theatre.

The meeting, which several hundred citizens attended, was called to register a complaint against the Canadian government's action in cancelling the broadcasting license of the International Bible Students' Association. At the conclusion a resolution was adopted to be forwarded to the Prime Minister, protesting the cancellin gof the licenses.

Mr. Carman outlined the work of the Association and complained that a wrong was being done to the interests of the Canadian people. "We have distributed our literature at cost and our broadcasting stations have been operated at cost to no one. We declare that every man has a right to make a true interpretation of the Scriptures and no one should object to having his religious belief examined. We have no objection to any minister taking our doctrines and tearing them to pieces.

"Is there anything wrong with putting our doctrines on the air? I say no! and even if they do stop us God will see that this message is sent out.

"Why are our preachers not helping us with our case- Because the church has failed and there is a principle at stake.

"Are we as a people to stand for this?" he demanded. "If the government can stop us from broadcasting our doctrines, what may they not do with the religious beliefs of any in this free country? Has this action been British fair play for the government never gave us an opportunity to put our case before them before our license was cancelled. The government never gave us any reason for cancelling our license but said it had been done after due consideration.

"There were thousands listening to our Sunday concerts and was it not easy for those listening in if they did not like our concert to simply tur nthe dial and tune in on another station.

"The government cancelled C.K.Y. C license and also C.K.C.X. Why did they cancel the latter? Because they knew we would use it, as it was owned and operated by men who belonged to the International Bible Student Association."

COMPANY COMMANDER TELLS OF HIS MEN ENTERING MONS BEFORE MIDNIGHT OF NOV. 10

Capt. E. W. Grafftey, of 42nd Battalion, Testifies in Currie Suit.

WENT AHEAD OF MEN.

Four Witnesses Called By General Currie's Counsel—Men of Units Which Faced Mons.

(By Staff Reporters).

COBOURG, April 24. — E. W. Grafftey, commander of D Company 42nd Battalion, related to the court this morning how his men entered Mons before midnight on November 10, 1918. An unassuming Canadian officer, Mr. Grafftey, in referring to his part in the capture of Mons, always used the words "an officer." After his company had taken up position on the edge of Mons, he and Sergt. Gibson went in to spy out the city before he would give his men the order to advance.

Four witnesses were called by W. N. Tilley, K.C., counsel for General Currie, at the morning session of the Currie-Wilson-Preston libel suit, and each in his own way told of how Mons was taken and of the casualties on November 10 and 11.

Joseph Freeman, a member of the transport section of the 42nd Battalion, related how in a back yard several thousand yards behind the front lines, on the morning of November 10, two members of his battalion were killed and eight others wounded. Four later succumbed to wounds. He himself had his foot blown off when the German shell burst in their midst.

Captain Grafftey declared he had no casualties after 4.30 p.m. on November 10.

Albert Kelley, an engineer, was the first witness called this morning. He exhibited a map of Mons and the surrounding district drawn on a large scale by him when he was on active service with the Princess Pats.

Four railway lines enter Mons and the surrounding country is low and cut up with canals, drains and small streams. Leading out from Mons to the east are some very important roadways. The witness estimated the population of Mons at 13,000 to 14,000. At noon of the 9th of November the witness said the Princess Pats entered Jemappes. The four companies separated and went out towards Mons on different roads. Mr. Tilley commenced to ask the movements of the various companies. Mr. Regan objected as he could not understand why witness could be in touch with all the companies. Mr. Tilley asked the witness his duties and he said he was chief scout intelligence officer, keeping in close touch with all the companies and reporting back to headquarters. Mr. Regan—"All he can say is what some other man told him." His Lordship—"In his official duties as chief intelligence officer of the Princess Pats."

The Princess Pats were relieved by the R.C.R. early in the morning of the 10th and acted as reserves until the afternoon when all but one company returned to Jemappes and heard about the armistice about 8 a. m. on the eleventh.

One Man Wounded.

Q.—What casualties did you have?

A.—One man named Percell wounded on November 11.

In cross-examination Mr. Kelly said he never heard that Mons was to be captured and it only fell in the Canadian line of march. The Germans at that time were on the run and only putting up a mild resistance at times.

Captain Grafftey.

E. W. Grafftey, commander of D Company, 42nd Battalion, said that his company on the night of November 9th was at Jemappes. On the morning of the 10th he received orders to take over the position occupied by No. 4 Company of the Princess Pats. At 10.30 D Company left Jemappes, following the main road to Mons. At Company Headquarters he secured his position from the commander of the Princess Pats in the basement of a brewery. While passing through the brewery yard the company was under machine gun fire. At 5.30 McLaren and scouts, under cover, established a post 50 feet from the enemy machine guns, which were guarding the Jemappes Mons road. By 11.00 p.m. of November 10, they had established post on boulevard which is one of the boundaries of Mons. At midnight the whole company moved forward to the new post. The city at that time was exceedingly quiet.

Q.—What was the last time under fire that day?

A.—At 4.30 in the afternoon.

Between midnight and 2 p.m. the witness investigated part of the city and found no enemy so came to the conclusion that the enemy had left. This information was communicated to Battalion Headquarters. Orders then were to proceed through the city. One platoon went to the north, another to the south, under Lieut. Hendley. Lieut. Hendley had been warned to scout out the machine gun post near the city. At 1.30 the witness heard a minor engagement near the machine gun post, but ti proved

Mining Development Has Shown Progress

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 24. Canadian Press. — Mining development in Canada has made amazing strides in the last few years declared Hon. Chas. Stewart, minister of the Interior, in addressing the National Press Club at luncheon here yesterday.

Mr. Stewart was the guest of honor of the club with Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States. Formal welcome on behalf of the United States was made by Hon. W. H. Jardine, secretary of agriculture.

Americans had $300,000,000 invested in Canadian mines, the minister said, and Canada hoped they would invest as much more in the near future. He said researches led to the belief that the Laurentian shield was not confined to Central Canada, but probably extended from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans.

FLIERS AWAIT GOOD WEATHER FOR TAKE-OFF

Snow and High Winds Hold Two Planes at Greenly Island.

BENNETT BETTER.

Condition of Flier Still Serious, Say Doctors—Lindbergh Bringing Serum.

LAKE STE. AGNES, April 24.—(Canadian Press.)—A report reaching here to-day from Robert Cannon, of the Canadian Transcontinental Airways, was to the effect that the Bremen and the Ford relief plane, though ready to take off from Greenly Island, were waiting for more favorable weather. Snow was falling and strong winds was reported from the north-east.

Bennett Still Ill.

QUEBEC, April 24. — (Canadian Press.)—An official bulletin issued at hospital here to-day by physicians was as follows: "Floyd Bennett has passed a fairly good night, better than any since he came to the hospital and is if anything, a slight shade better, but his condition is still considered serious."

CURTISS FIELD, N.Y., April 24.—(Canadian Press.) — Col. Charles Lindbergh expects to fly to Quebec this afternoon with anti-pneumonia serum for Floyd Bennett, aviator, who is critically ill in hospital there.

WILKINS PLANS SOUTH POLE HOP

Refuses to Sell Plane to Byrd, As He Expects to Make Flight Himself.

STARTS IN SEPTEMBER.

GREEN HARBOR, Spitzbergen, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Capt. George Wilkins, scarcely landed from his great feat of flying across the top of the world by airplane, already is planning a new air venture, this time over the Antarctic on the other end of the world. The captain has received a telegraphic offer from Commander Richard Byrd, who also is planning an antarctic expedition, to buy Wilkins Polar plane for the Commander's South Polar trip, but Captain Wilkins replied that he was unable to accept the offer as he himself is planning a new expedition, this time to the South. He hopes to start on his new venture as soon as possible, probably at the beginning of September.

Fitzmaurice Receives His First Mash Note Stenographer Asks For Autographed Picture

LAKE STE. AGNES, April 24.—Major Fitzmaurice received his first mash note yesterday. It came from a girl in Beauceville, Quebec, and asked for his photograph. It read:

"My Dear Fitz: Please do not disappoint a very warm admirer of your big victory and agree to her desire of having your own photo autographed. I am just a young Canadian stenographer, nothing to you, but you are so much to her. With thanks, yours sincerely."

Major Fitzmaurice was told about the fate of Captain Walter Hinchliffe and the Hon Elsie Mackay in a telegram from T. Allen of Calgary, Alberta, which read:

"Vision given to two different mediums here is to the effect that Hinchliffe plane crashed about fifty miles northeast of present location of Bremen. Hinchliffe and Mackay starving. Mackay injured."

Marmora Residents Have Rare Violins

MARMORA, April 24.—A chance conversation in this village recently led to the discovery that two rare violins at least are possessed by Marmora. For the sum of a few dollars, Art Jones purchased from Dan Young about five years ago a violin which the latter's grandfather brought with him from England when emigrating to this country. This instrument is an Stradivarius and its case is pearl inlaid. It is inscribed within Omius Stradivarius Cremenensis 1729."

The other violin is in the possession of Manley Lavender and its inscription is "Carlo Bergonzi fecit Cremone Anno 1735."

POINCARE GAINS ON FIRST COUNT

145 Supporters of Premier Returned Out of 179 Deputies Elected.

ASSURED OF VICTORY.

PARIS, April 24 (A.P.).—The first day's balloting Sunday in the French general elections, was, as forecast, a sort of "plebiscite for Monsieur Poincare."

Of the 179 deputies elected Sunday out of 612 constituencies, 145 are supporters of the premier. There are still 433 deputies to be elected at next Sunday's election, since no candidates for those seats obtained the necessary majority.

The surprises of the day were that only 34 of the old majority elected in 1924 by the radical cartol were among the successful candidates; that the Communists, while largely increasing their vote and leading the list in many districts, failed to elect a single man, and that the Socialist Radicals fell far behind the Moderates and even behind the Communists in many cases.

The election returns appear to indicate a drift both toward the Right, or Conservative parties, and toward the Left, or extremist Radical parties, from the Centre. The Radicals showing great weakness, with constant gains on their Right, while the Socialist vote fell off heavily, with corresponding gains by the Communists.

Effective results from these changes will appear only after the second ballot next Sunday, when the Communists are expected to win in from 15 to 20 districts.

All political observers agree that Premier Poincare is sure of a safe majority, but that is about as far as anyone will risk an opinion because of possible coalition between parties in a minority on the first ballot.

Returns from Alsace, showing that M. Ricklin, autonomous candidate now in prison awaiting trial, led the list at Altkirch with 5,107 votes, while Rosse, his cell companion, polled 3,494 votes at Kolmar, has caused great emotion in Paris, as well as in the recovered province.

The Socialists met last night to decide whether to coalesce with the Radicals or stand aside for the Communists in districts where they were outvoted, but made no decision and will meet again to-day.

Three members of the Poincare Cabinet failed to retain their seats in Sunday's vote and must go before the electorate again. They were Paul Painleve, minister of war; Andre Fallieres, minister of labor; and Henri Queuille, minister of agriculture. Their chances on the second ballot were regarded as good.

Despite a hard campaign against him, Maurice Bokanowski, minister of commerce, succeeded in election on the first ballot.

LOW PRESSURE CAUSES ALARM

Fire Brigade Called Out To Barrie Building at 7.10 This Morning.

Lowered pressure in the sprinkling system was believed to have been responsible for the alarm which came in to the Fire Hall from Barrie's Store Building on George Street at 7.10 this morning.

As a result, the entire Brigade turned out only to find that 'twas all a false alarm.

FIRE IN MUNROE HOUSE TO-DAY CAUSES DAMAGE TOTALLING $500

Much Smoke Ensues When Blaze Breaks Out in Clothes Closet.

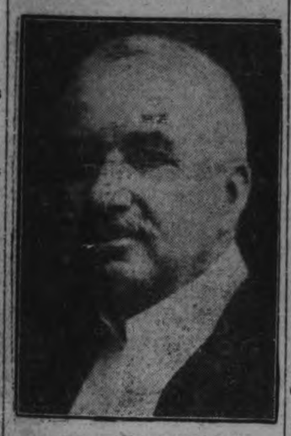
WHOLE BRIGADE OUT.

Guests Make Hurried Exit as Dense Smoke Spreads Through Building.

Fire which started in a clothes closet and gradually spread into two adjacent rooms did damage amounting to approximately five hundred dollars in the Munroe Hotel, corner Hunter and Water streets, shortly after the noon hour to-day. As the alarm came from the main business section of the city, the entire brigade turned out and while there was no use for more than one ladder, a single water line and a chemical hose, the firemen encountered stiff opposition for the greater part of an hour. The smoke was particularly dense, adding to the difficulties of successfull combating the blaze.

Smoke coming from a room at the head of the main flight of stairs on the second floor was first noticed by Mrs. Byles, proprietress of the hotel, at about 1.50. She immediately sent in the alarm which met with quick response. On arrival, the firemen found it necessary to tear away a part of the partition in order to make good use of the chemicals, but inspection showed that the blaze had not reached through the ceiling, and the two rooms became the main scene of action. Since there were no large flames it was possible to open the windows, and after the first fifteen minutes there was sufficient circulation of air to clear the rooms of the main volume of smoke. A large crowd of onlookers watched proceedings from the sidewalks, while a number of guests effected hurried exits.

DIED THIS MORNING.



MR. JUSTICE MOWAT.

ROTARY REPUTATIONS RIPPED WHEN WOMEN WITTILY WALLOP MEN, MERE MEN, MERCILESSLY

Ladies' Night at Rotary Club Provides Minstrel Revue of Merit.

GREAT PROGRAM.

Rotary-Annes Prove a Glittering Success in Role of Entertainers.

The Supreme Court may be of the opinion that women are not eligible to sit in the Canadian Senate, but the local Rotary-Annes have left no doubt of the ability of the fair sex to sit in a minstrel circle and triumph as entertainers.

It was Ladies' Night with the Peterborough Rotary Club at the Empress last night and the program was entirely in the hands of the Rotary-Annes, and what a program it proved to be! The ladies chose a minstrel revue as the entertainment fare for the evening, and if they had any doubts as to the wisdom of their choice these must have been driven back by the laughter and applause of the Rotarians and their guests during the performance, and utterly routed by the cheers and singing of "For they are jolly good fellows" that followed the final number.

To put on a minstrel performance in a hotel dining-room on a small and improvised platform and with dressing-rooms necessarily inconveniently situated is somewhat of an exacting test, but the members of the cast rose triumphantly above all difficulties and staged a smoothly running bright and altogether pleasing program that delighted the audience.

The minstrel first part revealed Mrs. W. R. Morris as interlocutor in the centre of a circle of negro piccaninnies and funny end "men," all, of course, in black face and with bright costumes that made the stage a riot of color. And from the snappy opening chorus to the finale there was not a dull moment. The end "men," Mrs. Gerald McClelland, Mrs. Claude Rogers, Mrs. Percy Hooper, and Mrs. Ray Harding, had a wealth of quips and jokes hot from the griddle, and with the able assistance of the interlocutor they put them across with professional assurance. With the Cobourg libel action so much in the limelight, The Examiner will take no chances in repeating the revelations in regard to prominent Rotarians that were made during the performance. When a staid citizen is accused of taking home a manhole cover and attempting to play it on his victrola, a self-respecting newspaper must draw a veil of Christian charity over the whole affair. The quartette at the end of the circle, if the theory that a laugh a day will keep the doctor away is sound, provided their hearers with health insurance covering the next six months. Mrs. Morris added to the hilarity by a "now-it-can-be-told" speech regarding the evening clothes she was wearing.

But there was more than "end" men jokes to that first part. Mrs. W. R. Widdess sang "Mighty Lak a Rose" in splendid voice and to the great enjoyment of the audience. Little Sophie Yeotes contributed a piccaninny dance that was most cleverly performed. Mrs. Gerald McClelland was heard to advantage in the tuneful "How Do You Do, Miss Springtime?" with a whistling chorus that caught the fancy of her hear-

Beaverbrook's Horse Wins Famous Stakes

Newmarket, England April 24. Canadian Press. — The great Metropolitan stakes at Epsom, one of the famous long distance spring handicaps, was won today by Lord Beaverbrook's five year old gelding Alacrity at twenty-five to one against. He won by a neck from Bamboula, a hundred to twelve against, who finished half a length ahead of Shas, eleven to two against. Twenty horses started. The course is over 2¼ miles for a purse of six thousand dollars.

SURPLUS SHOWN BY CHURCHILL; NEW TAX PLANS

British Exchequer Had Four and a Half Million Pounds Left Over.

HEAVY GASOLINE TAX.

Fourpence a Gallon is Levy Imposed On British Motorists By New Budget.

LONDON, April 24. — Canadian Press. — Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, introduced his new budget in the House of Commons to-day and showed what he alluded to as a "modest, but not unwelcome surplus" of four and a half million pounds sterling for the year just ended. This was due largely to the intensive economy campaign which had been waged in all departments. The estimated revenue for the forthcoming year was fixed at 812,498,000, and the expenditures at 806,195,000 pounds sterling.

Mr. Churchill said that he did not recall any budget which had succeeded as well as last year's in spite of so many adverse factors. Immediately after last year's budget the government began an economy campaign in all departments, and more than ten and a half million pounds sterling had been saved.

Among the new taxes announced by the Chancellor is a duty of four pence a gallon on petrol, and other forms of motor car spirits, kerosene, white spirits and turpentine. This duty becomes effective to-morrow.

Heavy oils and lubricating oils will be free from taxation.

CAR HITS WOMAN.

Mother and Two Daughters Knocked Down Near Ennismore Church On Sunday.

ENNISMORE, April 24. — When Charles Harrington was driving out of the driveway at Ennismore Church on Sunday morning at 10.30, his car struck Mrs. Maurice Twomey and her two daughters, Mary and Patricia. Mrs. Twomey was badly shaken.

Has Oldest Trunk In Marmora District

MARMORA, April 24.—What is in all probability the oldest trunk in this district is a prized possession of Mrs. W. Linn. Several years ago Mr. Linn was cheesemaker at the factory near Trinity Church, while one of the patrons was James Fidler. Mr. Fidler had at his residence several effects which had belonged to his grandfather, an ocean sailor, included in which was the trunk. In disposing of his antiques, Mr. Fidler presented the trunk to Mrs. Linn. The trunk is about thirty inches in length, barrel-shaped and covered with sealskin, and is quite a century old.

Another relic of bygone days at the Linn home is the old grandfather clock, made by J. M. Patter, of Toronto, which Mr. Linn's grandfather, who resided in Rawdon Township, purchased as the first of its kind to be seen in that township.

JUSTICE MOWAT DIES IN TORONTO

Prominent Member of Ontario Supreme Court On Bench Since 1921.

65 YEARS OF AGE.

TORONTO, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Mr. Justice H. M. Mowat, of the Supreme Court of Ontario, died at his home here this morning. He was 65 years of age.

The end came peacefully at his home. He had been suffering from a complication of diseases for some time, and several months ago was compelled to absent himself from his work on the Ontario Supreme Court bench in an effort to regain his health. His condition, however, gradually became worse and a few weeks ago it was conceded that his death was close at hand.

A nephew of the late Sir Oliver Mowat, who was at one time Premier of Ontario, Herbert Macdonald Mowat had a natural bent for politics. His services in Parliament during the war as well as his undoubted legal ability brought him an appointment to the Supreme Court bench.

Mr. Justice Mowat was born in Toronto in 1863. He was educated at Queen's University, obtaining his LL.B. in 1886. In the same year he was called to the bar. He built up a most successful practice in Toronto, becoming head of the firm of Mowat, MacLennan, Hunter and Parkinson. On several occasions he pleaded before the Privy Council. In 1904 he acted as Government counsel in the Alien Labor Enquiry held at Winnipeg.

In politics he was a Liberal and as such unsuccessfully contested North Ontario in 1911. In 1917 he supported the Union Government organized by Sir Robert Borden, and was elected M.P. for Parkdale. He received his appointment to the bench in 1921.

A staunch Imperialist, he was a member of the executive of the British Empire League in Canada. He held the rank of Major in the Queen's Own Rifles and organizes the St. Andrew's Rifles.

A somewhat notable incident of his career on the bench occurred in 1926. During the course of a trial in Hamilton, Ont., a witness described himself as "a gentleman." The judge remarked that a gentleman was one whose father had been a gentleman and who did not engage in manual labor. This definition precipitated a heated newspaper discussion on the meaning of the word "gentleman."

Mr. Justice Mowat had a large circle of friends, many of whom were very distinguished. His home on Wellesley Street, Toronto, was a meeting place for many intellectual leaders.

He was a Presbyterian, and at one time was president of St. Andrew's Society of Toronto.

In 1900 he married Mary Skeaff, daughter of the late John Skeaff of Aberdeen, Scotland. He was keenly interested in curling. He was a member of the Rideau, Toronto, Toronto Hunt, Royal Canadian Yacht Clubs, and Canadian Military Institutes.

SENATE SEATS NOT FOR WOMEN

Supreme Court Finds Them Ineligible For Appointment to Office.

DECISION UNANIMOUS.

OTTAWA, April 24 (Canadian Press).—The Supreme Court of Canada decided to-day that women are not eligible to appointment to the Senate of Canada. The question turned on the interpretation of the word "person" in Section 24 of the British North America Act. It was brought before the Court on reference from the Governor in Council as to whether 'persons includes female persons."

The Court answered, "Understood to mean, 'Are women eligible for appointment to the Senate of Canada?' The question is answered in the negative." The Court was unanimous in its decision.

EVIDENCE IN REBUTTAL BEGINS IN CURRIE-WILSON LIBEL SUIT WITH STAFF OFFICER ON STAND

Col. A. A. McGee, Montreal Barrister, Transmitted Famous "Cease Fire" Order.

ABOUT 6.30 ON 11TH.

Records Show Platoon of 42nd Battalion Entered Mons About 11 p.m. on 10th.

COBOURG, April 24.—The famous Currie-Wilson-Preston $50,000 libel suit entered upon the third stage of its course yesterday, when W. N. Tilley, K.C., attorney for General Sir Arthur W. Currie, G.C.M.G., called Col. A. A. McGee, Montreal barrister, as the first witness to give evidence in rebuttal. Only three witnesses were called during yesterday's session. One of these, F. W. Wilson, editor and publisher of the Port Hope Guide, and one of the defendants in the case, had given part of his evidence before the court adjourned for the week end. Col. Duguid, Department of National Defense, was recalled and examined again on some matters relating to army orders. When his evidence had been taken, Regan signified that the defense for Mr. Wilson was completed. W. T. R. Preston, writer of the article which occasioned the suit, also signified that his case was completed and Mr. Tilley called his first witness for cross-examination, Col. A. A. McGee, Montreal, an ex-member of Canadian Headquarters Staff, under General Currie.

The order of procedure is now practically reversed. Mr. Tilley calls his witness, examines him with a volley of questions to which the majority of answers must be monosylables, yes or no. Mr. Regan rises frequently to object, but rarely are his objections sustained by His Lordship.

During the past six days of the court session, Mr. Regan had been placing his witnesses for the defense in the box, questioning them, in many cases, for hours and having a great number of his questions objected to by Mr. Tilley. The majority of Mr. Tilley's objections were sustained by His Lordship, since they were with regard to "hearsay" evidence, and improper questioning.

Although all the other principals were in court for the opening and each juryman was in his place six minutes before two o'clock, it was fourteen minutes past four o'clock when Sir Arthur Currie entered and took his usual seat at the counsel table. Spectators thronged the court room, fully an hour before the time set for the opening and when the case was resumed, standing room was practically a minus quantity. The constable at the main door found it difficult to keep a path open for the messenger boys who are the link between the press men in the court room and the seven operators in the wire room on the second floor.

Nor were these crowds of spectators doomed to sit and stand all afternoon without a thrill. Twice Sheriff Nesbitt had to call repeatedly for order in the court. It also developed that Col. Duguid, who has spent many hours in the witness box as an expert from the Department at Ottawa, was the division staff officer to whom Col. McGee at corps

Unemployed Stage Labor Demonstration

WINNIPEG, Man., April 24.—Canadian Press. — A second demonstration within the past week was staged by nearly 2000 unemployed here yesterday.

Led by two young women carrying a red flag, emblazoned with a labor motto, the jobless marched along the main thoroughfares of the city to the Legislative Buildings. Several banners were carried by the paraders, one of which demanded: "Work or full maintenance."

Before the march started a mass meeting was held on the market square where Alderman Thomas Flye and W. N. Hilisnyk, addressed the throng.

"It is high time that the authorities understood that single men have to live as well as married men," Ald. Flye declared. "There is going to be serious trouble if they fail to take care of the situation."

SIR H. DRAYTON HAS RESIGNED COMMONS SEAT

Eulogiums From Three Leaders Follow Announcement Made in House.

MANY YEARS IN PUBLIC LIFE.

Has Accepted Position as Head of Ontario Liquor Control Board.

OTTAWA, April 24.—The resignation of Sir Henry Drayton as member for West York was announced by the Deputy Speaker in the House yesterday afternoon.

In an enclosing letter, Sir Henry stated that his resignation was due to his accepting the position of head of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario. He thanked the Speaker and members for their kindness and consideration and said he left behind many lasting friendships.

Eulogiums from the three leaders followed.

The Prime Minister stated that all on his side would join in good wishes to Sir Henry. While he was opposed politically, the differences were always expressed without lessening ties of friendship.

Sir Henry had entered public life out of a sense of duty and had many years of faithful and continuous service. He wished him every success in a new position to which he would take an exceptional wisdom.

Hon. R. B. Bennett thanked the Prime Minister and said his own side was naturally delighted to join in the sentiment. He spoke very hightly of Sir Henry as an experienced administrator who had taken the position of Finance Minister when it was difficult to get any one to accept such an ardous position. Now that his services here had ceased they would be more truly recognized by political friends and foes.

Mr. Gardiner of the U.F.A. added a few felicitous words of high praise for Sir Henry.

IN POLICE COURT

Charged with being intoxicated while in charge of a motor car, Robert Hamilton, of this city, appeared in Police Court this morning. He was unrepresented, and on completion of evidence given by Inspector Reid, who had effected his arrest on Monday afternoon, changed his plea from not guilty to guilty. Magistrate O. A. Langley imposed the minimum punishment of seven days in the common jail, at hard labor.

In his evidence, Inspector Reid recounted details of the arrest. He stated that Hamilton had been driving south on George Street, and made a dangerously wide turn to Hunter Street, heading east. He had stopped at the Munro House, but when the Inspector had started toward his car, had driven east on Hunter Street. In overtaking him, the car of the Inspector had been driven forty miles an hour.

Inspector Reid told of finding eleven empty beer bottles, quite recently opened, in the car, and of the condition in which he had found accused.

Hamilton, who had pleaded not guilty, was remanded until Thursday that he might obtain counsel, but a few minutes later he changed his plea to guilty and sentence was imposed.

Chief Newhall stated that this was the first occasion for some time that Hamilton had appeared in Court.

WOODSTOCK PAPER RECEIVES DECISION

Judgment of Trial Judge in Damage Suit Restored By Supreme Court.

OTTAWA, April 24 (Canadian Press). — The appeal of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review against the proprietors of the Toronto Telegram, has been allowed with costs in a judgment rendered by the Supreme Court of Canada to-day. The judgment of the trial judge is restored, and costs are allowed both for the action before the Supreme Court and that before the Appellate Division.

The action was taken by the Woodstock Sentinel-Review against the trustees of the late John Ross Robertson, publishers of the Toronto Evening Telegram, for damages for alleged libel arising from articles published by the defendant newspaper on August 9 and August 11, 1926, during the Dominion general election campaign. The complaint was made that articles in the Telegram accused the plaintiff company of hypocrisy in the policy of prohibition pursued in the conduct of the newspaper.

The action was first heard by Mr. Justice Logie and a jury at Woodstock on February 28, 1927, when the plaintiff was awarded $6,000 damages. On the defendant's appeal to the First Divisional Court this verdict was reversed. The plaintiff company then carried the case to the Supreme Court of Canada with the foregoing result.

NEW BUDGET WILL SHOW SMALL SURPLUS

Churchill Will Present Fourth Budget Statement To Commons To-day.

INTRODUCE NEW SCHEME.

No Reduction in Income Tax, Entertainment Tax or Spirits Duties.

LONDON, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to-day will present to the House of Commons his fourth budget statement, and no presentation of the nation's account in recent years has been anticipated with such keen interest.

For the first time Mr. Churchill has a small surplus instead of a deficit, but this surplus goes automatically into the redemption of the national debt.

The Chancellor has allowed it to be known in advance that there will be no reduction in the income tax, the entertainment tax or spirits duties. But he will be required to find new money, for he is to introduce what is considered the greatest constructive scheme of his period in office, namely a scheme of rating reform with a special view to the relief of agriculture and manufacturing plants. Although in its initial stage, the scheme will not require much outlay, it is anticipated that it will eventually require about £30,000,000 yearly, and the Chancellor must start plans for providing this money.

Just what direction these plans will take has been the theme for numerous guesses. One of these had to do with a possible tax on gramophone records, and this rumor had much to do with the recent rampant stock exchange speculation in gramophone shares.

Gossip, however, has finally fixed upon petroleum as the new subject for taxation. Automobile owners for years have been opposing the existing scheme of taxing the motors on the basis of horse-power. They have been clamoring instead for a tax on petrol. To-day will reveal whether the chancellor intends to reduce the horse-power tax and place a levy on petrol or retain the present tax and add petrol duties.

It was prophesied last night that one of the changes in the taxation scheme will be a reduction on the tariff on raw sugar. This would be for the benefit of home industry of sugar refining.

FIRE ALONG TRACK SPREADS TO FIELDS

Wide Area of Grass Burned and Stable Threatened by Cavan Blaze.

CAVAN, April 24.—While the section men on the C.P.R. were burning grass on the railroad on Friday, the fire spread to Norman Lamb's property north of the eighth line and into A. Watson's place, and after burning a wide area of grass it almost reached the stable on the Watson farm before a number of men gathered and succeeded in helping the section men to extinguish it.

Personals

Miss Elinor Fallis was hostess on Tuesday evening at a party held at her home in honor of Miss Hazel McMahon, who left on Wednesday morning for Toronto, after completing her course in the Peterborough Business College.

Four intimate friends, Misses Elsie Spence, Wilma Fallis, Bertha Lang, and Elinor Fallis, presented her with an ivory bedroom clock. A dainty lunch was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in games and community singing.

Mr. F. McMahon accompanied his daughter to Toronto on Wednesday.

Mrs. W. White and baby son are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Lamb.

Mrs. Atchison and Miss P. Savage of Toronto are guests of Mrs. Albert Tinney.

MRS. R. M. HOWDEN IS W.I. PRESIDENT

Elected at Annual Meeting of Cavan Society—Bazaar Being Arranged.

CAVAN, April 24.—Mrs. R. M. Howden was elected president of the Cavan Women's Institute at the annual meeting held at the home of Mrs. D. J. Hunter on Thursday afternoon.

The former president, Mrs. D. J. Hunter, conducted the meeting, which opened with the Institute Ode. During the business session letters were read by the secretary acknowledging flowers sent to the sick. Reports were given by the committees who had made purchases for the bazaar. A letter was read from the secretary of the Mount Pleasant Institute for the May meeting, at which a speaker from the department will be present. Bethany and Millbrook branches have also accepted invitations to be present.

The bazaar will be held on May 10, or as near that date as possible. Mrs. R. M. Howden, Miss E. Hunter, Mrs. D. J. Hunter and Mrs. C. Carr were appointed a committee to secure a play for the program on the evening of the bazaar. Supper will be served. Those in charge will be Mrs. Seeney, Mrs. A. Kennedy, Miss Touchburne, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Perrin, Mrs. D. J. Hunter and Mrs. E. Fallis. The committee for the arranging of the tables and selling will be Mrs. C. Carr, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Howden and Mrs. E. Syer.

After the arrangements of the bazaar had been completed, the secretary read a splendid report of the year's activities, showing that more than three hundred dollars had been raised, the balance on hand being one hundred and thirty-two dollars. Donations had been made to Christie Street Hospital, Toronto; the Star Santa Claus fund and for local relief. Flowers had been sent to the sick; a bale of good clothing sent to Haliburton for school children; a choral class held as well as social gatherings in the community.

Mrs. F. M. Staples took charge of the meeting while the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. R. M. Howden; vice-president, Mrs. J. W. Perrin; secretary-treasurer, Miss E. Hunter; assistant secretary, Mrs. Ray Syer; district director, Mrs. I. Keegan; district representatives, Mrs. R. M. Matchell, Mrs. D. J. Hunter, and Mrs. A. Kennedy; flower committee, Mrs. E. Syer, Miss F. Hunter, Mrs. A. Kennedy and Miss E. Hunter; organist, Mrs. Ray Syer; auditors, Mrs. F. M. Staples and Mrs. D. White.

A lunch served by the lunch committee, Mrs. Howden, Mrs. Perrin, Miss H. Kennedy and Miss N. Sutton, assisted by the hostess, brought the meeting to a close.

There will no regular meeting in May, but Mrs. Lloyd Sutton invited the Institute to meet at her home in June.

Among those present were: Mesdames E. Fallis, C. Carr, James Paul, R. Matchett, Rowen, F. M. Staples, Perrin, R. S. Staples, D. J. Hunter, L. Newton, H. Tinney, A. Elliott, Card, R. M. Howden, H. Seeney, A. Kennedy, R. Syer, M. Matchett, Milton Carr, Misses N. Sutton, L. Syer, I. Howson, E. Hunter, Touchbourne, H. Kennedy, F. Hunter.

HAS HAND CUT.

Robert Carnite Meets With Accident While Working on Sawing Machine.

TRENT RIVER, April 24.—Robert Carnrite met with a painful accident on Thursday. While working with his sawing machine at Jimmie Griffins, he caught the middle finger of his left hand and nearly severed it. Immediately after the accident he was taken to Havelock. He had it dressed and it was thought the finger could be saved, but the following day it had to be amputated.

BASKET SOCIAL WELL ATTENDED

Good Program Given at Function at Fallis Line Church.

BIDDING IS BRISK

MILLBROOK, April 24.—The Fallis Line Church was filled to capacity Friday evening for the basket social, a large number from Millbrook motoring up for the occasion. The Rev. F. H. Howard acted as chairman and the program included the following numbers: Chairman's address; chorus, "O Canada", Millbrook United Church choir; recitation, "Izzy and Me" by Kenneth Fallis; dialogue, "Betty's Blunders", Ruth Ball and Gordon Fallis; instrumental selection, Miss Lillian Crocker; reading, "In the Usual Way," Miss Jean Burnham; solo, "Dear Old Pal of Mine", Mrs. G. W. Sayles; recitation, "The Widow's Lament", Miss Kennedy; dialogue, "Mrs. Keepintab", Miss Gladys Gray's class; song, "My Old Log Cabin Home" by the male quartette, Messrs. H. W. Johnston, W. H. Coombe, V. C. Lambert, and M. McDowell; reading, "In Sunflower Time", Miss Dorothy Crossley; instrumental selection, Miss L. Crocker; selection, "Moon Dear", by the choir.

A. J. Fallis made a capable auctioneer for the sale of the thirty or more daintily decorated baskets, bidding being quite brisk and good prices prevailing.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the committee in charge, Mrs. Harvey Aiken, Mrs. Austin Sutton, and Miss Verna Fallis, since the success of the evening was largely due to their untiring efforts. Those from Millbrook assisting with the program were also thanked, especially Mrs. H. W. Johnston, who as choir leader had willingly discharged the extra responsibility which the event made necessary.

The receipts totalled to more than sixty dollars, and the general enjoyment of the evening provided showed that the effort put forth by the Fallis Line community was thoroughly appreciated.

DON'T SUFFER THE TORTURES OF RHEUMATISM

Just because you have tried a lot of so-called rheumatic remedies or treatments without getting any lasting relief, that is no reason why you should say, "Nothing can help me", because there is something that will give you quick results and that is RHEUMA.

Rheuma will absolutely end all your rheumatic misery or it will not cost you one penny. So if you really want to get blessed relief from those awful stabbing knife-like pains — if you really want to drive those dull, grinding, numbing aches completely out of your system, just step into your druggist's and ask for a bottle of Rheuma.

It matters not whether you are tortured with pain, suffering with sore, inflammed joints or distressed with occasional twinges, Rheuma is sold by McDermid and Jury and all good druggists with guarantee to end rheumatic suffering or money back.

MARMORA RESIDENT SUFFERS INJURY

Dave Flynn Falls From Ladder While Working On Verandah.

MARMORA, April 24. — A serious accident befel Dave Flynn on Friday. While engaged in the erection of a verandah at the Martin Murray residence on Madoc street, Mr. Flynn fell with the ladder which he had been using, alighting on his back and losing consciousness. He was taken to his home where he received medical attention from Drs. Crawford and Thomson. It is feared that he is suffering from internal injuries. Mr. Flynn has been decidedly unfortunate in his life, having sustained broken limbs on more than one previous occasion.

Personals

Mr. Jack French returned to Deloro from Picton on Friday, having recovered from his recent illness.

Mr. Roger Reynolds is home from Queen's on vacation.

Mr. J. F. Baker, of Bonarlaw, gave the address at the Junior A.R.P.A. on Thursday evening

WESTWOOD W.M.S. ENJOYS PROGRAM

WESTWOOD, April 24.—Mrs. John Sargent was hostess to the members of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United Church, at the regular meeting held at her home on Wednesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. J. Hope, presiding.

Interesting readings were given by Mrs. R. C. Breckenbridge, Mrs. J. Sargent, Miss Jessie Davidson and Mrs. H. Neilson. A solo by Mrs. Morris was also much appreciated. Business matters were discussed at the close of the devotional period.

Personals.

Mrs. F. J. Horwood and little daughter, Ruby, have returned to Toronto after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Dickson.

Mrs. E. W. Sargent, Leslie and Isabel have returned after spending a few days in Norwood.

Miss Leta Slade visited friends in Norwood during the week-end.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE BY WIND AND WATER

Great Waves Swept Up About Buildings Along Trent River.

TRENT RIVER, April 24.—Terrific winds swept here throughout all Thursday, the river rose higher and was dashed up quite a distance on the shore by the wind. Considerable damage was done to a number of boat houses, the water was running over the verandah floors of Whitehall Garden's Pavilion and the land in front has been flooded. The boat houses below the bridge have not been disturbed, Mr. Dolman's is surrounded by water which has been flowing over his lot. Peter Corkery's lot was so submerged that a boat could be paddled all over it. Quantities of timber, wharfs and parts of boat houses are seen passing down the river daily, a collection of various kinds of material has drifted on Reg. Brennan's shore. Part of the floating island broke away and went down stream. On Friday morning, the water had gone down four inches.

Trappers Finished.

The trappers finished on Saturday. A number of buyers have been through but the price was not as good as last year.

Havelock League Here.

The Efficiency League, of Havelock, visited the League here on Thursday evening and provided a splendid program.

Personals.

Miss Bessie G. French and Miss Betty Ormiston went to Havelock on Saturday afternoon to attend a party given by Mrs. Geo. W. Chiles for her daughter, Winnifred, it being the occasion of her tenth birthday.

OBITUARY

MICHAEL WELCH.

News was received in the city last night of the death of Michael Welch in Springfield, Mass. The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning in Toronto.

Mr. Welch was born in Peterborough, son of the late Martin Welch. He was employed for many years as a boss spinner at the Auburn Woollen Mills and also lived in Campbellford a number of years, where he worked at the Trent Valley Woollen Mills.

GRIPPE SAPPED HIS STRENGTH

Real Grippe is a terrible disease. It literally devours strength and vitality until—when the fever breaks—the poor sufferer is left as weak and helpless as baby. And then comes the long, tedious struggle to win back good, red blood and sturdy muscles.

Mr. Ernest Bland had just this experience. "Last winter" he writes from 194 Laurier Ave. W., Montreal, "I was ill with Grippe and at the end of two months—in spite of all that could be done for me—I was completely wrecked in health that my friends thought I would never get well. I could not sleep except by using drugs; and the weakness, combined with shortness of breath and nagging cough, made life almost unbearable.

Two bottles of Tanlac improved me so much that I was able to be up and around the house. By the time I had finished the seventh bottle, I had gotten back my strength, put on eleven pounds in weight, and was able to return to my work. In many cases Tanlac accomplished what seemed impossible, and to me, Tanlac is priceless."

Yet Tanlac costs less than 2c a dose—less than 6c a day. More than this, Tanlac is sold by your druggist on the distinct understanding that it must give complete satisfaction or your money will be promtly refunded Get a bottle today.

BREMEN CREW MAKE TAKE OFF ON THURSDAY

Fliers Plan For Immediate Start On Completion of Repairs.

CARRY DELICACIES TO ISLE.

Unconfirmed Report Received at Lake St. Agnes Will Leave To-day.

(By Canadian Press.)

Swift progress made made yesterday toward freeing the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen and its crew from their enforced exile from civilization on lonely Greenly Island, in the Straits of Belle Isle.

Spare parts to repair the Bremen, damaged in an enforced landing on the island after completing the first East-to-West crossing of the Atlantic, were carried to Greenly yesterday by an American tri-motored Ford plane, piloted by Bernt Balchen.

Accompanying Balchen was Major James Fitzmaurice, Irish member of the Bremen crew, who had supervised relief work from the base at Ste. Agnes, after flying from Greenly Island last week. Others in the relief plane included a mechanic in the employ of the Junkers company, the builders of the Bremen, and a newspaperman.

Discuss Plans.

The relief plane carried a load of delicacies and a change of wardrobe for the German members of the Bremen crew, and yesterday they probably discussed plans for continuation of the flight over bottles of German beer and glasses of wine, the first they have had since leaving Baldonnel, Ireland, almost two weeks ago. Baron von Huenefeld, backer of the Bremen flight, and Captain Hermann Koehl, German pilot of the Bremen, would also have enjoyed fresh roasts of beef and other food taken to them as a welcome change from the wholesome but plain fare provided by the lighthouse keeper at Greenly Island.

Plans were for an immediate start yesterday on the completion of repairs to the Bremen. The probable time of the take-off in continuation of the flight to New York is indefinite. Some reports have it that the Bremen and the relief plane will leave for Lake Ste. Agnes on the first stage of the flight to-day. Other reports that repairs may delay the start as late as Thursday of this week.

Information at Lake Ste. Agnes last night was that the Bremen and the relief plane could be expected there at noon to-day. There was no verification of this report, and Miss Huerta Junkers, representative of the Junkers firm, was reported to have telephoned to New York that the Bremen would not leave before Thursday.

Chamberlin Arrives.

The population of Lake Ste. Agnes, swelled by newspapermen and fliers since it became the base for relief operations, was further increased yesterday by the arrival of a plane piloted by Clarence Chamberlin, hero of an Atlantic crossing. Chamberlin left Hartford, Conn., at 10.05 yesterday morning and landed at Lake Ste. Agnes at 4 p.m. He planned to fly to Greenly Island to greet the German fliers, a return for the courtesy shown himself in Germany when he completed a flight from the United States to that country with Charles Levine.

Chamberlin's plans were indefinite last night after his arrival at Lake Ste. Agnes. He stated that if reports of an early start from Greenly by remain at Lake Ste. Agnes and greet the Bremen proved true, he would the Bremen crew there, continuing as an escort for them on their flight to New York.

NURSE ADDRESSES WIDE AWAKE GROUP

Miss Maud Finnimore Tells Millbrook Girls About Infection and First Aid.

MILLBROOK, April 24.— Miss Maud Finnimore, nurse in charge of Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital, gave a most instructive and interesting talk to the members of the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group at its regular meeting held on Thursday evening, fifteen being present. Four new members have recently been enrolled.

The president, Miss Elsie Spence, was in charge, and the devotional talk was given by Miss Jean L. Burnham, president of the Golden Links Mission Circle, and a charter member of the Wide Awakes group.

Miss Finnimore gave directions for avoiding common colds, among other information in the course of her talk, the second part of her address being taken up with first aid under a variety of circumstances, the question and method being employed thus impressing facts more firmly on the minds of her listeners. She was warmly thanked by the girls for her kindness in coming to address them when there are so many other claims upon time and strength.

A contest, provided by the vice-president, Miss Flossie McMahon, filled out the social part of the evening, a treat of homemade candy being a concluding feature.

Personals.

Miss C. Trembeth of Port Britain spent the week-end the guest of Mr. W. W. and Miss Eva Gillott.

Mrs. G. F. Harrington was a visitor to Peterborough on Saturday.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD BANQUET

Men's Goodfellow Class and Sunshine Helpers Attend Social Gathering.

AT WARKWORTH.

WARKWORTH, April 24. — The merry contest within the Young Men's Goodfellow Class and the Sunshine Helpers' Young Ladies' Class extending over the period between Christmas and Easter resulted in the losers providing a banquet for the winners in both classes. Wednesday, April eighteenth was set for the happy event, which was held in the Sunday school room, where the prettily decorated and bountifully provided tables presented a most inviting picture.

Careful planning and detailed preparation added much to the success of the program which was truly characteristic of a banqueting hall.

The orchestra of the Goodfellows' Class, composed of Don Booth, Will Bowen, George Osborne and Gerald Smale added very much to the rare program of the evening.

The committee in charge was composed of the teachers, Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, of the Goodfellows' class, and Miss Bessie Wilson, of the Sunshine Helpers' Class and representatives of both classes. The guests of honor were Mrs. John Dick and Mrs. W. J. Harper, owing to the unavoidable absence of the two superintendents, Messrs. P. S. Ewing and John Dick.

It was decided that all toasts and replies must be made by members of the two classes and that every member of the classes must also make a speech, tell a story or go home and consequently there were more maiden speeches at that banquet than at any other gathering in the history of the church. Ralph Dudly was awarded the prize for the best story.

Orval Kelly ably filled the office of toastmaster and called upon the toast to the King; a toast to the Empire by toastmaster and responded to by Ina Bowen; a toast to Canada by George Osborne and responded to by Opal Hawkey; to the United church by Will Bowen and responded to by Alice Allen; to the Sunshine Helpers Class, by Grant Allen, responded to by Frances Jones; to Goodfellows Class by Beatrice Jones, responded to by Donald Booth.

These toasts were interspersed with rounds, songs and class yells and a reading by Elizabeth Duncan. Contests were conducted by Alice Allen and Ina Bowen. Before the singing of Auld Lang Syne and the Mizpah a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the teachers for the good time and the banquet.

Do your own washing ?

If so, it will pay you to try this Chinese Washing Fluid. From your druggist buy:—1 can Gillett's Flake Lye (be sure it's "Gillett's" and not a cheap imitation); ½ oz. Muriate of Ammonia; ½ oz. Salts of Tartar; 1 oz. Sulphate of Soda; dissolve in three gallons of water; keep in large glass bottle or stoneware jar. Use a cup of this fluid to each tub of water, allowing the clothes to soak over night. You'll be amazed at how little rubbing is needed to get clothes spotlessly clean and sweet-smelling, and it will not injure the finest fabrics.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE WINDOW SHOP

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

The obvious reasons for window shopping are the attractiveness of the display, getting a line on the things we are thinking of buying, and the quest for bargains. The shop keepers make it worth our while to look around.

Other reasons why we window shop are not so apparent. Contrary to the purpose of the display we get our satisfaction in seeing the things in the window and hence do not need to purchase them. Our imagination helps us to appropriate everything we look at. We are truly monarch of all that we survey. What necessity is there of owning the thing if we can see it in the window? What more could we do with it at home? This is true of works of art.

Another way in which the window display prevents our buying is that we see so many good things that we cannot make up our minds which one to buy. Every good salesman knows that the more specimens he shows the more difficult it is to make a sale. The prospective buyer is bewildered and hesitates. It is so much easier to choose between two than between a hundred. An experienced clerk will size up his customer and bring him exactly what he wants. He resorts to showing other things only when the customer appears to contemplate leaving the store. The moment we make a purchase we then own only one. Ever afterwards we lose our claim to the rest. When we look in the window we feel that we must be loyal to the one we have purchased and this gives us a feeling of detachment.

We window shop because it is a cheap and pleasant pastime. We are attracted by the beauty and cleverness of the display, we gather new ideas of values; we come to know the latest fads and fashions, and above all to appropriate all of them without money and without price.

Britain Helps Sufferers

RISKED PNEUMONIA NEGLECTING COLD

Congestion Spread From Nose Passages Down to His Chest —Then He Called Doctor

RELIEVED QUICKLY BY NOVEL HOME METHOD

Numbers of Peterborough people —like Theo H. Wicks—have found it no longer necessary to neglect a cold because of expense, inconvenience or the need of medicines unpleasant to take. For hospital physicians are now recommending for home use an inexpensive and pleasant method that brings quick, sure relief—often in a few hours.

Mr. Wicks' case is typical. He had neglected his cold, hoping each day it would "right itself". Instead, it got worse, spreading from his nose passages down towards his lungs. Fearing pneumonia then he called his doctor who gave him double doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of wild cherry, terpin-hydrate and other ingredients used in treating even the most extreme hospital cases.

Relief began with the first pleasant swallow. He felt its comforting, healing warmth—from his nose passages deep down into his chest. That night he could breathe freely through both nostrils and coughed very little. The next morning he felt like a different person—rid of the "feverish, grippy" feeling—and in another day or so, doctors report, he was free from all traces of the cold.

Note: See other cases reported daily—all certified to this paper by a member of the hospital.

Doctors find that this hospital medicine does far more than stop coughing instantly. It penetrates and heals inflamed linings of the breathing passages. Absorbed by the system it quickly reduces phlegm, helps allay that "feverish", grippy feeling and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Cherry Pectoral now and you'll feel like a different person to-morrow.

THEATRE GARAGE TO HOLD 1,000 CARS

Three Story Building To Be Erected Close to Piccadilly Circus.

LONDON, April 24.—(Canadian Press).— A great theatre garage, to be built this year within two minutes' walk of Piccadilly Circus, at a cost of about £130,000, is the first step in a £1,000,000 scheme, which includes a chain of 100 garages in London. A real estate firm has secured a 99-year lease from the Sutton Dudley estate on behalf of John Goodenday, of Liverpool, head of a north-country syndicate. The area of the proposed theatre garage is 25,000 square feet. The site is in Little Pulteney street, William and Mary Yard, Lexington street and Silver place, all close to the Trocadero end of Shaftesbury avenue, and within easy reach of 16 theatres.

Demolition has started, and will be completed within three months. The garage will be a huge modern building with three floors, a lower ground floor and a roof for cars in fine weather. No lift will be used, but the cars will run up gradients. Dressing rooms, chauffeurs' canteens and every luxury of a super-garage will be provided, with a big drive and a filling station outside. The first and lower floors will be in use by September. There will be room for 1,000 cars.

EVIDENCE IN REBUTTAL BEGINS

headquarters, phoned the message saying that hostilities would cease at eleven o'clock. The original message was produced in court and by use of a reading glass, Mr. Regan found several flaws. Mr. Tilley found several more without the glass and when Mr. Regan finished trying to show that the message had been altered intentionally, Mr. Tilley quickly established that conditions "in the field" were more than probably responsible for the lack of neatness of the document. The fact that two kinds of pencil had been used in its writing was explained by Col. McGee, who wrote it, stating that he had written part of the message and been interrupted by another matter and probably picked up another pencil when he went to complete the writing.

After being repeatedly asked by Mr. Regan how he came to write the message, Col. McGee replied, "With a pencil and my hand." This provoked laughter in the court, and the sheriff was obliged to call for order.

A moment before the court adjourned, Mr. Regan remarked that he wondered if there was any danger of the much-discussed message undergoing any further changes. His Lordship questioned him very promptly, and Mr. Regan replied, "I was only joking, my Lord."

The moment between Mr. Regan's first remark and his reply to His Lordship was one of the tensest moments in the case to date.

Another surprise yesterday afternoon came when it was shown that Canadians under arms entered Mons Nov. 10th. These men were the sixth platoon of the 42nd Canadian Infantry Battalion led by Captain Graffty and Lieut. Handy. They are shown by reports to have entered the city in the neighborhood of the railway station at 23 hours (11.00 p.m.) Nov. 10, 1918. Thus it may be deduced that Mons was in the hands of the Canadian forces Nov. 10th, 1918.

The famous "hostilities will cease" message figured prominently in the Court again. Col. A. A. McGee, corps staff officer, who actually received and despatched the message, identified it in Court. Col. Duguid, to whom he telephoned it at Divisional Headquarters, smiled as this fact was made known to the Court.

The message came from the headquarters of the First Army to Canadian Corps Headquarters, where it was received by Col. McGee, staff officer on duty there on the night of November 10-11. In order to get word to the troops as quickly as possible, Col. McGee telephoned the message to the two divisions then in the line (the Second and Third), and sent signaller messages immediately to confirm the telephone conversations. To the other divisions and troops he at once despatched signal messages. Sir Arthur Currie, quartered on the opposite side of the street, was given the message by a messenger from Corps Headquarters.

The Message Body.

"Hostilities will cease at eleven hours November 11th, 1918. Troops will stand fast on line reached at that hour, which will be reported to Corps Headquarters. Defensive precautions will be maintained. There will be no intercourse of any description with the enemy. Further instructions will follow."

This is the message received at Canadian Corps Headquarters at 6.30 a.m., November 11, 1918, by Col. A. A. McGee, and which was relayed by him down the proper communication channels till eventually it reached every soldier in the Canadian forces in France.

Col. Duguid on Staff.

Col. Duguid went into the witness box at 3.21. Examined by Mr. Tilley, Col. Duguid said he was in France at the time of the armistice and was a general staff officer 3rd Canadian Division. He received a message by telephone at 6.40 a.m., Nov. 11, 1918, which had to do with the cessation of hostilities. He was a staff officer on duty at that time at 2nd Canadian Division Headquarters in Jemappes He received the message from corps and telephoned it to the Brigades in the 2nd Division, also to the engineers.

Replying to questions Col. Duguid said the enemy machine guns were "covering the suburbs." He referred to the village of Mons. These guns would be on the eastern edge of the canal. The Canadians were advancing towards the west bank. Referring to his records Col. Duguid said he had never seen any records of operations in the city itself. There was very definite evidence of fighting around Mons, but not in the city itself. Asked if the records showed any Canadians to be in Mons by 11 p.m., Nov. 10, Colonel Orde read a report showing that Captain W. K. Graffty and Lieutenant E. M. Handy, led the 16th platoon, 42nd Batt., Canadian Infantry, into Mons at 23 hours (11 p.m.), Nov. 10, 1928. This detachment entered in the neighborhood of the railroad station.

Questioned regarding army order G215, Colonel Duguid said that it was an order for the Imperial troops on the Canadians' right flank. The Canadians were to advance to high ground east north east of Mons. This would be the main line of defence. Mounted troops and advance guard parties would be forward of this position, Colonel Duguid declared.

For the benefit of the jury, Col. Duguid explained by use of a large colored map, the general situation in the Mons sector for two days previous and up to the cessation of hostilities He also showed the movements of the 8th Corps Imperials, who were on the left flank of the Canadian Corps. In order to see more distinctly, His Lordship left his upholstered chair for one not so pretentious but nearer the map.

According to Col. Duguid, the 8th Imperial Corps was confronted by numerous difficulties such as canals and did not advance as rapidly as expected. Thus the Canadians were temporarily covering more than their proper front. If orders for Canadians had been carried out to the letter, Col Duguid agreed they would have been in possession of Mons by the tenth.

At the moment when orders were issued to advance by headquarters, witness said he knew the terms of an armistice were being considered and the Germans had 75 hours to decide. Asked regarding certain British documents, Col. Duguid was unable to reply, since His Lordship sustained Mr. Regan's objection. Col. Duguid explained there was no objection on the part of the department to producing any British document which had been published. The one to which he referred had been published. Mr. Regan's objection was still sustained.

The Canadians, said the Colonel, in response to Mr. Tilley, did not carry out their operations according to schedule. There was nothing on record to show that Canadians did anything they were not instructed to do by the order of the First Army.

Examined by Mr. Regan regarding the movements of the troops, Col. Duguid repeated his evidence as given to Mr. Tilley. Added to this were several side issue arguments between the witness and Mr. Regan as to the interpretation of certain military terms, among them being objective, main line, advance guard, keeping up pressure, main attack. Once more the maps were produced, first a small one, then the large colored affair which had been exhibited to the jury earlier in the afternoon.

Col. Duguid admitted this map was prepared by himself and Col. Armstrong from records on file in Ottawa.

Won't Enter Map.

After a ten-minute recess, it developed that Col. Duguid had a map which he would not allow to be entered as an exhibit. He declared that the map was prepared for him at Ottawa, and not for Mr. Regan.

Mr. Regan and Mr. Preston appealed to His Lordship to rule that the map be put in, but the bench refused to acquiesce to their appeal

The witness further stated that there were many advances on Mons, but none of these could be considered an attack. On the morning of November 11th the telephone system was in its usual state of efficiency. Important orders were sent in several ways, telephone, telegraph, and followed up by written despatch. Wireless was not usually employed.

Referring once more to the map belonging to Col. Duguid, Mr. Regan insisted the Canadians had captured the objective. Col. Duguid maintained they had not. The argument hinged on the interpretation of the order phrases Q16 and high ground.

Defence Closes Case.

To Mr. Tilley, Col. Duguid said it was highly improbable that all Q16 was high ground.

Mr. Regan objected to Mr. Tilley questioning witness.

Mr. Preston expressed himself as being satisfied with the evidence of the defence, and the case for them was closed.

Mr. Tilley rose to begin presenting the evidence in rebuttal by calling his first witness, an ex-member of the Canadian Corps Headquarters staff.

Col. A. A. McGee, who was a staff officer at Caandian Corps Headquarters, and received a message from the First Army to the Canadian Corps regarding the cessation of hostilities.

On receipt of the message he immediately telephoned it to the divisions and later (6.45 a.m.) sent a signal message. They might either telephone it or send the message by morse. At Mr. Tilley's request, the witness explained the details of a signal message, explaining the numerous identifyipg figures and letters.

The Colonel did not think a message would go from Canadian Corps to 2nd Brigade C.G.A. It would go to C.C.H.A. (Canadian Corps Heavy Artillery). The message sent at 6.05 was an error on the part of someone. He did not receive the message from the army till after that time. He did not send the 6.05 message, he stated.

Mr. Regan: "May I see the original message?"

It was not available at once, so Mr. Regan went on with his questioning. The witness did not doubt the evidence given by Sergeant-Major Cruchly. He believed Cruchly told the truth of the situation as he knew it.

Col. McGee did not think this particular message would be sent direct to 2nd Brigade C.G.A. The quickest way to inform all the units would be through the usual channels.

Mr. Regan: "Red Tape?"

Col. McGee: "The quickest way of notifying all units, which was the important thing."

With the desired message produced, Mr. Regan began cross-examining witness o na figure over which the figure 6 had been written and as to a note also written on the face. The witness said the note was written for his own files about four months ago.

"With a Pencil."

"How did you come to write it?" Mr. Regan asked.

"With a pencil and my hand," the Colonel retorted.

The sheriff was obliged to call for order to stop the laughter.

"And these are your initials?"

Witness: "Stop signals."

Mr. Regan: "A A A"

Again Sheriff Nesbitt's "Order! Order!" ended the mirth.

Asked why he telephoned the message to the 2nd and 3rd Divisions so promptly, Col. McGee replied it was because they were the divisions in the line. He had no doubt about the propriety of telephoning the message. He telephoned it first and confirmed it by telegraph.

Sir Arthur was across the road at the time and received the message by messenger at 6.45 a.m. General Currie would give any instructions to General Hayter, senior staff officer, not to himself, witness said

Taking His Bath.

Mr. Regan—"I understand that Sir Arthur was taking his bath when he received the massage and took no action till he was finished his bath."

Col. McGee—"I know nothing of that."

Col. McGee further stated that he was surprised when the message came through. He did not know the armistice would be signed. He believed it imminent that an armistice would be signed in a few days. He did not know when.

Reading from a copy of 1st Army Orders, Mr. Regan showed that "all ranks" knew the armistice would be signed. Col. McGee maintained he did not know.

"Well, you're one soldier who did not agree with the orders."

Questioned by Mr. Preston, Col. McGee said it was his duty to receive these messages, as he was officer on duty that night. He had received no word that supplies and men were to cease coming up from the rear.

Questioned by Mr. Tilley, the witness said the value of the message to him would increase since it had been useful The many alleged changes in the document were quickly explained by Col. McGee. He told the court that he had used the first sheet of paper that came handy and had added to it a couple of minutes later. This would, he thought, account for what appeared to be the use of two different pencils.

During the time these questions were being asked and answered by Mr. Tilley and the witness, Mr. Regan rose on several occasions to object. None of his objections was sustained. When Mr. Tilley had completed his questioning, neither Mr. Regan nor Mr. Preston wished to ask the witness anything further. Court adjourned at 6.08 p.m.

She Could Not Work HEADACHES Were So Severe

Mrs. A. Riehl, Burstall, Sask., writes: —"I was troubled with very severe headaches, and sometimes I could not do my work.

"One day a friend told me about

EVERYTHING USED IS MADE IN THE EMPIRE

The Boast of Grafton Co. at Their Factory in Dundas—Empire Week in Line with Policy.

To be able to say that everything that went to the manufacture of their goods is "Made in Canada" or "Made in the Empire" is the proud boast of the Grafton Company Limited. In their busy factory at headquarters in Dundas, the management announce that every yard of cloth, every shred of lining, trimming and re-inforcing, every spool of thread that is used in making their high-grade clothing for men and boys, is a British Empire product. The year 1928 is a memorable one for the Grafton Company, as the firm are celebrating their 75th anniversary.

A celebration now-a-days seems to take the form of an effort to effect a banner year's selling, and so far Graftons have broken every previous selling record.

Last week the local store presented a rousing three-day bargain feast, and for this week, which is dedicated all over Canada to Empire week, sponsored by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Grafton Store will have a further offering every day of extra special values in all departments. New goods are being loaded on the racks and tables of the local store, and become a part of the 75th anniversary year's mammoth twelve months sale goods. Bargains everywhere, all over the big store, all through 1928.—Ad.

BUYING IMPERIALLY.

In the majority of Peterborough's stores there must be quantities of Empire-made goods that during this Empire Shopping Week should be brought prominently to the attention of the public.

While the campaign seeks to encourage the buying of made-in-Peterborough and made-in-Canada goods, it was not the intention that only such products should be featured, but rather that the people of Peterborough should be impressed with the variety and quality of Empire products generally.

It is to be hoped that this aspect of Empire Shopping Week will not be lost sight of; it is obviously good business that when we cannot buy Canadian-made goods we should buy goods produced by some other part of the Empire in preference to goods of foreign origin.

Buying "Imperially" means contributing materially to the welfare of the whole Empire, and if this campaign fails to put over that idea it will fail in its chief purpose.

FLYING TO SOME PURPOSE.

Duke Schiller's flight to the rescue of the German flyers at Greenly Island was probably the most spectacular achievement accredited to Canadian aviators since the World War.

While Canadian birdmen had more than their share of honors in the acid test of war flying, and the exploits of such men as Bishop, Barker and Roy Brown will always be remembered, the Dominion's flyers have not had a big part in the sensational performances that have aroused such much interest in aeronautics throughout the world.

But they have been far from idle.

Ottawa reports that in aerial surveys during the past two years Canadian aviators have flown a distance equivalent to eight times round the world.

That was flying to some purpose, and a service of greater value to the country than half a dozen jumps across the Atlantic could possibly have been.

It is well that some official attention has been called to this skilful and faithful work on the part of the Dominion aviators, whose remarkable performance in aerial surveying has been overlooked in the excitement of "stunt" flying by other birdmen.

PREVENTING FOREST FIRES.

It is worthy of note that the importance of directing public attention to the desirability of protecting Canada's forests against fire is being recognized by both Federal and Provincial Governments and that Hon. C. A. Stewart and Hon. Wm. Finlayson, the respective Ministers, are using newspaper advertising and the radio to stress the significance of the movement.

Forest fires play a bigger part in depleting this country of its resources of timber and pulpwood than do the operations of the lumber companies, and unless the ravages of the fire fiend are checked the time is not far distant when Canada will find itself short of supplies.

To prevent fires is a much simpler matter than to extinguish them, and thus while forestry departments have increased and modernized their facilities for dealing with forest fires, they are relying upon the public to co-operate in preventive work by being careful at all times while in the forest.

Most of the bad fires have been the result of carelessness on the part of a camper, a hunter, a lumberman or a settler, and it is to these that this week's campaign is mainly directed, although there is also the objective of stirring the whole population out of its lethargy toward this vital question.

As people who pride themselves upon being good business men, Canadians should resolve to stop the millions of dollars of waste ensuing each year from fires that should never have started.

THE SAFETY CONFERENCE.

Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, is calling another safety conference for the purpose of discussing ways and means of reducing accidents and making travel safer on Ontario's highways.

With such a movement The Examiner is in complete sympathy, and is ready to co-operate in any way possible.

The number of accidents and the toll of lives taken in this Province last year surely are sufficient justification for exhausting every means of improving the conditions and reducing the hazards.

The human factor enters into most accidents; they are caused by carelessness or, recklessness on somebody's part and by disregard of the laws intended for the protection of the public.

Educational campaigns will do much to bring about a better state of affairs, but The Examiner is convinced that appeals to the common sense of a certain type of driver are in vain, and that Mr. Henry's efforts to prevent accidents have been to a degree at least defeated because that such drivers have not yet been shown that the authorities mean business.

They have been "getting away with it," and they will continue to count on "getting away with it" until they kill themselves or somebody else—unless the department uses the club it has by reason of its license system.

Traffic officers cannot be expected to patrol a hundred miles of highway and effectively deal with this kind of motorist, and the employment of more motorcycle officers would seem to be a necessity.

NEWSPAPER BUSINESS IS GROWING.

There are 97 daily newspapers in Canada with a circulation of about 1,900,000 copies per day, one for about every four people in the country. The important part played by the newspapers of Canada in the life of the country, educationally, economically and in other directions is not realized generally. The Canadian Daily Newspaper Association submits the following facts:

It gives employment to more than 25,000 persons.

It pays in salaries and wages over $15,000,000 a year.

It buys raw newsprint to a value in excess of $3,000,000, every dollar of which is spent in Canada.

It has more than $40,000,000 invested in buildings and equipment.

It is estimated that close to $750,000 a week—at least $35,000,000 a year—is needed to keep these daily newspapers in operation.

Although the mortality list among Canadian daily newspapers has been high, because of increased costs of operation, the business in general is growing. This paper, for instance, has an employment of over fifty people, and that in itself constitutes an important industry in the community.

The home paper with the world and local news of the day is an essential. The advertising columns are read to-day as much as the startling news. More and more people are guided in their shopping by the advertisements. And careful reading by any man or woman of the daily newspaper will keep them informed of more things than news, progress in every field of endeavor is recorded. An investment of $40,000,000 in the Canadian newspaper plants is no small one; it has much industrial significance for the entire country.—St. Catharines Standard.

HOUSEHOLD DANGERS.

A Toronto woman died a few days ago because she put a bottle of stove polish on a hot stove while she was cleaning it. Three men have died, and a fourth is near death's door, at Cochrane, when one of them sought to start a fire in their shack by throwing gasoline on the fuel.

In ordinary circumstances, home is about the safest place in the world to be in. A housewife's job can scarcely be classed as a dangerous occupation short of the chances of falling down stairs—which is less a menace nowadays since it is impossible for a woman to trip on her skirts—and getting a finger jammed in the wringer, but women do things through folly, forgetfulness, or ignorance, which sometimes cause lifelong suffering, if not death.

There is the practice of putting things on top of the stove which ought not to be put there at all, and there is the practice of throwing coal-oil or some similar substance on a fire to get quick results.

Sometimes the results are so quick as to be instantaneous and altogether too drastic.

There are stove polishes which are harmless, and there are others which are as dangerous as dynamite.

The manufacturers of products which have explosive and inflammable properties print warnings on the labels, but not all housewives read the labels carefully and bear the instructions in mind.

There is no distinctive and universal label for merchandise of this kind. There certainly ought to be, just as there is for poisonous articles sold in a drug store. If not a skull and cross-bones, then an all-red label, or a picture of an explosion should be compulsory on every container.

Domestic workers should be ultra careful of putting inflammable substances near heat. And as for lighting or gingering up a fire with oils or gasoline—it's better to be safe than sorry.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

HIGHER EDUCATION IN ONTARIO.

The remarks of Principal Grant of Upper Canada College on the Ontario school system are disquieting, but there is no harm in that if there are defects that can be remedied. He says that the Canadian boy or girl of a good type is at least a year behind one of the same age in Great Britain or France in intellectual development, and the young man or woman of eighteen, two years behind. Recently when at Oxford the secretary of the Rhodes scholarships compiled the results of the first twenty-one years, it was found that the Australians and New Zealanders had beaten the English at their own game, but that the Americans and Canadians were far behind, and that the Canadians were behind the Americans. His proposed solution is the adoption of an earlier age for the break between elementary and secondary education. "In our public schools, about one-third of the pupils, and those intellectually the most promising, needlessly lose a year between 10 and 14 years of age, and in the high schools another year is lost by the same type of pupil."

It is to be borne in mind that Principal Grant's subject was "The Training of the Brilliant Pupil," and that he was talking mainly of higher education. No reflection was apparently cast upon our public or secondary schools, but he would have the change from one to the other made at an earlier age. The most important question is the education of that vast body of children who are educated wholly or mainly in the primary schools. The number who finish the course in the secondary schools is much smaller, and the number who graduate from universities smaller still.

We agree, however, that the question is not to be considered entirely in regard to number. From the classes that are comparatively small in numbers we get our teachers, preachers, lawyers, physicians and other scientists. The fact that the graduates of our Canadian institutes of learning are in demand in the United States, so much so that we deplore the exodus, rather takes the edge off Principal Grant's criticism. Still, if we can improve our system by adopting any features of the Australian, New Zealand or English systems that can be transplanted with advantage, such a reform is worth considering.

Of course, the difference in environment must be kept in mind. The social conditions of England are widely different from our own. We have probably more in common with Australia and New Zealand; and it would be interesting to know why, in the Rhodes scholar competitions, their students surpass those of England, the United States and Canada. Information on this point could no doubt be obtained from official sources, but it would be still more satisfactory to have the report of some Ontario educationist who, after observing the working of other systems, could make comparisons that would be useful.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Empire buyers are Empire builders.

The automobile speed record has again been broken, this time by an American driver. Local speeders should note, however, the mark was not set up on a public highway.

The Wilkins' flight over the North Pole found no land in sight where other Arctic explorers believed such a discovery would be made. The hazardous journey has therefore been of some practical use.

Both the Federal and Provincial Governments are enthusiastically endorsing the Save-the-Forest movement. The general public should show an equal desire to co-operate.

Children joining the Just Kids' Safety Club will soon number 50,000. The campaign should materially contribute toward a reduction in the number of accidents.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 24 (Canadian Press). — There was some demand from exporters for Canadian Western oats on the Montreal grain market yesterday, and a sale of 20,000 bushels of tough No. 3 Canadian Western were made at five cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option c.i.f. Montreal for shipment from Fort William. The car lot trade on spot was quiet and prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of spring and winter wheat flour were firmly maintained under a limited demand.

A moderate amount of business was worked with United States buyers in millfeed. The local trade was also active and prices were firm. The trade in standard grades was dull, but prices were steady.

The undertone to the egg market was firm, but the volume of business was small. The receipts were 3,049 cases.

The demand for potatoes continued inactive and the feeling was easy.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for imported beans on account of the somewhat limited supplies available on spot. Sales of car lots of choice white hand-picked beans to arrive were made at $4.20 per bushel, ex-track, and smaller quantities at $4.40 per bushel, ex-store.

A moderate amount of business was done in butter and the undertone to the market was steady. The receipts were 815 packages.

An easier feeling prevailed in the cheese trade and prices were a fraction lower. The receipts were 242 boxes.

CHICAGO, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—Drought-stricken wheat in large sections of Nebraska, Oklahoma and Kansas showed no moisture relief yesterday, and wheat prices here took a decided upward swing. Other crop reports, both domestic and foreign, were also bullish, and especially as to States east of the Mississippi, but profit-taking sales brought about reactions as the day drew to an end.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-2 to 1 1-8 net higher, with corn 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 up; oats 1-8 to 1-2 off, and provisions at a rise of 12 to 32 cents.

About the most pessimistic crop news received yesterday came from a leading Chicago authority, who said in a dispatch dated North Platte, Neb., that throughout the western third of Nebraska more than 1,000,000 acres are in a critical condition, and that if rains there are delayed much longer, the wheat crop on that amount of land will be a total loss. There were also advices that wheat acreage remaining in Western Kansas and in part of Central Nebraska is two weeks later than usual and is badly in need of rain.

Bullish sentiment, due to drought news, was intensified by an official forecast of continued dry weather and by announcement that Poland had withdrawn restrictions on imports. Moreover, the condition of winter wheat in Germany was reported to be at only 84 per cent. of a ten-year average, the lowest level at this time since 1922. It was also current talk that spring seeding has been delayed over most of Europe, that trans-Atlantic countries would have less wheat than last year, and that big requirements were indicated until the new crops are available.

Corn sympathized with wheat strength, July and September corn establishing a new top price record for the season. Weather was generally too cool for corn planting. The corn visible supply total decreased 2,672,000 bushels for the week and is now 37,388,000 bushels, against 40,171,000 bushels a year ago. Liquidating sales both of old and new July oats unsettled the oats market.

Houses with eastern connections were fair buyers of lard, and this circumstance gave an upward trend to meats as well, despite a sag in hog values.

GOD'S MINUTE

Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for Him.—Ps. 37:7.

Holy Father, we thank Thee for the gift of life, the gift of reason, the gift of love. We are little, but Thou art great; yet it is great to be but little for Thee.

With single span Thou measurest the heavens Thou hast made, but Thnie whole arm Thou takest to bear one lamb. We are confident of Thy love; grant us faith, forgiveness, and Thy Spirit of power, that our assurance may be based on Thee.

Give us this day a sound mind in a sound body, health, knowledge and wisdom grant us, self-control, and a right attitude to Thee, to all men, and to all things good. Help us to know that the majestic deed is the deed of service. May we do kind, brave, beautiful things not to be seen, but to be serviceable. May we not be seeking to do great things but to do simple things greatly. Help us to know our Saviour-friend, Who bears the other end of the yoke, and makes the burden light. Let us find our happiness in our service. Comfort us in believing that angels of sorrow always heal the wounds they make. Give us noble aspirations, and pure satisfactions. In Thy wisdom and power, help us. Amen.

Blames Inspector

To The Examiner:

There was one time when the farmers were allowed to bring their eggs to the market and sell them as they gathered them. But now there is an inspector to see they are graded. We think that if he had a flock of hens and had to scrape up feed for them at the price grain is he would think different about the grading and think there is not much money in hens the price eggs are.

There has been a party going to the market for the last thirty years and there was no grading or anything like it before till this spring. We think the farmers should ship their eggs and produce to another market and get their provisions shipped in till the market is brought back to what it used to be.

WORLD AWAITS NEWS OF FLIGHT

Bremen Supposed To Start At Dawn, But Nothing Has Been Heard From Her.

The world to-day was anxiously awaiting news from Greenly Island, which would indicate the condition of the stranded Bremen, and the tentative time of the take off for New York. Reports indicated last night that she would be ready to leave Greenly at dawn to-day and would fly to Lake Ste Agnes. Inquiries from various sources failed to elicit any information as to whether the plane had hopped off or was still at Greenly.

QUEBEC, April 24. Canadian Press —Information to-day as regards the condition of Floyd Bennett, famous American aviator, who is dangerously ill at a hospital here, was to the effect that he was "resting somewhat comfortably, but very low."

Mrs. Bennett, who arrived here yesterday from New York, is also a patient in a hospital, suffering from acute tonsilitis. Her condition was reported much improved.

LEGION MEMBERS GUESTS OF CLUB

Christ Church Men Entertain Veterans By Beating Them at Carpet Ball.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24. — The Men's Club of Christ Church entertained the members of the Legion at the Parish Hall on Monday evening. Stanley Neale, president of the club, opened the meeting, followed by a short prayer by the Rev. Clarke Wallace. The National Anthem was then sung. The business part of the meeting was discussed as rapidly as possible. Rev. Clarke Wallace gave a short address of welcome to the visitors. Herb Leonard acted as pianist while Joseph Poulton led community singing. The remaining part of the evening was devoted to games. Three rinks competed in carpetball, resulting in a score of 110 for the Men's Club and 95 for the Legion. Those not entering the carpetball competition, spent the evening in playing checkers, euchre, and bridge.

PSYCHOLOGIST BEGINS COURSE

John Tully Introduces Subject in First of Series of Ten Lectures.

SPIRITUAL SCIENCE.

The first of a series of lectures on psychology was given last night in the Canadian Legion Hall by John Tully, representing the Canadian Psychology Society. The subject of last night's talk was "The New Awakening", and a fair sized audience heard a splendid talk introductory to the subject and auguring a series of most helpful lectures, which will be followed by a course of twelve lessons in the laws of life, vocational guidance, applied psychology and supreme living as a fine art.

Speaking with precise enunciation and more than a hint of Irish brogue which his name seemed to justify, Mr. Tully told first of his claim to be not entirely a stranger to Peterborough. His father, a native of Smith, and his mother, a native of Emily, were married in St. Paul's church by the Rev. Dr. Rogers, who baptized their first four children. Amplifying this last statement, Mr. Tully confessed that he was the youngest of twelve.

There are two processes in man's mind, said Mr. Tully. There is first that which enables him to see beyond the confines of material things, and produces the inspiration which is behind all development. Such penetration enabled Moses to make his great statement, "In the beginning God created heaven and earth." The second process is that which enables man to contact with the material things around him.

Law Cannot Be Broken.

Nature makes laws, declared Mr. Tully. No government can make a law, for a law is something which cannot be broken. Governments try, by trial and error, to evolve better conditions. Men have gone on by this process of trial and failure until they have reached trial and success and the truth of what they were striving for remains.

On one side of man is the purely material side, with its sciences such as mathematic, physics, and chemistry. Mr. Tully told something of the development of chemistry, speaking particularly of the division of matter. Molecules were thought to be the smallest parts; then atoms were found and seemed the limit. The discovery of radium changed this and it was found that the atom could be split. In fact the atom is always changing, giving off rays positive and negative, while a nucleus remains. This process raises elements in the scale, from lead to gold, from gold to iridum, and from iridium to radium. What comes beyond radium has not yet been found.

Without vision physical science would not have brought chemistry to this place. There were many guesses first but this is, for the present, the last guess. t is ever a course of action, building something new and better, continued Mr. Tully. These energies swirl around the nucleus, which holds things together and lifts them to higher things. In this process God is seen at work. Idealism is the nucleus which works in man and raises him to higher things from lower processes to higher standards.

The Kingdom is Within.

"That is the foundation of character, and that, in my opinion, is God within", asserted Mr. Tully. "The Master said 'The Kingdom of Heaven is within in you', and where would you expect to find the King but within the kingdom, on the throne."

Mr. Tully outlined the differences in the nervous structure, that possession of man which separates him from the beasts. Man's nervous system is much more developed than that of animals, which have a duplication in only a few points. This nervous system enables man to look out beyond material things.

Man was made in the image of God, continued Mr. Tully, and he must have received some of the creative ability. He is always creating, but does not know what he is creating, or how. He creates fear and hatred and other things which obstruct him.

Opposed to physical science there is spiritual science, with religion, or study of the relationship of God and man, at the top. Between religion and physical science there existed a great gulf and it seemed impossible to connect them. Men tried to fill the gap with ethics and moral philosophy, and the proponents of these opposed the study of the mind by psychologists. They advanced the theory that man is motivated by fear of pain and love and pleasure, and that instincts rule him.

Scientists believe that if one man performs an experiment and writes down his processes, etc., another man can do the same thing. This same theory is followed in psychology, but there is a difficulty met with as no two persons are exactly alike and the principle is true only along broad lines. There are twelve lines of action that never vary, although the intensity of the different planes may vary.

By the application of this process men and women are learning to classify the processes of human behavior and how that the central factor that enables them to look out beyond the bounds of material things in faith.

Mrs. S. Mellors of Toronto introduced Mr. Tully, while Mrs. W. Byers sang very pleasingly before the address. At the conclusion Mr. Tully urged all those present to return and bring others with them for the remainder of the series.

SOLVE THIS PROBLEM

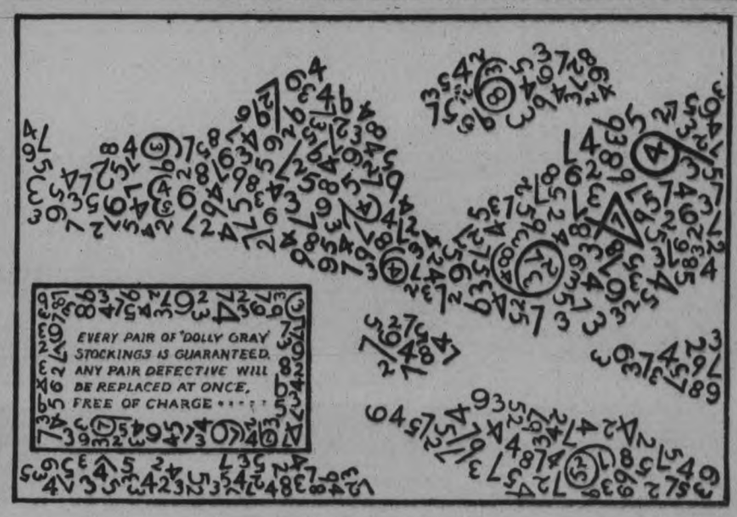
Simply add together all of the numbers shown below, just as if each figure stood one above the other in a single column. There are positively no tricks, combinations or hidden figures. It is purely a question of skill in adding correctly all the figures shown, and the degree of care and skill used will determine the prize you will win. All are single figures running from two to nine, and each figure is clearly indicated, the sixes having a curved stem and the nines a straight stem. None of the words or letters in the sentence "Every pair of 'Dolly Gray' stockings is guaranteed; any pair defective will be replaced at once free of charge" are intended to represent figures. Count only the actual figures shown in the puzzle.

NO ONE KNOWS THE CORRECT ANSWER

To make certain that no one knows the correct answer and to guarantee every contestant an equal chance to win, several figures were removed, by different persons at different times, from the original drawing before it was printed. Each person noted on a slip of paper the total of the numbers he erased, enclosed it in an envelope and sealed it, and these envelopes, along with an envelope containing the original total, were deposited in the safety deposit vaults of the Capital Trust Co. at Toronto, from whom no one can get them until the contest closes. The correct answer now is the sum total of all the figures appearing in the puzzle below, and what this is no one will know until the envelopes have been opened by the judges, of whom there are three.

(1) A well-known Church of England clergyman.
(2) A Toronto High School teacher.
(3) A Chartered Accountant, formerly with two of the largest departmental stores and mail order firms in Canada.

The only requirements for entry and to qualify for the prizes are those listed here. YOU WILL NOTE THAT THERE IS NOTHING WHATEVER FOR YOU TO SELL. The rules are simple. Read them carefully now and avoid misunderstanding and confusion later.



THE PURPOSE OF THIS CONTEST

The main purpose of this Contest is to advertise and introduce into every home in the Province the only thing we sell—DOLLY GRAY Silk Stockings—and to accomplish our purpose we have adopted what we think is the most amazing advertising idea that has ever been used in connection with Women's Silk Hosiery.

The prizes, or their equivalent in cash, as described elsewhere on this page, will positively be given away without strings of any kind attached whatever. Contestants will not be required to buy or sell anything further in order to secure the prize they win.

If any of the figures in the puzzle are not perfectly clear to you, write to our Contest Department about them before sending in your answer. No answers may be changed after we receive them.

Contestants may have as many puzzle forms as they wish FREE, by writing to our Contest Department.

A WORD ABOUT DOLLY GRAY SILK STOCKINGS

Throughout the country—from Nova Scotia to British Columbia, from the border to the Yukon—thousands and thousands of women in all walks of life are enjoying the luxury of Carefree silk stockings—stockings that don't easily rip or run from the hem; that don't easily get "holey" at the heels and toes; that look smart always; that embarrass—never.

Such are DOLLY GRAY, one of the best known and most widely worn good silk stockings made in Canada.

Made of soft, lustrous service-weight silk, in the newest and most exquisite spring and summer shades by the largest mills in Canada; with a double ladder or run-stop on a four-inch elastic hem; reinforced soles and heels; shaped ankles; seamed at back and form-fashioned to fit well and wear well. DOLLY GRAY Silk Stockings are in a class by themselves.

THE DOLLY GRAY KNIT GOODS CO.

SPECIAL $200.00 SCHOLARSHIP PRIZE

For High School, College and University Students.

This worth-while prize, worth up to $200.00—more than enough to pay for one year's tuition—will be awarded on the following basis to the student contestant who sends in the correct or nearest correct answer to the puzzle.

$200.00—If winner has $10.00 in orders to his or her credit.

$100.00—If winner has less than $10.00 to his or her credit.

This special Scholarship award will not bar a contestant from winning one of the regular puzzle prizes. In fact, it is quite possible for the winner of the Scholarship Prize to win altogether prizes totalling over $3,800.00 in value.

In the event of a tie, a tie-breaker requiring skill only, will be sent to those concerned. Under no circumstances will further money or selling be required to decide the winner. Nor will the award be made to other than a High School, Collegiate, College or University Student or Undergraduate.

BISHOP IN FAVOR OF WOMEN CLERGY

Joins Dean Inge in Declaring Them Competent To Fill Office.

LONDON, April 24.—(Canadian Press)—The disputation between high Anglican dignitaries regarding the admission of women to holy orders continues. Let it be said at once that the disputation is conducted with charity and dignity befitting the disputants and the subject. Dean Inge, of St. Paul's Catheral, has declared women competent to do all the work that the lower order of the clergy already do. Dr. Henson, Bishop of Durham, finds no reason for justifying so great a breach with the traditions of Christendom.

Bishop Welldon, Dean of Durham, the latest notable divine to voice his sentiments on the subject, says if ordination took place it must be guarded by strict safeguards. He could hardly believe that women like Florence Nightingale, and others who had done noble work in the religious life of the nation, would not have made admirable deacons and priests, and he believed that the time would come when ordination of carefully selected and disciplined women would be an accomplished fact.

It seemed to him to be idle to say that the function of women was to be good wives and others if there were millions of women who could not be wives and or mothers at all. Not only was the number of women largely in excess of men but marriage had become so expensive that many men shrank from it. He found it difficult to believe that if the State treated women on an equal basis with men the Church would always be able to keep them on a basis of inferiority. It seems illogical that women should be admitted, as no doubt they would be, to the Cabinet, and yet be excluded from the diaconate. It seemed safer that women should make their confession to women than to men.

Close Results In Tie-Breaker Contest

Dr. S. J. Graham and Mr. H. H. Graham of Peterboro, Tie for First and Second Prizes.

Very narrow Margin Over Other Contestants.

The results of the Tie-Breaker Puzzle in the Figure Puzzle Contest proved to be very close and exciting. The puzzle itself proved to be a severe test to the contestants, but in spite of the difficulty a very large percentage of those competing in the Tie-Breaker, succeeded in getting four paths to total the same, which was beyond all the anticipations or expectations of the Contest Department, and therefore many splendid solutions will necessarily have to go unrewarded.

In order that those who did not take part in the Tie-Breaker puzzle might follow the results more closely, a brief outline of the Tie-Breaker puzzle is now given. The puzzle itself consisted of a wheel divided into four sections and properly numbered, the contestant was then required to form a zig-zag path in each section commencing from the left-hand side of each section and proceeding to the right, and this path must contain not less than 40 groups of figure and not more than 65. After having completed the path in No. 1 section they were required to ascertain the total of the path, and then proceed to form a path in the other sections and endeavor to make the same total in each section. The contestant who succeeded in getting four paths to total the same would be regarded as the winner or if no one should happen to get four paths, then the contestants who got three paths, and so on. If more than one contestant should succeed in getting the four paths to total the same, then the contestant whose total for each path was the highest would be the winner. If it should happen that more than one contestant got the same total, then the one who had used the fewest groups of figures to obtain this total would be regarded as the winner.

From the foregoing remarks you will see that the Tie-Breaker was a very difficult problem but, as stated above, in spite of the difficulty, a very large percentage did get the four paths to total the same with a large variety of totals and therefore only those who succeeded in getting the four paths the same had any chance whatever in the prizes.

The contest itself provided some very close results, in fact a number of contestants got exactly the same total without any two solutions being the same, and therefore it was necessary to use Tie-Breaker No. 3 and separate the contestants according to groups of figures used. Dr. S. J. Graham of 176 Charlotte street, and Mr. H. H. Graham, of 8 Aberdeen avenue, tied for first and second prizes with a total of 44,539, and both having used 255 groups of figures. These two winning charts are published below and with the exception of No. 3 section show quite a difference in the paths taken to obtain these results. As neither of these contestant had qualified for the Grand Prize, one having sent in $6.00 and one only $3.00, they will therefore divide the first and second prizes which total $1,081.00 in the manner shown in the prize list.

Following closely to these two contestant were two others who secured the same total but had used 256 groups each, therefore these contestants will divide the third and fourth prizes, and following closely on these were two others with the same total with 258 groups each, these will share the fifth and sixth prizes, while several more contestants secured this same high total with a maximum of 260 groups of figures. As these prizes, according to the prize list, are all of the same value, no division is necessary.

The above results show the closeness of the contest, while there were other contestants who were only seven less than this high total. In fact it will be seen that more than thirty-five contestants secured totals ranging over the 44,000 mark.

A large number of contestants when turning in their solutions expressed themselves as being very greatly pleased with the puzzle, and while it proved extremely difficult, it also proved to be quite educational and fascinating, and while we feel that many perfectly good solutions will not be found among the prize-winners, yet we feel that those entitled to the prizes have justly earned them by reason of their totals being the largest.

Below we are publishing the two winning charts, which are entitled to the division of the first and second prizes, for examination by any interested contestants; each chart showing diversified paths. We are also publishing a full list of the prize winners for the first correct solutions in the Lift Lock Puzzle.

Unless some protest is made within ten days from the time of publishing this announcement, we shall proceed to make arrangements for the distributing of these prizes according to the prize list.

TRINITY OLD BOYS DISCUSS NEW PLANS

Appoint Twelve Members On Building Committee For New School.

TORONTO April 24. — Some sixty old boys of Trinity College School, Port Hope, met in the Trinity College Library last night to discuss the matter of the recent fire that destroyed the quarters occupied by the senior school. President P. E. Henderson, chairman, outlined the action taken to date by the governing body of the school through the medium of the specially appointed building committee. He mentioned the splendid cooperation afforded the committee by the town of Port Hope who, he said, had met them more than half way particularly in the matter of water supply and drainage system.

Fine Spirit was Displayed.

Rev. Dr. F. G. Orchard, head master of the school, spoke of the wonderful spirit that had survived the fire, exhibited by the masters, boys and the domestic staff.

In view of the splendid spirit displayedDr.Orchard said he hoped they would have new buildings for the senior school at Port Hope that would be well worthy of the traditions of the school.

Twelve Old Boys on Committee

Dr. C. C. Maynard, Vice-President of the Old Boys' Association, opined that the destruction of the school might prove to be a "blessing in disguise." Captain H. L. Plummer, at the request of the Building Committee, appointed twelve old boys to serve on the committee under the chairmanship of W. Dawson.

R. C. H. Cassels, K. C., announced encouraging results from the initial stages of the plans for building. He said that one Old Boy had donated $25,000, and other contributions of $20,000 and lesser amounts, had also been promised bringing the total to date up to about $75,000.

FOUR INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

Car Filled With Pupils On Way To Petrolia is Derailed.

SPREAD RAIL IS CAUSE.

PETROLIA, April 24. — Four persons were more or less seriously injured and many others cut with flying glass when a M.C.R. passenger train filled with school children jumped the track one half mile south of Corey, about four miles from here, yesterday. Those injured are, Miss Helen Armstrong, aged 19, of Brigden (a high school pupil), Miss Dorothy Dunlop of Oil Springs, also a student; B. Brooks of Courtright, the conductor, and E. Dennis of Courtright, the brakeman.

The accident was caused by a spread rail. The passenger train, which on Monday mornings is filled with school children journeying to this town to attend the high school, was composed of one passenger coach with tender and engine. As it was being slowed down for a stop at Corey the engine jumped the tracks, landing upside down in the ditch. The engineer, M. Tracey of St. Thomas and the fireman, also of St. Thomas, jumped to safety.

The passenger coach turned over on its side, although it did not roll down into the ditch The thirty school children who were passengers, were sprayed with flying glass and many minor casualties were reported

Miss Armstrong of Brigden, is the most seriously injured, suffering from a broken shoulder bone, sustained when she was thrown heavily from her seat and tossed against the opposite side of the coach. She has been removed to her home and is reported to be resting comfortably.

Miss Dunlop of Oil Springs, suffered deep gashes on her forehead, sustained in much the same manner as Miss Armstrong. The conductor of the train, B. Brooks of Courtright, is in the Petrolia hospital, suffering from severe head wounds. E. Dennis, the brakeman, suffered a broken arm, and has been removed to his home.

SHERRITT FAILED TO FINISH COURSE

Aviator Says He Urged Flier Killed On Saturday To Take More Lessons.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The death of Carl Sherritt in an airplane crash at The Pas, Manitoba, last Saturday might have been averted had Sherritt completed his flying training course and heeded the advice of older and more experienced pilots, Captain H. A. (Doc.) Oaks, former manager of the Western Canada Airways, who is at the Canadian Club, Hotel Belmont, said yesterday.

"I am very sorry that Sherritt crashed, and while I have no details of how the accident occurred, I believe it largely due to Sherritt's inexperience as a solo flier."

"Sherritt came to Winnipeg from The Pas last Fall and from Winnipeg went to Chicago, where he bought a plane and went to Florida with a pilot. After a few weeks in the South he returned to Winnipeg and took a very limited flying course, which he did not complete.

"He was by no means an experienced pilot and could only be rated as a green flier .I urged him to complete his course before attempting solo work, but he did not care to do so.

"The best way to avert such fatalities is for a new pilot to check up on his ability after he has had five or ten hours' solo work. This is the army method and an excellent safeguard. Experienced pilots could find flaws in the new pilot's technique and warn him of such dangers.

"I am very sorry Sherritt is dead. He was a colorful figure even though he was not a completely trained pilot."

Chairman of Probe.

OTTAWA, April 24. — (Canadian Press.)—Flight Lieut. Maudesley, of Winnipeg, has been selected as chairman of the Board of Enquiry to investigate the circumstances surrounding the airplane crash in Manitoba, resulting in the death of Carl Sherritt of the Sherritt-Gordon Mines. Flight Lieut. Maudesley is due to arrive in The Pas, Man., to-day to start the enquiry.

So far as can be ascertained, Sherritt did not possess any Canadian pilot license. It is understood that he only entered Canada with his machine a day or two preceding the accident.

FIVE MORE DAYS OF CELEBRATION

Mason's Jubilee Event Ends May 30—Whippet Coach To Be Given Away.

As the end of April approaches it is a reminder that the 30th is the closing day of Mason's Jubilee celebration, and that the crowning act of the event, the presentation of the beautiful new Whippet Coach, is to be settled at that time. Only those who have properly filled in their tickets, given free to all customers, are eligible for this splendid gift.

An impression seems to be in the minds of some customers that they can only put in one ticket. That is not the case, as a daily customer would get a ticket each time they came or telephoned an order, which when all filled in and dropped in the box, would greatly increase the probability of their being the ticket to be selected when the drawing is made.

In to-morrow's Examiner will appear the final list of Grocery Specials of the celebration, and readers can judge for themselves if such food values were ever made available to them before in Peterborough.

Mason's 7 Stores intend to wind up their Jubilee celebration with a whirlwind finish. Be sure and read our advertisement in to-morrow's paper. (Advt.)

THE WAY OF A HEALTHFUL DAY

A morning dish of ALL-BRAN prevents constipation

Clear eyes. Fresh complexions. Buoyant spirits. They all come when the right kind of food is eaten. One of the main things that our modern diet lacks is the roughage necessary to prevent constipation, which is the cause of so much ill health.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will furnish the bulk you need to keep well and fit.

ALL-BRAN is 100 per cent bran. It supplies roughage in effective quantities. Far better than part-bran products. At best, they can be but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily — chronic cases, with every meal.

An appetizing, healthful cereal of unusually nutritious qualities. Serve it with milk or cream and add fruits or honey. Use it in cooking too. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

CHOIR HONORS LEADER.

F. E. Walden, Formerly of Peterborough, Receives Gift From Picton Singers.

The choir of Picton United Church met at the home of the organist and choir leader F. E. Walden, Paul Street, on Friday evening last. After the rehearsal hour Mr. and Mrs. Walden were called aside by Mrs. McKenzie and Mrs. Johnston read an address of appreciation from the choir referring to Mr. Walden's constant interest in that organization, and his unceasing and wonderful activity in their behalf. Miss Mae Killip made the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Walden of a magnificent silver platter and silver bon bon dish, the latter especially for Mrs. Walden.

Mrs. Walden very capably expressed her appreciation to the choir, stressing the happiness she found in being able to entertain them.

Mr. Walden also heartily thanked them for their gifts, stating the pleasure he enjoyed in his associations with the choir which had indeed been most happy. The longer he stayed the better he liked the choir, and the year just passed had been the best of all.

Professor Walden has now completed six successful years of service as organist and choir leader in Picton United Church. The splendid music at all times shows the results of his efforts combined with the hearty co-operation and capable material among which he labors.

Afterwards a social hour was spent and delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Walden assisted by Misses Emma Haylock, Carmaleta Lockwood, Ruth Grimmon, Kathleen Hicks and Mrs. C. Newman.

IMPERIAL tank ships go all the way to South America for the crude petroleum from which Marvelube is made. Many crude oils are available right at Canada's front door, but none of these possesses the lubricating properties of Peruvian crude. Peruvian crude is so distinctly superior a base for lubricating oil that its exclusive qualities warrant the 8,000 mile trips of IMPERIAL'S huge tank ships.

The resources of Canada's largest refiners of petroleum products make Marvelube possible. In addition to using a better crude for the manufacture of Marvelube, IMPERIAL OIL LIMITED employs improved and exclusive methods of refining. From oil well to crankcase IMPERIAL resources and IMPERIAL equipment combine to produce in Marvelube a distinctly better oil.

PEASANT TRADE BAN REVEALED

Enterprises of Richer Peasants Closed, Soviet Delegate Declares.

FEARS BLOW TO TAX RISE.

MOSCOW, April 24.—The fact that tens of thousands of private enterprises run by the richer peasants have been put out of business this year is revealed by the newspaper Isvestia's report of the speech of the peasant Delegate Chaloff, from the Province of Leningrad before the All-Union Congress.

Criticising the new peasant tax law, which increases the total receipts from 320,000,000 to 400,000,000 rubles he said:

"We aim at reducing the tax upon the strictly agricultural section of the peasant economy and at increasing the tax upon other peasant profits, such as from weaving, leather works, dairies, etc. But we forget that this year tens of thousands of important private peasant enterprises have been shut down.

"Why they were shut down you know. In connection with the market situation it proved necessary to carry certain measures, as a result of which practically all of the private peasant leather works, which had played a big role in the peasant economy were closed. Private dairies have been shut down in practically all of the provinces. Private flour mills also have decreased.

"When tens of thousands of enterprises, which gave big returns, shut down and we say the tax returns must be increased, I fear that there has been a miscalculation which may be very harmful."

Further light on the same matter is given in a report publicly by an evening newspaper from the rich agricultural district around Kiev in the Ukraine. Private trade there, it was stated, had decreased 78 per cent. on the total volume and 45 per cent. on leather goods.

Private peasant enterprises, the so-called "Kustarni" productions, have done much in recent years to reconcile the villages to the universal goods shortage, which is the result of the Kremlin's policy in the long run probably a wise policy, of spending money upon industrial construction rather than upon the importing of manufactured goods.

But the Kustarni system in the eyes of the Kremlin has three fatal defects.

In the first place the Kustarni system is the mechanism of the rich peasants for private profit and for increasing their strength and influence. Its distribution and sales are also in the hands of private traders. Finally it has competed with the state enterprises and cooperatives, to the latter's detriment, because the Kustarni's products and sales methods made for cheaper prices.

This is the "market situation" mentioned by the Peasant delegate, Chaloff. So the Kremlin "adopted certain measures."

Such proceedings may surprise foreign observers in the 11th year of the Marxist Revolution of which one of the cardinal principles is economic determinism. But that is beside the point. The question is whether they are a sign of strength or weakness and what will be their future effect

MISS TOPSY TURVEY

The Kings' Own Class of St. James United Church, presented "Miss Topsy Turvey," a farcical comedy, in three acts, to a full house on Thursday night and held their audience in a steady grip of thrills and laughs.

The play is good comedy and all through it runs the glamour of a real love story, with a splendid cast of characters.

Mrs. W. Brown is the mischievious but winsome "Topsy Turvy" who wins her way by her clever acting to the hearts of her audience, as she has won Lord Clarence. In the opposite role, E. Gregson in his character of an English Lord, gives a highly humorous performance. The Deacon is portrayed as a sanctimonious hypocrite to perfection by D. Davis, while M. Drysdale, who takes the difficult part of the Negro Ned leaves nothing to be desired in his splendid mimicry of the southern dialect. H. Thompson, as Frank Golden a capital match for Topsy Turvy in playing pranks on the Deacon and Lord Clarence.

Mrs. Rowe as the charming mother Mrs. Freeman as the governess, and Jean McIllwain as the lovely sweetheart, in their pretty gowns all deserve high praise for their work in their prominent supporting roles.

The musical introductions to the play by St. James Orchestra, with Clifford Rusaw, leader, was if its usual excellent order as were all the numbers between acts including a piano solo by Jack Willis, violin solo, Miss Mary Taylor, vocal solo; Bert Cutmore, piano duet; Ashton Fife and Jack Cuffe, which were all heartily applauded.

A clever vaudeville sketch was put on by members of the orchestra, Clifford Rusaw, Sherman Reeve and Stan Wheeler, providing further amusement and merriment.

Mr. William McLaren was the managing director of the play, with Cecil Church, electrician; Aurthur Vannest, master of scenery; E. Gregson, master of properties; who all helped to make it the success it proved. The play wil be prepared to-night.,

The Least Excitement Made Her Heart Palpitate and Flutter

Mrs. Ambrose Orser, Elginburg, Ont., writes:—"I suffered for some time with a bad heart which seemed to be controlled by my nerves. The least little excitement would cause it to flutter and palpitate, and at times I would have real bad spells. I suffered in this way for some time when, one day, I saw advertised, so decided to try them. I had only taken a few boxes when I noticed that I felt better, so I continued taking them and in a short time my heart felt entirely different.'

FREQUENT HEADACHES.

A Sure Sign the Blood is Watery and Impure.

People with thin blood are more subject to headaches than full-blooded persons and the form of anaemia that afflicts growing girls is almost always accompanied by headaches, together with disturbances of the digestive organs.

Whenever you have constant or recurring headaches and pallor of the face, they show that the blood is thin and your efforts should be directed toward building up your blood. A fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this and the rich, red blood made by these pills banishes the headaches.

More disturbances to the health are caused by their blood than most people have any idea of. When your blood is impoverished, the nerves suffer from lack of nourishment, and you may be troubled with insomnia, neuritis, neuralgia or sciatica. Muscles subject to strain are undernourished and you may have muscular rheumatism or lumbago. If your blood is thin and you begin to show symptoms of any of these disorders, try building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as the blood is restored to its normal condition the trouble will disappear. There are many people who owe their present state of good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and most of them do not hesitate to say so.

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood, or weak nerves, take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now and note how your strength and health will improve. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Marmora

MARMORA, April 24.—With eighteen tables in use, a very successful euchre party was held by the Women's Memorial League in the Masonic Hall on Friday evening, the proceeds exceeding fifty dollars going towards the purchase of the new clock. Mrs. G. R. Hartley was successful in winning the ladies' and door prize while D. E. Bell secured the gentlemen's prize.

Farm Sale.

The sale of J. D. Narrie's household effects on Saturday afternoon drew a large crowd in attendance and high prices were realised.

Sale of Cooking.

Despite the fact that sales of home made cooking are becoming a weekly affair, that held by St. Paul's Ladies' Guild, on Saturday afternoon was another success.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Henderson and daughter, Marjorie, of Glanmire visited their daughter, Mrs. M. Lavender over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Potts and the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Walker, spent the week-end in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Sanderson and daughter, Flora, Mrs. J. Bedore and Mrs. C. Boyd spent Saturday in Belleville.

Miss Dorothy Denike of Colborne visited her mother, Mrs. H. Crawford, over the week-end.

TIGER HUNTING AMUSING SPORT

Lady Recently Returned From Asia Thinks It Good Fun.

HAS SHOT BIG ONE.

VANCOUVER, (B.C.) April 18.—(Canadian Press).—Tiger hunting is an amusing sport for ladies, says Mrs. Max Fleischmann, of Los Angeles, who arrived here recently after bagging her first man-eater in the jungles of Indo-China. But to make the sport entirely safe it is necessary to have a deft trigger finger.

This and a lot other things about tigers Mrs. Fleischmann learned a few weeks ago when hunting big game with her husband, Major Max Fleischmann.

For one thing, said Mrs. Fleischmann, it requires considerable patience to bag one of the big, tawny cats. It was only after sitting silent and motionless for five hours in her "still," that she succeeded in her quest. Mr. tiger finally crept up and began to nose the bait just as the weary Diana was ready to call it a day. When the "beaters" heard a shot and rushed to Mrs. Fleischmann's hiding place, thinking it perhaps a signal for help. But it was the tiger that required aid.

"And it was the biggest one shot in the district", said Mrs. Fleischmann, who told of how she had crouched alone in the jungle waiting for the tiger to appear. "After waiting that long I think I deserve to make the record kill, although a good many hunters wait twice as long and get nothing for their pains.

My husband had no luck at all, so it was my business to bag a tigger for the sake of the family honor. Of course I was excited, but it was tremendously thrilling".

Major Fleischmann, although not so successful as his wife, is inclined to take a more casual view of hunting in the wilds of Indo-China. "It wasn't so very exciting", he said with a smile, but added that there were a few interesting moments for him when a viper dropped from a tree and wrapped itself around his leg.

"But it got away before I could slash it with my knife", said the major. "I guess it was as surprised as I was". It recoiled as soon as it found I wasn't a branch of a tree or something. It was worse for me when a scorpion bit me on the thumb. My hand was numb for several days.

And then there was the encounter with a herd of wild buffaloes. Major Fleischmann's guide fled in terror when the animals stampeded, but the major held his ground and brought three of the big fellows down as they plunged past him. "I did it to save my life" he said.

Major Fleischmann has hunted in Africa and other countries where big game is abundant, but this trip to Indo-China was his last as a hunter. Before he went to the Far East there were several gaps in his array of trophies of the hunt and he could not bear to hang up his rifle without having a try for them. He got his buffalo and his jaguar, and his wife got the tiger. So now he's satisfied.

CAT CAUSES COMMOTION

Turns On Gas While Prowling And Comes Close to Being Asphyxiated.

HAS LEFT HOME.

Scene: West end of the city.

Time: 2.30 a.m. Monday, April 23rd.

Dramatis personae: Main actor, large tomcat measuring exactly 37 inches from nose to tail, with grey stripes and white chest. Answers to name of "Nippertuck." Also three feminine residents of the household.

Nippertuck arrives home at half past nine o'clock in the evening, very hungry, with several new scratches on nose. Eats everything on dish and drinks half cupfull of milk with audible gulps. Purrs loudly and jumps on cushion provided on chair in kitchen.

Some time later: Family retires for night. Closes kitchen door and leaves cat sleeping peacefully on cushion.

Two a.m.: Loud commotion in kitchen, which subsides partially. Cat meows very hard. Family opens a sleepy eye upstairs and then closes same. Cat raises voice in kitchen. Senior member of family, exasperated and murmuring, descends stairs and opens kitchen door. Great gust of gas rushes out. Said senior member turns on electric light and sees cat staggering around. Gets door open with difficulty, then collapses on chair. Cat rushes out. Other member of family smells gas and rushes down and turns off burner which cat has evidently opened while walking about, in search of food.

Three a.m.: Closes doors and windows. Only slight smell of gas left in house. Family prepares to retire. Looks out of front window to discover cause of loud barking by neighboring dog. Sees a pajama-clad figure emerge from house and take dog in doors. Family retires in confusion.

Nine a.m.: Cat still absent.

BRITAIN PREFERS KELLOGG'S TREATY

Briand's Draft For Anti-War Compact Meets With No Sympathy.

LONDON, April 24.—Foreign Minister Briand's hesitations in his original negotiations with Secretary Kellogg regarding the outlawry of war found little sympathy here, but the text of the French alternative proposal published over the week end, finds none at all.

London agrees with Washington and Berlin that M. Briand's treaty would be a retrograde instead of a forward step ,although some hopes are still entertained that means can be found to bring the French and American proposals nearer together, or that France may be forced by the pressure of the opinion of the other great powers to shift her ground.

It is agreed here that the French proposals are almost the antithesis of Mr. Kellogg's.

"As was generally expected," writes the diplomatic correspondent of The Observer "the French draft does not propose the outlawry of war at all. It is merely a rehash of the familiar French thesis propounded for many years at Geneva and elsewhere, which provides for the punishment of all who threaten the 'security' of the Allies of the late war as established by the Treaty of Versailles.

Sees Irony in French Plan.

"The French draft, with the most complete irony of detail, is meticulously worded to rob the Kellogg idea of all practical means whatsoever. The only practical hope left is that the combined prestige of the United States, Germany, Italy, Japan and Britain may yet induce France to recognize that her own security would best be served by her combining with those powers in the Kellogg sense."

The London Times tries to take a more hopeful view ,and thinks that the difficulty of reconciling the French and American proposals ought not to be insuperable.

In any case, The Times declares, "there is not the slightest reason why those powers who feel untrammeled by any commitments to war should not signify at a very early date their acceptance of the proposal to engage in negotiations with the United States for the conclusion of a treaty of policy in their mutual relations and providing for the settlemetn of all disputes of whatever kind of peaceful means.

Duty of Powers to Act.

"That is in fact the American offer and it is the plain duty of the powers addressed to take advantage of it. It does not require courage to do so—merely common sense. There is nothing now to prevent the governments seizing the opportunity so unexpectedly given of greatly advancing the work of peace."

The Daily News thinks "It will perhaps be wiser to view with composure the French proposal for a multilateral pact. It was issued on the eve of an election, and when the results of the appeal to the electorate are known France may deal with the Kellogg proposal more hopefully.

"It is just to recognize that the French note is directly at issue with the pact suggested by Washington. It leads nowhere."

A pail of water costs nothing in Canada as a rule but the trouble of dipping it up. Put out your camp fire and help save Canada's diminishing forests. Twelve million dollars worth of timber is being burnt up every year simply for lack of a few pails of water at the proper time.

Italy will establish training ships for deep-sea captains.

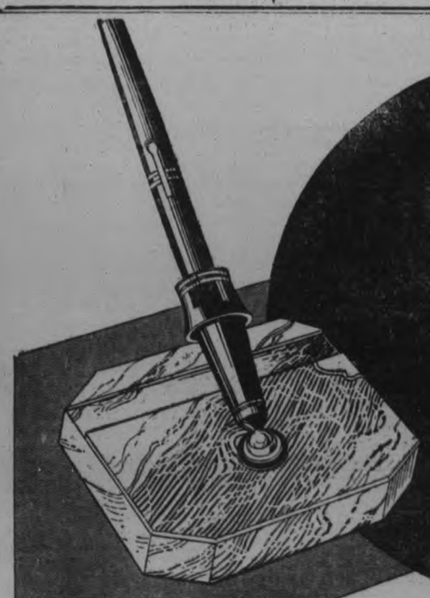
VALUE OF SHELTERBELTS

The planting of shelterbelts on prairie farms in Western Canada has given appreciable results from an agricultural standpoint. The water-conserving power of the soil has been increased; better crops have resulted; and the protection from extremes of temperature and wind movements has enabled the introduction of the hardier fruits in many localities. Of particular importance is the additional moisture secured through the formation of snow drifts which, melting gradually in the spring, provide water after adjoining treeless areas have largely dried up.



The rich beauty and variety of the bases is matched only by the perfection of the pen itself. And money cannot buy a better writing pen

Mutual Life Paying Special Dividend

An interesting announcement is made by The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada to the effect that a Special Extra Dividend to the amount of $700,000 is to be paid this year to its participating policyholders. From information received from the Company's Head Office it is learned that the percentage of dividend will be graded according to duration of policies, those which have been longer in force receiving a larger percentage of Extra Dividend The scale of Extra Dividend commences at 10 per cent of the regular annual dividend payable in 1928 on policies one year in force, and is as high as 25 per cent for longer durations.

The Extra Dividend is to be paid by cheque whenever possible, and as the calculation of the amount of the Extra Dividends and the preparation of the cheques will involve considerable detail work, the Company does not anticipate that any cheques will be issued until after the middle of the year

While special extra dividends have occasionally been paid by other Life Insurance Companies elsewhere when warranted by earnings and accumulated surplus funds, this is the first occasion on which a Canadian Company has adopted this method of sharing earnings with policyholders.

Gains General At Toronto, With Investments Active

TORONTO, April 24 (Canadian Press). — A strong undertone prevailed throughout the list on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, gains being well scattered in all branches of the market, with considerable interest manifested in investment issues. Trade was fairly active.

Hamilton Theatres Preferred followed the lead of the common stock yesterday and advanced six points to 96. Common, however, ran into profit-taking, which brought about a reaction to 18, where it was off three from yesterday's closing quotation. Power Corporation was a strong spot among the industrials, moving up 2⅝ to 87½. Gains of one point were made by Canadian Canners Common and Second Preferred at 18½ and 22 respectively, International Utilities B at 11, Massey-Harris at 42¾ ,and Imperial Oil at 62¾.

Among the banks Commerce was in demand, advancing six to 305, while Montreal gained four at 384. Royal lost two points at 400, and Standard one at 200. A sharp decline of nine points to 211 was recorded by Steel of Canada on sales of 100 shares.

Scout News

2ND (ARMOUR) TROOP.

A Scout meeting was held last Friday in St. Luke's Sunday School Hall. The attendance dropped from twenty to eighteen boys. Mass games were played until all were present, and some new signals were taught. The meeting was then opened by the Troop leader, the Scouts taking horseshoe formation. The group was divided among four leaders, who were given corners and they had thirty minutes for instruction. The instruction was tenderfoot work. A long period of games followed. The games were "Hide the tin" and rooster fight. A short sing-song was held.

SIXTH PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

The regular meeting of the Sixth Peterborough Troop was held in their troop rooms on Monday night. The meeting opened with flag break and general inspection. The scouts were then dismissed to their patrol corners and patrol inspection by the scoutmaster was carried out. During the instruction period that followed semaphore signalling was taken up, also first aid.

The troop was honored by a visit from C. S. Cummer, of the Bank of Montreal. Mr. Cummer gave the boys a brief but interesting lecture on the principles of banking. He also stated that one of the chief requisites for a good banker is character. Such a requisite is to be found in the boy scouts and he felt assured that one of the chief recommendations for an applicant would be a letter signed by a scout stating that the applicant was a member of a boy scout troop. The boys then showed their appreciation to Mr. Cummer by giving their troop yell.

The patrol competition is very keenly contested just at present as there remains but one more meeting before the winner will be chosen. The Kangaroos patrol strengthened their position at first place with the Beavers and Foxes close second and third.

The meeting closed with a council fire, during which a few games and songs were had. Then followed flag break and scout silence.

St. John's Men Entertain.

St. John's Men's Club entertained the men of All Saints' Club at carpet ball last night. Teams were:

St. John's—Ireson, Green, Clee, Howden (skip).

All Saints'—Chevrell, Page, Buller, Wiggins (skip).

St. John's—Stuart, Davies, Gregory, Britnell (skip).

All Saints' — Boddison, Lupton, Hope, Lucas (skip).

All Saints' won out, 38-36.

Afterwards all enjoyed a few card games.

ALBERTA DOMESTIC COAL

With PROVED Heating Qualities in All Types of Furnaces and Coal Stoves

For years Alberta Coal has heated the homes of Western Canada under the most severe weather conditions, and in all types of furnaces and coal stoves, with complete satisfaction. Its proved heating qualities and marked economy have gained for it a widespread and steadily increasing popularity.

Recent reductions in freight rates now make Alberta Coal available to Ontario homes. This year, however, shipments to Ontario have been limited to the period of April 15th to July 15th. For this reason, orders for Alberta Domestic Coal should be placed with your dealer immediately.

You can buy Alberta Domestic Coal with utmost confidence. A BOARD OF STANDARDS has been set up by the Governments of Ontario and Alberta jointly. More complete information, and a list of the approved Brands of Coal can be obtained by writing to the Fuel Controller of Ontario, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, or the Secretary, Canadian Coal Committee, Edmonton, Alta.

Rotary Reputations Rapped By Women

ers. Mrs. Douglas Fletcher's splendid voice was effectively displayed in a most pleasing rendition of "Bamboo Baby," and the four end "men" scored with a clever dance.

Two mere men who somehow or other got into the minstrel circle were Frank Clark and Rotarian John Crane. Mr. Clark played a banjo solo with his usual artistry, and had to respond with an encore, but Mr. Crane, as Madame "Human Shank," got into deep water attemping to sing "Deep River," and sat down on a unanimous request from the whole assemblage that he should call it a day.

A chorus in which the circle displayed some fine harmony brought the minstrel first part to a triumphant close.

The interlocutor and end "men" have already been named. The others in this part of the program were Mrs. Gerald Wood and Mrs. Robert Abbott piccaninnies, and Mrs. W. R. Widdess, Mrs. Max Sauer, Mrs. Gordon Hall, Mrs. Douglas Loomis, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Thomas Barrie, and Mrs. J. Gillespie, mammies.

The second part was opened with a couple of monologues by Rotarian Jack Primeau, who delivered them in his best vein to good returns. Then a doll dance with Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. Claude Rogers, Mrs. Vanston, Mrs. Gerald Wood and Mrs. Sauer the chorus in striking red and white costumes, scored a great success. There were snappy verses and some comedy presentations as well as some clever dancing in this number.

Little Sophie Yeotes contributed another enjoyable solo dance and then followed one of the big hits of the evening, a "school days" number, in which Mrs. McClelland, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Hooper, Mrs. Jack Gillespie, Mrs. Ray Harding and Rotarians Bob Abbott were featured. The latter's garb was one of the high-lights of the evening, while the school entertainment imitation by the performers particularly Mrs. McClelland's portrayal of a school boy version of "Barbara Freitchie" brought down the house. And then Mine Host Geo. N. Graham caught the infection and contributed an Irish jib that earned a storm of applause. A final chorus by the whole company brought the program to a close, and the Rotarians showed their appreciation of the entertainment by giving three cheers for the Rotary-Annes and singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," after which a formal vote of thanks, moved by Rotarian Dr. Moir and seconded by Rotarian S. R. Armstrong, was enthusiastically carried.

A pleasing feature was the presentation of a bouquet of roses and a lamp shade in the form of a doll, dressed like the members of the Doll Dance chorus to Mrs. Douglas Fletcher, who was of invaluable assistance during the rehearsals and the performance. Mrs. Fletcher presided at the piano for the entire program and in addition contributed a solo number. Stewart Widdess provided a violin obligato to several of the numbers. Sophie Yeotes, the clever young dancer, was the recipient of a bouquet of flowers for her two solo dances.

The success of the evening was much assisted by Rotary-Anne Mrs. J. H. Seels in connection with the special costumes, and by Dick Lush, who helped very materially with the "make-ups."

The whole affair was an outstanding success, acclaimed by Rotarians as a red-letter night in the history of the club.

It followed a very enjoyable dinner over which Rotarian John Crane presided. No business was taken up, and as soon as the last course had been served the responsibility for the rest of the evening's entertainment was turned over to the ladies.

It was in most worthy hands; all the Rotary-Annes are to be congratulated upon their achievement.

Mine Trade Slackens But Prices Hold Firm

TORONTO, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Transactions on the Standard Stock Exchange showed a slight decrease again to-day, but prices remained steady in the majority of issues. Noranda was firm at 18.25, the highest price of the morning, while Mining Corporation moved up nine to 3.40, and McIntyre five to 26.25. Hudson Bay ran into some liquidation and dropped thirty cents at 17.40, while Hollinger eased five to 16.00, and Barry Hollinger five to 1.17.

Mutual Life Paying Special Dividend

An interesting announcement is made by The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada to the effect that a Special Extra Dividend to the amount of $700,000 is to be paid this year to its participating policyholders. From information received from the Company's Head Office it is learned that the percentage of dividend will be graded according to duration of policies, those which have been longer in force receiving a larger percentage of Extra Dividend The scale of Extra Dividend commences at 10 per cent of the regular annual dividend payable in 1928 on policies one year in force, and is as high as 25 per cent for longer durations.

The Extra Dividend is to be paid by cheque whenever possible, and as the calculation of the amount of the Extra Dividends and the preparation of the cheques will involve considerable detail work, the Company does not anticipate that any cheques will be issued until after the middle of the year

While special extra dividends have occasionally been paid by other Life Insurance Companies elsewhere when warranted by earnings and accumulated surplus funds, this is the first occasion on which a Canadian Company has adopted this method of sharing earnings with policyholders.

Gains General At Toronto, With Investments Active

TORONTO, April 24 (Canadian Press). — A strong undertone prevailed throughout the list on the Toronto Stock Evchange this morning, gains being well scattered in all branches of the market, with considerable interest manifested in investment issues. Trade was fairly active.

Hamilton Theatres Preferred followed the lead of the common stock yesterday and advanced six points to 96. Common, however, ran into profit-taking, which brought about a reaction to 18, where it was off three from yesterday's closing quotation. Power Corporation was a strong spot among the industrials, moving up 2¾ to 87½. Gains of one point were made by Canadian Canners Common and Second Preferred at 18½ and 22 respectively, International Utilities B at 11, Massey-Harris at 42¾ and Imperial Oil at 62¾.

Among the banks Commerce was in demand, advancing six to 305, while Montreal gained four at 384. Royal lost two points at 400, and Standard one at 350. A sharp decline of nine points to 211 was recorded by Steel of Canada on sales of 100 shares.

Scout News

2ND (ARMOUR) TROOP.

A Scout meeting was held last Friday in St. Luke's Sunday School Hall. The attendance dropped from twenty to eighteen boys. Mass games were played until all were present, and some new signals were taught. The meeting was then opened by the Troop leader, the Scouts taking horseshoe formation. The group was divided among four leaders, who were given corners and they had thirty minutes for instruction. The instruction was tenderfoot work. A long period of games followed. The games were "Hide the tin" and rooster fight. A short sing-song was held.

SIXTH PETERBOROUGH TROOP.

The regular meeting of the Sixth Peterborough Troop was held in their troop rooms on Monday night. The meeting opened with flag break and general inspection. The scouts were then dismissed to their patrol corners and patrol inspection by the scoutmaster was carried out. During the instruction period that followed semaphore signalling was taken up, also first aid.

The troop was honored by a visit from C. S. Cummer, of the Bank of Montreal. Mr. Cummer gave the boys a brief but interesting lecture on the principles of banking. He also stated that one of the chief requisites for a good banker is character. Such a requisite is to be found in the boy scouts and he felt assured that one of the chief recommendations for an applicant would be a letter signed by a scout stating that the applicant was a member of a boy scout troop. The boys then showed their appreciation to Mr. Cummer by giving their troop yell.

The patrol competition is very keenly contested just at present as there remains but one more meeting before the winner will be chosen. The Kangaroos patrol strengthened their position at first place with the Beavers and Foxes close second and third.

The meeting closed with a council fire, during which a few games and songs were had. Then followed flag break and scout silence.

St. John's Men Entertain.

St. John's Men's Club entertained the men of All Saints' Club at carpet ball last night. Teams were:

St. John's—Ireson, Green, Clee, Howden (skip).

All Saints'—Cheyrell, Page, Buller, Wiggins (skip).

St. John's—Stuart, Davies, Gregory, Britnell (skip).

All Saints' — Boddison, Lupton, Hope, Lucas (skip).

All Saints' won out, 38-36.

Afterwards all enjoyed a few card games.

Rotary Reputations Rapped By Women

ers. Mrs. Douglas Fletcher's splendid voice was effectively displayed in a most pleasing rendition of "Bamboo Baby," and the four end "men" scored with a clever dance.

Two mere men who somehow or other got into the minstrel circle were Frank Clark and Rotarian John Crane. Mr. Clark played a banjo solo with his usual artistry, and had to respond with an encore, but Mr. Crane, as Madame "Human Shank," got into deep water attemping to sing "Deep River," and sat down on a unanimous request from the whole assemblage that he should call it a day.

A chorus in which the circle displayed some fine harmony brought the minstrel first part to a triumphant close.

The interlocutor and end "men" have already been named. The others in this part of the program were Mrs. Gerald Wood and Mrs. Robert Abbott, piccaninnies, and Mrs. W. R. Weddess, Mrs. Max Sauer, Mrs. Gordon Hall, Mrs. Douglas Loomis, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Thomas Barrie, and Mrs. J. Gillespie, mammies.

The second part was opened with a couple of monologues by Rotarian Jack Primeau, who delivered them in his best vein to good returns. Then a doll dance with Mrs. Abbott, Mrs. Claude Rogers, Mrs. Vanston, Mrs. Gerald Wood and Mrs. Sauer the chorus in striking red and white costumes, scored a great success. There were snappy verses and some comedy presentations as well as some clever dancing in this number.

Little Sophie Yeotes contributed another enjoyable solo dance and then followed one of the big hits of the evening, a "school days" number, in which Mrs. McClelland, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Hooper, Mrs. Jack Gillespie, Mrs. Ray Harding and Rotarians Bob Abbott were featured. The latter's garb was one of the high-lights of the evening, while the school entertainment imitation by the performers particularly Mrs. McClelland's portrayal of a school boy version of "Barbara Freitchie" brought down the house. And then Mine Host Geo. N. Graham caught the infection and contributed an Irish jib that earned a storm of applause. A final chorus by the whole company brought the program to a close, and the Rotarians showed their appreciation of the entertainment by giving three cheers for the Rotary-Annes and singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," after which a formal vote of thanks, moved by Rotarian Dr. Moir and seconded by Rotarian S. R. Armstrong, was enthusiastically carried.

A pleasing feature was the presentation of a bouquet of roses and a lamp shade in the form of a doll, dressed like the members of the Doll Dance chorus to Mrs. Douglas Fletcher, who was of invaluable assistance during the rehearsals and the performance. Mrs. Fletcher presided at the piano for the entire program and in addition contributed a solo number. Stewart Widdess provided a violin obligato to several of the numbers. Sophie Yeotes, the clever young dancer, was the recipient of a bouquet of flowers for her two solo dances.

The success of the evening was much assisted by Rotary-Anne Mrs. J. H. Seels in connection with the special costumes, and by Dick Lush, who helped very materially with the "make-ups."

The whole affair was an outstanding success, acclaimed by Rotarians as a red-letter night in the history of the club.

It followed a very enjoyable dinner over which Rotarian John Crane presided. No business was taken up, and as soon as the last course had been served the responsibility for the rest of the evening's entertainment was turned over to the ladies.

It was in most worthy hands; all the Rotary-Annes are to be congratulated upon their achievement.

Mine Trade Slackens But Prices Hold Firm

TORONTO, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Transactions on the Standard Stock Exchange showed a slight decrease again to-day, but prices remained steady in the majority of issues. Noranda was firm at 18.25, the highest price of the morning, while Mining Corporation moved up nine to 3.40, and McIntyre five to 26.25. Hudson Bay ran into some liquidation and dropped thirty cents at 17.40, while Hollinger eased five to 16.00, and Barry Hollinger five to 1.17.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 25, 1928.

After early morning this is rather a menacing day, according to astrology. It is a rule under which routine matters should receive attention.

The morning hours are supposed to be favorable to the planning of constructive enterprises of every sort.

Engineers and builders should benefit. They are to have a year of tremendous achievements abroad as well as in this country.

There is a sign read as presaging the boring of many tunnels and the building of many bridges.

Cities are to be the scenes of great feats that relieve congestions and novel ideas are to be successfully worked out, it is foretold.

Women should be extremely careful today which is not an auspicious one for harmony in either public or private life.

It is not a lucky wedding day since the planetary government inclines men to dominate their wives.

The evening may be disappointing to plans that contemplate the exploitation of a man or his ideas. Not auspicious for political meetings.

Inventions affecting modes of warfare are to be perfected this year and they may avert a conflict of frightful possibilities.

Marvels in the development of radio and television are to be accepted for everyday use, it is prophesied and new natural forces are to be discovered and harnessed.

Diet will become a subject of everyday thought and the preparation of food is to become one of the modern fine arts, the seers prognosticate.

With the development of scientific knowledge regarding the physical world will come revelations regarding the occult, it is prophesied.

Persons whose birthdate it is have a fortunate year before them but they should beware of temptation to play too much.

Children born on this day probably will be efficient as leaders. The subjects of this sign usually are good organizers, but they easily contract convivial habits.

Japan has an anti-gambling drive.

REPORT PRESENTED ON CLUB ACTIVITIES

Secretary Gives Account at Annual Meeting of Women's Music Club.

The following report was presented to the members of the Women's Music Club at the annual meeting:

"I beg to present the following report of the club's activities for the season of 1927-28:

"The holiday season found our members not wholly idle. On the first of June, Mrs. Gliddon very kindly entertained the executive to a most enjoyable picnic at her summer home at Chemong. Then in connection with the celebration of Confederation a very beautiful 'float,' entailing a great deal of work, was prepared. It represented St. Cecelia, Goddess of Music, arriving out of the clouds with her attendants, who played upon golden harp, lyres, and trumpets. It was done in blue, white and gold, and was one of the most attractive of the many floats in the procession. We feel sure that every member of the Women's Music Club was justly proud of it on July first.

"In response to a request for help from the Music Club, in connection with a musical competition to be held at the Kiwanian Made-in-Canada Fair last November, a committee composed of Mrs. Allan, Mrs. Gliddon, Miss Clarry and Miss Hurley was appointed to work with the Kiwanis committee. Very splendid arrangements were made, and this proved to be a most successful competition. Our club offered a gold and silver medal to the soprano class, the former medal being won by a Music Club member, Miss Margaret Dickson.

"Our total membership this year numbered 133: honorary 18, active 56 and associate 59.

"Twelve regular meetings have been held, and four meetings of the executive.

"In reviewing the programs of this second season of a larger club, we feel real satisfaction in their excellence. The season opened most auspiciously when, as visiting artist, Mrs. Ly, when, as visiting artist, Mrs. Madge Hunter-Parker of Toronto charmed every one present with her very beautiful soprano voice. At this meeting also, Miss Ruth Budd was presented by Mrs. Allan with the five dollar gold piece, given by the club, for the best pupil's poem on Confederation.

"Other Toronto musicians who came to us during the season and provided really delightful programs were: Miss Margaret Brown, pianist; Miss Myrtle Hare, contralto; Scott Malcolm, pianist; Harvey Doney, bartone soloist of Sherbourne Street United Church; Miss Edwina Palmer and Miss Agnes Best, violinist and pianist, and Heber Mulock, tenor soloist of the Eaton Memorial Church. We are deeply indebted to our president, Mrs. Allan, through whose efforts the above mentioned were secured. We feel sure that it is a real gratification to every member of the club that on each occasion of a visiting soloist our own Miss Agnes Logan most efficiently and satisfactorily played the part of accompanist.

"For the Christmas musicale, under the direction of Mrs. Allan, several carols were 'put on the stage.' Rev. Mr. Todd gave a brief Christmas message, and a couple of carols were sung by the large audience present. The Yuletide atmosphere was emphasized by very attractive decorations in the hall, and refreshments were served. Refreshments also followed two other of the regular programs, and we most heartily thank Mrs. Buchanan, convenor of the social committee, for the very delightful arrangements made each time for the social half-hour.

On one afternoon the Rev. Douglas Paterson gave a wonderfully fine address on the Scottish war memorial, the dedication of which he had attended in Edinburgh.

"On November 18th the club was highly favored when Augustus Bridle, musical critic of the Toronto Star, was the speaker, his subject being "Beethoven and Schubert." This was handled in a novel and interesting way and illustrated with slides. The meeting was an open one and attended by nearly two hundred people. On both of these afternoons, and indeed on almost every program, one or more of our own Peterborough musicians very ably assisted.

"Another departure from the usual was an illustrated lecture on "Shakespeare's Theatre," given by Professor Clausen, of Toronto University in St. John's Parish Hall.

In Trinity Church, on the afternoon of Friday, March 30th, a program of Easter music, arranged by Miss Clarry, was very much enjoyed by everyone present.

"Our very sincere and hearty thanks are due to Heintzman & Co., who a number of times during the season loaned us splendid pianos. We also are inlebted to Mr. W. J. Padget and Mr. H. O. Fiske for help on different occasions.

"All of which is respectfully submitted.

"S. C. Porter, Secretary."

LYRICS OF LIFE

THE TREES ARE FINE OLD FRIENDS.

The trees are fine old friends—let's love them more.
Aye, even now one stands beside my door,
Guards it in Winter, shelters it in Spring,
Shades it in Summer, friend through everything.

I have known men who loved and went their way,
And even woman's love may have its day,
The while some tree, some tree the children knew,
Shields them in youth, and loves them all life through.

Or if the child, or man, requires a roof,
It gives its life, of love to the final proof,
Fashions a threshold, builds a sturdy wall,
Gives him a home, the greatest gift of all.

Who plants a tree serves well the human race,
The forest's friends the forest must replace,
Shelter and shade, and roof and wall and floor,
The trees are fine old friends—let's love them more.

Delighted crowds kept a big staff busy handing out shoe bargains all day Friday and Saturday. The convenience of the sale racks, with every pair of shoes separately priced, was appreciated by the buyers, as it made it practically self service, and a splendid choice of rare values to choose from.

Big Stock

Such a two days' raid on our bargain racks, as last Friday and Saturday, just about cleared them, but the supply was kept up from the large reserve stock. When that is exhausted the shelves will be emptied and we will be sold out.

No Buying

We are not renewing any stock. The sale will continue until all present stock is sold, so that when sizes are gone, there will not be another chance at them. It is surely unnecessary to advise early buying, while selection is at its best.

PLAY AT LYCEUM.

"Now Fawncy That" Will Be Repeated To-night.

Don't forget the play to be given in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum to-night by the Dramatic Club of the Immaculate Conception Parish. Entitled "Now Fawncy That," in three acts and seven scenes, with a cast of twenty-five characters, it was presented with great success at the Lyceum on two nights last week, and is considered as a very entertaining and interesting production.

Kearns Feared Getting in Trouble With N.Y.A.C.

DEMPSEY TESTIFIES BEFORE COURT CONTRACT WAS 'PHONY'

Former Champion Takes Stand in Own Behalf in Kearns Suit.

NEVER LIVED UP TO

Required by Commission to Post Contract Binding Their Relations.

NEW YORK, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—The contract under which Jack Kearns seeks to recover over $700,000 from Jack Dempsey was a "phony," the former heavyweight champion of the world yesterday told the jury hearing the charges of his former manager in United States district court.

Testifying in his own behalf, after attorneys for Kearns had rested their case, Dempsey declared that "Doc" approached him one day in August, 1923, during the training period for his fight with Luis Firpo, and induced him to trace his name over a signature already placed upon the document. The contract was never lived up, was never intended for a real contract, and "didn't mean a thing", Dempsey said.

Under the agreement, basis of Kearns' breach of contract suit, the manager was to receive one third of Dempsey's earnings for a three year period ending in August, 1926. Kearns never complied with a provision to pay the fighter a lump sum of $1,560 in advance, representing a salary of $10 a week, and ever after the signing, Kearns split their earnings fifty-fifty, Dempsey said.

The only excuse for the contract, Dempsey testified, was Kearns' fear of getting into trouble with the New York State Athletic Commission, which required that a manager and fighter post with them the contract binding their relations. The former champion said no contract between them ever had been needed up to that time. Actual signing of the document took place on August 22 instead of August 3, the date of the document, Jack said.

Under examination of Arthur T. Driscoll, head of his legal array, the more prominent half of a fistic combine that once rivalled the team of Damon and Pythias testified that the contract never was mentioned until the split with Kearns in July or August of 1925. After several conferences, Kearns "kept stalling", Dempsey said, whenever demand was made for an accounting of the then champion's earnings.

When Dempsey finally told Kearns he was no longer his manager, due to poor handling of money and business details, the contract subject popped up. Dempsey said he laughed at it and Kearns admitted the agreement "didn't mean a thing", but that nevertheless, a contract was a contract and binding. A property split was decided upon, giving Kearns the Wiltshire Apartments in Los Angeles and Dempsey the Hotel Barbara.

Had Many Disputes.

Under cross - examination by Kearns' counsel, Dempsey declared he and his former manager had many disagreements and arguments "ever since we knew each other." He denied that his marriage to Estelle Taylor in February of 1925 precipated the final split, although the decision was reached following his honeymoon trip to Europe.

Newspaper stories under Dempsey's signature, setting forth the former champion's "own story" of the split, different from the version he presented in court because "Kearns sold my name to a syndicate for six years and they wrote the stuff", Dempsey explained. "I didn't see the stories until afterward."

Before Kearns rested his case, B. C. Clements, Chicago promoter, charged from the witness stand that contracts calling for a fight between Harry Wills were stolen by Floyd Fitzsimmons and destroyed. Fitzsimmons, a close personal friend of Dempsey, promoted the champion's battle with Billy Miske at Benton Harbor, Mich., in 1920. Wills received a $50,000 guarantee after signing for a Dempsey match in Niles, Mich., the negro's manager, Paddy Mullins, testified, although the fight never took place.

Promoter Tex Rickard, presenting the books of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, showed that Dempsey received $718,000 after the fight in which he lost the heavyweight title to Gene Tunney at Philadelphia in 1926. Kearns seeks a share of this sum on the ground that he arranged the details for the match before his contract with Dempsey expired.

BUNION DERBY.

WAYNESVILLE, Mo., April 24. — Two colored runners, Phillip Granville, Hamilton and Ed. Gardner of Seattle, paced the transcontinental foot racers into the 51st control here yesterday.

Their time for the 51.9 miles from Conway was 7:42:06. Granville, the fourth place man in the race, has covered 1936.9 miles in 360:16:05 and Gardner, the fifth place man, has done the same distance in 367:17:34.

Olli Wanttinen, New York, was third in 7:53:09, and his elapsed time is 372:37:31. Cirillo Umck, the Italian champion romped in fourth in 04:51, elapsed time 377:30:20.

Louis Perrella, Albany, N.Y., was fifth in 8:29:04; elapsed time 371:13:17.

Mike Joyce, of Cleveland, and John Cronin, of Saskatoon, finished in a dead heat for the sixth place in 8:47:56. Joyce's elapsed time was 369:16:05, and Cronin's 376:03:37.

Samuel Richman, New York, came in in 8:56:34, and his elapsed time was 351:10:25.

Cincinnati Holdout Reinstated By Landis

CHICAGO, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis yesterday reinstated Pete Donohue, Cincinnati holdout hurler.

The Reds pitcher was suspended when he failed to sign a contract within ten days after the opening game.

TIGERS WIN SECOND GAME

Supported by Flashy Infield Work, Carroll Shutouts Chicago 3-0.

CISSELL WILD

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 24.—(Canadian Press).—The Detroit Tigers shut out the Chicago White Sox 3 to 0, delivering flashy infield support to Owen Carroll, former Holy Cross pitcher, in the second game of the series at Detroit yesterday. It was Carroll's second victory of the season and the Tigers' second shutout.

Cissell's wild throw to the plate in the eighth inning let in two of the Tigers' runs after Sweeney had scored on Gehringer's sacrifice in the third.

Four singles bunched in the fourth netting three runs, scored with a homer by Manush in the opening stanza, gave the Browns a 4 to 2 victory over the Cleveland Indians at St. Louis yesterday. It was Sam Gray's third victory in four starts.

Kress and Brannon connected with a pair of hits each, to feature the stickwork for the winners.

Boston at Philadelphia, rain.

SOCCER NOTES

Arrangements were completed last evening at the meeting of the soccer association in the G.W.V.A. Rooms for Saturday's league schedule between the Quaker Oats and the C.G.... teams. Kick off at three o'clock on King Edward Park. Referee Alex. McKinley.

Mayor Denne in his opening remarks to the players stated that they had not a very good playing pitch, but recommended them to approach the city council to have the field plowed, rolled and seeded for one year; also would endeavor to get other playing grounds for that period. Every one of the council is out to foster clean recreation, was his parting remark.

The new goal posts at King Edward Park are a great improvement and should be satisfactory because they have been made so as to prevent dropping in the centre. Of course it is the desire of the association that no player or spectator use the cross bars as a swing by jumping up and catching it.

Quaker Oats have signed the following players: Robert Carmichael, T. Wilson, George Logan, A. G. Wilson, A. A. Olen, F. Honour, Thos. S. Craig, J. A. Goldie, W. Rankins, T. Williams, J. Buchan, T. Foster, W. H. Curtis and H. Curtis—fourteen players.

HEENEY IS RATED HIGH BY CHAMPION

Gene Tunney Looks Bigger After Vacation in the South.

NEW YORK, April 24. — A bigger, stronger, and apparently more rugged Gene Tunney came back to New York from ten weeks of vacationing in Florida. From the heavyweight champion came a quiet declaration of appreciation of the ability of Tom Heeney, the man who is to contest his title which was manifestly sincere, even though it contradicts the popular conception of Heeney and his chances of wresting the title from the strapping young man who laid the foundation for the climb he has made in Greenwich Village.

Tunney verified everything that came out of Miami from Promoter Tex Rickard when negotiations were in progress there for the title struggle which is proposed for July 26 in the Yankee Stadium. Tunney said he would have only one fight this year, and that he is bound by agreement for this year and next to Rickard exclusively. He characterized as ridiculous the idea that Jack Dempsey's announced retirement is merely camouflage for another title fight this year, and said that Dempsey would get no chance at his title this year.

Tunney said these things in the well-modulated tone and sincere manner which characterize him during an interview in the office of Stationmaster Bill Egan at the Pennsylvania Terminal, while a crowd of well-wishers flocked about the windows of the office, waiting impatiently the end of the interview, so that they could grasp Tunney by the hand.

The outstanding note in Tunney's talk was the disagreement of the champion with the popular appraisal of Heeney.

His Appraisal of Heeney.

"I have never witnessed Heeney in action," he said. "But from what information has been carried me from friends who have seen Heeney, I am convinced he must be a good man, a strong, tough, rugged fighter, who has done everything that has been asked of him. He must be good to have advanced as he has through the ranks of challengers. He stands to-day as the man most entitled to a championship match on the only basis a challenger can be determined, that of competitive results. And, while I am free to state that there are one or two other heavyweights I would have preferred, both from the standpoint of box office drawing ability and competitive appraisal, I am thoroughly satisfied with affairs as they stand.

Everything Is Harmonious.

"Looked at from any angle, Rickard has selected the best man to fight me. As a matter of fact, I had no voice in the selection, beyond giving my consent. I signed a contract with Rickard last year, giving him my services and to him the privilege of naming the man I was to box, as well as when and where the bout would be held. This responsibility is the promoter's, since he pays the freight. Of course, naturally everything had to meet with my approval, but I was in no sense entitled to dictate. There was some talk some time ago about differences between myself and Rickard, but that's just part of the game. Everything between Rickard and myself now is harmonious. He has signed me to defend my title this year when I will box only once, and I am signed to box for him again next year, providing I am champion.

"Whether I'll retain the title remains to be seen. I have my own ideas on that. I am confident of my own strength and ability, just as I have always been. I think and feel I'll beat Heeney, but that is something that is determined only by what happens inside the ring. Inactivity hurts an athlete, but I feel all right even though I am heavier than ever.

Outlines Training Plan.

"I do not intend to let myself be swayed by the popular idea of Heeney. Some people evidently think he will be easy for me. Others think differently. I don't think at all, you might say. I will train for Heeney as I have trained for all my bouts, conscientiously and with every attention to preparation for a fight in which the title I hold is exposed to danger of slipping from me. I will enter the ring ready and at my best fighting peak, all things being equal. I know how to train Tunney and intend to train Tunney as he must be trained. Heeney is no mediocre foe. He is to my mind the outstanding heavyweight of the day. He has beaten everybody matched against him. I do not subscribe to the theory that Risko has been beaten by such boxers as Young Stribling, Jack Delaney, Mike McTigue, and Tommy Loughran. Remember that Leo Lomski, a small light-heavyweight, came along and gave the McTigue who beat Risko the beating of his life.

"I have seen all the other heavyweights, but Heeney. I only know he must be tough and durable. He is a good man and will lend an international flavor to our match which should have its effect on the financial success of the bout. He wins and that is what counts. I should never have been 1 to 3 against Dempsey in Philadelphia if the people had stopped to consider. They overlooked the fact that I had never been beaten before facing Dempsey except by Harry Greb. When you stick with a winner you can't lose."

VIEWS ON SPORT

C. C. Pyle, promoter of the transcontinental foot race, predicts that 30 of the 70 runners and walkers remaining in the competition will reach New York City... The race will be an annual affair, Pyle insists.

Harry McFadden, manager of the Royals baseball club, will probably trot out the best team this year than any other previous season of his career as pilot of this club. For four years the Royals have stuck together and each season have added new players until they have developed what looks to be one of the finest aggregations in Ontario. Three consecutive years in the Ontario finals and semi-finals has been some experience for the youngsters and this year with added strength on the pitching staff and a score or more fielders to choose from it looks better than ever. The second practise was held on Saturday afternoon and, despite the unsettled weather conditions and the muddy grounds, about twenty fellows turned up for a batting and fielding practise. Kitchen, a new player from out of town, looks good, and Newson is shaping up well for one of the garden positions. Hatton and Holmes, last year's regular battery, haven't lost any of their old pep.

The second meeting for the season of the Holy Name League will be held on Thursday night, April 26, at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum rooms, at 7.15 sharp. Selection of playing grounds and drawing up of a playing schedule will be principal topics of discussion, and it is requested that players and club representatives from three parishes besides all those otherwise interested should be in attendance.

Bert Duffus is distributing posters announcing the open bowling tournament which will be held at the Duffus alleys from Saturday, April 28 to May 12. A big list of events has been scheduled, and should bring out a numerous entry list. Special prizes are offered for the high aggregate with and without handicap. This tournament should settle for the present some of the claims to bowling supremacy that have developed out of the season's play in this city. The tournament, of course, is expected to bring in some strong teams and individual trundlers.

Heavyweight Champ Addresses Class At Yale University On Literature

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 24.—(Canadian Press).—Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, today, in acceptance of an invitation from Professor William Lyon Phelps, head of the English department in Yale University, spoke to the professor's class yesterday.

Tunney immediately took up his talk on literature and began with reference to his own study of Shakespeare. He said his first acquaintance with the author's work came while he was in France.

"I am not a great scholar," the champion went on to say, "but I have much appreciation of the good work of this author. Mankind is much better off for what Shakespeare has contributed."

While he was so talking he said that the thought occurred to him whether Shakespeare would be a boxing fan or not. "I wonder whether he would have liked me to have risen in the seventh round when I was down in my last battle with Dempsey?"

The audience roared with laughter when Tunney drew a comparison between Ajax and Achilles, heroes of mythology, saying that the former would like to have become a champion over the latter, but he was "just an ambitious young fellow like Jack Sharkey."

BOWLING TOURNEY AT DUFFUS ALLEYS

Cash Prizes Offered for Tournament to be Held April 28 to May 12.

Something new in the way of a bowling tournament for this city will be put on at the Duffus Bowling Academy beginning on Saturday, April 28, to May 12. This is a classified tourney that provides equal opportunities for low average bowlers as well as the high score men, and will be governed under rules of the Canadian Bowling Association. Competition is open to all bowlers in Ontario and will be divided into groups with A., B. and C. classes. The entry fee will be $1.00 per person for each event, which will be returned in cash prizes.

The handicap tournament to operate under the following conditions:

Teams.

Class A.—Teams with an average of 1001 to 1150 and upward.
Class B.—Teams with an average of 851 to 1000.
Class C.—Teams with an average of 700 to 850.

Doubles.

Class A.—Doubles with an average of 401 to 460 and upward.
Class B.—Doubles with an average of 342 to 400.
Class C.—Doubles with an average of 280 to 341.

Singles.

Class A.—Bowlers with an average of 201 to 230 and upward.
Class B.—Bowlers with an average of 171 to 200.
Class C.—Bowlers with an average of 140 to 170.

The highest figures as shown in the above classes shall be considered the scratch basis in each class and the teams and bowlers in said groups shall receive a handicap of 66 2-3 per cent. of the difference between their average and the scratch figure.

The secretary reserves the right to exclude any averages that he may consider advisable in general interests of the tournament.

The averages shall be based on all league games during the season up to March 10th, and at least fifteen games must have been played by the bowler in order to obtain an average. The aggregate average of those playing in more than one league will be taken.

A bowler without any league average may enter as 190 average and receive a handicap on this basis.

Bowlers must state their averages on entry blank and the name and address of their league secretary. Any bowler who knowingly submits a wrong average shall be disqualified.

All entry money shall be returned in prizes. Twenty-five per cent. of five-men teams twenty per cent. of two-men teams and fifteen per cent. of the individuals shall receive prize money.

A special prize will be awarded to the bowler rolling the highest total for all three events, in each class (without handicap).

No entry fee shall be returned after being received.

A bowling fee of 50c for three games will be charged to each individual, payable before starting to bowl.

Canadian Bowling Association rules to govern.

KREMER HOLDS CHICAGO 6-0

Cubs Only Make Three Hits Off Pittsburgh Pirates' Hurler.

REDS WIN OUT 3-2

NEW YORK, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—The Cubs were unable to connect with Kay Kremer's invincible pitching at Chicago yesterday and the Pirates took a 6 to 0 victory.

Only three hits were made off Kremer. Malone pitched eight innings for Chicago and struck out seven. Wright hit a long ball into centre field bleachers for a home run in the first inning.

A walk with the bases full, a fumble and a wild pitch in the third inning, each of which scored runners, gave the Reds a 3 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals at Cincinnati. It was a disastrous inning for Sherdel and the only one in which the Reds got out of hand. The Cardinals bunched hits in the second and sixth for two runs, but the Reds broke up a ninth inning rally with a double play when two were on base with none out.

New York at Boston, cold.
Only three games scheduled.

THE MYSTERIOUS OMAR AND CLARA BOW

Although they are here for only two days this week, the mysterious mind reading gentleman, who calls himself Omar, and Clara Bow in "Red Hair," another of the Elinor Glyn stories which has been pictured for the silver sheet, made a very entertaining duo. Last night they attracted a filled house at the Capitol.

The mysterious Omar created plenty of interest and amusement through his answers to questions written on slips of paper and retained by the owners. He gave snappy answers to questions of many sorts, that ranged from queries as to hiding places of lost articles, to more serious matters pertaining to lost sweethearts and lost jobs.

Clara Bow who made such a hit as the "It" girl, has another vehicle in "Red Hair," in which she displays prominently her magnetic powers. By the use of them, along lines laid down by Elinor Glyn, she comes through victorious after rather a hard battle. She is a manicurist who is a very energetic little gold digger, and has three fine clients in both directions in the 'palpitating Papas' who contribute towards her wardrobe and her jewel box. Then she decides to reform, when she meets and falls in love with a nice young man of means who turns out to be the nephew of the principal 'Papa' and the ward of all three. These gentlemen are properly shocked at the idea of their charge falling for the little gold digger and undertake to show him the error of his ways. But she emerges triumphant, after an exhausting session during which she removes all her clothes. The picdoesn't put it thus baldly, of course, but the effect is the same. Clara's final refuge is in a lily pond, with a lily pad for a head covering and the kindly water acting as a screen. Here she is discovered by the three worried 'Papas' and her lover, and is provided with the necessary apparel to emerge from the water. Of course it is in a burst of virtuous indignation that the little lady Bubbles McCoy does all this. She has been given her dress by one old gentleman, her lingerie by another, and her beaded bag by another. When she flies into a rage at the thought of what they may have been insinuating about her she returns all her gifts at onec, and take refuge in the ermine cloak she has rented for the evening. But the harassed gentleman who did the renting is pursued by an officer of the law, and takes the cloak, willy nilly. Hence the water-lily pond.

gifts at once, and takes refuge in duction.

AT THE REGENT.

"THE SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS."

Selection of a cast for "The Shepherd of the Hills," which Charles R. Rogers produced for First National Pictures from Harold Bell Wright's famous novel is said to have been the most difficult encountered in any recent motion picture.

"No other book that could have been adapted to the screen would have necessitated such care in the selection of the cast," Mr. Rogers declared. "Some of the old classics may have been more widely read even than this best-seller of an author of best-sellers. But their characters are obsolete types, not the clear-cut, closely delineated ones of Wright's famous Ozark novel.

"We estimate that nine of every ten persons who will see the film, have, at some time or another, read 'The Shepherd of the Hills.' Anyone who has read it, even as a child, has definite ideas of its principal characters. They become real human beings to the reader. Consequently, we must not disappoint these people, who have a right to see the story characters played by actors who fit the roles.

"For that reason, two months were spent in selecting our cast. The selection proved eminently successful, for we can truthfully say that we included only players true to the story character type, and at the same time those whose histrionic ability places them at the top of their various classes in the industry."

In the cast of "The Shepherd of the Hills," which heads the bill at the Regent Theatre, are Alec B. Francis of the "Peter Grimm" fame as The Shepherd; Molly O'Day as "Sammy," John Boles, former leading man for Gloria Swanson, as "Young Matt," Matthew Betz as "Wash Gibbs," and Romaine Fielding, Maurice Murphy, Otis Harlan, Joseph Bennett, Marion Douglas and John Westwood in other important roles.

JACK MINER AND THE BIRDS

AND SOME THINGS ABOUT NATURE

A Republication of the Book by Permission of the Author, Jack Miner of Kingsville, Ont.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Nesting Canada Geese.

In 1907, the third year I had my clipped Canadas, one pair nested, and every season since I have had one to three pairs raise young. This is the very time these old ganders especially expose their incomparable, clean, noble ways which even we human beings might well envy them.

One spring I had a painter from town out here brightening things up a little, so one day I told him to paint the cornice of the bird house, which is about seven feet high. I paid no more attention to him, but went on with my work at the tile factory, about three hundred feet away. All at once I heard a scream that was joined with language too loud to look well in print. I got out just in time to see this scared man come rolling over the brick wall, his legs and arms sticking up like odd sections in a Ferris-wheel. To see and hear him wrinkled my red face into a broader position; he came towards me with both torn shirt-sleeves fluttering in the wind and white paint dabbled on one leg of his trousers, without either hat, paint, pail or pipe. He began to reel it off. Then it all came to me in a flash that I had forgotten to tell him about the goose-nest that was concealed in the weeds near that spot. And now it was too late to give him any explanation, for really he did not know whether he was bitten or stung. While he was not hurt a particle, he was nearly frightened into fits, and he could not, or would not, believe there were only two geese there. I finally went and found his pipe, Christy hat and paint pail, but he never would go back in that enclosure, and worse still, I doubt if he has ever forgiven me as he thought I put up a job on him.

One picture would do for all the pairs of Canada geese I ever saw nesting. While the gander takes no part in building the nest nor setting, turn about, on the eggs, as some birds do, yet he is always guarding her and is never over two rods away, seeing all enemies before they do him. He will usually lie flat on the ground, his black neck and snake-like head straight out, and if any creature goes right on by, all is well; but should one note him and stop then he will suddenly jump on it from an unexpected quarter. His looks and hissing honks will almost frighten any other creature into decline; and while frightening is his chief defence, yet I know from personal experience how he can bite and hang on like a bull pup while he deals unbelievably heavy blows with the first joint of his powerful wings. The worst blow I ever got in my life was from an old gander that I caught to tag; he struck me on the jaw with the first joint of his doubled-up wings and believe me, I had the mumps for weeks.

While I have seen the goose run at a domestic fowl or so, yet she does not pretend to do much fighting. She usually leaves that strenuous exercise for him, and depends on his protection; and well she may, for he never fails her. He will even leave his family and fight for her.

A pair once nested near the tile kiln and a collie dog attacked this gander. The goose won out, but the dog bit the end of his backbone right off. I saw the blood running down his legs and in a few days I noticed he was always in the one place, lying down by his sweetheart. I went over and found he was sick and so weak he let me pick him up. I saw what was wrong, so I went and got the turpentine bottle and poured some in this decaying carity and fully a spoonful of maggots rolled out. I then brought the dear old fellow water and food, but it was fully a week before he could stand up. He finally got well, and I still have him, but he was dying at his post. His name is Tom Johnson.

I never saw the wild geese go near where one of these pairs was nesting. So one spring I took fully ten bushels of corn and scattered it around near a nest. And the thousands of geese that came here would not combine their forces and go near, after the corn, or interfere with his preserve, but would prefer flying all over the country to feed where some of thm are continually getting shot. This will explain to you how they respect each others' rights.

CHAPTER XXV.

Our Model Canada Goose.

While I am writing as plainly as I dare, yet I want you to keep an eye between the lines.

For two springs in successoin, two paris of my geese nested on the bank of the north pond, just one hundred and twenty feet apart, each gander always guarding and never going thirty feet away. An old goose I had in my flock apparently couldn't control nature and she went and built a nest on the bank right between these two pairs of geese, or about sixty feet from each nest. These ganders did not interfere with her in any way, shape, manner or form; but if an enemy approached her, both these ganders would leave home and would attack him with fury; while if you went near either of their nests, only the one would fight you; the other would stay at home. Both years every egg in their nests hatched, and the young were hearty and strong. This odd, or single, goose set for five weeks on four eggs the first year, and I let her set seven weeks on five eggs the second year. I broke every egg, and not one showed any sign of fertility. Remember, this is not almanac history; these are the facts, as I know them.

APRIL 30

the last day for

Income Tax Returns

The law states that penalties must be imposed after that date

THE Department of National Revenue urges all Dominion Income Taxpayers to file returns without delay.

The official forms may be obtained at any Post Office or by writing the Inspector of Income Tax for your district. Two copies, properly filled in, together with an accepted cheque or express or money order for the full amount of the tax, or the first installment as you desire, must be mailed to the Inspector of Income Tax, for your district, not later than April 30. Cheques must be made payable to The Receiver General of Canada.

Even though you may believe you are not liable to tax, you are advised to file a return before April 30 if your income in 1927 was more than $1,500.

For your convenience a few of the outstanding provisions of The Income Tax Law are explained in this advertisement.

Three Kinds of Forms

There are three kinds of Dominion Income Tax Forms, one of which will apply to any tax payer. The different forms are:

Form T 1 —For all individuals, other than farmers or ranchers.

Form T 1A—For farmers and ranchers.

Form T 2 —For corporations and joint stock companies.

If you so desire, the Inspector of Income Tax for your district will send you upon written request a revised copy of The Income War Tax Act, Consolidated, Chapter 97 (R.S.C. 1927).

Income from All Sources Must be Declared

The public is especially reminded to report all income from bearer bonds—whether Dominion, Provincial, Municipal or Industrial. The interest from these bonds is taxable. The 1928 legislation enlarges the powers of the department which is now enabled to trace the ownership of all bearer bonds.

Personal Exemptions

Personal exemptions should be noted carefully. They may be summarized as follows:

(a) $3,000 in the case of a married person or householder, or any other person who has dependent upon him any of the following persons:

1. A parent or grand-parent.
2. A daughter or sister.
3. A son or brother under 21 years of age; or incapable of self-support on account of mental or physical infirmity—except where the husband and wife each have a separate income in excess of $1,500, then each shall receive not $3,000 exemption, but $1,500 exemption.

(b) $1,500 in the case of unmarried persons.

(c) $500 for each child under 21 years of age who is dependent upon the tax payer for support, or if 21 years of age or over is incapable of self-support on account of mental or physical infirmity.

Send Cheque with the Return

Income tax may be paid either in a lump sum or in four installments, plus interest. An accepted cheque or express or money order for either the full amount or the amount of the first installment must accompany the official forms. Do not send cash. April 30 is the last day.

The return and the cheque are to be mailed to the Inspector of Dominion Income Tax for your district.

Location of Income Tax Inspectors

Inspectors of Dominion Income Tax are located in convenient places throughout Canada. They will be glad to assist any tax payer in the preparation of returns. Requests in writing for information will be complied with promptly. Consult the Income Tax office nearest to you. Address "Inspector of Dominion Income Tax." The offices are at:

Halifax, Nova Scotia,
Saint John, New Brunswick,
Quebec City, Quebec,
Montreal, Quebec,
Ottawa, Ontario,
Kingston, Ontario,
Belleville, Ontario,
Toronto, 2, Ontario,
Hamilton, Ontario,

Fort William, Ontario,
Winnipeg, Manitoba,
Regina, Saskatchewan,
Prince Albert, Saskatchewan,
Saskatoon, Saskatchewan,
Calgary, Alberta,
Edmonton, Alberta,
Vancouver, B.C.
Dawson, Y.T.

Cheques are to be made payable to "The Receiver General of Canada."
Cheques must be marked "accepted" by the bank on which drawn.

FILE YOUR RETURN ON OR BEFORE APRIL 30.

If you delay making Income Tax returns the penalties provided by the Act must be imposed.

XXXII—Crucifixion

HEROD, the king, had already got rid of John the Baptist by beheading him. That ruthless murder cast a shadow over the life of Jesus, who read in it the prophecy of His own defeat and death. His hopes that the nation might have a spiritual rebirth began to fade. His followers deserted, first a few at a time and then in crowds, until hardly more than his original disciples were left.

His latter utterances were often very stern, denouncing the priestly rulers as hypocrites, whited sepulchers and plunderers of the poor. On one of the great feast days, when the city was crowded with pilgrims, He strode into the outer court of the Temple and overthrew the tables of the money changers, released the animals which were there for sacrifice, and cleared the whole court, crying:

"It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves."

The high priest, who shared in the profits of the Temple trading, determined that the time had come to put an end to this rebellious young man. Taking Him at night, through the treachery of one of His disciples, they hurried Him through the semblance of a trial in their own courts and brought Him to the Roman governor, Pilate, for permission to put Him to death.

This the governor granted reluctantly, and Jesus was crucified, in about the thirty-third year of His age, on a cross between two thieves.

New Religion Seemed Dead

Demoralized by the destruction of their high hopes, His disciples fled into Galilee, hiding themselves in their native villages and returning to their former occupations. The new religion seemed dead. Yet an amazing thing happened. Within a few weeks the disciples were back in Jerusalem, firmly united and fired by a new faith, beginning the crusade which was to carry the name of their Master to the farthest corners of the world.

The explanation given by them and recorded in the Gospels is that on the third day after His crucifixion, Jesus arose from the dead, appearing to them on several occasions and instructing them to extend His teaching to all nations.

Contemporary secular records contain no reference to the life of Jesus, His teachings, His crucifixion, or His resurrection. The Gospels, however, have every evidence of historical truth.

There can be no reasonable doubt that such a man lived and died, and that those who were closest to Him and in the best position to know were convinced that He rose from the dead—so firmly convinced that they were transformed from beaten, hopeless men into conquering prophets who braved every peril and endured every sort of persecution rather than surrender their faith.

H. G. Wells, in his Outline of History, says:

"Yet be it noted that while there was much in the real teachings of Jesus that a rich man or a priest or a trader or an imperial official or any ordinary respectable citizen could not accept without the most revolutionary changes in his way of living, yet there was nothing that a follower of the actual teaching of Gautama Sakya might not receive very readily, nothing to prevent a primitive Buddhist from being also a Nazarene, and nothing to prevent a personal disciple of Jesus from accepting all the recorded teachings of Buddha.

"Again consider the tone of this extract from the writings of a Chinaman, Mo Ti, who lived somewhere in the fourth century B. C., when the doctrines of Confucius and Lao Tse prevailed in China, before the advent of Buddhism to that country, and note how 'Nazarene' it is.

"The mutual attacks of state on state; the mutual usurpations of family on family; the mutual robberies of man on man; the want of kindness on the part of the sovereign and of loyalty on the part of the minister; the want of tenderness and filial duty between father and son—these, and such as these, are the things injurious to the empire. All this has arisen from want of mutual love. If but that one virtue could be made universal, the princes loving one another would have no battle-fields; the chiefs of families would attempt no usurpations; men would commit no robberies; rulers and ministers would be gracious and loyal; fathers and sons would be kind and filial; brothers would be harmonious and easily reconciled. Men in general loving one another, the strong would not make prey of the weak; the many would not plunder the few, the rich would not insult the noble would not be insolent to the mean; and the deceitful would not impose upon the simple.

Like Jesus

"This is extraordinarily like the teaching of Jesus of Nazareth cast into political terms," Mr. Wells continues. "The thoughts of Mo Ti came close to the Kingdom of Heaven. This essential identity is the most important historical aspect of these great world religions. They were in their beginnings quite unlike the priest, altar and temple cults, those cults for the worship of definite and finite gods that played so great and so essential a part in the earlier stages of man's spiritual development between 1500 B. C. and 600 B. C. These new world religions, from 600 B. C. onward, were essentially religions of the heart and of the universal sky . . . and it is not to one overcoming the other or to any new variant replacing them that we must look, but to the white truth in each being burnt free from its dross, and becoming manifestly the same truth—namely, that the hearts of men, and therewith all the lives and institutions of men, must be subdued to one common will, ruling them all."

Teeth so very white YET...

they are only as Healthy as the Gums

SEEMINGLY safe with teeth so white, 4 out of 5 after forty, and thousands younger, find themselves victims of the disease of neglect—Pyorrhea.

This grim foe of health ignores the teeth and attacks the gums.

So take this precaution: See your dentist every six months and use the dentifrice that does far more than keep teeth clean.

Every morning and every night, brush your teeth with Forhan's for the Gums.

As a dentifrice alone, you would prefer it. Without the use of harsh abrasives it restores teeth to natural whiteness and protects them against acids which cause decay.

And in addition, if used regularly and in time, it helps gums to resist Pyorrhea by keeping them sound and healthy.

Get a tube of Forhan's. Use this dentifrice morning and night. Teach your children this good habit which will protect their health in years to come. Also massage your gums daily with Forhan's, following directions in booklet that comes with tube. Two sizes—35c and 60c.

E. P. B. LEAGUE OPENS MAY 19

Same Four Teams Will Battle in Intermedieate Circuit This Year.

W. KAY PRESIDENT.

The East Peterborough Baseball League held a successful annual meeting last night when officers of last year were re-elected and dates were set for the opening games. The League planned to make an early start this season, and Raybestos and Crescents will open the race on Saturday afternoon, May 19th. Cognawagas and Crescents were scheduled to meet on May 24th, with permission to play on the following Friday evening if the holiday date is not satisfactory. On Wednesday, May 30th Bethany comes here to play Raybestos.

The four clubs will play a double series of home-and-home games, the teams finishing first and second to play the usual series to decide the championship.

All local games will be played at Exhibition Park, where the Executive has planned some improvements in the interest of the game and the fans.

All four clubs were represented at the meeting last night, Dr. J. J. Hamilton heading a delegation of four from the Bethany club. The officers are: President, William Kay, vice-presidents, W. Hanna, F. Cripps, and A. Brioux, secretary, C. E. Curtis.

An effort will be made to re-organize the county series with a team from the city included.

The World's Simplest Engine

JUST two metal sleeves in each cylinder moving silently up and down, one within the other, in a protective film of oil... that is the principle of the patented Willys-Knight sleeve-valve motor . . . the simplest and most efficient power-plant built to-day.

SEE the new Willys-Knight Standard Six. You will at once admire its low, graceful lines . . . its coachwork . . . its superior finish, in colors that are rich, harmoniously blended, lastingly attractive.

Ride in the new Standard Six. Relax amid the comfort of its luxurious upholstery. Enjoy the easy riding qualities of this superb car. Note the interior, spacious and tastefully appointed, embodying many exquisite refinements of detail.

Then consider the advantages of the Knight sleeve-valve motor . . . patented . . . exclusive . . . the only type of engine that constantly grows smoother and quieter with use. No valve grinding—no carbon troubles—no tappets or rocker-arms to grow noisy. And too, the Willys-Knight gives you all the advantages of higher compression—greater power—greater speed—flashier activity.

Arrange for a demonstration today. Ownership of a Willys-Knight gives you performance possible only with the simplest and most efficient power plant ever designed.

Willys-Knight Standard Six Prices from $1395 to $1525, Special Six prices from $1575 to $1845, Great Six prices from $2365 to $3695, f.o.b. Factory, Toronto.

COMPANY OFFICER TELLS ABOUT ENTRY

to be Lieut. Hendley investigating to see if the enemy still remained. Four German dead were found. By 4.30 the platoon reported that it had reached the centre of the city. At dawn the Company Headquarters were changed to the City Hall, where he met the Battalion Commander, Col. Ewing.

Told Men At Once.

"I remained with Col. Ewing," said Capt. Grafftey, "with a view to receiving further orders, and at 7.45 the armistice message was received. I proceeded to notify the men, which was done by 8 a.m. and our company show was over.

Q.—What were your casualties?

A.—Two men killed and 10 wounded.

Q.—Where?

A.—On the afternoon of the 10th the men were killed at a small shrine about 2.30 and no one was wounded after 2.30 on the tenth.

In cross-examination by Mr. Regan witness said D Company reached Mons at 2.30 a.m. on November 11. As far as he knew there was no fighting in the city after midnight of the 10th and 11th

Q.—Who were the two men killed?

A.—Lance-Corp. Jones and Pte. Mills.

Up until 5 p.m. on the 10th, he said, his company met considerable heavy machine gun resistance and had none from then on. Reading from the records of the battalion, Mr. Regan wanted to know why he did not follow the course laid down instead of turning to the left.

A.—A machine gun post was in the way.

Q.—Did you see it?

A.—Yes, it was not operating but it was manned.

Q.—Why didn't you march on it?

Witness smiled, and said: "I did not want to make a fool of my men and drive them blindly against sure death."

Q.—How were your men killed?

A.—They were killed by machine gun fire while crossing the open country.

Q.—Were they trying to take the post?

A.—No.

Q.—What did Ewing do when he got the armistice message?

A.—Ordered me to proceed and notify the men of the company of the message.

Q.—Did Col. Ewing tell you to not carry on any offensive operations?

A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Would you not have remembered in view of the fact that war had only a few hours to go?

A.—In view of the fact that other troops passed through our lines.

Mr. Regan—"That does not matter."

Witness—"My orders to my men were to stop at Mons, and I received nothing different from my commanding officer."

Mr. Tilley asked witness what C Company did between 4 and 6 in the morning."

"It proceeded in front of my company," was the reply.

Corp. Joseph Freeman.

Corporal Joseph Freeman of the transport of the 42nd Battalion said he was in Jemappes on the night of the ninth. The Germans shelled the town between 9.30 and 12.00. "About 9.30 we were standing in a barnyard watching a man shoe a horse. An airplane flew over, dropped a sign, and before we knew it a shell landed in our midst, killing one outright. Three died later and four others were wounded," he said. He had his foot blown off.

R. S. M. H. Page.

H. Page, former Regimental Sergeant-Major of the 42nd Battalion, was then called and told of the town of Jemappes being shelled one morning, killing Pte. Arthur Stanley and Alexander Burnside; four others died of wounds and four more were wounded.

That evening he took the details who were left towards Mons. While on the way during the early morning of November 11 they were shelled. In a yard he saw a dead member of the Princess Pats. Later in the morning he went to battalion headquarters in the centre of the city.

Q.—When did you hear of the armistice?

A.—Between 7 and 8 at battalion headquarters.

Before any witnesses were called this afternoon, Frank Regan complained to His Lordship that the order in the court was very trying and requested His Lordship to caution those present. The Bench considered the proceedings very orderly and asked Mr. Tilley to call his first witness.

Led Men Into City.

Lt. G. Hutchinson, Montreal, barrister, called by Mr. Tilley, stated that he was an officer in 42nd batt. in 1913 at the time of the advance on Mons. Using the large map mounted on the right hand side of the Bench Mr. Hutchinson traced the movements of his regiment at detachment during the night of Nov. 10-11th. After detailing the orders witness told of crossing the wrecked bridge using plansk were necessary, and proceeding along the boulevard, past the Grand Place. There was not a shot fired. They began to sense the certainty that the Germans had gone. The men of the detachment ran their rifles along the grilled windows, awakening the civilians, who came out and surrounded them. One old lady supplied hot coffee to the entire detachment.

Later in the morning Hutchinson recognized the 5th Lancers advancing in the early dawn. The Germans in their retreat demolished the bridge using planks were necessary. The advancing troops had to take to the fields. There was no definite planned attack on Mons, the witness stated. The troops followed the same methods as they had for some weeks past. The Canadians advanced during the day over the ground vacated by the Germans the previous night. In contact, in the experience of the witness, came during daylight. There were no casualties in his company on the 11th. There were, he said, two men killed in the transport section on the afternoon of the 10th. These were two of the men buried in Mons. Hutchinson saw the bodies in the town hall of Mons. Questioned by Mr. Regan, witness stated he was certain there was silence on their immediate front. The two men of the transport section were not killed in the same place as the two men of D Company. There was no attack on Mons.

After listening to an extract read by Mr. Regan referring to the barrage and machine gun fire, the witness agreed with it only in part. There were only a few shells dropping in front of them. He did not know where. He was not aware that the regiment had any artillery support.

Mr. Regan—"You are a barrister aren't you?"

Witness—"Yes, I am."

Mr. Regan—"I thought you would understand the phrasing of my sentence."

Asked regarding the width of the canal which was between his platoon and the machine guns, witness said it might be fifty feet. The platoon did no fighting to enter Mons. It had done no fighting for some time. The regiment had been under some German shell fire which was not returned. The men took cover in houses. The German machine guns were carried back by the retreating enemy. Had the Canadians gone out into the streets they would probably have suffered casualties.

Hutchinson said he saw the gold book.

Mr. Regan—"You didn't sign, did you?"

Witness — "I could have if I had wanted to. Anybody could." The reply caused a ripple of laughter around the court. Asked about the attack or advance on Valenciennes witness said he knew nothing of it since he was on the left flank of the town.

Mr. Regan reprimanded the witness for the use of the word dawn, not considered a military term. Hutchinson said that he used it for that reason in the court. He would not use it in a military report. During his evidence Hutchinson had referred to the Don Company. This in ordinary civilian terms would be D Company.

Regarding the two dead which a defense witness stated he had seen on the road to Mons, Hutchinson knew nothing of them. The defense witness had identified the bodies as those of members of the R.C.R..

"Thank you very much," Mr. Regan said, as he sat down and Mr. Tilley rose to examine the witness. Mr. Regan objected, but His Lordship ruled that counsel might examine in view of the matter introduced. The question was with regard to the extent of the front for which witness could speak. He replied it would be a matter of only a few hundred yards.

W.O.W. MEETING.

Fred Sutcliffe Has Been Appointed Deputy Consul For District.

Sherwood Forest Camp, No. 50, met in their hall last night, and a good meeting was held. Consul Commander A. Murray presided and was ably supported by Sovs. E. Mallard, J. Bath, W. T. Clifford, George Lee, R. Murray, M. Foster, and the secretary E. Tait.

New applications and other regular business was transacted quickly and under social and entertainment, C. C. Murray introduced an old member of the local camp in the person of Fred Sutcliffe, who has been appointed Deputy Consul for the head camp, with headquarters in Peterborough and district.

Mr. Sutcliffe was pleased to see the faces of those who were active members when he handled the local camp some few years ago. Sherwood Forest Camp has been rather neglected since the late Deputy Consul A. A. Haskill was unexpectedly taken away by a fatal accident about a year ago. Great tribute was paid to the late deputy for the good work he had done for Peterborough Camp for so many long years. A deputy consul having been appointed again for Peterborough, everything looked bright and new life in the form of new members coming in, should provide a real boost. After the meeting, the members had a social time and a few members enjoyed a good game of euchre.

OBITUARY

PATRICK HOBBINS.

The death occurred in St. Joseph's Hospital this morning, after a lingering illness, of Patrick Hobbins. He had lived practically all his life in Peterborough.

He is survived by his wife, eight children, Eileen, John, Dennis, Daniel, Michael, Maurice, Leo and Gerald, all at home.

The funeral will take place at 8.45, leaving the residence, 288 Romaine street, and proceeding to the Sacred Heart church and St. Peter's cemetery.

Canadian Forest Week is an effort to make the people of Canada think, and no work that the Honorable Charles Stewart sponsors will be more fraught with results if it accomplishes its purpose, and the Canadian people realize the need for care in preventing fires in the forests.

ENGLISHMEN OF CITY OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY OF MANY EVENTS OF GREAT HISTORIC IMPORT

St. George's Day Also Shakespeare Anniversary, St. Julien Day and Zeebrugge Day.

BANQUET IS HELD

Sons of England Arrange for Proper Celebration—Speakers Tell of Her Greatness.

English men and women of Peterborough gathered last night at the Paragon Hall for the annual St. George's Day banquet of Lansdowne Lodge of the Sons of England, and heard the stories of their race and country extolled in speech and in song. The speakers were the Rev. Canon Baynes-Reed of Toronto, the Rev. R. C. Blagrave of St. John's, Peterborough, and W. H. Bradburn M. P. P.

The gathering was featured by the attendance of several members of the order from Lindsay, who braved the muddy roads of spring to be present at the celebration.

A typical English dinner with roast beef and plum pudding, served by Mine Host Charles Coleman, received full justice from those present. Follis' orchestra enlivened the dinner hour.

Chairman J. J. Turner welcomed all those present, particularly the ladies, and the visitors from out of town. He called for a vote of the ladies on whether the men might smoke, putting it in such a way that the privilege was refused.

The first number of the program was a solo by Mrs. Kitney, who was forced to respond to an encore.

Mr. Turner introduced the Rev. Canon Baynes-Reed, the principal speaker, telling the audience that the reverend speaker had been for some time connected with Peterborough churches in Dr. Symonds' time. He is also a grand lodge officer of the Sons of England.

Canon Baynes-Reed spoke first of his connection with Peterborough, when Jack Turner had been one of his warmest friends. He expressed his pleasure at having the ladies present, as it made more of a family gathering.

The speaker asked his hearers to carry themselves back to the day before, April 23rd. The reverend genfore, April 23rd. The speaker said that they were gathered to celebrate, in common with Englishmen and their better halves all over the world, St. George's Day. St.George, said the speaker, was a very real person, who was martyred in the year 303. Like many other famous characters, however, legends and myths have grown up about him. He recounted the story of St. George and the dragon.

This was a legend, but it is a great thing to have a slogan and the great slogan of the English for ages has been: "St. George for Merry England." That was the rallying cry which spurred on the English crusades. The crusades did not succeed but they were great levellers, uniting all classes.

St. George appealed to the English because he was a real man who saw his duty, and did it, who defended the weak and had the characteristics of that appeal to Englishmen and which Englishmen have in great measure.

Shakespeare Anniversary.

This day is also great for other events. William Shakespeare, a great Englishman, who wrote in an inspired manner, died April 23, 1616. The English of that day was at its purest and most beautiful. That was the age when the English Bible and and Prayer Book were written, and there has been no better English written since. He was an Englishman, too, the speaker stressed, and mentioned that the S.O.E. Lodge in Stratford, Ont., is starting a drive for a monument to him in Canada.

St. Julien Day.

April 23, 1915, was another great day. The Canadians fought the great Second Battle of Ypres that day. The speaker had preached that Sunday to the soldiers at Toronto and predicted to them that the Canadians would bear themselves in keeping with the blood of Old England, and the news that came showed that they had upheld all the traditions of the Motherland and had saved the situation.

Three years later, April 23, 1918, the British navy showed that its men have not deteriorated when they sailed into the harbor of Zeebrugge and and blocked the U-boats in that harbor, doing what had seemed to be impossible.

Because of all these facts, April 23 is a day of which Englishmen may well be proud.

"We are linked up with the past and have the future to look after," said the speaker, who quoted a great divine who said that the history of a nation depended on past traditions, present aspirations and future possibilities. Canada has all these and has a great part to play in the future of the world. The Sons of England have a great part to play in the future of Canada. There are organizations working for the separation of Canada from the Empire, some of which are working for the annexation of Canada to the United States, he declared.

"As Sons of England, representatives of England as she was in the

New Members For Chamber of Deputies

PARIS, April 25 (Canadian Press Cable).—There will be 51 new faces in the Chamber of Deputies as a result of the first ballot in the national elections, and if the same proportion holds in the returns next Sunday the number of new deputies will be increased to 200.

This possible result has inspired leading Unionists with the hope that the next Chamber will be without strict group affiliations and prejudices and will bring to bear on national problems the toleration of youth and a desire to hear what the other man has to say. The old parliament was dominated by fear of the Radical-Socialist and Communist cartel. The future Chamber will have only the will of the people before it. This new broom is expected to sweep clean.

On the other hand the returns in the recovered provinces of Alsace-Lorraine are disquieting. Neither autonomists nor Communists have headed the polls and that fact presents a serious situation for the government.

FLOYD BENNETT DIES IN QUEBEC OF PNEUMONIA

Succumbs To Illness Contracted in Flight to Succor Bremen's Crew.

FAMOUS AVIATOR.

First Came To Prominence When Chosen By Byrd For Flight Over Pole.

QUEBEC, April 25. — (Canadian Press.)— Floyd Bennett, one of the world's best known aviators, died in hospital here to-day, following a severe attack of pneumonia.

Bennett, who in conjunction with Bernt Balchen, was one of the first to try to take tangible aid to the stranded Irish and German fliers at Greenely Island, contracted his illness as a direct result of his attempt to help his stranded fellow airmen.

Bennett and Balchen flew from Detroit to Lake St. Agnes last Friday in a big tri-motored plane, with spare parts for the Bremen. They were to leave for Greenely Island on Saturday, but Bennett developed a high fever. On Sunday he was rushed by special plane to Quebec, where he was taken to hospital.

Bennett was born in Warrenburg, N.Y., in 1890. He was practically unknown until Commander Richard Byrd "discovered" him as an aviation mechanic aboard a man of war.

"But once he had his chance" Byrd writes in his recently published book, "Skyward," he showed that he was a good pilot and one of the finest practical men in the navy for handling an airplane's temperamental mechanisms, and above all he was a real man, fearless and true, one in a million."

Together, Byrd and Bennett endured the hardships of Greenland, a year later, when they flew over the North Pole They were to try the Atlantic crossing on April 16 last year, but their plane crashed in its initial test flight and Bennett was seriously injured.

Bennett had been suffering from a heavy cold prior to his take-off from Detroit and had undertaken the flight against the advice of physicians.

His wife and Commander Byrd both of whom were rushed from New York when informed of his serious condition, were at the bedside when he died. Mrs. Bennett herself was ill when she arrived here and was occupying a cot in the hospital suffering from tonsilitis.

Heroic efforts were made to save Bennett's life, both by local doctors and medical authorities from New York. As late as yesterday a call was put in to New York for special pneumonia serum, which was rushed here by Col. Charles Lindbergh, who flew from New York to Quebec in four hours. During the night, however, it was decided that the serum would not prove of any use to the dying pilot, so it was not administered.

Lindbergh Goes Back.

QUEBEC, April 25. — (Canadian Presss.)—Col. Lindbergh hopped off for New York at eleven twenty. He was ignorant of Floyd Bennett's death in hospital here, as word did not reach him at the remote Battlefield Park, which he used as his airfield. He flew over the city before heading for New York, his plane crossing directly over the hospital where the dead Bennett lay.

EXAMINER CORRESPONDENTS TALK OVER NEWS GATHERING

Representatives From Entire Area Served Gather For Annual Conference.

PRIVILEGE STRESSED.

H. B. Cowan Impresses Value of Newspaper Work in Helpful Address at Luncheon.

"You have a great privilege in being engaged in this work. If you know what news is, and can build up friends all through the community (and just here let me say that a little bit of commendation goes a long way in making even the coldest and hardest people unbend), if you can be very careful in seeing that the news is accurate, and if you get it over fast, then you can go ahead, and make The Examiner excellent as it is, of even greater service.

"I congratulate you in being identified with a paper that is building up a wonderful reputation for efficiency in its work and for the way it is covering the field it occupies."

Such were the concluding sentences of an address entitled "Reporters never Sleep," given by H. B. Cowan, managing director of The Rural Publishing Company, at the luncheon which occupied the midday hours of the Second Staff Conference of the Editorial Worker of The Daily Evening Examiner, held at the Downyflake to-day and attended by representatives of the paper from the surrounding district.

R. M. Glover welcomed the guests in a few appropriate words, and after a very attractive luncheon served in the pleasant upper rooms of the Downyflake, with red, white and blue streamers over the tables, which were arranged with cut flowers in vases and with white clad waitresses anticipating every need, the toast to "The King" was proposed by the charman, John R. Heron, managing editor of The Examiner. The program which followed was of a bright snappy type, that was carried out with despatch, and sustained the note of interest to the end of a brief session. The highlight was the extremely fine addres delivered by Mr. Cowan, which emphasized the desirable characteristics and qualities to be cultivated by the newspaper writer, and was given by an expert in the work, Mr. Cowan being now actively engaged in publishing, and having a wide experience in newspaper work in the past, as reporter for the Montreal Star and the Ottawa Journal.

The introduction of the local staff was made by Mr. Heron, whose pithy sentences brought to the attention of the guests in turn the various members of the staff present: R. M. Glover, managing director of The Examiner, F. D. Craig, editor Walter Barringer, news room foreman, R. D. Taylor secretary treasurer, Ralph Holyman, circulation manager, Miss Cathleen McCarthy society editor, Joseph Beauclerc, city editor, Kenneth McDonald, night editor, Edward Humpage, accountant, Miss Kathryn Rowland, stenographer, Miss Gwen Donley, advertising records and accompanist for the musical program, Miss Isabel Scott, stenographer and W. J. Ellis of the reporting staff. Another mem ber of the staff, Wilson Craw, is absent in Cobourg

A recitation entitled "Carl the Martyr," was given with fine dramatic effect by J. John, a vocal solo, "Flight of Ages," was rendered in beautiful tenor voice by E. Humpage, and W. J. Ellis played in superb style the lovely violin number, "Liebesfreud." Accompaniments were played byMiss Gwen Donley with her usual proficient ease.

Two-minute departmental talks were given by Walter Barringer, news room foreman, speaking on the difficulties of composition work when news copy is poorly written, and by Ralph Holyman, circulation manager, who spoke of the increase of five hundred copies over last year's circulation total, and of the present objective of The Examiner as being 10,000 daily copies, 9,400 of which have already been reached.

Roy Taylor, secretary-treasurer, spoke of the necessity of linking up all departments of the establishment, in an effort to make "The Examiner one of the best papers of its size in the province," and Joseph Beauclerc, city editor, gave the correspondents some useful advice regarding the sending in of copy.

An appreciation of the assistance of all who had helped in any way to make the luncheon successful was voiced by the editor, F. D. Craig, in a short, characteristically-worded, humorous speech.

"Reporters Never Sleep" was the title of Mr. Cowan's illuminating address, which, in graphic, concise style and fluent language, outlined succinctly for those listening the various elements necessary to success in their work.

Mr. Cowan referred to the many opportunities which come to the newspaper writer and to the manner in which these opportunities may be utilized. Drawnig examples from his own active newspaper work in the past and from observation gleaned in carrying on a similar type of work in a Governmental capacity in Toronto some years ago, he recommended to his hearers the faculty of learning from their own mistakes, giving an instance of this from his own experience in youthful days.

Laying emphasis on the development of personality, he spoke of the type of newspaper reporter who

Trainman Killed In Montreal Yards

MONTREAL, Que., April 25.—(Canadian Press.) — Albani Gagne, 40, Canadian National trainman, was instantly killed yesterday morning when a shunting locomotive backed into a string of freight cars which Gagne was inspecting. A truck severed his right arm and right leg and crushed his skull. It was declared that Gagne and a fellow workman had neglected to place the customary signal at the end of the line of cars and therefore the engineer had no knowledge that the men were still inspecting the cars.

Cream of World's Air men Are Scattered Over Various Parts of Quebec Province

(By The Canadian Press)

The close ties which knit the brotherhood of the air—airmen who have become famous through daring deeds, has drawn to various points in Quebec Province, a famous company of men.

At Greenely Island are the crew of the Bremen, Junkers plane which flew the Atlantic from East to West, and whose arrival has been the direct reason for the presence of the others. Baron von Huenefeld, German war veteran and backer of the Bremen flight; Major Fitzmaurice, commandant of the Irish Free State Air Force, and Captain Herman Koehl, German war pilot, compose the Bremen crew. With them, aiding them to repair their plane and continue their flight are Bernt Balchen, who accompanied Commander Richard Byrd in his flight Westward across the Atlantic to France; Dr. Louis Cuisinier, French pilot who won the Croix de Guerre for bravery during the war, and newspapermen and mechanics.

At Quebec, Floyd Bennett, famous for his Arctic flight across the Pole with Commander Byrd, lies dangerously ill with pneumonia contracted on a trip from Detroit to the aid of the Bremen. Also at Quebec, drawn by Bennett's illness, are Commander Richard Byrd, hero of Polar and Atlantic flight, and Colonel Charles Lindbergh, who made the first eastward crossing of the Atlantic from New York to Paris.

DEFENCE COUNSEL OBJECTS TO ACCOUNTS OF LIBEL SUIT

Justice Rose Refuses To Comment On Reports Submitted To Him.

OFFICERS TESTIFY.

Men Who Led Soldiers Into Mons Tell About Events at End of War.

(By Staff Reporters.)

COBOURG, April 25 (Special to The Examiner).—Two Toronto newspapers, The Globe and Star, came under F. Regan's fire at the opening of the Court in the Currie-Wilson-Preston $50,000 libel action this morning.

Mr. Regan, with a Star of April 24 in his hand, protested to His Lordship about an article in it which referred to some of the questions in the examination for discovery that were ruled out.

Mr. Regan thought it better not to read the article, but handed it to His Lordship. The article, from all appearances to those who could see, was on the editorial page of last night's Star, and was entitled "The Place of Dugouts in the War."

When His Lordship had read the article, Mr. Regan then brought today's Globe on exhibit and criticized the manner in which the libel suit had been reported. His Lordship gave the article a brief perusal, and Mr. Regan threatened to take action against the papers. The Court pointed out the proper course, but it seemed that Mr. Regan would be satisfied if His Lordship would express his opinion on the article. This the Court refused to do, as Mr. Regan had not as yet started proceedings against these papers.

The story of Mons was told this morning by officers and men of the Princess Pats and the Royal Canadian Rifles in behalf of their former corps commander, Sir Arthur Currie. None of them knew of the approaching Armistice ,and all had been ordered to take as their objective the ground east of Mons. They were simply doing what they were told, and it happened that Mons lay between them and the high ground.

George Little, commander of the Princess Pats, was subjected to a most gruelling cross-examination on the action of his troops and why he did not go around Mon instead of through the city to reach his objective.

The Princess Pats leader replied that he was facing the enemy before Mons and would not retreat.

All witnesses were rigidly cross-examined on what army corps and brigade reports have to say about the taking of Mons, and they all replied by telling defence counsel how it affected their own particular section.

Newspaper Articles Discussed

Before the first witness was called this morning, Frank Regan complained to His Lordship of certain articles in the press relating to questions which the bench had ruled out when asked by him. The article referred to was in The Toronto Star's issue of April 24th, a copy of the paper was submitted to His Lordship.

"I don't consider that the article is in excess of the liberty generally acceded the press," said His Lordship. "I don't think the article is liable to influence the members of the jury. Unless the article is placed before me initiating an action, I would not care to take any action." Regarding the questions themselves, their connection to court proceedings had been disallowed by His Lordship, who had not been present at the examination for discovery.

W. N. Tilley rose to object to such an interruption to the regular procedure of the case. "When we find so many irrelevant things discussed at the trial, is it any wonder irrelevant things appear in the newspaper?" said Mr. Tilley.

Mr. Regan also drew the attention of His Lordship to an article and comment appearing in this morning's Globe. This also was presented to the bench for inspection. After allowing His Lordship time to read the part of the article to which he objected, Mr. Regan suggested that it was possibly considered to be in the same category. With this His Lordship agreed, and Mr. Regan said he would not move for a court action at once.

Mr. Tilley proceeded to have his first witness called.

Captain Albert J. Kelly, M.C, professor of surveying, Faculty of Science, McGill University, was the first witness called by Mr. Tilley this morning. Mr. Kelly was in the witness box yesterday when he produced a large map of Mons and vicinity. During the night, at the request of Mr. Regan, he maked the high land on the map. It was the high land east of Mons that the Canadian 42nd Battalion had been ordered to capture. Witness also pointed out the main roads that pass from Mons eastward.

A Canadian Corps operation order of the ninth, ordering the battalion commanders to take ground east, southeast, and northeast of Mons were referred to, and witness showed the line to the court and jury.

Dunham House Headquarters

Mr. Regan, in starting his cross-examination, wanted to know of the witness if he had been talking the case over with the other witnesses.

"Well, when a lot of us get together who have not met for ten years we naturally talk over past war days ,and our talks have not been always confined to Mons," was the reply.

Mr. Regan: "In other words, the headquarters have been moved to the Dunham House."

"I am not staying at the Dunham House and only went there once when I first came into town, but I found they had no room," said the witness."

Captain Albert Cyril White, commander of D Company of the Princess Pats, was then called and Mr. Parmenter conducted the examination for the plaintiff.

On the evening of the ninth he and his company arrived at Jemappes, where he was ordered to proceed towards Mons. The bridge over the river had been blown up by the Germans, and they encountered enemy fire first south of the canal running due west from Mon. On fire by leading platoon the Germans retired. The scouts moving down the

Bremen Crew Unable To Hop Off In Plane

STE. AGNES AIRPORT, Que., April 25 (Canadian Press).—Messages from Greenely Island from the marooned Atlantic fliers today stated that they had decided not to attempt to fly the monoplane Bremen to Murray Bay on account of the poor take-off and landing conditions. The ice, it was stated was not secure enough.

The messages announced that the fliers will leave the island on the Detroit relief plane. At eleven o'clock, the time the messages were received here, the fliers had not hopped off.

Damage Done To Shipping By Great Wave—Watering Place Destroyed.

ENGLISH GIVE AID.

ATHENS, April 25. — (Canadian Press.) — Recurring earthquakes in Greece to-day brought fresh damage on the devastated Isthmus of Corinth. A shock at four a.m. practically destroyed the watering resort of Kalamki at the eastern entrance to the Corinth canal. A strange phenomenon was observed at Piraeus, where the sea rose to a great height and then suddenly receded. Slight damage was caused to shipping. A British squadron arrived at Corinth and commenced to distribute food and blankets.

JUNKERS PLANE BREMEN READY FOR TAKE-OFF

Fliers Await Favorable Weather Before Making Hop-Off From Greenely Island.

PHOTOGRAPHERS RETURN.

Snow Storm Raging Over 100 Mile Radius From Lake St. Agnes.

LAKE STE. AGNES, Quebec, April 25. — The German Junkers plane at Greenely Island has been repaired, and its crew and that of the Detroit relief plane are waiting for more favorable weather reports before making the hop off from the ice along the little island to Lake Ste. Agnes, according to word brought back yesterday by William Winston and Harry Cuthbertson, who made a non stop flight from Greenely Island to Lake St. Agnes in a Fairchild plane bearing pictures for the Paramount Company. The trip might be made to-day or delayed until Thursday, they reported.

This was a day of uncertainty at the lake. No word was received here that the Bremen had or had not started on her 750 mile flight. At 1.20 p.m. the Fairchilds plane arrived with word that the Breemn was still there when they hopped off on their return journey at 6 a.m. Even then there was a possibility that the Bremen and the Detroit relief plane were following and a close watch was maintained.

Severe Storm over St. Agnes.

While the weather was reported by Winston and Cuthbertson, to be fine at the Island and for quite a distance down the north shore of the St. Lawrence River, the district within a radius of 100 miles from Lake Ste. Agnes was in the grip of a snowstorm of midwinter intensity. Over six inches of snow fell at the lake yesterday.

At Greenely Island on Monday, following the arrival of the relief plane the whole company assembled at Greenely Island and sat down to a chicken dinner, washed down with Chianti wine, carried to Greenely on the relief plane.

Those assembled included Baron Von Huenefeld, Captain Herman Koehl and Major James Fitzmaurice, crew of the Bremen, who were reunited on Fitzmaurice's return from Murray Bay; Dr. Cuisinier, French pilot, Cuisinier's mechanic, H. Koeppen, the Junker's mechanic, Bernt Balchen who piloted the relief plane to Greenely, Charles Murphy a New York newspaper man, and others of the passengers and crew of the relief plane.

Following the meal work was commenced on the Bremen. "Koeppen put on new axles and wheels and then the plane was towed across the island and shoved down the hill on the river ice. This was cleverly done thanks considerably to Dr. Cuisinier's experience in handling planes under winter conditions," Cuthbertson said.

Koeppen, Cuthbertson said, then straightened out the propeller, which was bent during the Bremen's forced landing on Friday April 13. It was decided to use the old propeller rather than the new one brought over by the Detroit plane, it being more suitable. This work altogether took about two hours.

Will Test Engine.

At 3 a.m. yesterday morning work was resumed, the heating up of the engine with a gasoline heater being undertaken Then hot water and oil were put in the women and all was made ready for the actual testing. This testing had not been started when Fairchild's plane left. The aviators here, however, were confident that the engine of the Bremen was all right.

The future movements of the fliers at Greenely depended, Winston said, upon the weather reports. He thought that if the situation cleared up the flight would be made to-day. He himself had had a hard flight for the last 100 miles to-day. He followed the river closely, at times not being 25 feet above it, owing to the poor visibility. The arrival of the Winston plane was quite unheralded. It was heard first over Pointe Au Pic and later over Murray Bay just a few minutes before its landing on the lake. Despite the storm, Winston "sat down" nicely on the ice.

Prepare Welcome At Quebec City

MURRAY BAY, Que., April 25 (Canadian Press).—The first big welcome to the crew of the Bremen may take place at Quebec City, according to an announcement made here last night by Miss Herta Junkers. Miss Junkers said that owing to the sickness of Bennett at Quebec City, it had been tentatively arranged that the crew of the Bremen and of the Ford relief plane would be rushed to Quebec City immediately after landing here to Bennett if his condition permitted.

Miss Junkers returned here yesterday after visiting Quebec to ascertain the condition of Bennett.

RACING DRIVER KILLED IN CRASH

Frank Lockhart Dies Few Minutes After Car Hits Soft Spot.

GOING 200 MILES AN HOUR.

DAYTONA BEACH, April 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Frank Lockhart, noted automobile racer, was killed almost instantly when he lost control of his machine while making a run on the beach here to-day. He was making more than two hundred miles an hour when the crash came.

Lockhart had made three fast trips in his Stutz Blackhawk special and was approaching the grand stand on the fourth when his car appeared to hit a soft spot in the sand. It turned endwise several times, leaped high into the air and made several barrel rolls before landing. Lockhart was thrown face downward upon the sand. He was breathing heavily and bleeding profusely from the mouth and about the head when specialists got to him. Physicians at the hospital where he was taken said he probably died a few minutes after being thrown from the car.

THE WEATHER

The weather still continues quite cool, and there is remarkably little change in temperature from day to day. For about a week the night temperature has been from 21 to 24, and during the day from 41 to 45. By way of variety we had a snowfall yesterday with flakes of an extraordinary size. It was remarked by many that they had never seen such prodigious flakes. Many were over an inch in diameter some an inch and a half, and a few closely approached two inches across. Some readers at a distance may think this is a Baron Maunchausen story, but any citizen here can verify it. The snow melted as it fell, but the water in my rain guage measured .43 or the equivalent of almost four and a half inches of snow. Late snow storms are not unusual, as one year we had over four inches of snow on the ground on May 4th. Snow plows were out and the snow shovels had to be resurrected from their resting place. Perhaps to-morrow I may give some more specific figures as to amounts and dates.—W. P.

O. C. 42nd Battalion and Leaders of D Company Testify at Cobourg.

NO CASUALTIES ON 11TH.

Citizens Fighting in Alley Only Hostilities Seen—Old Lady Serves Hot Coffee.

(By Staff Reporters.)

COBOURG, Ont., April 25. — One colonel, three captains, one sergeant, and a private soldier were the six witnesses called by W. N. Tilley, K.C., yesterday afternoon in the Currie-Wilson-Preston libel suit. Of these, all had served at Mons and one was a soldier under the late Lord Kitchener during the South African campaign. All were Canadian soldiers with long records in the line of battle.

Two of the captains and the sergeant had been among the first troops to enter Mons on the historic event of that city's return to the hands of the friendly Allied troops, the Canadians.

Various sidelights came out in yesterday afternoon's evidence. One witness mentioned the fact that one elderly Belgian lady had served hot coffee to the entire Sixteenth Platoon of the Forty-second Canadians. These men wakened the citizens by running the butts of their rifles along the grilled casement windows of the buildings. The effect was to waken the citizens, who swarmed into the streets, completely surrounding the little detachment.

Captain Burness, of No. 2 Company of the Princess Pats., told of three counter attacks by the enemy, which his little company of between fifty and sixty men repelled successfully. He also told of how the first sign of the enemy came in the form of two men, who managed to run away. An enemy patrol encountered later was completely wiped out by the Pats. Another pair of the Germans showed up, and one was captured but the other one was killed.

Captain Burness would give no evidence regarding anything which he himself had not seen. He very much regretted the unfortunate death of Corporal Carleton, but stated this was the only casualty which his company suffered.

LT.-Col. Royal L. H. Ewing, Montreal, realtor and commanding officer of the 42nd Canadians at the time of the armistice, was the last witness called, and gave his evidence in a precise soldierly-like manner. Twice his replies to Mr. Regan's questions evoked laughter from the spectators and smiles from several seated at the counsel table. On these occasions Mr. Regan appealed to His Lordship to speak to the court and spectators in such a manner as would put an end to such interruptions. The Honorable Mr. Justice Rose expressed the opinion that the interruption had not been sufficiently great to warrant his thus addressing the assembly, and ordered the proceedings to continue. He further expressed the opinion that the proceedings so far had been quiet and orderly.

On one occasion, when W. N. Tilley, K.C., was examining a witness, Mr. Regan rose to object to a question as being a leading question. Mr. Tilley immediately halted his examination to await His Lordship's ruling. It was not long coming. "Mr. Regan," said His Lordship, "Please turn to your book and look at the definition given there of a leading question."

Mr. Tilley proceeded with his examination.

To Jury On Thursday.

It is expected that the plaintiff will finish putting in his evidence in rebuttal to-day, and the case will be put into the hands of the jury the following day. This will depend entirely on the number of witnesses which the plaintiff has yet to place in the box.

Old soldiers, their wives, sweethearts and next of kin filled the court to capacity. Many of them are thus personally interested in the proceedings. For them it is the opportunity of a lifetime to receive information what did take place at Mons and what they themselves and their men were contending with at that memorable stage of the great conflict. Here and there among the spectators are seated Americans, anxious to learn how the Canadians manoeuvred on the battlefield.

From a spectacular angle the case grows more interesting daily and the number of spectators has increased in proportion till every available inch of the court room is occupied. Everyone displayed the keenest interest as the men who were among the first to enter Mons at the end of the war took their turns in the witness box.

Capt. Eric V. Finlay, M.C., officer commanding C Company of the 42nd Battalion, told of the movements of his company during the 10th and 11th of November. On the 10th it acted as support of A Company. Later in the day he was ordered to march from Quienze to Mons, entering the city from the east, and later took a position on high ground east of Mons.

Q.—What casualties did your company have?

A.—None after the night of November 8th.

LINDY BATTLES WITH ELEMENTS TO REACH GOAL

Arrives at Quebec City With Life-Giving Serum For Bennett.

FLYS THROUGH STORM.

Brother Aviator Lies in Critical Condition With Double Pneumonia.

QUEBEC, April 26. — (Canadian Press.)—Completing a flight of over five hundred miles in four hours, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, displaying marvellous airmanship which carried him through snow and rain storms, landed at 6.50 p.m. last night on the Plains of Abraham, Quebec City, with serum to be used in an attempt to save the life of Floyd Bennett, brother Knight of the Air, who is battling for his life in Jeffrey Hale Hospital. Bennett, famous for his Arctic flying, has double pneumonia.

Shortly after his arrival at Quebec Lindbergh was rushed by automobile to the hospital.

Bennett was hovering between life and death with doctors in constant attendance, hospital officials reported following his arrival at Murray Bay, Que., with a relief expedition for the crew of the Bremen, German trans-Atlantic plane at Greenly Island. He left a sick bed to take charge of the plane carrying the relief expedition from Detroit and had high fever when he arrived at Murray Bay. Since then his condition has become steadily worse.

Lindbergh's flight from Curtiss Field, N.Y., to Quebec City, has added a new and thrilling chapter to the story of his achievements, including a flight from New York to Paris.

Sent For Special Serum.

Doctors in attendance on Bennett yesterday telephoned to New York asking the Rockefeller Research Institute at New York to rush them a special serum. Lindbergh consented to fly to Quebec in a race against time. At 3:08 p.m. he hopped into an army plane at Curtiss Field, taking with him a representative of the Rockefeller Institute and carrying the serum and three white mice in glass jars. The mice were for use in connection with the serum. When Lindbergh took off, Montreal was given as his destination. A special train was prepared there to carry him to Quebec and civic officials waited at the air field, ut with characteristic secrecy Lindbergh decided that the urgency of the call brooked no delay and flew direct to Quebec.

Most of the way to Quebec he flew through snow territory that was strange to him, with visibility poor, so that he could not have distinguished land marks en route. The plane he flew had a maximum speed of 150 miles an hour and before leaving he estimtaed his probable speed for the trip at 120 miles an hour. He must have maintained slightly better than this rate and flown without deviation straight to his objective.

Lindbergh, however, was modestly itself when questioned regarding the flight.

"We had a very good flight," he told his questioners.

RECEPTION SERVICE.

New Members Received in Bethany United Church on Sunday.

BETHANY, April 25.—A reception service was held in the United Church on Sunday evening for the receiving of new members into the church. The pastor, the Rev. A. Poulter, did not preach a sermon, but he gave a heart to heart talk to those and others seeking membership. Psalm 33, and part of the 11th chapter of St. Luke's gospel were read.

Mr. Poulter divided his address into three parts: First, "Loyalty to teous, and Karl Monk. The stew- and third, "Loyalty to the Christian Church."

Those received into full membership of the Bethany United Church were: Mrs. Margaret McKinley and daughters, Gladys, Alice and Rhena by letter from Fleetwood; Mrs. Ruth Porteous, by letter from Reaboro, and Miss Emily Matts, by letter from St. James United Church, Parry Sound. New members were: Misses Etta Whiteside, Doris Driver, Francis Fallis, Hazel Fallis, Jessie Reeves, Messrs. Stanley Whiteside, Eric Porteaus, and Karl Monk. The stewards assisting with the ceremony were Messrs. W. A. Jakeman, T. J. Jackson, Donald Lowes and John Porteous. A very sweet and appropriate duet was sung by Misses Elsie Richardson and Verna Belle Lee, entitled "In Jesus."

Personals.

Mrs. R. C. Waram of Toronto was a visitor in the village for several days.

Mr. George Poulter of Montreal is the guest of his nephew, the Rev. A. Poulter, at the parsonage.

Mrs. Werry, of Bowmanville, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Rowan.

Mr. W. Forbes of Peterborough was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Lee.

Mr. Blake of Peterborough spent a few days in the village visiting his daughters, Mrs. William Morton, Mrs. R. W. Price and Mrs. F. C. Dawe.

Mr. J. Hirchburg of Toronto was a business visitor in the village for a few days.

The Rev. A. Poulter and his uncle, Mr. George Poulter, motored to Toronto last Thursday and spent several days there.

Mr. William Porteous of Nestleton is visiting his brothers, the Messrs. John and Charles Porteous.

SERVICES HELD WARSAW CHURCHES

First Time in Two Months Regular Services Held.

WARSAW, April 25.—There was service in the four churches in Warsaw on Sunday the first time for more than two months. The usual Baptist service was in the morning, and evening one in the United church. The Rev. J. F. O'Conor-Fenton conducted the service in St. Mark's Church in the evening. Mr. Roseborough conducted the service in the Presbyterian church in the evening and will do so regularly.

Next Sunday morning a special service will be held in the Baptist Church. Mr. H. O. Reynolds will deliver the message and Cyril Redford will assist by singing.

Grader Used.

Fred Bolton used the grader on the boundary on Monday, making a splendid job, but within an hour a large truck went over it, tearing deep ridges down the road on Gordon Payne's hill.

Sap Still Running.

Several people were busy all day Monday boiling sap. On Sunday there had been a good run of perfectly clear and good sap.

Some of the fall wheat looks better than the owners had dared to expect, after the hard frosts last week.

Long Distance Call.

What is probably the most distant long distance call that has ever come to Warsaw came last evening, when Frank Patterson, of Avonlea, Saskatchewan, talked with his wife, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. John Tucker, since early winter.

Personals.

Mrs. Thomas Cooper spent a few days in Toronto, where she visited her sister, and attended the Board meeting of the Women's Institute.

Mrs. Joseph Matthews visited her sister, Mr. W. S. Anderson last week.

Mr. Gordon Sharpe has sold his stage route to Mr. Elias Thompson. The exchange to take place on May 1.

The Warsaw mail couriers made their first trip in the evening on Monday, April 23.

Beg Your Pardon.

In the report of the Myersburg-Norham debate "Resolved that steam is of greater value to mankind than electricity", it was the Rev. Mr. Harston, of Campbellford, who acted as critic, instead of the Rev. D. R. Clare, as reported in The Examiner.

Community Hall To Be Opened For Dancing By New Owner on Friday.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 25. — At the congregational meeting of St. John's United Church on Monday evening, a recommendation of the Official Board was adopted to extend an invitation to Rev. R. C. Tait, of Unity, Saskatchewan. Mr. Tait has had charge of two of the largest former Methodist Churches in Halifax, and was chaplain of the radio station at Halifax. He is highly recommended by members of his former charges and has many appreciative letters from his radio congregation.

If this transfer can be satisfactorily arranged between the two conferences, Mr. Tait will take charge of the work here in June.

Community Hall Open.

A. E. Atkinson has purchased the Community Hall from John L. Hay, and will open it on Friday with a four-piece Toronto orchestra. During the summer months it will be open on Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, under the management of Robert McArthur.

AUSTRALIA TAKES DECISIVE STEPS

Film Industry To Be Carefully Controlled—Board of Censors Appointed.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., April 25. — Important recommendations for the control of the film industry in Australia were contained in the report of a commission presented to the Federal Parliament yesterday. Minister of Customs Pratten stated that the Government had approved proposals to stimulate the distribution of Australian films, and that additional constitutional powers were necessary to get a number of the recommendations.

To Name Censors.

The Government has agreed to establish a board consisting of three censors, including one woman, and an exhibitions appeal board, both of which will function without representation from the film trade. The marking of films with the country of origin is made compulsory, as is also the classification of films suitable for adults and children.

Another clause increases the duty of imported films from three halfpence to twopence per foot, in order to provide funds for the cost of administration. Steps will also be taken to carry out reciprocal tariffs.

GIVES ADDRESS ON TEMPERANCE

W. J. Shear of Toronto Preaches On Norham Circuit On Sunday.

NORHAM, April 25. — W. J. Shean, of Toronto, preached on the Norham Circuit on Sunday on behalf of the Prohibition Union, in the interests of temperance.

For many years, Mr. Shean has been active in prison reform. He traced the work of the liquor traffic through the regime of the open bar, the Ontario Temperance Act, and Government Control. He spoke, using illustrations, of happenings which he had seen and had been connected with in his work. He said many events which had occurred were too gruesome to relate.

Mr. Shean's address was eloquent, very instructive, and convincing.

Pastor Called.

At a special meeting of the quarterly official board of Trinity United Church, T. C. Ivory was appointed on the board of elders. It was decided to extend an invitation to the Rev. J. K. Curtis, B.A., of Kingston, to become pastor of the church at the opening of the conference year, the first of July.

Auction Sale.

In spite of disagreeable weather on Thursday afternoon, a large crowd attended the auction sale of household effects, the property of Matthew Wilson ,at his home. All the goods was disposed of rapidly and satisfactory prices were drawn forth by the auctioneer, William Howden.

Driveway Improved.

On Saturday afternoon a decided improvement was made to the driveway to Trinity church shed, when by the call of David Weir, several members who reside west of the village each drew two loads of gravel and deposited it thereon.

EUCHRE PARTY HELD AT MADOC

Social Evening Held Under the Auspices of Rebekah Lodge.

PRIZES GIVEN.

MADOC, April 25. — A very pleasant social evening and progressive euchre was given by the Rebekah Lodge on Friday evening in their rooms, and an unusually large crowd enjoyed the hospitality extended.

The prizes were won by Mrs. Roberts and Mr. John Devolin. Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies, and several dances were indulged in before the breaking-up of the party.

Sale of Home Cooking.

The Madoc Women's Institute held a very successful sale of home cooking on Saturday afternoon, in the office of the Sun Life Insurance Company, by courtesy of Mr. R. Wellman. Proceeds of the sale were about fifteen dollars.

Personals.

Messrs. Archie Ashley and Carl Smith are at home again, having completed their first year at Queen's University, Kingston.

Mr. Kenneth Connor arrived home on Friday evening after an extended holiday at his cottage on Westlemacoon Lake.

Mr. John O'Connell is home for the summer holidays after a year spent at Queen's University, Kingston.

Miss Ruth Connor, R.N., is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Connor, for a few days.

STUDY OF SONGS MADE AT MEETING

Interesting Program Given at Meeting of Springville-Fairmount Literary Society.

SPRINGVILLE, April 25.—Miss Daisy Murray was in charge of the program at a meeting of the Springville-Fairmount Literary Society held on Friday evening, and continued the study of folk songs. Interesting facts were read about Irish and Scottish songs, telling of their composers, origin, purpose, etc. Two examples, "Annie Laurie" and "Flow Gently Sweet Afton", were beautifully given in duet by Mr. and Mrs. Hanbridge.

The musical program was followed by a lengthy discussion of the future of the society and the remainder of the time was spent in games and sport. It was announced that the next meeting will take the form of a conundrum tea, which promises to be a novel evening for all.

Church Meeting.

At the annual business meeting of the Springville United Church, a lady volunteered to decorate and provide furnishings for the new vestry recently completed. On Easter Sunday it was opened for use and inspection and proves to be a room which Springville may well be proud.

It is decorated in subdued buff shades brightened by black and gold with tiny blocks of color. The furniture is of walnut which blends beautifully with the woodwork and the whole general appearance is cosy homelike and above all useful. Its brass hooks, for coat and hat, its mirror and comb and brush; its table and chairs, its harmonizing rug, pretty curtains, window drapes and pictures invite the minister to rest a while for a few quiet moments before entering the church and pulpit.

SCHOOL BOARD HOLDS MEETING

Regular Business Discussed at Meeting Held in Havelock.

ACCOUNTS PASSED.

HAVELOCK, April 25.—At a meeting of the Havelock School Board, the secretary was instructed to write to the plumbing firm of Lindsay, to ask for a representative to be on hand at the next meeting to discuss details of a water system, or to advise in advance when he would be going through Havelock, and arrangements would be made to have him meet the board.

A report from Inspector Cowles on inspection of the Continuation School, also from Inspector Lees on his inspection of Public School were read and it was moved by Trustees Roche and Scully that the reports be received and laid over until the next meeting.

The following accounts were ordered paid on motion of Trustees Scully and Roche: J. A. C. Allen, $18.77; A. Spencer, $1.85; J. Howe, $6; Central Scientific Company, $35.05. A total of $61.67.

LITTLE FARM WORK IN DISTRICT YET

Deep Snow Drifts Still To Be Found in Parts of County.

April is likely to be counted a complete loss in the labor records of Peterborough county farmers. With very few exceptions they drew another blank on Monday, and many of them are resigned to comparative inactivity until the second week in May. Operations will be generally retarded until the sun gets back on the land for a few days, and warms and dries it.

Garbutt D. Mann of Smith township told the Examiner that there are still four-foot drifts of snow on roads near Selwyn.

"I was up in that section on Monday" he said, "looking after my work as assessor, and I didn't see one farmer at work. But I did see some drifts as deep as a buggy wheel. I heard that further south one or two men ventured out with their plows on fairly dry slopes, but I would say there was practically no work done in the whole township. We usually expect to get started during the last week in April, but most of the farmers I have been talking to expect that they will be held back for another two weeks. The land is cold and wet. There is no growth and in the lower parts nothing can be done until the surface water disappears and the earth dries out. The roads are very bad in some places. There has been no warmth to give them a chance to dry out. I think the fall crop is in pretty good shape. The frost toward the end of last week browned it a bit, but the Saturday snow seemed to have prevented any real damage."

Frank Kitney of Otonabee township, whose market gardens are south of the Locks bridge, said his outdoor work had been considerably delayed "But we haven't been idle" he added. "We have lots to do in the Greenhouses. We like to get started outside by the middle of April, but at the present rate the end of the month will see nothing done. All our plants and bushes look to be in good condition. I haven't seen any signs of damage. We need some steady warm weather right away, and if we get that I think we'll get along all right."

Mr. Kitney said there was practically nothing moving in Otonabee, but, as in Smith township, some farmers were all set to begin plowing today or Wednesday. North Monaghan reports are similar to those from the two other townships.

J. B. Nelson, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has already made quite a number of trips into the country surrounding the city. Suspended activity was the summary of his observations of the farms he visited and others he passed. Beecher Matchett told him that he had begun on April 20th last year, but there were rather recent entries on his record sheet showing the begining of work as late as May 6th.

Farmers generally are not worrying about the unfavorable season. There is impatience and a little uneasiness with the realization that the weather is piling up work that should be well under way by the end of April; and plowing does not lend itself to any speeding up effort.

PILOTLESS PLANE LOOPS LOOP.

Controlled by wireless, pilotless planes have recently been made to loop the loop successfully, according to reports from England. Intensive research is being made there in radio piloting, and other amazing manoeuvres are made as easily possible with a new delicate governing system within the plane, operated entirely by radio waves. A radio receiving set within the plane is designed to interpret and act upon impulses transmitted from a ground control station. The craft is operated by tiny compressed air motors, which are actuated by the master radio set and work the controls without a hitch. Other ideas are also being developed.

Rheumatism And Pains In The Back Relieved

Says Quebec Lady After Using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Melle. Jeannette Thibault Always Keeps a Box in the House

ST. CUTHBERT, P.Q., April 24.—(Special).—"For 5 months I have suffered with Rheumatism. I have taken your Dodd's Kidney Pills and they have relieved me," writes Melle. J. Thibault, a resident of this place. "I took your Dodd's Kidney Pills last year for pains in the back which I hardly able to endure, and found great relief. I assure you I am never without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house."

Dodd's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys. They have become a family remedy all over the world because people have tried them and found them good. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They help Rheumatism, Lumbago, Lame Back or Urinary troubles. Because all of these are either kidney diseases or are caused by the kidneys failing to do their work.

Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from Druggists everywhere, or The Dodds Medicine Company, Limited, Toronto 2, Ontario.

TRAINING COURSE ARRANGED FOR VOCATIONAL TEACHERS

Ontario Government Establishes School For Training in These Subjects.

TAUGHT TO TEACH.

Those Applying Must Be Qualified to Work at Trade They Wish to Learn.

The Ontario Training College for Technical Teachers has been established for the purpose of training teachers of vocational subjects and teachers of manual training. Courses in the principles and methods of teaching designed to meet the needs of such teachers will be given. Classes will be organized for teachers of machine shop practice, mechanical drawing, carpentry, cabinet making, pattern making, electrical work, plumbing, sheet metal work, millinery, dressmaking, art, and any other shop or practical subject for which they may be a demand. The work in observation and practice teaching will be done in the regular day and evening classes of the Hamilton Technical Institute.

Terms

Spring Term—April 16th to June 22nd, 1928.

Summer Term—July 3rd to August 3rd, 1928.

Autumn Term—October 1st to December 7th, 1928.

Courses

The following courses are offered:

Course for Interim Ordinary Certificate.

Course for Interim Specialist Certificate.

Special Course A for Interim Ordinary Certificate in Domestic Arts (Sewing and Dressmaking).

Summer Courses.

Courses for Interim Manual Training Certificate (a) Elementary, (b) Ordinary, (c) Specialist.

Course for Interim Ordinary Certificate.

Length of Course

The course consists of two parts: I and II. Part I, which consist largely of lecture and theoretical work, will be taken in two summer terms of five weeks each. Part II, which consists largely of observation and practice teaching, may be taken in either the autumn or the spring terms.

Requirements For Certificate

The Department of Education grants temporary, interim, and permanent certificates qualifying the holder to teach a vocational subject.

Temporary certificates are granted only when teachers with interim or permanent certificates are not available, and are valid for the school year in which they are issued, and for the school for which they are issued.

Interim certificates are granted to candidates who, (a) have a fair general education, approved by the Minister, (b) have had training and experience, approved by the Minister, in the subject for which the certificate is to be issued, and (c) have taken a course of training in teaching and school management, approved by the Minister.

Candidates who complete satisfactorily Parts I and II of the course will be granted Interim Certificates, good for two years.

Permanent Certificates are granted to candidates who hold Interim Certificates and who have had two years' successful experience as teachers in a day vocational school in Ontario, approved by an inspector.

Candidates who complete satisfactorily Part I of the training course will be given statements to that effect. Applicants for positions as teachers in evening vocational classes who hold such statements will be preferred to applicants who have had no teacher training.

Requirements for Admission.

1. General education:

(a) The applicant for admission shall be required to pass an examination in general education. The examination will consist of a paper in arithmetic, a paper in composition, spelling, penmanship. The work in arithmetic will include the four fundamental, operations simple, vulgar and decimal fractions, and percentage.

(b) If the applicant submits satisfactory evidence of having taken two years' High School work or its equivalent, he may be exempted from the examination in arithmetic, and in composition, spelling, and penmanship.

2. Trade training and experience:

(a) The training of apprenticeship required shall be that usually demanded for journeyman's qualifications in the trade concerned. Special training obtained in an approved day vocational school will be taken into account in considering the period of training. Applicants should be prepared to submit statements from the persons or firms under whom they were trained, showing the length of the training period and the nature of the work.

(b) Documentary evidence of experience in the trade in approved shops shall be furnished by the applicant. The evidence shall be such as to show that the applicant is proficient in his trade, and is acquainted with its recent developments.

(c) The applicant shall be required to pass an examination designed to test his attainments as a skilled worker in the trade concerned. The examination shall be on the fundamental principles, operations, processes and skills of the trade, and shall be in three parts: (a) Oral, (b) written, (c) practical. In the practical examination he shall be required to show his skill in a performance test.

This examination will be given at the Training College in Hamilton. It may be taken at any time that can be arranged to meet the convenience of the staff and of the applicant.

The examination in general education may be taken on the same occasion.

3. Health and character:

Applicants shall be in good health, and shall be of good moral character and shall possess the personal qualifications necessary to success in teaching.

4. Age limits.

Men looking forward to teaching should be not less than twenty-three, not more than thirty-eight years of age. Women should be not less than twenty-one, nor more than thirty-five years of age.

Applications for Admission.

Applications for admission shall be made on an official form to be obtained from the Deputy Minister, and shall be accompanied by statements on the following official forms to be obtained from the Deputy Minister:

1. Record of attainments, showing educational attainments, trade training and experience, and other special training.

2. Character certificate from a clergyman or other competent authority that applicant is of good moral character.

3. Medical certificate from a duly qualified medical practitioner that for the purposes of this certificate he has made a careful examination of the applicant and certifies as follows: (a) that the applicant is free from heart disease or other serious organic affection; (b) that the applicant is free from pulmonary affection, defective hearing, or serious defective eyesight, or abnormal conditions of appearance which would interfere with his work as a teacher; and (c) that in other respects he is physically able for the work of a teacher.

50 BRITISH BOYS TO VISIT CANADA

Free Travel and Scholarship Plan is Being Tried Out Here First.

15,000 MILE TOUR.

LONDON, April 25.—(Canadian Press).—A great Empire Free Travel and Scholarship Scheme has been planned whereby boys and girls of Great Britain may visit the Dominions at the expense of the Berry group of morning and evening newspapers, headed by Sir William and Sir Gomer Berry, in co-operation with the Cunard Steamship Company and the Canadian National Railways. The scheme has the approval of the Prince of Wales, Premier Stanley Baldwin, Lieut.-Col. L. C. M. S. Amery, Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs, and J. H. Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, Secretary for the Dominions in the Labor Government of J. Ramsay MacDonald. The first Dominion to be visited is Canada, and this summer 50 girls and boys will tour Canada.

The scheme is designed to inspire the youth of the Motherland with a new fascinating outlook on the British Commonwealth of Nations and British Isles between the ages of 14 and 21, irrespective of circumstances, a remarkable opportunity not only of learning something about the Empire, but of seeing the Empire.

This summer 50 young men and women, representative of the nation's youth, accompanied by Frank L. Lascot, O. B. E., the organizing director of the scheme, and a number of other responsible people, will enjoy seven weeks' free holiday tour of Canada. It will be a holiday that will live in the memory of those who are fortunate enough to make the trip, for the journey covers a distance by sea and land of more than 15,000 miles, and a programme of exceptional attractiveness is being arranged.

As a practical illustration of his appreciation of, and warm interest in, the scheme, the Prince of Wales has committees in London, Manchester, Newcastle and Glasgow, from among 200 final candidates who, in the opinion of a board of examiners in London, submit the most satisfactory answers to a series of questions on Empire topics of a general character. This board of examiners is headed by Professor A. P. Newton, Rhodes Professor of History at London University, and a foremost authority on Empire education.

The examination questions, to be included in a series of 20 examination papers, will be brief, bright and of a popular character, and will have a fascination that will captive all young people, whether at school or not.

The wonderful holiday in Canada will begin at Quebec on Aug. 5, the young "Ambassadors" having previously enjoyed the thrilling experience of sailing up the St. Lawrence River. Among other places Ottawa, Vancouver, Niagara Falls and Jasper Park, Canada's great playgrounds, will be visited.

The scheme is not intended to be scholastic or academic, but rather to arouse, on a national scale, interest in, and enthusiasm for, Empire topics that have the most popular and far-reaching appeal, thus affording an equal chance for all who enter. It is important also to emphasize that this patriotic effort to bring the Empire more intimately before the youth of the nation is not intended to be a spasmodic or single one.

In succeeding years is is proposed to extend it to other parts of the Zealand, India and the Far East sugesting themselves for visits in the future.

Nor is the scope of the scheme's usefulness from a national point of view restricted in this, the year of its inauguration, for, in addition to the 50 free travel awards, 24 scholarships of £50 each are offered to all boys and girls between the ages of eight and 14 years. These scholarships will be devoted exclusively to the educational advancement of those who won them and who, in the eventual development of the scheme in succeeding years, will themselves qualify as young "Ambassadors of Empire."

The scheme, which is assured of enthusiastic support from the leaders of every branch of thought and activity, thus brings within its scope all young people in Great Britain and Ireland between the ages of 8 and 21.

HOBBY SHOW PRIZES WILL BE PRESENTED

Good Program Will Be Given at Meeting in Y.M.C.A. Gym. on Friday.

The presentation of all the awards in connection with the recent Boys' Hobby Show will be made at a special gathering to be held in the Y.M.C.A. Gym. on Friday evening of this week, commencing at 7.30. In addition to the presentations the Hobby Show Orchestra will be on hand and render a jazzy program, and eight reels of moving pictures will be shown. Every boy who had an exhibit in the Hobby Show, as well as those who received places, is cordially invited to be on hand at 7.30. The management of the Y.M.C.A. does not anticipate having enough chairs for the crowd that should be on hand for this event but when the supply of chairs and benches becomes exhausted it is hoped that the remainder can find accommodation on the mats, apparatus, or even on the floor.

SLIGHT MOVEMENT IN WALL OF TOWER

Ancient London Structure Not in Any Danger, However.

LONDON, April 25.—(Canadian Press).—There is a slight movement of the quay wall and the Salt tower of London, according to the annual report of the National Physical Laboratory, but the office of Work states that the movement is almost imperceptible and does not entail any danger to any part of the Tower. Extremely fine micrometer instruments were necessary to observe the movement, and the National Physical Laboratory in their report state:

"Periodic observations of the movements of the quay wall and the Salt Tower have been carried out through out the year. The main displacements are in a vertical direction and indicate a small but measurable sinking of the foundations of the masonry. In June, at the request of His Majesty's Office of works, an examination was made of the west wall of the sergeants' mess, in which several cracks had suddenly appeared on May 20. This is a modern building erected by the War Department in 1902 and has not previously given any indication of irregular settlement. These cracks have been kept under observation since they were first noted, but have so far shown no signs of extension, so that there appears to be no justification for fitting disturbances, of examining the foundations of this building which are partly modern and partly very old, has been pointed out to H. M. Office of Works.

A close watch has been kept on the buildings of the tower for years. The foundations are also periodically examined, but nothing has occurred to give rise to any concern. The proximity of the Tower to the river may possibly have an effect, and even the rise and fall of the tide probably alters the pressure under the foundations. The movement in the Tower, an official of the Office of Works stated, was so slight as to be almost imperceptible, and only extremely sensitive instruments could measure it. The crack in the modern addition was thought to be due to the fact that part of the building was placed on an old foundation wall

The Salt Tower is situated at the south-east corner of the old fortress, and, next to the White Tower, is the most ancient of all. It was in very old days called Julius Caesar had its south-east corner close to the site. The Salt Tower itself was built in the reign of William Rufus, between 1087 and 1100, and it is not clear whether it has derived its name from some forgotten person or from being used for the storage of saltpetre when this was an ingredient in gunpowder.

Table tennis in England has become so strenuous that those over 40 are regarded as being too old for first-rank players.

THE EXAMINER FAMILY.

The Examiner is glad to welcome to-day its little army of correspondents from all over the district, who are meeting with the local staff of The Examiner in the second annual staff conference.

The men and women who keep us in touch with the thousand and one items of news that make a daily newspaper play a big part in maintaining The Examiner's prestige over the wide field it covers, and it is with pleasure that we greet them as our guests to-day.

Out of their visit and out of the discussions that featured the conference this morning will come, we are sure, closer co-operation and better service and inevitably, therefore, a brighter, better and more readable Examiner.

The Examiner family grows larger each year, another evidence of our increasing importance as a district newspaper and of our desire to worthily serve our thousands of readers in Central Ontario.

DR. TORY'S APPOINTMENT.

Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, has made the official announcement that Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the University of Alberta, who has been acting as honorary president of the National Research Council, will resign from the college presidency to become active head of the expanded Research Council.

This announcement and Mr. Malcolm's statement of the projects to be undertaken by the Council are of great importance.

Well back in the national procession so far as research work was concerned, until recently, Canada has awakened to the desirability of development along this line and will soon be in full stride.

Dr. Tory's qualifications and record make him an ideal leader in the great work that is to be undertaken, and the Dominion Government is to be congratulated upon the appointment, which should be followed by results of importance to the whole country.

The carrying on of a national standardization and research service for Canada and the furnishing of effective assistance to Canadian industries in the solution of their technical problems and in the development of their natural resources are activities that mean much to Canada.

AND NOW IT'S VEGETABLES.

When Hon. W. R. Motherwell introduced a vegetable grading bil lin the House of Commons the other day it was denounced by opposition speakers as a prospective nuisance law.

The Minister of Agriculture aims at protecting the consumer and raising the standard of Canadian export produce, two objects that are entirely worthy, and his far-reaching measure, like other legislation of the same kind, might prove to be of great benefit to Canada's producers.

Unfortunately, all such regulations are resented, and a campaign of education before they are incorporated in the statute books would serve a very excellent purpose.

Farmers do not take kindly to legislation of this nature; at the present time the egg grading regulations are being criticized with considerable warth, as a few inquiries at the local market on Saturday would reveal.

Much of the opposition would be removed if more time were to be devoted to preparing the producers for the legislation by explaining its benefits and enlarging upon the objects it is hoped to attain.

Such a course would do away with most of the friction caused by enforcing regulations that are regarded as a nuisance, chiefly because they have been passed before the public has been educated as to their value.

VALUABLE INFORMATION.

The disposition of commentators to regard the achievement of the Junkers monoplane, Bremen, as just another foolhardy stunt, productive of no scientific value, is hardly borne out by the facts as disclosed now that the world is more fully in touch with the intrepid airmen who made the first westward flight over the North Atlantic.

In the course of interviews he has given the Canadian Press, Col. James Fitzmaurice, Irish co-pilot of the German plane, points to at least two definite additions to the sum total of the aeronautical world's knowledge concerning ocean flying. By swabbing the wings, struts, guy-wires, fusilage and undercarriage of the machine with a thick coating of paraffin oil, the aviators effectually overcame the hazard of accumulated sleet—a hazard Col. Lindbergh described as the greatest confronting North Atlantic fliers. That's the first point. The second is the Irishman's opinion that a radio set on such a voyage is worth its weight in gasoline. An efficient wireless set weighs approximately 180 pounds and at Baldonnel field the Brewmen's crew decided 180 pounds of petrol would be more useful. "This," says Fitzmaurice, "was the one weak point in the organization of the flight, as we now realize that had we had a wireless set on board upon our estimated arrival in the neighborhood of Newfoundland we could have been given almost our exact position by the direction-finding stations along the coast and informed of the precise direction and velocity of the wind over the area. Thus we would have made New York easily and would have accomplished our objective. We consider wireless absolutely necessary for future undertakings of this nature."

The benefit to be derived from adding a heavy wireless set to a trans-Atlantic plane's equipment has been vigorously debated in flying circles. The experience of the Junkers' pilots would seem to furnish the answer.—Border Cities Star.

ARE YOU ONE OF THE 500?

If you are a book buyer, that is if you not only love books but also buy them in order that you may keep them as your very own, you are one of an exceedingly small group in your community. Experts in determining such statistical approximations affirm that of every 550 persons you see only one is a book buyer. If it be a true measure, an accurate yardstick, so to speak, then application of it to Peterborough's 26,000 citizens yields a quotient of only fifty book buyers. That figure does not offer much encouragement for the young and aspiring author, to say nothing of the printer of books and the man who sells them.

And when one sees a news-stand timidly offering two or three of the best magazines and observes at the end of four weeks that one or two of them remain unsold, he might be inclined to discount that alarming result of our little sum in division, and to conclude that the number of book buyers in Peterborough may be considerably less than fifty.

Of course, hundreds of citizens obtain the books they prefer from the Public Library, and it must be admitted that Fred. M. DelaFosse, Peterborough's very capable and courteous librarian, is able to present annual statements of circulation which attest the public usefulness and service of the library. However, it must surely be true that the criterion of the success and effectiveness of a public library is the number of patrons who desire to own and who will not be happy until they do own books which they first obtain from the Public Library. This assertion pertains to the category of general literature.

If reading maketh a whole man, there must be a great number of Peterborough men who are a long way from that integration the philosopher recommended. That is, of course, if our premise be true. Printing presses were never so busy as to-day, and many of the books they are turning out deserve and register a large sale, but if only one in every 550 persons is an index of the actual number of book buyers we can hardly consider ourselves a literary or thinking people. Many apparently intelligent persons are evidently content with the Sunday papers and their ephemeral sensations, while modern scholarship and research are producing so many excellent books in the classes of history, psychology and the more exact sciences.

Lugging home two or three volumes of fiction is one way of providing a pleasant pastime, although some books of fiction are not to be scorned, but mental recration is not enough, especially in these days when adult education is being so widely advocated. It is the work you must read and digest, the book to which you return again and again for its rich fund of ideas and thought, there should be more of that class of books in the homes. Our present proportion of one to 550 speaks well for the amount of time our people give to other things, bowling, motoring, bridge and kindred mental labors.

EMPIRE TRADE.

We have heard much talk about Empire trade and certainly it is something to be encouraged. The fact remains, however, that any administration that tries to facilitate it, finds itself in hot water.

The Australian Treaty forms a case in point. This was put through several years ago and was designed to increase the business done between these two important sections of the British Commonwealth of Nations. From a Canadian standpoint, and therefore from a Border Cities standpoint it is of especial benefit to the motor car industry. On the other hand, we find many agriculturists complaining because of butter importations from the Antipodes, and importers of raisins and currants are also petitioning the administration to abrogate the treaty. Under the trade pact with Australia, Canada imposed a duty of three cents per pound on raisins and currants, while allowing the Australian fruit to come in free. This was done, of course, to give Australia the Canadian market that had been previously supplied by California. It appears, however, that California fruit is still the major factor in the Canadian picture. Out of a total importation of 45,000,000 pounds, it is said that less than two millions come from Australia. This means, therefore, that the Canadian consumer is paying three cents more per pound for 43,000,000 pounds of the California fruit. This is a nice revenue for the Government, of course, but it is hard on the consumer and it also means that the object of the treaty is not being met.

It would seem that if the treaty is to be continued—and certainly it is generally desirable that it should be, if Canadians believe in the principle of Empire trade—that educational work should be conducted to induce the people of this country to insist on getting Australian raisins and currants. How the Government will satisfy the dairy interests, however, is another matter. Certainly there would seem to be something decidedly wrong with the Canadian dairying situation if Australia can produce butter, ship it clear across the Pacific Ocean, pay railway freight from there on to various Canadian distributing points and then undersell Canadian butter manufacturers. What is the matter with the Canadian dairy industry? Why should this be the situation?—Border Cities Star.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 25 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in Canadian spring wheat with the United Kingdom and the continent was again reported exceedingly quiet yesterday by Montreal exporters, but there was a steady demand for oats and sales of several loads were made for May-June shipment.

A moderate amount of business was done in the domestic market owing to the further demand from exporters and sales of No. 3 Northern wheat were made at ¾c per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal, and a lot of 40,000 bushels of Canadian Western No. 1 feed oats sold at three cents per bushel over the May option, c.i.f. Montreal for shipment from Fort William the last-half June, and a round lot of No. 2 feed oats sold at 79c per bushel, c.i.f. Montreal. There was also some further inquiry from New York exporters for oats in nearby positions.

The trade in spring and winter wheat grades of flour was quiet, but prices were firm.

A feature of the millfeed trade was again the demand from United States buyers, and a good business was done in bran and shorts for prompt and nearby shipment to Boston at prices equivalent to $41.50 per ton here. An active business was also done with local buyers and the prices were unchanged.

A firm feeling prevailed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats, but the demand was quiet.

The demand for all grades of eggs was confined to small lots, but the undertone to the market was firm. The receipts were 5,046 cases.

The feature of the potato market was the weaker feeling that developed in the market and prices scored a decline of fifteen to twenty cents per bag. This was attributed to the liberal receipts and the absence of any important demand.

The market for imported beans was quiet, but the undertone was firm.

A firmer feeling prevailed in the local butter trade, and prices ruled a fraction higher under a good demand The receipts were 603 packages.

Little business was done in cheese, but the undertone was steady. The receipts were 810 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 25 (Canadian Press). — Reported abandonment of 90 per cent. of 2,500,000 acres of winter wheat in North-western Kansas did much to lift wheat values yesterday. Unfavorable crop advices from other parts of the United States winter wheat belt were also at hand, together with word of adverse conditions in a good deal of spring wheat territory.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1½ cents to 2¾ cents net higher, with corn unchanged to ¾ cent up, oats showing ¾ cent to 2 cents advance, and privisions varying form 2 cents decline to a rise of 22 cents.

At first, the wheat market here was bearishly affected by predictions of showers in Western Nebraska and elsewhere in the middle and northern plain states. Besides, the Liverpool wheat trade was unresponsive to advances in price on this side of the Atlantic. Rallying power soon showed itself here, however, and as the day progressed the market advanced vigorously on account of bullish domestic crop reports, the news from Kansas in particular, which was sponsored by a leading Chicago authority, and was afterward confirmed in a general way by the Kansas official crop review.

Drought was the chief reason given for the reported North-west Kansas disaster. In addition, European advices indicated that sharp rallies in wheat values were expected abroad owing to damage done in American soft winter wheat states and because of uncertainty as to new crops in large areas of Europe. Considerable notice was likewise taken of asserted likelihood of a poor spring wheat crop in Washington, Oregon, and Idaho as a result of lateness of seeding and of excessive moisture making ground too wet to work.

Corn owed its strength largely to announcement that lake vessel charters had been made to move 2,000,000 bushels of corn from Chicago and 500,000 bushels from more northern parts. Generous shipping sales of oats here tightened up the oats market.

Provisions moved up with hog values and with grain.

GOD'S MINUTE

"Thou art my God, and I will praise Thee."—Ps. 118:28.

Our Father! We thank Thee for the tenderness enwrapped in the very name by which Thou art known to us. If Thou art a father, then we are little children. Grant to us this day the filial heart, and help us ever to trust all Thy good ways with us. We do not even know our wants, and sometimes we ask for stones, mistaking them for bread. Help us henceforth, we pray Thee, to trust ourselves to Thee, O Lord! to Thy wise counsel and Thy father-heart, and to accept with gladness whatever Thou dost give, because we are sure that Thy gifts are always best. Keep our souls, we pray Thee, in the peaceful faith that all things work together for our good.

Let our words be true this day, we pray, and let our deeds be upright. Give to us a heart for all conditions of men, and soften our spirits with the sympathies of Jesus. And if, in the secret recesses of our souls, there yet lurk some remnants of our hated sin, let the tides of forgiveness descend upon us from the heights of Thy holiness, and, lo! we shall be clean. All this we know is according to Thy will, through Jesus Christ our Lord. And to Thee shall be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

Cavan

CAVAN, April 25.—A few farmers have done some plowing on high land, but it will be a week or more before work will be in general.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Barr and children, of Mountain Grove, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Davey, have returned home.

Mrs. Margaret Staples visited her granddaughter, Mrs. A. C. Darling in Peterborough last week.

Mrs. James Douglas is visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert Heton, at Fairmount.

Mr. Eldred Snyder was a visitor to Lindsay this week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Cobly and Miss Irene Howson, attended the "Odd-Fellow's Ball held in Norwod on Friday evening.

CAVAN, April 25.—The Rev. C. C. Otton, Goodwood, took the work on Cavan circuit on Sunday, the Rev. Mr. Totton exchanging with him. Mr. Otton was entertained at the Parsonage while here.

Mrs. R. S. Staples spent the week-end in Peterborough.

Mr. Ralph Staples is visiting in Toronto.

Mrs. Milligan spent the week-end in Peterborough.

Mr. J. Paul was a visitor to Millbrook on Monday.

On Saturday evening a heavy blanket of snow again covered the ground. As the snow melted it made very slushy roads, but the snow was a real benefit to wheat and seeds after the heavy frost.

Miss Muriel Matchett, Pontypool, spent the week-end at her home in Cavan.

Miss Helen Syer, Otonabee, spent the week-end at her home in Cavan.

Mr. William Stark was a visitor to Peterborough on Saturday.

Marmora

MARMORA, April 25. — Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Caldwell and several members of St. Paul's congregation attended the meeting of the Church of England people of Hastings and Prince Edward Deaneries held in Belleville on Wednesday.

Miss M. Doyle of Belleville, spent the week-end with her brother, Mr. Tom Doyle.

Mrs. J. R. Hart is spending the week in Toronto.

Mrs. J. McCallum, of Toronto, and Dr. and Mrs. Ells, of Ottawa, arrived in town on Tuesday. The former is taking up residence in the Martin Murray home.

Mr. F. Trennum is erecting a new residence on his property in Belmont Township.

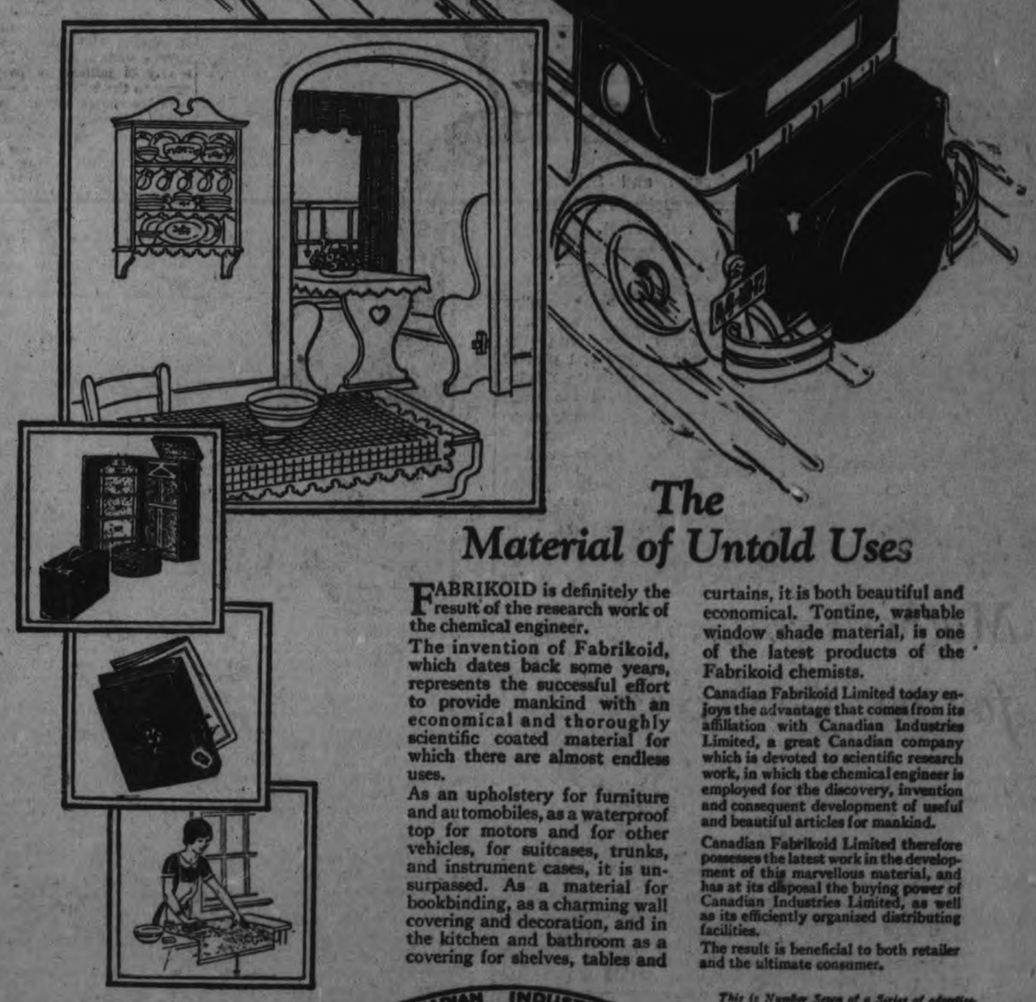
FABRIKOID



The Material of Untold Uses

FABRIKOID is definitely the result of the research work of the chemical engineer.

The invention of Fabrikoid, which dates back some years, represents the successful effort to provide mankind with an economical and thoroughly scientific coated material for which there are almost endless uses.

As an upholstery for furniture and automobiles, as a waterproof top for motors and for other vehicles, for suitcases, trunks, and instrument cases, it is unsurpassed. As a material for bookbinding, as a charming wall covering and decoration, and in the kitchen and bathroom as a covering for shelves, tables and curtains, it is both beautiful and economical. Tontine, washable window shade material, is one of the latest products of the Fabrikoid chemists.

Canadian Fabrikoid Limited today enjoys the advantage that comes from its affiliation with Canadian Industries Limited, a great Canadian company which is devoted to scientific research work, in which the chemical engineer is employed for the discovery, invention and consequent development of useful and beautiful articles for mankind.

Canadian Fabrikoid Limited therefore possesses the latest work in the development of this marvellous material, and has at its disposal the buying power of Canadian Industries Limited, as well as its efficiently organized distributing facilities.

The result is beneficial to both retailer and the ultimate consumer.

This is Number Seven of a Series of advertisements published that the public may have a clearer understanding of Canadian Industries Limited and its Subsidiary Companies.

JACK MINER AND THE BIRDS

AND SOME THINGS ABOUT NATURE

A Republication of the Book by Permission of the Author, Jack Miner, of Kingsville, Ont.

Do these geese inbreed? This is a question that apparently bothers a great percentage of us smart human beings, and often in the spring of the year when the geese are sitting around by the hundreds I hear this question asked by all sorts of visitors; I think this is chiefly because of the extreme uniformity of these birds both in size as well as in color.

I have tested this out sufficiently to satisfy all my curiosity. I went so far as to keep four full brothers and sisters in an inclosure by themselves for nearly three years, and they lived together as brothers and sisters only. But March the third year I heard the two geese giving love-sick cries and they kept fighting the wire towards where some wing-clipped ganders were. So I opened the gate and let them together, and inside two weeks they paired off with these strange ganders.

A young goose will lay four eggs the first year, and usually five the second. After that I have had them lay as high as seven, but in their wild state I know they must lay as high as eight for I quite often see an unbroken family here with ten in it, eight young and the parents; but six is the average brood of young.

During my life I have often crept upon a deer or peeped over the top of a hill at a moose, and with the frosty air in my favor I have watched them fully three-quarters of an hour, or until I got froze out, just drinking in pure nature. Time and again I have taken a little twig in my fingers and cracked it, and I am sure the deer's hearing is at least three times as sharp as ours, or what I might hear at twenty feet the deer would hear at sixty feet; but the hearing of the moose is not as sharp as that of the deer, nor their eyes as quick to locate one. Of all the creatures that carry the latest electric equipment with them I know of none to compare with the Canada goose. One bright, frosty day in January, when the snow was about six inches deep, my wing-tipped geese were out of the wind with their feet pulled up. There they sat on the crusty snow like so many fireless cookers. I called them to dinner, but they replied "Bring it to us." When I would toss three kernels of wheat in the air all would honk, but when I went through the same motion, empty-handed, they would not answer. I stepped the distance and it was over three hundred feet. I am sure these birds saw the three grains of wheat that distance.

But there is no branch in my nature study that has caused me to sit up and take a more bubbling-over, sympathetic interest than to see these poor maimed birds come to me for protection when they really need it. I have seen as high as six lying in front of my dining-room window at once; in fact, I have picked up as high as seven in one spring that came here and died of their wounds. What touches my heart-strings more than ever is that the wounded ones always come to the park pond and usually sit on the side nearest our house. Possibly while we are eating dinner one will stand with his breast toward us and dress the wound made by a buckshot in his breast; then to get him closer we put the field-glasses on him, which show the details; and here the feathers are all fallen out for fully a half inch around the deadly, dark little hole that is causing him so much inward pain and leaving his life hanging in the balance. I tell you any humane being having a heart and actually knowing the facts about these poor creatures needn't be surprised to find his eyeballs sweating.

And to see how they heal their broken legs is still more interesting. On April 2nd, 1915, a leader of a family of eight came home with one leg hanging down which was undoubtedly broken by a large buckshot. He had no more control over it than he would have of a stick tied to him. When he lit I noticed he hovered until he got the right spot, then he lowered away and came straight down into the water. There he stayed with head up and watched until his family went and fed. Then, while they watched, he rose straight up and hovered until he located the ear of corn preferred; he then carefully lowered, and turning the ends of his wings sidewise for crutches, he let his body carefully down, leaving his broken leg straight out beside his tail. Then reaching out with his long neck he pulled the ear of corn under his breast and piggled the kernels off until he had sufficient. He then put his wings out again, making crutches of them, and with a peculiar spring he was in the air and came down in the pond as before. On the third day he was standing on the bank with his broken leg straightened around in place, and from a distance he looked to be standing perfectly still, but a close investigation showed there was a constant twitching in the broken limb. We timed him, and this dear old father stood exactly in the one spot and in this same position for over six hours at a time. In less than three weeks it was evident that the bones had knit together, for when he would alight on the ground he would just throw himself a little to one side and let his weight down on the one leg; as he walked he would put his game leg through the motion, just touching the toes to the earth, taking the weight off with a short, quick stroke of the wings. The fourth week he ceased to use his wings for assistance, but would put his foot down and go limping across the lawn. During all this time of his untold suffering and agony, this admirable creature never ceased his duty, but kept a constant watch over his loved ones and if the least thing happened out of the ordinary around the premises he would speak quietly to them about it. Exactly one month from the day he came here, wounded, he led his family very high and they all floated away on the air, headed for the North.

The above is only one out of dozens of cases that have come to my observation. Out of the thousands of Canada geese I have closely examined, I have never seen one with a leg or foot healed crosswise, and there are always odd ones, here with broken legs. We have seen one or two with one leg a little shorter than the other. In that case the other leg is always a little the longer.

I know of no bird or animal that can equal them for getting well after being wounded. It is said that a cat has nine lives; if that be true, the Canada goose has at least eighteen, nine on each side of the border.

In March, 1912, a wounded goose came to our park, rested a while in the water, then walked quietly towards the house and finally lay down, its feathers touching the park fence, just exactly thirty feet from our dining room window. I went out to it. She would not let me pick her up, but would allow me within four feet of her. That night it snowed fully six inches, and she drifted nearly all under but her head. I looked and thought she was dead, so I went up to her, upon the opposite side of the fence, and she did not move. I opened the gate and approached, but before I got within ten feet of her she awakened and would have flown but that I withdrew. (Notice how she knew I was now inside the inclosure). Well, that goose did not move ten feet for three days, eating a little snow now and then that had drifted there. I threw shelled corn beside her and she ate a few kernels. As the bank of snow had all melted on the fourth day, she walked to the water and drank, but came right back and lay down. But in about three weeks she was going over the top again. This goose had no limbs broken, but was shot through the body.

One of the most encouraging facts that have been demonstrated by my experiments with these most intelligent creatures is how readily and gladly they will come to man for his protection, or how easily this promise of our heritage is confirmed: "Let man have dominion over all."

Previous to 1919 our Canadian Government ignored all the requests my friends and I made to help me feed these birds, which belong to the people of America; and as I am not a man with means, I just feed them enough to tickle their palates and give them a desire to come back. The result is they scour the country for miles around, getting the ears of corn that are mostly knocked off by the corn-binders. This of course gives the shooter an opportunity, and one day in April a neighbor who was ploughing near by saw a single goose. He noticed it was going very slowly and showed signs of weakness, so he stopped and watched it. Instead of rising over the trees and dropping in the pond, it went under the boughs and came to the ground near the house. Little Jasper, who was then three years old, was outside playing. Running in the house he said to his mother, "Mamma, goose out here; goose out here, mamma." His mother saw by his looks and actions there was something out of the ordinary, so she went out with the little tot and he pointed under a spruce tree, the boughs of which touched the house. And there the goose, with her wings spread, lay dying. They called me from the factory, but when I arrived it was stone dead. On examination I found a buckshot hole under the wing, and it was evident that her "power-house" was punctured. The clotted blood on one foot proved to my satisfaction that she had been shot fully five minutes previous to dropping. Then I traced the blood back from where I picked her up and found that she lit within ten feet of our back door, for there, on the brick walk, was a big splash of her blood. In a few hours I found that this goose was shot over five miles away.

Do you wonder at me loving them? Can you blame me for feeding them beyond my means, when this is only a faint, roughly-written picture of their trust and confidence in me?

The real home of love is the heart, but the brain is apparently given power to educate the heart to either love or hate. But any man who does not love those who first love him, I don't think has either heart or brains, and to say he even has a gizzard would be a disgrace to these birds.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Do Birds Have a Language?

This is a question I have to answer, and I am fully prepared to say "Yes; yes, I know they do." As proof of this statement, one could shut me in and blindfold me, and if I can hear the wild geese I will tell you a certain portion of their actions, while if I were to hear a Chinaman talking I wouldn't know whether it was cleaned windows, dirty laundry, or ham and eggs he wanted me to have.

One evening last spring, after the wild geese had gone to the lake, I strolled back to the north pond to visit a pair of my own geese, but could not find them, nor would they answer my call. I came to the conclusion they had gotten out, and as I have had this pair thirteen years I became quite anxious. Daylight the next morning found me over half a mile north of the pond, watching and listening, to find trace of them. I finally saw hundreds of them coming from the lake and alighting all around the premises, mostly in the pond mentioned, and the air was continually echoing with their honks. Then I heard the voice of the gander I was looking for. I knew the tone, for I went straight to it, and found him guarding a nest with one egg in it. This explained to me why he did not answer the night before. Yes, I was over half a mile away when I heard and knew his voice from the thousands of others. And before you doubt my word, I want to ask you: If you were in a city of millions of people and on going to the telephone a voice you had been acquainted with for thirteen years or the voice of one of your own household came tingling into your ear, would you not know this voice? This question is just as reasonable.

On October 10th, 1917, as we were eating breakfast, six geese dropped on the pond. I left my porridge and went to the door and called "Chuckie! Chuckie! Chuckie!" The old gander raised his head and answered loudly. So I went to the barn and got twelve ears of corn, came back and went into the park where they were. When within about fifty feet I stopped and had a good look at them. Then, just to see what they would do, I threw an ear of corn at the old gander. The four young at once jumped in the air, but he just said "Ah-a-h! A-a-h!" and all dropped down again. So I threw another ear, and they again jumped, and he spoke again in exactly the same tone, "A-a-h! A-a-h!" (All is well!) and they immediately dropped on the ground as before. This was repeated several times. He may have told them that that fellow was strong in the back and weak in the mind and didn't care to eat us wild geese; at any rate when I threw the last few ears they took his word for it and did not attempt to fly. My reason for throwing the corn at him was to prove to my own satisfaction that he had seen me throw it before, as, when taking a bag of corn out, I sometimes stand still and throw it amongst them. This old fellow's confidence in the safety of this place will be fully explained to you when I say that he actually dodged some of these ears. Yet it took him fully fifteen minutes to convince his family that there was no danger. The goose, his mate needed no introduction to an ear of corn; she started eating the very first opportunity, but the four young were dreadfully shy of those golden ears of corn, and it did amuse me to see him introducing them to it. With one eye focused on me he would reach down and pick up the ear in his beak, shake it until he got that grain loose, then reach out and drop this kernel at the feet of one of these big babies. But when he did get them started they cleaned off nearly every cob before it came his turn to start in. Yes, as hungry as he evidently was, he stood guard until the other five ravenous appetites were relieved, then he willingly took the leavings. To prove they had come over the top for a long way, these six geese ate every kernel of these twelve small ears, at the one meal. Then after going in the pond for a few minutes they came out on the green sod to rest and did not fly around for a day or two.

In about ten days they were as tame as ours and I concluded we could drive them under the net. So one day when all was quiet and no strangers about, I asked my mother-in-law's daughter to help me and she cheerfully consented. We unrolled enough binding-twine to go clear across the pond; then as she held one end and I the other, stretching it about two feet above the water, we drove them quietly towards the net. Finally ours, which are educated to that purpose, led the way, the six followed them in and the trap-door fell. I, being so confident of getting them, had six tags already stamped, and they were in my pocket. So I opened the door and let our geese walk out. The six others huddled together in the corner of the pen, but as I approached the gander opened his wings and faced me. I at once overpowered him and clamped a tag on his hind leg, then took him to the door and let him go. Did he fly away to the lake? No! He did not fly two rods, but lit about twenty-five feet from the door, and his beautiful breast just heaved as he called aloud for his loved ones, "A-honk! A-honk! A-honk!" The interpretation is, "Come on! Come on! Come on!" As I was catching number two I heard a commotion at the door; I looked around, and this lady who was holding it preferred being on the inside looking out, for this old gander had come back and was fighting the wire to get in at me. To be brief, he never left the door until every one of his family was liberated.

Now remember, I am telling you about the same species of bird that I once crawled all the buttons off my wishbone wishing to get a shot at him with a high-powered rifle, fully three fields away; and, like thousands of other men who have tried the same plan, I seldom succeeded. But now he was trying to get where he could strike me with his wings. Well, for his faithfulness I recaught him and put a tag on each of his legs, making seven tags for the six geese. On each of these seven tags we stamped the following verse of Scripture: "No good thing will He withold from them that walk uprightly, Psalms 84:11." We named this gander Sir John Moore, after a noted, self-sacrificing General I have often heard father speak of.

They all migrated in December, and the first week in March I received the following letter:

To whom it may concern:

Outside of tag "Write Box 48, Kingsville, Ontario." Inside of tag, "No good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly."

These words were found on a band on a wild male goose's leg. The gander was captured March 1st, 1918, and I am doing as the words on the band requested.

He was certainly a nice one, weighing twelve pounds and as fat as butter.

I certainly would be pleased to hear from you telling me how, when, where and why the band was put on his leg, and I wish you would please tell me all you can tell me about the habits of the wild fowl up in your country.

They come down here in December, but the winter was so cold this year that they went farther south; but they came back in February and are still here. They feed in the rivers and creeks at night and at sunrise they fly out in the wheat fields for green wheat until sundown, and then go back to the rivers. They leave here for the far north about the middle of March.

I remain waiting for your reply,
Linden Archibald,
Kennedyville, Kent Co.,
Maryland, U.S.A.

I at once wrote Mr. Archibald and he kindly returned the tag.

On March 19th as we were eating dinner one of my boys spoke up quickly and pointing out the window exclaimed, "Look, father! Look!" And sure enough, here was Sir John Moore and four out of five of his family standing in front of the window eating corn, the two bright tags glittering on his legs.

This Moore family stayed together nearly all the time they were here, the five of them going to the lake at night and returning early next morning. Fortunately it was one of the young that got killed, hence the family was not broken up.

Now and then during the month of April the Johnson and Smith youngsters, yes, and sometimes the McDonalds and Jones' and other young Canadians too numerous to mention, would call on these three young Moores and all would go about the premises together, apparently playing "Pussy wants a corner," "Drop the handkerchief," "Coward, coward, can't catch me," and so forth. But I never knew these, or any other young Canada geese, to be gone from their parents over an hour at a time during their stay here in March and April, and I am confident these families do not break up until they reach the nesting ground.

Well, about the 25th of April, 1918, Sir John Moore and his family disappeared, and in August I received the following letter:

Fort George, Hudson Bay,
June 26th, 1918.

Dear Mr. Miner,—

Enclosed find four tags which I received this morning from an Indian; and as our boat is just leaving for the South, I am sending them to you at once. He tells me an interesting thing about these tags, as he says there was a flock of seven geese came to their decoys, and this Indian and another got four of them; each of which had a tag on it. One of the others killed by another hunter had two tags on.

There was a good flight of geese this spring, but not very many were killed.

The wavies, or snow geese, were very numerous this spring. The Indians say that they have not seen so many for a long time.

Hoping the tags reach you safe, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
L. G. Maver,
Fort George, Hudson Bay.

MORE TIMBER BURNED THAN USED

Since exploitation of Canada's forest resources began from four to five times the amount of timber actually used has been burned through forest fires.

Longevity Town Discovered

Following the recent discovery that 10 of the 100 inhabitants of Wroxall have celebrated their golden weddings and one couple had had a diamond wedding the tiny town is declared to be the healthiest and happiest in England. As girl and boy and as man and wife the mates have all worked together on the 2000 acre Wroxall Abbey Estate. The couples are: Mr. and Mrs. E. Cold, aged 83 and married 63 years; Mr. and Mrs. Pinfold, 82 and 58, married 56 years; Mr. and Mrs. Kibbler, 75 and 76, married 54 years; Mr. and Mrs. Showell, 78 and 74, married 54 years; Mr. and Mrs. Tarver, 69 and 68, married 51 years. Together they have had 33 children, 69 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. Each family has been brought up on from $2.50 to $3.75 a week.

Mother's fondest wish for her Girl Baby

—That Schoolgirl Complexion

THE rule in skin care, under modern teachings, is the same in infancy as maturity—correct skin cleansing regularly with mild and gentle soap.

Priceless complexions are thus cultivated from the earliest days of childhood; natural loveliness invited and protected with nature's own proved way.

The only secret is to know what kind of soap to use. A true complexion soap must be chosen. Others often are too harsh.

Thus soothing Palmolive — a soap made for one purpose only, to be used freely and lavishly on the skin—is the ONE soap purchased for toilet use in thousands of homes where correct skin care is an object.

The baby's bath—how to give it

A soft wash-cloth, a soft towel, baby's little tub filled with warm water. The sweet, soft Palmolive lather liberally applied. Then, thorough rinsing, thorough drying, talcum as usual.

The tender skin soothed and beautified — protected against any possible irritation and — that radiant schoolgirl complexion when she grows up — will be the reward.

Do not use ordinary soaps in the treatment given above. Do not think any green soap, or one represented as of palm and olive oils, is the same as Palmolive.

And it costs but 10c the cake!—so little that millions let it do for their bodies what it does for their faces. Obtain a cake today. Then note what an amazing difference one week makes.

GETTING along, and keeping happy at it, depend pretty much on what folks think of me, and how I strike them. And I've learned that that depends largely on my own outlook on people and affairs in general. Clear thinking; rightness of feelings, mood, attitude, and decisions—the sunny-side habit—fitness, energy, poise—they mean everything to me.

So I'm one of these HEALTH CUSTOM people, eating yeast three times a day, with every meal, and that means 366 days this year. More than two years since I started.

Made some wrong starts the first few days, too. Ate my yeast last, instead of first. Mixed it with other food, or put it on top of the meal . . . instead of the right way, eating it before or between, sending it ahead to prepare the way, and get all the forces of appetite and digestion at their best.

I was missing a lot of the benefit. But I knew what it was doing for other folks. And I kept right on. Found the best way. So much better it amazed me. Stuck to it ever since. No off-and-on about it.

To ever-increasing thousands, their thrice-daily yeast with each meal is a confirmed and matter-of-fact HEALTH CUSTOM, bringing a daily well-being, physical and mental—a serene joy of living—which they will never willingly forego. Every Forest Fire is a Job Killer!

In Canada to-day the condition of our gigantic forest industries is a barometer of our national welfare. If the forests be wasted through preventable forest fires prosperity must decrease and general employment conditions must suffer.

CARELESSNESS OF CAMPERS AND OTHERS CAUSES FIRES IN FORESTS, SAYS A. BLADE

Peterborough Man Has Gone Into Bush Every Summer For 50 Years.

EDUCATION NEEDED.

Great Value of Forests to Canada Indicated By Figures On Area Covered.

"Despite save the forest campaigns in the past, there have been many bush travellers who have not learned the need of exercising the greatest of care in lighting and extinguishing their camp fires," stated Arthur Blade, Sr., in conversation with The Examiner, as he worked in the Blade greenhouses, Park street north, to-day. "For the last fifty years I have been going up north and I have a summer place on an 87-acre island in Gold Lake. I have never yet seen a forest fire that could not be traced to carelessness on the part of some individual, and the best advice that I can pass on is that the campers not only from across the border but Canadians as well should be educated to think, first, last and always of the destruction which may be done by a neglected camp fire."

Among the most notable of all Canadian natural resources are those of the forests. From the days when early French settlers established ship-building yards along the St. Lawrence up to the present when our forests supply millions of tons of pulp, paper and other wood products yearly, these resources have been of immense value not only to Canada but to the empire. Canada's forest areas may be stated as follows—(1) the great coniferous forests of the Rocky Mountains and Pacific coast; (2) the northern forest, stretching in a wide curve from the Yukon north of the Great Lakes to Labrador; and (3) the forest extending from Lake Huron through Southern Ontario and Quebec to New Brunswick and the Atlantic coast. Estimates have placed the extent of timber in the Dominion at 1,226,720 square miles, some of which is agricultural land. About 442,000 square miles are covered with saw timber of commercial size. With regard to the quality of timber, it has also been estimated that the stand of timber of merchantable size in 1925 comprised 482,035,500,000 feet board measure of saw timber and 1,279,453,000 cords of pulp wood, the stands in Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia making up 43 per cent of the total.

Thus has the Canada Year Book for 1926 spoken of this very valuable branch of our natural resources. And it adds a thought which, at this time of "Save The Forests" campaigning every citizen should ponder. It is "that considerable losses have been caused by fire and other destructive agencies."

It will seem to the reader that "considerable losses" is putting it mildly after reading, during the past week, of such fires as have occurred in Northern Ontario as well as the more easterly provinces. Every year, despite the vigilance of an extensive forestry department with rangers systematically patrolling these areas by plane, by water and on foot, there have been forest fires and they have been started (directly or indirectly) by Human Hands!

HON. CHARLES STEWART,
Minister of the Interior, whose department, in co-operation with Provincial Governments, various Forestry Associations, and public-spirited citizens, is this week conducting a campaign to focus public attention on the need of prevention of forest fires.

FORESTS PROVIDE PLEASURE PLACES

Number of Summer Resorts in Wooded Area Increases Rapidly.

The great and increasing popularity of summer resorts all over the Dominion has been fully shared by the twelve now in operation in the national forests of Canada. Two hundred and thirty cottages already have been erected in these holiday meccas in our national forests, while the tremendous growth in the number of automobile tourists has been recognized by the provision of attractive camping grounds, with bathing houses, shelters, and fireplaces. At one resort the resident population during July and August was 700, in addition to 5,000 campers who were accommodated during the season. Many of the campers came from distant parts of the Dominion and from widely separated districts in the United States.

CONTRIBUTION OF FARM WOODLOTS

The last census showed that the total value of forest products produced from Canadian farm woodlots was $72,000,000.

FOREST INDUSTRIES PAY-ROLL

The salaries and wages in Canada's forest industry total annually about $100,000,000.

Railway Men Await Spirit

While police have broken up some of the spiritualistic meetings at Marburg, on the Austrian-Jugoslav frontier, railway men who were most fervid are still expecting the reappearance of the leader who committed suicide to prove that he could return to earth. He was Johann Schauperl, a ticket collector and his body was found hanging from a cross bar of a window in one of the railway depot waiting rooms. A farewell letter to his wife and spiritualistic friends told that he had committed the act to bring a report "from the other side" to their next seance. He begged his wife and seven children not to mourn over his departure, as they would see him again. Police prohibited the seance at which Schauperl's spirit was expected.

PULPWOOD FROM OUR FARMS

About one-third of the pulpwood used in Canadian pulpmills comes from farmers' and settlers' holdings.

INDUSTRIES DEPEND ON WOOD

Over 50 per cent of Canada's manufacturing industries depend upon wood as a raw material. Wood products enter into every phase of human life.

LOCAL FACTORIES DEPEND ON TREES

Stoves, Saw Mill Machinery, and Pulp Mill Equipment Made Here.

SAVE THE FORESTS.

Though more indirectly, firms such as the Adam Hall, Limited, manufacturers of stoves, also depend upon the forests to some extent, for wood is still used as fuel in many homes, and there is a big market for the special lumbermen's ranges which this firm sells.

The William Hamilton Company, Limited, which manufactures pulp mill and saw mill machinery quite extensively, and the G. W. Green Company, Limited, which manufactures saw mill equipment, are industries which benefit by the existence of the forests. Certainly Peterborough industries are vitally concerned with the preservation of the forests.

KEEP CAMP FIRES ON BARE GROUND

Low-Hanging Branches Easily Ignited By Poorly Placed Fires.

The low branches and dense foliage of the white spruce afford an attractive shelter to the camper in bad weather, and, unfortunately for the safety of Canadian forests, under the protection of its drooping crown is the favored site for the camp-fire. Campfires so placed have been responsible for much of the Dominion's forest loss. The true woodsman or camper who has the welfare of the forests at heart will recognize the danger of this practice, and will place his campfire in the open on bare rock or on mineral soil scraped clear of inflammable litter.

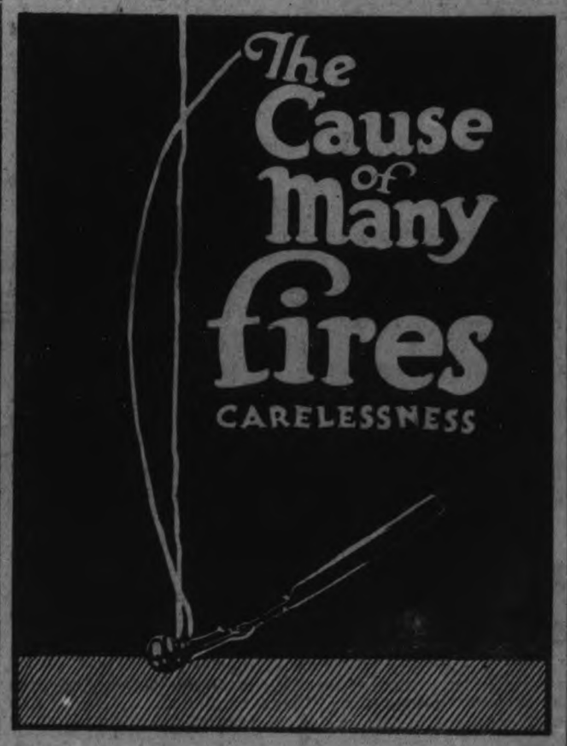
CANADA MUST KEEP CAPITAL UNTOUCHED

Should Use Timber Equal to Annual Growth of Forests.

The forest capital of the world is decreasing at the rate of eighteen thousand million cubic feet per annum, and if consumption continues to increase at the present rate this amount will be doubled in fifty years. In contributing to the world's wood requirements, if Canada is to fill the place predestined by nature she cannot continue her careless treatment of her forests. She must capitalize her forest resources, protect that capital, and use only the amount of annual growth.

INCREASE IN ANNUAL CUT

During the last fifteen years, the annual cut of timber for the production of lumber, lath, shingles, and pulpwood has been increasing at an average rate of 18,000,000 cubic feet per annum. For all purposes the increase is estimated to be 25,000,000 cubic feet.



FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Strangle Fire Before it starts!

Fire Prevention is a Necessity if we are to Keep Our Woodworking Factories Going!

To compute accurately the actual value in dollars and cents that the Canadian forests are to the city of Peterborough is a task that few would willingly attempt. A thought of the numerous industries in the city which depend solely or at least partly on the products of the forests as material from which to fashion their finished products carries an appalling sense of defeat; the numbers of men employed incidentally and the weekly payroll of each industry are all factors to be taken into consideration and added to the sum total of all these is the task of figuring just how many of those industries would exist where the forests in this country or of the entire continent passed out of existence.

Count up the industries locally which should be considered as using lumber in production of almost all of their products. One thinks of the McDonald Lumber Company, the Peterborough Lumber Company, the Canadian Aladdin Company, Canadian Canoe Company, and the Peterborough Canoe Company. Others, such as the C.G.E. and De Laval, use lumber to some extent.

The Canadian Aladdin Company is one firm which uses wood almost exclusively in the production of its houses which are so rapidly gaining in popularity. With a staff of twenty-five men now on the payroll and promise of this number growing as the busier summer season draws near, this firm is using up more than one million board feet of lumber per year and still more significant is the fact that at least 25 per cent of this firm's business is in the city of Peterborough. Kitchen cabinets, book cases and other household effects are also produced by Canadian Aladdin. Certainly it would not be the industry it now is were the forests to be completely lost to Canada.

In addition to his own personal desire as a citizen, B. G. Robinson, the manager, has, therefore, a very keen interest in the preservation of the forests whatever be the method employed. He voiced his hearty approval of the "Save the Forests" campaign and expressed the belief that his employees as well as himself are hopeful for the day when campers and bushmen will have realized the importance of taking every precaution against the forest fire.

Employing in the neighborhood of eighty men the year round, the McDonald Lumber Company is another Peterborough industry which would not exist as it does to-day were it not for the timber wealth of the Province and Dominion. During the winter, the majority of that number of men go into the camps of the company while in the summer they are employed in the Peterborough plant. From an ecomonic standpoint as well as civic those employees and Peterborough citizens are interested in the preservation of the forest wealth.

The Peterborough Lumber Company is similarly situated, depending entirely upon the forests of the country.

In approving the value of a Save the Forest week, W. A. Richardson, of the Peterborough Canoe Company spoke from the viewpoint of a business man. "As our industry uses wood almost exclusively", said he, "we cannot get along without the forests and as industries like ours try to locate as near to the source of supply as possible, we have found Peterborough among the best. We must not only be able to get the wood but we must get it at a reasonable figure; if the source were seriously depleted by fires the prices would go up and competition with others more ideally located would not be practicable.

"We employ about one hundred men all the year round and we purchase most of our wood right in this province, a fact significant in itself", he concluded.

The Canadian Canoe Company, like the Peterborough Canoe Company, depends on the forests for much of its supply and, so far as this city is concerned, might not exist were the forests of the province seriously depleted. The value of this firm to Peterborough is well known—it is another argument in favor of care and caution in the bush.

What takes years to replace may be destroyed in a few minutes.

The tremendous developments now taking place in Canada from coast to coast would be handicapped should our forests be further seriously depleted by fire.

In the past it is stated that forest fires have destroyed more of our standing timber than was consumed legitimately by manufacturer and builder.

Any program that has as its object the protection of our forests from fire should have th e hearty co-operation of all our citizens.

The Quaker Oats Company, Limited

Peterborough - - Saskatoon

There are many years of prosperity to look forward to in Canada if we appreciate our natural resources, one of the chief of which is the enormous heritage of timber of all kinds we are possessed of. Let us protect this valuable asset by assisting in every way we can to prevent forest fires, which is the chief enemy of the lumbering industry.

Wm. Hamilton Limited

Manufacturers of Sawmill, Pulpmill, Mining Machinery and Hydraulic Turbines

Prevention of Fire

in our forests will preserve the forest wealth of our country. As users of wood in a big way in the manufacture of our ready-made homes and other products of our plant, we can assure you that the ravages of fire in our forests will do more to increase the cost of buildings in this country than any other single agency.

Canadian Aladdin Company Limited

There Is No Doubt

of every loyal Citizen in the Dominion gladly assisting the different organizations that are doing all in their power to bring forcibly before the people of this country the necessity for the protection of our Forests from the ravages of fire. The activities of all such should receive the hearty co-operation of our citizens. No greater catastrophe could come to the Dominion at this stage of development than for it to experience the same timber loss as in the past.

Peterboro Canoe Co. Limited

Fire Prevention

Having been in the lumbering business for almost three quarters of a century, our firm can speak from experience of the terrible loss a forest fire occasions to those engaged in the industry. Not only does the individual lumberman suffer, but the country as a whole when our standing timber is destroyed by fire.

It costs less to prevent fires than to suffer one, and if we in this district of Central Ontario will do our bit in forest fire prevention, with other parts of the Dominion, it should be reflected on industry in general ,and help to keep our workmen busy.

Alfred McDonald Lumber Co.

It Would Be Disastrous.

Should this country be subject again to the same loss by fire to the natural resources of our forests as it has been in the past, it would be one of the greatest calamities that could happen to us as citizens.

Many industries are dependent upon the products of the forest for much of their business, and in our close contact with the lumberman in the distribution of our lumbermen's ranges we know the menace of a forest fire causes grave concern to all in any way connected with the lumbering business.

Let us do all we can to cooperate with any agency that is endeavoring to protect our forests from ravishes of fire.

Adam Hall Limited

PREVENT FIRE

Save the forest and reduce the cost of wood manufactures to you. If wood grows scarcer and still more scarce, then necessarily all products manufactured of wood must increase in price.

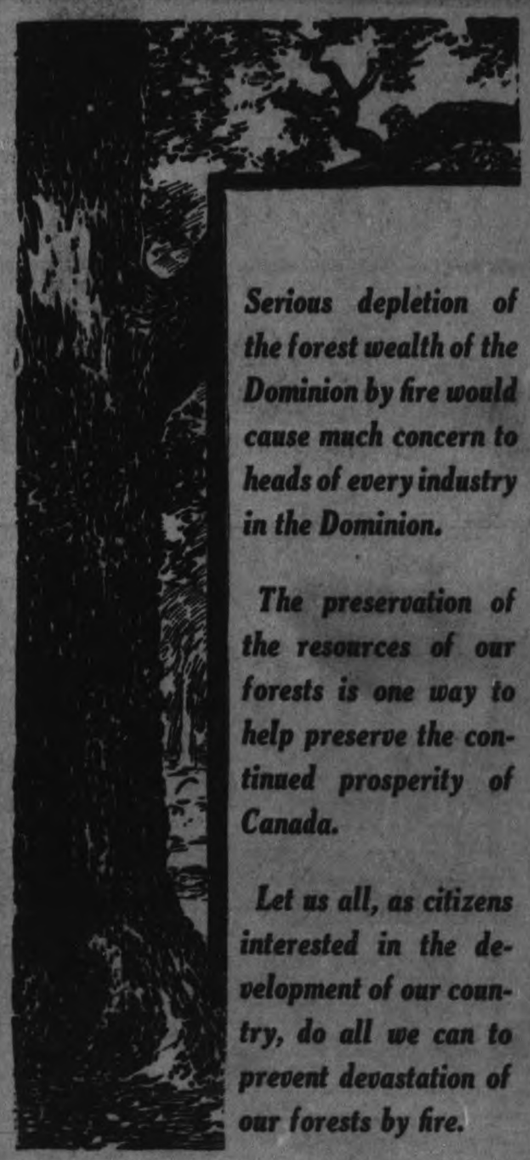
This applies to so many articles, from tooth picks to furniture, that it affects everyone.

A lighted cigarette carelessly thrown away, a cigar not entirely out, a spark from a pipe, a match dropped before it has ceased to burn. Any of such causes may start a conflagration that will destroy acres of standing forest, wipe out homes and other buildings, and endanger human lives.

IT IS EASIER TO PREVENT A FIRE THAN TO PUT ONE OUT.

The De Laval Co. Limited

Peterboro - Montreal - Winnipeg - Vancouver



Serious depletion of the forest wealth of the Dominion by fire would cause much concern to heads of every industry in the Dominion.

Let us all, as citizens interested in the development of our country, do all we can to prevent devastation of our forests by fire.

Britain's mammoth cruiser of the skies, the R-100, is now nearing completion at Howden, in Yorkshire, and it is expected that it will be ready to make its first transatlantic flight this September. The airship will have home ports on this continent at New York and Montreal, a site for an airmast having been set aside outside the latter city at St. Hubert. The single fare passage will cost between $400 and $500, each traveller being allowed to take 112 pounds of luggage. The passenger accommodation is complete as shown in the accompanying picture. (1) Is the promenade deck and the observation platform which overlooks it. (2) Is the dining salon. Food will be cooked by electricity in a central kitchen. (3) Is commander Charles Denniston Burney, M. P., and his wife, Gladys, who is the daughter of George H. High, a wealthy Chicagoan. When the R-100 makes its test flight she plans to accompany her husband, who is designer of the aircraft. (4) Is an artist's sketch of how the R-100 will appear in flight. The accommodation for passengers and crew is inside the envelope and above the control car in what approximates to a three storey house. The ground floor houses the crew while the second and third floors have passenger cabins resembling those on an ocean liner, lounge dance floor, dining salon and so forth.

The present attitude of the governments of Canada and the United States towards the head-of-the-lakes to tide-water ship canal and power project was revealed officially when correspondence between Ottawa and Washington was released simultaneously in the two capitals. The dominion government proposes that the United States shall build the navigation and power works in the international or Ontario section of the river at a cost of $274,247,000, thus providing, ultimately, 2,199,600 h. p. of electricity for equal division between the two countries; also that the United States shall deepen the upper lake channels at a cost of $85,100,000. That would make the share of the United States $339,347,000. On her part, Canada would be ready to spend $199,670,000 on the Quebec section, for which she would obtain for herself 943,300 h. p. This outlay would be in addition to the $115,600,000 is spending on the new Welland Canal. That would make the dominion's total share $315,270,000, not taking into account her expenditures on old canals. She has spent 80 million dollars on old St. Lawrence and Welland canals and on lower St. Lawrence deepening and $5,560,000 on a lock at the Soo. The United States has spent 48 millions on upper lake channels and the Soo canal.

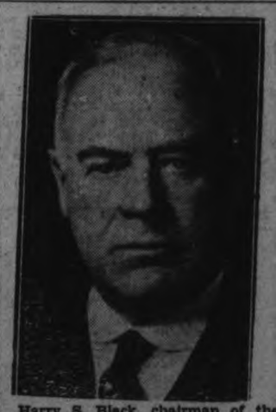
Piloted by Fitzmaurice and Bernt Balchen, a Ford tri-motored monoplane was sent from Murray Bay to many supplies to the stranded German 'plane Bremen on Greenely Island. In the above layout the giant plane, which is similar to Commander Byrd's Antarctic plane, is shown in No. 1. Below (2) is a close-up of the front showing its size in relation to Balchen and Bennett, who are also shown in insets (3) and (4).



Harry S. Black, chairman of the United States Realty and Improvement Corp., New York, a $50,000,000 Corporation, is now in Ontario. Mr. Black, one of the world's foremost realtors, is an old Cobourg, Ontario, boy, leaving that city to make his millions in New York 47 years ago. His visit to Canada has a business angle; he is seeking to enlarge his interests in the dominion.

French Jibe Channel Faker

French holiday makers of Menton during the recent carnival by displaying a float alluding to the London woman doctor who "swam" the English channel in a boat. The float showed the figure of the woman holding on to the leg of a giant duck by whose aid she was apparently getting across the channel. As duck in the French language is "canard" and the English instantly recognized what that word meant, in English, the hit was met with much laughter on the part of both the French and the visitors. On the float was also a boat, pushed by the duck, the manager of the swimmer, the weather experts, and the man who had certified that she had performed the feat, watching her do it through a blind telescope.

EMPIRE GOODS WELL DISPLAYED BY MERCHANTS OF THIS CITY

Stores Filled With Exhibits of Products, Mostly From Peterborough Factories.

PRETTILY DECORATED

Automobile Dealers Also Arrange Displays of Canadian-Made Cars and Parts.

"I heartily congratulate Canada on the inauguration of Empire Shopping Week throughout the Dominion. The increase of inter-Empire trade which it is the purpose of the movement to foster is an object which has my whole hearted support and I wish Empire Shopping Week in Canada an immediate and lasting success."

Thus read the cablegram from H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, patron of Empire Shopping Week in Canada, to the Hon. James Malcolm, honorary president and Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Empire Shopping Week is now in full swing in Peterborough. The whole-hearted response on the part of manufacturers and down town merchants has been most gratifying to the committee in charge, for, true to the prediction of chairman J. J. Turner, made some time ago, it is "going over big"—the shopper on George, Hunter, Simcoe, Charlotte, Aylmer and Water streets beholds many arresting displays of goods made within the British Empire. The tendency in Peterborough has been toward a display of Peterborough and Canadian made goods, due possibly to a "boost Peterborough first" attitude.

The show windows are worthy of more than passing note for in them manufacturer and merchant have endeavored to display most attractive goods in most pleasing fashion. Predominating in the decorative effects are flags of the Empire, the broadsides and streamers supplied through the courtesy of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and the Empire Marketing Board posters; lighting effects are made use of while the goods are so placed as to form pleasing color comparisons. In fact so well has the work been done, and so wide has been the response that there is something reminiscent of Christmas "gift suggestions" in it all.

During the week, the windows of the Teco Store are presenting to the public eye products of no less than eight Peterborough firms, most advantageously displayed through the skill of the window dressers of the store. Small wonder that they excited more than a little favorable comment.

There is a window for the sportsman in which the J. J. Turner and Sons Company, the Johnson Motors and the Peterborough Canoe Company have representation. In it, one beholds a beautiful Peterborough canoe; there are boating cushions, sporting kits, and awnings, and for the first time since its arrival here, the Johnson Company has on display several models of its outboard motors, including the big speeder.

In the windows facing on Simcoe street are the B. F. Ackerman Son and Company's display of leather products such as riding saddle, leggings, shoes, hat case, club bag, and trunk, while the neighboring exhibit is that of the G. Walter Green Company sawmill machinery manufacturers—a large double edger which has an appeal all of its own for the machinist.

Other firms exhibiting their wares in the Teco Store are the Canadian Aladdin Company which has a display of household furnishings such as cabinets as well as house building materials; the Quaker Oats Company with an attractive showing of cereals, flour and other produce planned and the J. C. Riedel Company, placing before the public, elastics, tapes and other goods.

The C.D.S.L. store windows, during the week have been quite in keeping with the Empire Shopping Week plan, Empire made goods being displayed, with flags playing a large part in decorating. The first exhibit was that of a chesterfield with models telling the story of the Empire while in another window are leather purses and bags and whole skins from which their like are made.

Grafton's spacious windows present a very attractive appearance these days for this firm is particularly well equipped to conform to the Empire Shopping week idea. It has long been a policy of Grafton's to purchase and sell only Empire made goods.

The north window houses a display of Canadian boy clothing worth seeing while in the south window are to be seen hats, caps, shirts, etc., all made within the Empire. The central or main window is, of course a little beyond its smaller neighbors for in it is to be seen a handsome canoe, product of the Canadian Canoe Company, round which are ranged men's suits, overcoats and haberdashery so as to be seen to best advantage. Adding color to the entire scene are flags and pennants strung along the whole store front.

The windows of the Peterborough Hardware Company and Kingan's Hardware Store lend themselves admirably to the Shopping Week idea for in the former the De Laval Company has placed dairy machinery and the Peterborough Canoe Company has arranged some of its products, while in the latter a number of stoves and ranges manufactured by the Adam Hall Company, Ltd., are to be seen.

The Western Clock Company is fortunate in that it has been granted windows of two jewellery stores in which to place a varied display of alarm clocks and watches, for many purposes. Schneider's and the S. C. Warne Diamond Hall are the firms which have extended this courtesy to the Clock Company.

In the windows of the Robert Fair Store, the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company has placed a number of beautiful rugs and carpeting materials worth seeing while the Nashua Paper Company and Canadian Sealright Company are showing in the F. W. Woolworth windows waxed paper products.

The two uptown stores of the Canadian Packing Company are showing its products arranged in attractive exhibits while practically all of the grocery stores, drug stores, stationery shops, boot and shoe firms, etc., are featuring Empire made goods in their windows.

Around on Water street the windows of F. H. Dawson show to a nicety, products of the Maple Leaf Milling Company.

Garages Also Respond.

The numerous garages and motor car agencies which handle Canadian made cars such as General Motors Products, Chrysler, Overland, Ford, Durant, and others, are, of course, in a position to easily display Canadian made goods while other men who chance to sell American cars have "done their bit" by arranging exhibits of general equipment which have been manufactured within the Empire.

At the J. J. Duffus garage on Water street the Canadian Raybestos Company has been accorded courteous treatment in its showing of brake linings, and asbestos products. In fact, the Empire shopping week spirit has caught the fancy of Peterborough's business men generally and the shopping week is proving truly successful.

BRIDES DINE "OLD FLAMES."

London's latest wedding-party idea is for the prospective bride to entertain her men friends at dinner, and the bridegroom to act as host to his women friends. The idea took well until it was realized that later there would be some questioning by both bride and groom as to the guests of the other. Another fashionable fad of the moment is the "hag party," at which the bride-to-be entertains her women friends on the eve of the wedding as does the bridegroom at his "bachelor dinner." This gesture of the assertion of the rights of the modern woman is much more popular than the "old flame" idea, and especially so among the brides.

Melba, the prima donna, has just returned to her home in Australia, after a tour in which she spent some time enjoying ocean bathing at Honolulu.

"We stood beside an open window in my office," says the owner, "and he made a gesture to emphasize a point just as I took my Duofold from my vest pocket.

"Out it went to the pavement below—eight stories down! Imagine my amazement when the office boy returned it whole—without even a crack!"

BOSTON BROKER MAKES KILLING

Buys Stock For $3 Years Ago, Which is Worth $116,000 Now.

COMPANY RE-ORGANIZED.

BOSTON, April 24. — Big killings on the stock market are not so common as they used to be but turning less than $3 into more than $116,000 within a year would have been something rather out of the ordinary even in the days of the most famous stock booms.

This is the actual experience of a well known Boston stock and investment broker, L. Sherman Adams, of No. 70 State street, whose home is in Wellesley, where his neighbors all know of his beautiful estate and his predilection for turkey raising—in his spare time.

It came to light yesterday and was verified by the Boston Globe that Mr Adams, slightly more than a year ago at an auction of odd lots of different kinds of stock bought several different kinds, including 1000 shares of the Wire Wheel Corporation stock.

At the time of his purchase of the stock in question the whole 1000 shares came to less than $3 in actual cash.

Fortunately for the purchaser there was a reorganization of the corporation not very long afterwards, one share of the old stock representing one third of a share in stock of the reorganzed concern.

Mr. Adams' 1000 shares represented 333 1-3 shares of stock in the new.

And stock in the new Wire Wheel Corporation is now selling at $350 per share. A little simple arithmetic will quickly prove that a trifle less than 3 has thus been converted into a fortune of close to $117,000 which most persons would consider a pretty luck coup.

Mr. Adams was little inclined to discuss his good luck merely remarking humorously that it was about time someone in Boston had a little luck and that killings of the stock market should not be the exclusive monopoly of New Yorkers.

RUB THE SPINE

If you believe the spine is the seat of most of your physical ills and more people are thinking so every day, just give it a gentle massage every night with Joint-Ease and watch the helpful results. Many people are getting it daily from Bond's Drug Store, McDermid & Jury, and other good pharmacists.

The name is Joint-Ease and it's the one big discovery for stiff, swollen, inflamed joints—and a tube for only 60 cents.

Performance Comfort & Safety Equal to Every Demand

The New Phaeton and Roadster

THERE is a satisfaction in driving the New Ford Car. You are impressed with the remarkable ease with which gears are shifted; the smoothness of starting as the clutch is engaged; the vigorous acceleration.

You ride in deep upholstery. Wide seats and ample leg-room ensure comfort even on a long drive. Flexible springs and four hydraulic shock absorbers protect you from the shocks of the road.

Your hand on the steering wheel finds an instant response to the slightest turn. Your foot on the brake pedal brings the car to a quick, safe stop. Steel bodies with narrow pillar posts and a shatterless glass windshield add to your safety.

And when your drive is over and your car stands in front of your home, you feel the same pride in its handsome appearance that you derive from its mechanical excellence.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Cuthbertson Honored at Social Gathering Held in Havelock.

HAVELOCK, April 25.—A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Cuthbertson on Saturday, when about forty friends gathered to present them with a beautiful fernery and table, before their departure for Sulphide. Mr. C. Jamieson presented the gifts which were accompanied by an appropriate address read by Mr. J. Little. Mr. and Mrs. Cuthbertson were taken by surprise but responded in a few words, thanking their friends for their kindness, after which the evening was spent in cards and dancing, with the service of dainty refreshments at the close.

Birthday Party.

On the occasion of her tenth birthday anniversary, little Winnifred Chiles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Chiles, entertained a number of her small friends at a birthday party on Saturday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock. The tables were arranged in T shape, and were attractively decorated with potted plants and candles. Miss Bessie G. French, of Trent River, assisted Mrs. Chiles in serving tea. The program consisted of a number of jolly games. Winnifred was the recipient of many pretty gifts.

Among those present were: Helen Covert, Isabel Plunkett, Florence Jones, Isabel McQuigge, Betty Mathison, Irene Pollock, Norma Bullied, Marion Akins, Marguerite Clarke, Marjorie Lang, Betty Ormiston, Reta Lesson, Edna Rigby, Helena Davies, Dorothy Quinn, Edith Davies, Verna Isaac, Hazel McCutcheon, and Minerva Isaac.

DISTRICT CHURCHES.

Trent River United Church

TRENT RIVER, April 25.—The Rev. W. R. Archer chose his text from Jeremiah 18:1-4, the topic being "Potter's Clay". The Potter is the Great God, stubbornness in clay is the most common disease amongst us. The figure of clay in the hand of the potter, he tried to fashion the first vessel he had planned, but failed, not because of the potter but the resistance in us, the clay in us is not yielding enough, we have not learned the rule of absolute surrender. God loves his child, He has planned it shall be ideal. We should have Jesus Christ as our pattern.

The church is the child's home and it is our duty to bring it up in the nurture of the Lord. The clay in the hand of the potter was the Children of Israel, they were continually falling away to idolatory, God has given to each one of us the right to choose, we should always listen to the voice within, we must realize that God's plan is highest and best and if we would only let Him have his way with us, His plans would wrought out. We must spend more time in prayer, then we may get definitely the glory of the vision splendid, under His divine goodness we will gradually rise to all that is best. Mr. Archer emphasized the fact that the minority was always right and the majority wrong. "We must walk in the way that leads to the foothills of peace. We should make absolute surrender if we let Him have his way with us, He will keep us. Will we"?

GIFTS TO LEADERS FROM JUNIOR W.A.

Children of St. Thomas' Church Make Presentations at Closing Meeting.

MILLBROOK, April 25. — Miss Muriel Smith and Mrs. (Rev.) P. C. Howard, superintendent and associate superintendent, respectively, of the Junior W.A. of St. Thomas' Church, were pleasantly surprised on Monday afternoon, at the closing meeting of the organization for this season, when the children remembered them each with an appropriate gift. Miss Smith was presented with a fountain pen, and Mrs. Howard with a beautiful picture. Eva Howson read the address in each case, Mary Vance offering the gift to the superintendent and Evaleana Todd the one to to the associate superintendent.

Both recipients made suitable reply, each expressing interest and pleasure in the work, and appreciation of the fine spirit in which the young folk co-operate in the missionary activities.

Another interesting feature of the meeting on Monday was the packing of the annual bale for which the members have been sewing since their weekly gatherings began following the holiday season. A dainty layette and a warm quilt were among the articles sent forward to the W.A. House at Toronto, where their ultimate destination, on some mission field, will be decided upon.

Miss Muriel Smith has been the efficient superintendent of the Juniors for approximately three years, the sewing and other activities being under her jurisdiction, while the mission study each week has been presented in a most interesting and instructive manner by Mrs. Howard. The latter assumed her office since Rev. Mr. Howard came here as associate clergyman of the parish.

The Juniors meet each Monday in the Parish Hall, immediately they come from school, and now that the work for the bale has been completed, their gatherings are discontinued until September.

The leaders served tea on Monday, at the conclusion of the regular session, and the young folk enjoyed a happy social time together before dismissal finally took place. The membership list is approximately twenty, but the numbers have recently been depleted by the removal of some families from the community.

WEDDING BELLS

EASTERBROOK—BAKER.

HAVELOCK, April 25.—A quiet wedding was solemnized at Stouffville, Ontario, on March 31, at the residence of the Rev. C. E. McLeod, when Jane M. S. Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Baker, of Stouffville, became the bride of Ernest T. Easterbrok, of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Easterbrook, of Havelock.

After the wedding a reception was held at "Cedarvale," the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Easterbrook will reside in Oshawa.

WEIR—DAVIS.

OMEMEE, April 25.—In Windsor on Saturday, March 31st, a wedding of interest to Omemee people was quietly solemnized when Ferne Elaine Davis, of Detroit, was united in marriage to John Harold Weir, of Detroit eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. David Weir, of Omemee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Thomas, of Windsor, formerly of George Street United Church, Peterborough.

OBITUARY

HENRY J. CAMBIE.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 25. — (Special).—Henry J. Cambie, doyen of Canadian railway builders, passed away in Vancouver early Monday morning at the age of 91, a life that had left its imprint firmly on many great rail projects in Canada ending peacefully in the beautiful setting that Mr. Cambie had made his home in his declining years.

Mr. Cambie's name was indelibly inscribed on the pages of British Columbia history as chief engineer of the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway through the Fraser canyon and by years of exploration that prefaced his actual building operations with the Canadian Pacific's trans-continental achievement.

Mr. Cambie came of an old Irish family, and with his parents and brother emigrated to Canada at the age of 16 years. He plunged into active work in the new land as an engineering apprentice, and before the age of 30 was in charge of construction of his first railway, the Windsor-Annapolis, now a part of the Canadian Pacific Railway system "in the Acadian Land" of Nova Scotia.

Mr. Cambie's ability as a construction engineer was recognized by the Government in 1874, and he was sent out to British Columbia to conduct a series of explorations, one of his chief duties being the selection of a terminal site for trans-continental railway. It was largely due to his judgement and foresight that the Canadian Pacific brought its first train into the present terminal in Vancouver on May 23, 1887.

JOYCE GWYNNETH BEATRICE ABBOTT

MILLBROOK, April 25. — The funeral of the little twin daughter of Mr and Mrs. John Abbott, Joyce Gwynneth Beatrice (Glen), took place from Saint Thomas' Church on Tuesday, April 24, at 2 p.m. A private service was held at the house at 1.30 o'clock.

An attack of 'flu three weeks ago, followed by serious complications, led to the death of the little girl at Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital on Sunday, in the early morning hours. She was aged six years and three months.

Besides the bereaved parents, to whom the sympathy of the entire community is extended, she is survived by two brothers, Eric and Hugh, and her twin sister, Meaghen.

Rev. P. C. Howard had charge of the services, speaking at the church fro mthe text: "And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not body that shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat or of some other grain, but God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed His own body," 1 Corinthian, 15: 37, 38 The keynote of the address was the hopefulness of a resurrection.

The pall-bearers were: Basil Richards, Percy Bingham, Gerald Raper, Cameron Vance, George and Henry Gray. There were some beautiful floral tributes laid upon the casket.

Interment was in St. Paul's cemetery, Fourth Line, Cavan.

GEORGE STRINGER NEW GAME WARDEN

War Veteran Appointed to Succeed Late Joseph Burns at Madoc.

MADOC, April 25.—George Stringer, formerly of Fort Stewart, but who has recently moved to Madoc, has been appointed Game Warden to fill the vacancy which occurred through the death of the late Joseph Burns. Mr. Stringer served overseas during the Great War, and, as he had a good knowledge of the north country, should be a very capable official. Nearly fifty applications were received for the position.

"Ask Me Another" About the Empire

How many questions do you suppose you could answer about the Empire's industries? — After the manner of the popular pastime, "Ask Me Another?" Here's an opportunity to test your knowledge:

What is Coventry in England famous for manufacturing?

Coventry was famous for weaving ribbons before the 17th century, and for its dyed thread, known as "Coventry true blue." This is the color used in so many Masonic and regalia ribbons.

Where were net curtains first made by machine?

Nottingham, England, produced the first machine-made net in 1768. And to-day provides most of the net used all over the world —even for the fine laces made in France and Switzerland.

When did the wearing of silk become a well-established industry in England?

From France the art of silk weaving spread to England. It was firmly established by the Huguenots, who took refuge in Spital fields (London) after the Huguenot massacre of 1572.

What silks are made in Canada?

Floriswah is one of the most beautiful silks made in Canada (in Quebec). Crepe de chine and georgette are woven in St. Catharines.

Where does jet come from in the Empire?

Jet comes from Whitby, England.

A Debt We Owe to a Scotchman

Stockings! Deadly dull as a subject, you might think. You just take them for granted. Never wonder what kind of stockings our most ancient of forefathers wore. Then we discover that up to the year 1500, the poor dears wore stockings cut from cloth, until a Scotchman conceived the idea of knitting stockings from yarn by hand. The Scots with their love of bright colors, made them, as an historian relates, of "changeable color, cunningly knit and curiously indented." The description reminds us of bright patterned stockings recently arrived in our Stocking Section

So much for wool stockings!

THE HOSE OF "GOOD QUEEN BESS"

About the year 1575 Queen Elizabeth's "silk woman" knitted her a pair of silk stockings, after which the Queen wore no other kind. When Lee, a clergyman of Nottingham, invented a stocking loom a few years later, the Queen refused to give him a charter for it, fearing it would deprive some of her subjects of a livelihood. He took his machine to France, but later his brother established a knitting industry in Nottingham. And this was the origin of machine-knit stockings in England. To-day many of our stockings come from England, though more are knitted in Canada.

PONTYPOOL TEAM ELECTS OFFICERS

Decides to Enter Same Baseball League as in Previous Years.

PONTYPOOL, April 25. — The annual meeting of the Pontypool Baseball Club was held in the office of Albert Stewart's shop on Saturday evening, with a fair attendance. Charles Taylor was chosen chairman and John Payne secretary for the meeting.

It was decided to enter the same league as last year, and the members were very optimistic, and felt sure that they would bring back the cup to Pontypool that they lost in the play-offs last year.

The following officers will look after the interests of the club for this year:

Hon. president—Rev. Mr. Boomhour.
Manager—Mr. Albert Stewart.
Assistant—Mr. Murray Clarke.
Captain—Mr. Charles Taylor.
Secy.-Treas.—Mr. John Payne.

The team is open for a game for May 24, and expect to have the same snappy aggregation they had last year.

The Y.P.L. meeting was held on Thursday evening under the auspices of the Missionary Department, with Missionary Vice-president M. E. Hinton. Owing to the absence of the president, Rev. Mr. Boomhour took charge of the opening and devotional exercises, after which an interesting talk was given by M. E. Hinton. The games were under the charge of Miss Mabel Kellar and the advertising contest was won by Miss Grace McMahon and John Payne.

Divine worship at the United Church was fairly well attended on Sunday evening. The pastor, Rev. H. Boomhour, delivered a fine sermon, his text being "Neither will I condemn thee; go and sin no more."

EASTER OFFERING RECEIVED BY W.M.S.

Keene United Church Ladies Hold Annual Service, Followed by Social.

KEENE, April 25. — The Easter meeting of the W. M. S. of the United Church was held in the club room of the church with the president, Mrs. G. S. Taylor in the chair. Mrs. Richard Short and Miss Bryce, read the Bible lessons and Mrs. Archibald led in prayer.

A number of business items were discussed followed by the roll call by the secretary, Mrs. Kindred, and the report of the treasurer, Mr. Macfarlane, which was read and adopted. The Easter thankoffering was $73.80.

A splendid recitation, "As I Loved You," was given by Mrs. S. Comrie and Miss Bryce read the devotional leaflet.

An interesting part of the program was the presentation of an address and a beautiful leather handbag to Mrs. Melling, who is leaving the community, Mrs. Melling thanked the society and wished them every success in the future.

At the conclusion of the meeting a most delightful supper was served by the losing side in a drive which was conducted during February for the purpose of getting new members, Mrs. D. F. McIntyre winning with a total of 26 as against Mrs. H. J. Nelson's 21, which brings the membership to 103.

An invasion of gypsies into Cannes, France, recently caused a protest to authorities that the unwelcome visitors were "too dirty."

LEAGUE EXECUTIVE PLANS MEETINGS

Bailieboro Young People Will Have Busy Spring Season.

BAILIEBORO, April 25. — The Young People's League executive of the Bailieboro United Church, held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Norman Thompson and planned a very interesting series of meetings, which will continue until the latter part of June, when the league closes for the summer.

In the plans for the ensuing meetings a sports day was arranged to be held on the 3rd of June.

Personals

Bruce Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher, is recovering favorably after a severe illness.

Mr. Wilfred Johnston of Oshawa spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnston.

Mr. George Tabscot of Port Hope is visiting friends in this vicinity.

SOUTHERN RIVERS OVERFLOW BANKS

Great Property Loss Caused in Six States During Night.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 24 (Canadian Press). — River banks in parts of six Southern States had vanished to-day beneath the spring torrents that shot toward the crest almost overnight to isolate a score of towns and villages and cause millions of dollars' damage.

Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas, and Tennessee felt the scourge of the rising waters in the order named, with Florida presenting the most serious flood spectacle in the evacuation of Caryville. More than six hundred residents fled hurriedly as the inundation caught them almost unawares.

Georgia appears to have borne the brunt of the damage. Cordelle reported four railroads into Florida and Alabama paralyzed and all highways blocked.

Many Alabama towns were isolated. In Mississippi, the Pearl River had risen 28 feet near Jackson.

Authorities were hopeful that the recession of flood waters, except in Arkansas, would be as rapid as was their rise, but the crest in many areas should not be reached until to-morrow.

Obituary

HARRY PAYNE.

WARSAW, April 25. — The funeral of Harry Payne, who died in Peterborough last winter, will take place on Sunday, leaving Bellegham's undertaking rooms at 1.30 p.m., reaching Warsaw at 2.30 p.m. It will be wholly in charge of the Canadian Legion.

ROBERT TELFORD.

The death occurred last evening of Robert Telford after a short illness. The deceased was born in Smith in 1856 on the farm on the Chemong Road which his eldest son still occupies. He was a son of the late William Telford the poet. In politics he was a staunch Liberal. He was a member of the Smith council for a number of years; also a chartered member of the C.O.F., and was highly respected throughout the whole community. His wife predeceased him eight years ago; also his youngest daughter Mrs. Richardson, who passed away just seven months ago. He leaves to mourn his loss two sons and three daughters, namely William of Smith, and Bruce of the city; Ethel and Mrs. George Metcalfe of the city, and Mrs. T. J. Gillespie of Toronto; also three sisters, Mrs. John Logan and Mrs. John Grant of this city, and Mrs. William Nicholls of Bridgenorth. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

The funeral will be held on Thursday at 2 p.m. from his home at 78 McDonnel street to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. William Allan will officiate.

In a jeweler's window in Nice, France, Mme. Giraud recently found a diamond necklace which she had buried in Russia during the revolution.

C.N.R. Earnings

MONTREAL, April 25 (Canadian Press). — The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ended April 21, 1928, were $4,524,304, as compared with $4,339,393 for the same week of 1927, an increase of $185,911, or 4 per cent.

MEN WHO LED

Q.—Was there any firing by your company?

A.—None whatever.

Q.—Did you meet with any opposition?

A.—No.

To Mr. Regan witness said he saw two Germans dead on the eastern outskirts of Mons about 7.30 a.m. on Nov. 11, but could not say how they were killed.

Mr. Regan asked the witness was there an attack on Mons by his company. "As far as my company was concerned we passed through Mons," the witness replied.

Q.—Did you see any dead Canadian soldiers in Mons?

A.—No. I always understood there were no Canadians killed in Mons.

Q.—You will not say there were no Canadians killed?

A.—No. But I am led to believe there were none.

Q.—Since last week?

A.—No. I have believed it for the last 10 years.

Q.—Was there any firing?

A.—There was no firing after midnight.

The witness told Mr. Tilley he signed the Armistice order for his company at battalion headquarters at 7.45 in the centre of the city of Mons.

Questioned as regards the statement of a witness for the defence last week that he saw two members of the R.C.R. dead in Mons, witness was of the opinion he must have been mistaken as the R.C.R. was north of the city.

Sgt. William C. Wade.

Following Capt. Findlay, William C. Wade was called to the witness box. He gave his profession as an estimator, and stated that he was a sergeant in Capt. Findlay's company of the 42nd Canadian Infantry. His description of the movements of the company and the times mentioned coincided exactly with the evidence given by the former witness. The company found no enemy machine guns in Mons. They proceeded through the city and advanced to the high ground east of the town, where posts were established. Witness' platoon did no firing, had no casualties, saw no Germans, nor civilians, save some citizens fighting among themselves in a court yard. He saw no dead Canadians.

To Mr. Regan's questions, witness replied that the reason there were no Canadian dead was because there was no fighting. Witness said he heard some firing of machine guns, a long way off, on the right flank. The reports of Sir Arthur Currie and the first army were not correct where they stated that there was stubborn machine gun firing the night of Nov. 10-11. To more specific questions on the subject of enemy fire, witness replied: "I don't know." To others he replied that he wouldn't agree.

Mr. Regan: "To use the words of my friend, Mr. Tilley, you wouldn't agree with the enthusiastic welcome by the citizens of Mons and the promiscuous kissing."

Witness: "I don't agree with kissing."

The entire court laughed, and even His Lordship smiled broadly.

Mr. Tilley asked but one question when Mr. Regan was finished: "The evidence you have given is with respect to your own platoon only?"

A.—Yes, sir.

Pte. William Kerr.

R. H. Parmenter, K.C., took up the examination of the next witness, Pte. William Kerr, of the Princess Pats. Witness said he went overseas in 1914 and remained until the end of the war, being in Mons Nov. 11, 1918. During the 9th of November he moved from Jemappes towards Mons. Along the route they took cover, being held up by enemy fire. Outposts were thrown out and these followed considerable machine gun fire south of Mons. Mr. Regan complained about Mr. Parmenter asking leading questions, and His Lordship told Mr. Regan to turn up the definition of a leading question.

Q.—Had you any casualties?

A.—One.

Q.—Where?

A.—Near the boulevard outside of Mons.

Q.—Who?

A.—Corp. Carlton.

Q.—When?

A.—The night of the 9th.

Witness said his company was relieved by the R.C.R. on November 10. Asked by Mr. Regan if there was any fighting around Mons, he said a few little scraps.

Mr. Parmenter asked the witness if he had previously served in the army and witness replied "I was in the Imperial Army serving under Lord Kitchener."

Capt. S. K. C. Burness.

Capt. S. K. C. Burness identified himself as a captain in No. 2 Company of the P.P.C.L.I., at the time of the Armistice. Illustrating by use of the large map the captain detailed the movement of his company of the Pats from Jemappes to Mons. These movements were spread over a period of three days, November 9, 10, 11.

The first Germans encountered were two who were surprised and ran away. Later a German patrol was encountered and killed by the Pats. Two other Germans were encountered later. One of these was captured, the other killed. When night came, Captain Burness established machine guns posts on the roads leading to Mons.

His company was very weak, about fifty to sixty men, and was twice attacked by German parties. Both these attacks were repelled by the Pats who suffered no casualties. This was on the evening of November 9. All the attacks were made by the Germans. Corporal Carleton was unfortunately killed in an attack by the enemy about 2.00 a.m. November 10th. The Canadians were acting in a defence manner. No. 2 Company was relieved and returned to Jemappes for rest. Their next orders came on the morning of November 11 at 9.00 o'clock. The regiment was ordered to parade at nine o'clock to march into Mons to observe the Armistice.

Corporal Carleton was buried in Mons February 13th with other Canadians. Witness could not say how many were buried that day. To Mr. Regan, witness said he was not present at the funeral. He could not say how many men were usually killed in counter attacks. He admitted the attacks were usually very fierce. The company was very fortunate in not having suffered a large number of casualties.

Witness stated he knew nothing of the fighting on other parts of the Canadian front. He would not say Corp. Carleton was killed in the capture of Mons. He was killed in occupying an outpost position at a point on the map which the captain indicated by a series of letters and a number. The point was not the village of Mons.

Another attempt by Mr. Regan to introduce the proclamation by the Burgomaster of Mons was ruled out by His Lordship when both Tilley and Parmenter objected. Captain Burness stated firmly that he "never dreamed" of the Armistice being signed till he was wakened on the morning of November 11 and ordered to have his company on parade at 9.00 o'clock.

Although headquarters had sent a message out to all commanders to conduct German envoys through the lines if they presented a white flag, witness said he never received any such communication and the signing of the Armistice was news to him.

Col. Ewing.

Col. Ewing, war time commander of the 42nd Battalion, was the next witness called by Mr. Tilley. Witness in describing the action previous to November 10th said his battalion had been following up the Princess Pats but on the 10th they were ordered to relieve that famous unit.

"Up to the morning of 10th we were carrying on as a reserve battalion but on that day two companies were detailed to the advance, another one was in support, and the other in reserve", he said.

"On the night of the 9th I went to a conference at brigade headquarters and the instructions given to me were to take the high ground east of Mons.

We did not want to leave casualties and the company commanders were told to make their way forward but preserve their men. Every one of them was an experienced officer. A Company of the R.C.R. was in here when we took it over and they came under my command."

Q.—Did you have any casualties?

A.—From the 9th to the 11th we had six killed and twenty-two wounded, out of which two were killed and ten wounded at the transport line in Jemappes. In the forward area four were killed and twelve wounded. Four of the wounded in the transport lines died."

Col. Ewing told Mr. Regan that the 42nd relieved the P.P.C.L.I. in several places. One was 200 yards south of Mons.

Mr. Regan produced the war diary of the 42nd Battalion and Col. Ewing said it was looked up as a necessary evil of the army.

Q.—How many did you have killed during the month?

A.—Six killed, twenty-three wounded, four died of wounds.

Q.—Apart from the four casualties on the ninth at Thulan the others took place on the 10th?

A.—Yes.

Hard to Believe.

Asked about the Armistice, Col. Ewing said he found it hard to believe that it had been signed the morning after when he wakened up.

"You were a little better off then than some of the others, Colonel?" said Mr. Regan.

"Some who didn't go", was the Colonel's reply.

Q.—What did you do when you got the word of the Armistice?

A.—There was little to do as the troops had taken the ground they were ordered to.

Col. Ewing told of hearing that there might be an Armistice from J. F. B. Livesay, now head of the Canadian Press, who was a press representative during the war.

On the 10th Mr. Livesay told me that the Canadians were assured of Berlin. I answered I would like to believe it. Mr. Livesay then said he was going for a walk but he soon returned as machine gun fire greeted him, he said.

In an effort to jog the witness' memory a little, Mr. Regan read from orders issued by battalion headquarters. These said that instructions were at once sent out to all companies of the battalion.

"That would be the ordinary procedure," replied the witness.

"I'm very much obliged to you Colonel. I think you have done more for us than you had perhaps intended," Mr. Regan stated, and then asked if the Canadians had their hearts set on the capture of Mons.

"The first time I heard of it was in this court," the witness replied.

When shown pictures from the London Times of the Canadians in and around Mons, which purported to show the Canadians had sworn to capture the town, Col. Ewing did not recall having seen the pictures before and did not agree with the printed matter under them. He knew of no such oath taken by the Canadians.

Mr. Regan—"Why was Mons captured?"

Witness—"Because it was an obstacle in the path of our general objective."

Laughter Annoys Counsel.

Mr. Regan—"Oh I know that." Laughter in the court brought a second appeal from Mr. Regan to the bench to rule out any such demonstration since it was not easy for him to proceed. His Lordship did not think the interruption sufficient to merit his rebuke. Two minutes later Mr. Regan was again the object of the court's mirth. He countered by threatening to appeal to His Lordship if the witness made any more clever remarks.

Later, another attempt by Mr. Regan to quote from an outside authority brought a prompt objection from Mr. Tilley and a rebuke from the bench for his persistence in attempting this sort of thing.

Questioned why Sir Arthur Currie had not sent out certain orders Col. Ewing could not say anything about what Sir Arthur Currie did or did not do.

Mr. Tilley did not wish to question the witness further so he was allowed to step down.

His Lordship stated that he had asked the jury if they desired to continue the session during the evening. They had not expressed themselves as being desirous of sitting so the case will continue during the usual hours, beginning at 9.30 in the morning.

DANCER WINS LONG RIDE.

Practically all France paid homage to Miss Galatry, a seventeen-year-old Hindu dancer who rode horseback from Paris to Cannes recently, covering the 576 miles of hard modern roads in less than two weeks. So great was the number of autoists who crowded the road into Cannes, that the plan for an escort of polo players had to be abandoned, and it was with difficulty that she drove through the throngs of pedestrians in the city. She was closely followed by Mlle. Grosse, and two other female competitors finished later. The feat was acclaimed remarkable because of the dancer's youth and training.

"High Kigger" Knocked Out By Extremely Painful Back

Gin Pills Saved Him Pain and Money

Mr. J. F. Miller's letter contains priceless advice to people who suffer from backache, and shows clearly the value of Gin Pills as a prompt relief for ailing kidneys:

"In the woods last Fall I was soaked to the skin for days. Cold got me in the back. I was so bad the woods boss wanted to send me to the city for medical treatment. One of the boys advised Gin Pills. In four days I was back on the job. Nearly all of the boys carry Gin Pills in their pack."

Neglect of kidney trouble is very dangerous. Backache is not the only symptom — dizziness, brick dust in urine, spots before the eyes, headaches, swollen joints, painful, scanty or too frequent urination are others. Take Gin Pills immediately and prevent Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, acute Bladder trouble. All druggists carry Gin Pills. 50c a box. DRESS

Women wear aprons to adorn their frocks. This blue crepe de chine frock has an apron of blue and white printed crepe de chine that extends into a sort of surplice collar above the belt.

I never knew a season when there were so many possible ways of making over old frocks in the latest mode as there are at present. That is one of the advantages of an ampler, more elaborate style of dress. So long as the straight one-piece, collarless, cuffless, flounceless dress remained in fashion there was very little that could be done to add a touch of novelty after the first freshness had waned. Now there are all sorts of collars and cuffs, fichus, jabots, berthas and even yokes. There are panels, insets, tiers, drapery, at the side, front or back—which by the clever home dressmaker may be placed just where the original fabric needs to be covered.

Aprons—or rather apron effects—are back in fashion again and this type of overdrapery offers a clever way to bring a last season's frock up to date.

And speaking of aprons—I have noticed that maids' aprons are becoming more and more elaborate lately. Once any woman was satisfied to have her maid appear in a machine-made apron of good material. If it was immaculately fresh and in good condition she was satisfied, but the new aprons that women are buying for their maids are made of the finest materials and show elaborate hand embroidery and even insets of real lace.

Much more attention is being paid to the subject of uniforms too, and the other day a friend of mine said she had to order new uniforms for her entire household. The old outfits were in perfect condition, but, as she explained, she had her house redecorated and she had to get new uniforms to match the hangings.

NOT TOO MUCH SALT

Salt is a condiment which pleases the palate of every race of mankind, and of many other animals. Although savage races have lived without it, whenever it has not been obtainable to any great extent, human beings have fought and killed each other for it. This craving for salt is wholly because of its agreeable taste, and not because the system requires it in any way.

Common table salt is composed mostly of sodium chloride, but of course many incidental impurities have not been extracted. It is such a mineral as lead, and cannot become a part of the cell structure of the body.

Organic sodium chloride is found in nearly all of the plants, and in meat and similar protein foods, and although it resembles the mineral sodium chloride as far as chemical tests are concerned, its effect on the body is entirely different.

Many people claim that this salt is natural to the body, and point out the fact that animals use it at every opportunity. This of course, is no argument that the salt is good for animals or for humans. Salt is exciting to the taste buds. Every animal, including man, that is dumb enough to use too much of it must suffer the consequences!

There is absolutely no necessity for either man or animal to use salt, and the irritating effect upon the mucous membranes of the body is very destructive to the animal organism.

If food is improperly cooked, its taste will be improved by the addition of salt, but the first thing to learn is how to prepare foods so the natural salts are retained in sufficient quantity for the food to hold a desirable taste. It is the height of folly to put salt on any uncooked vegetable.

The use of excess quantities of salt is very injurious to the kidneys and liver. As these organs are unable to eliminate a large amount of salt, other toxins of body are retained because of this. Such ills as Bright's Disease, cirrhosis of the liver, hardening ease, cirrhosis of the liver, hardening of the arteries, and high blood pressure can be encouraged and developed through the use of an excess of salt.

If the ordinary salted butter is used in flavoring vegetables and meat, it will be found that the salt contianed in the butter will be sufficient for all requirements of the taste.

Salted meat and fish are not desirable food because the action of the salt upon them is to toughen the protein particles and to make them indigestible. They are profitable articles for commercial purposes and are, therefore, good for the packer, but not for the user.

One danger in using salt is that it over-excites the flow of saliva and digestive juices, and increases the appetite for food for which the body has no real hunger. Thus, the use of salt adds to the danger of overeating, which is one of our greatest national offenses. Also, large quantities of liquid must be taken in order to dilute the salt in the body. The old-time saloon keeper who put pretzels on the free lunch counter knew his business.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Anita writes: "I have a very fair skin and it stays red with sunburn all summer. Can you suggest a way to make my skin tan?"

Answer: Your skin will gradually become more tanned if you will regulate the time your skin is exposed to the sun each day. But if your skin is very fair you will never be able to get the same tan that a brunette gets. However there should be some satisfaction in the knowledge that the blonde really gets more good from the ultra-violet rays of the sun than the brunette who tans so quickly. When the skin becomes dark with tan, the curative chemical rays of the sun are shut out more than with the fair, pink skin.

Question: Mrs. J. K. L. asks: "Are there any certain foods which contain all of the vitamins?"

Answer: Yes, there are a few foods which contain all the vitamins. You will find them in tomatoes, fresh string beans, carrots, oranges, lettuce and milk.

Question: W. H. D. asks: "Can a floating kidney be cured without operation?"

Answer: A floating kidney can always be raised to position through developing the abdominal muscles. Sometimes it is a good plan to go to bed for two or three weeks and take exercises while remaining in the recumbent position. If there is any ache in the kidney, this can be overcome if you will assume the knee-chest position two or three times daily, thus allowing your kidney to slip back into normal position.

WANTS OLD STYLE COTTAGE RETAINED

Sir Frank Baines Deprecates Trend To Modern Bungalows in Britain.

LONDON, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—An earnest appeal to his audience to bestir themselves in the effort that is being made to preserve the architecture of Great Britain's old cottages was made recently by Sir Frank Baines, who lectured on the subject here. Sir Frank was formerly Director of Works in charge of the Royal Palaces and Houses of Parliament.

"We find today," he said, "a horrible outbreak all over the country, a bungalowed, fungoid growth, that is occuring throughout the countryside. This remarkable effort of the Government in building a terrific number of houses under the Housing Act is producing a stereottyped form of what the Government thinks should be the architecture for the people. Once, if you travelled up and down the country, you could see a domestic archecture so distinctive that you could tell the traditional methods used in their construction. But, by the Government's method, you find the same type in all counties This is not right, and unless we preserve tradition we shall lose all from local craftsmanship that was one of our greatest glories from the thirteenth century onwards."

Referring to the appeal launched by the Royal Society of Arts for the restoration of cottage architecture, in which the Prime Minister had taken so keen an interest, Sir Frank said that Premier Baldwin was more likely to reach Heaven for that work than for all his political activities. (Laughter).

Cottages, said the lecturer, were disappearing from a variety of reasons. The landlord was not to blame as he had not the funds to preserve the buildings. The modern builder converted these beautiful old cottages into "desirable residences".

"We should go out with our firearms and shoot this kind of person," added Sir Frank, "but unfortunately, that is not allowed." Local interest, however, should prevent that sort of thing in future.

"In the future," said the lecturer, "we shall probably lose our industrial supremacy, and we shall all be caretakers, showing tourists round our buildings showing them the beautiful old cottages that we possess. So your future job will be going from you if you allow these buildings to be demolished. Our cottages are an absolutely indigenous part of our civilization, and, as such, they must not be allowed to fall into decay".

LYRICS OF LIFE

BELIEVERS

There are believers on this earth
Who think they disbelieve,
And fill their pages with their mirth
And but themselves deceive.
They watch the sunset's fading light,
Yet neither weep nor warn,
But lay them down with faith at night,
And rise with faith at morn.

They turn a switch and light a spark,
For this they understand,
And prove the day comes after dark
By some directing hand.
They glibly talk about the pow'r
That makes the lamp to glow,
And thus admit the morning hour
Some Mind has ordered so.

And there are scoffers I have heard,
Of fools, or maybe both,
To whom their God was but a word,
Their Father but an oath.
Men talk of rain who know of rain,
And sod who know of sod;
And he who takes His name in vain
Declares there is a God.

A HAPPY WORLD

We've made the world a rich old world
With satins, silks and gold;
On every gale our vessels sail
With fortunes in their hold.
Our pulleys sing, our spindles turn,
The earth we dig and ditch—
With mines and mills and ringing tills
We've made the old world rich.

We've made the world a wise old world.
Yes, wise in every lore;
We've solved at last life's secret past,
The future now explore.
Concerning man, concerning God,
We question and surmise.
We have not only made it rich—
We've made the old world wise.

We've made the world a different world.
Who says the task is through?—
With one undone, the greatest one
There is for men to do?
We've made it rich, we've made it wise.
And now, a little while,
Let's make the world a happy world,
Let's make the old world smile!

HOROSCOPE
The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1928, McClure Syndicate.)
FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1928.

This is an uncertain day in which adverse aspects appear to dominate. Not a time to make any sort of a venture in romance or in business.

There is a sign of large promise for oil and oil interests, but it may not mean immediate good fortune for consumers, because it involves long delays.

Under this planetary government the mind should be keen and even psychic in its vision.

It is well to postpone large projects and there may be unavoidable reverses.

This is not an auspicious day for dealing with large corporations. Many will be concerned in far-reaching expansion.

The seers explain that the future will offer opportunities to highly trained men and women, but the unskilled will be more and more handicapped.

All occultists appear to agree that the world is reaching a supreme height in the development of physical achievements and that the realm of the spiritual soon will be entered for scientific investigation.

The rule is inimical to persons who hold high places, making them arrogant as well as uncertain of tenure.

It is not a favorable day for seeking preferment from employers or public men.

Congress comes under a sway making for party feuds and personal enmities from which new leaders rise.

Newspapers will continue to prosper in the present year which appears to presage large amalgamations and many changes in ownership or management.

Breach of promise suits may develop under this planetary government which is believed to encourage unions without benefit of clergy.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be careful in all their personal relations this year. Many enmities are indicated.

Children born on this day may be obstinate and self-willed, but intelligent and able to win success.

Why We Do What We Do.

WHY WE HATE TAXES

By Mehran K. Thomson, Ph.D.
(Author, The Springs of Human Action)

Men have always hated taxes. Taxes have kept bad company. Tribute was collected by force from those who could not defend themselves. What was wrung from the hard hand of peasants was squandered by the overlords on selfish extravagances. The tax gatherer was looked upon as a traitor, a highwayman.

Something of this odium carries over to modern times. We look upon taxes as at best a necessary evil.

Lack of confidence and charges of graft in the administration of public funds have done much to create a feeling of hate for all forms of taxation.

The money we pay in taxes is for the benefit of the whole country or for a district and only indirectly beneficial to us personally. Abstract benefits are less appealing. The good of the community is so vague as compared with a fine suit of clothes a nice vacation trip, numerous concerts and prize-fights, we could get with our money. We make the mistake of assiming that we could get all of these things instead of just one for the price of the tax.

There are so many people involved that we think our money will not be missed. Many otherwise honest people try to get out of paying taxes. Not infrequently they hedge a little and sometimes a whole lot. We are willing to let the other fellow pay the taxes. There is the same peculiar attitude towards large corporations.

Witness the number of honest people who try to cheat the railroad or smuggle goods into the country to avoid duty charges. Taxes come in the same class.

We hate to pay taxes because it hurts to part with a lump sum of money all at once. The best kind of a tax is one that is extracted gradually over a long period and in small installments. The gasoline tax does not frighten anyone. And yet the average driver pays out in the neighborhood of twenty dollars a year. How a man would howl if he was required to pay down twenty dollars a year for road tax!

WOODS PRESERVE WATER SUPPLY

Forests are nature's preservers of water supply. The forests floor, being porous, retains the maximum amount of rainfall. This physical condition combined with the mechanical obstructions of tree roots, retards the rapidity of run-off. Excess water is released gradually and the equilibrium of stream flow is preserved. In like manner the melting of snows in the springtime is delayed by the lower temperature and shade in the forest, so that the danger of floods is lessened.

road towards Mons again encountered the enemy. In anticipation of a German retirement during the night Captain White ordered his men to retire. On the morning of the tenth one platoon moved forward toward the position where the Germans were, and came in contact with a small outpost of the enemy, killing one, but suffering no casualties. A second platoon proceeded in another direction. The officers went into a house and hearing noises in the street found the Germans in the street.

The Germans then made a counter attack and he asked for artillery reinforcements, and got shrapnel about 8.30 on the German machine gun posts.

During the rest of the morning the men all took available cover and the Germans maintained machine gun fire along the road and a field gun also firing on a position where these roads converge to enter Mons. A staff officer came up and Captain White asked for reinforcements, and about noon a company of the 42nd Battalion arrived and he billeted his men.

Five Men Wounded.

Q. — Had you any casualties?

A.—I had five men wounded — all from shell fire on the cross roads. On the night of the tenth Captain White asked permission to enter Mons from Major Grafftey of the 42nd, and about 1 a.m, he entered and billeted his men.

Q.—When did you hear of the armistice?

A.—During the morning about 10 o'clock I heard a band playing, saw a parade and fell in behind, and on asking an officer what it was about I was told the armistice had been signed.

Captain White told Mr. Regan that when he heard the armistice was signed it was absolutely the first time he heard of such a thing.

Mr. Regan— "I suppose you were glad to hear the war was over?"

His Lordship—"Why war was over? It was an armistice that had been signed."

Mr. Regan—"Well, the war was over for everyone except the Canadians. They fought until 11 o'clock."

His Lordship — "I understand an armistice is cessation of hostilities which may be renewed."

Q.—Why were you anxious to be in at the kill?

A.—We wanted better billets in Mons.

Q.—You were not one of the Canadians, I suppose, who had sworn to be in Mons before the war closed?

A.—I was not.

Q.—Was the revenge sweet?

Never Thought of Revenge.

A.—It never entered my mind anything about revenge.

Q.—When was Lt. Stevens captured by the Germans?

A.—On the morning of the 8th.

Q.—Was he in your company?

A.—Yes.

Captain Home, commander of A Company of the R.C.R., was told to tell the Court what his company did during the days leading up to November 11th. "On the 10th, my company relieved a company of the Princess Pats, under the command of Captain K. C. Burness. About 600 yards outside of Mons the leading platoon encountered enemy machine gun fire, and my men took cover in the houses. During the morning of the 10th we attemped to advance behind a bridge going down the left with a section of men, but during this we were held up by machine gun fire. We possibly could have made it, but we did not wish to risk the men's lives. In the afternoon I was ordered to report to Col. Ewing, of the 42nd Battalion. He told me my company was attached to his battalion, and he ordered me not unduly to risk the lives of my men. At five o'clock on the morning of the 11th, I got written instructions to move into Mons and reached the railway station about 6 a.m."

Q.—"Did you have any casualties on the 10th and 11th?"

A.—"No, sir."

Q.—"Did you encounter or hear any fighting on the morning of the 11th?"

A.—"None after 1 a.m."

Mons Was Recaptured.

Mr. Regan produced a copy of the Toronto Globe, in which the report of the unveiling of the monument at Mons last summer was reported and the speech of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Speaker of the House of Commons. "I will have more to say later about the speech," said Mr. Regan.

"It is stated that Mons was recaptured. What have you to say about that?"

"It was recaptured," said the witness.

"Was there an attack?"

"As far as I know there was none," said Captain Home.

Mr. Regan read the speech of Mr. Lemieux, and questioned the witness as to its credibility. Witness in some cases did not agree as far as he was concerned. In reading about the funeral, witness said he was not there and could not tell anything about it.

"I suppose the funeral of a few privates—" began Mr. Regan, but His Lordship stopped him from continuing the statement.

the further statement which he feared might follow.

Q.—"When did you hear about the Armistice?"

A.—"Captain Grafftey told me at 6.30 at the railway station."

"Now you tell me you heard it at 6.30, and Col. McGee swore in the witness box that he was sending the message out at that time."

"It might have been later than 6.30," witness replied.

George Little, commander of the Princess Pats when the war closed, was then called. Witness said he was a resident of London and went over as a lieutenant in a reinforcement company of the Princess Pats.

On the eighth we entered Jamappes, and on the night of the ninth I was told the objective would be the high land east of Mons and at all times to keep in touch with the enemy so he would not disengage and put up a more stubborn opposition. On the eighth and ninth we had severe opposition and around midnight of the ninth we were notified we would be relieved by the R. C.R.

Q.—When did you enter Mons?

A.—About 10.15 a.m. on November 11.

Q.—When did you hear of the armistice?

A.—At 7.15 a.m. in Jemappes!

Number four company wished to stay in the line and were allowed to by permission of the relieving commander.

FIRE LOSS HIGHER.

A peculiar feature of the fire at the Munroe Hotel on Tuesday afternoon was a dense pall of smoke which hindered the work of the firemen. The upper storey of the building was filled with smoke, which, according to Fire Chief Gimblett, was due to the burning partition being of beaverboard material.

Incidentally, the Fire Chief stated that the loss would prove to be far beyond an estimate hurriedly arrived at on Tuesday, there being a loss of fifteen hundred dollars, or more, rather than five hundred dollars.

IN POLICE COURT

Charged with the theft of C. M. Moncur's car on Tuesday, April 17, Arthur King appeared in police court this morning, and was given a preliminary hearing at his own request, that he might be tried at a higher court. Accordingly one witness was heard, namely, William E. Heard.

Heard, who himself faces a charge in the same connection, was given the protection of the court at the request of his counsel, B. E. Park, after which he told of riding with King in the stolen car on a trip out through Warsaw to Dummer. On the return, the car gave trouble at Lakefield, where a conversation with the village constable resulted in his leaving the car and walking to Peterborough.

With the conclusion of this evidence King was committed for trial.

Steven Tuck, an employee of the B. F. Ackerman, Son and Company, was remanded until Monday, April 30, on a charge of having stole from that firm, goods to the value of approximately $150.00.

The case of William Elgie Heard was next on the docket, he facing a charge similar to Arthur King, namely the theft of C. M. Moncur's car. He pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried summarily by the magistrate but his counsel consented to the Crown's request for an adjournment until May 9.

Charles Cook a farm laborer, appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning, charged with conducting himself in a disorderly manner in a local theatre recently. A fine of $10.00 was imposed, accused having promised to go to work immediately and pay the fine within a month.

Obituary

PATRICK HOBBINS

In the account of the death of Patrick Hobbins the day of the funeral was omitted. The cortege will leave the house at 8.45 to-morrow (Thursday) morning and proceed to the Sacred Heart Church and St. Peter's Cemetery.

MOOSE HOLD SMOKER.

A very enjoyable smoker was held on Monday evening by L.O.O.M. 813, at their hall, Hunter Street. A large number of members and friends were present. The following artists appeared:

Teddy Markham, comic song.
Ferdy Mowry's Collegians.
Charlie MacDermott, magician.
Max Peters, monologue and comic song.

Brother Smith led the community singing.

Past Distator Austin gave an address on 'Aims and Objects of the Moose."

Mr. Farrance, song.

Smokes and refreshments were served and the evening closed with community singing.

EXAMINER HOLDS STAFF CONFERENCE

strives to create a friendly feeling in those with whom he comes in contact, as opposed to the type that has a strictly business-like, formal method of getting news, and the undesirable sort of person who will slip around trying to steal, if he cannot acquire in other ways, any bit of news that may be available.

Instancing examples of the success attained by those who in those days followed up the first plan, he spoke of John R. Bone, present managing editor of The Toronto Star; W. Bert Roadhouse, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for the Provincial Government and Mr. Anderson, managing editor of The Toronto Globe. Of an example of the last-named, unlikeable type of reporter, he said the man he had in mind was still a reporter for The Toronto Telegram.

The ability to distinguish what is news, to get the salient feature of it, and to play it up in the story was recommended as another requirement, and Mr. Cowan went on to emphasize with force the quality of accuracy. This quality, he said, would cause the readers to come in time to believe that everything in the paper was accurate, it would do away with the danger of libel suits and other complications which sometimes arose out of the use of wrong initials, and it would help the income of the paper from advertisers.

The question of speed in obtaining and publishing facts was another desirable qualification. Newspapers were at present spending large sums of money in chartering airplanes and in other ways, to get to the world as fast as possible the news from the aviators at Greenely Island. "News may be new now. In two hours, it may be of no use at all."

Summing up the various qualifications of a good reporter or correspondent as having to do with the cultivation of a pleasing personality, the ability to distinguish and play up news of value, the quality of accuracy, and the quality of speed in obtaining news, Mr. Cowan closed a very fine speech to the sound of much appreciative applause.

Mr. Heron extended to those present and to their several districts a challenge for encounters with The Examiner's softball team, which is eager to join forces with possible opponents.

Owing to difficult travelling conditions, many of the correspondents were unable to be present today. Several were compelled to come to the city last night and others had other trials to encounter. One lady came a portion of the way in a canoe and another had to travel eight miles by buggy and about twelve miles by car before she reached the train which brought her the rest of the distance.

Those present were: Mrs. F. M. Staples of Cavan, Mrs. D. F. Garvey of Douro, Mrs. George Whitfield of Springville, Mrs. Wellman of Bemaview, Mrs. J. Wilson of Young's Point, Mrs. L. A. Mahood of Omemee, Mrs. P. Perdue of Downeyville, Mrs. Ira Lowe of Mount Pleasant, Mrs. David Miller of Warsaw, Miss Margaret Mann of Smith, Miss Freda Monerief of East Emily, Miss Bessie French of Trent River, Miss Winona Cuthcart of Cavan, Miss Mildred Harrison of Thomasburg, Miss Ida Clare of Norham, Miss Katie Anderson of Havelock, Miss Blanche Graham of Lakefield, Miss Pearl Burnham of Millbrook, William Edgar of Toronto, W. J. Cottrell of Marmora, F. H. Barnard of Bailleboro, John Payne of Pontypool and J. S. Dickson of Campbellford.

Canadian Forest Week- what it means!

By Royal Proclamation the week of April 22-28 has been set aside as "Canadian Forest Week." During that period an intensive campaign, urging greater protection and conservation of our forests, will be carried on throughout the Dominion.

Of Canada's original forest wealth, estimated at 925 thousand million cubic feet, we have cut for use 13 per cent. or 120 thousand million cubic feet; we have burned 60 per cent. or 555 thousand million cubic feet, and we have left 27 per cent. or 250 thousand million cubic feet.

"Canadian Forest Week" has been instituted in an effort to bring home to every Canadian the vital necessity for each citizen to do his part in protecting Canadian Forests which, in the value of their products, are second only to agriculture.

This message is, therefore, an appeal to every citizen of Ontario to accept, as an individual, his share of the responsibility for perpetuating a Canadian asset of such tremendous importance.

Free trees for wind-breaks hedges and forestry purposes

Any landholder in Ontario can obtain free 3500 trees for forestry purposes and 500 spruce trees free for wind-breaks and hedges. For full particulars write to the Forestry Branch, Lands and Forests Department, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

ENGLISHMEN OF CITY

past and is to-day, we have a great part to play in maintaining that connection.

"You will wonder why I, a Canadian of four generations, am linked up with the S.O.E. I belong to it because of the British traditions it upholds and the British connection which it demands."

The Condition of the Order.

He reviewed shortly the condition of the order. In some places it is growing and in others it is not. It felt the weight of the war .Mistakes were made when it was started and it was necessary for the government to order a revision of rates, but now it is on a sound basis.

Englishmen should all join up with the society. Lodge is not so attractive now as it used to be because there are so many other things to be done. The lodges have to be made attractive and the more zeal and effort one puts into the lodge the more one gets out. "We want to put our best into the S .O. E. so we may get more out and others may also get more."

The speaker expressed regret that there is no juvenile lodge in Peterborough. The juveniles, he said form a most progressive part of the movement and provide a feeder for the senior branch. There are many other opportunities to get members for the order.

There will probably be a great influx of English immigrants. Canon Baynes-Reed spoke of the districts in the west where the majority of the people do not speak English. He told of a resolution of the General Synod calling on the government to put a quota rule on the immigration from Middle Europe, and urged that pressure be brought to bear on the government to encourage the immigration of British.

"We must recognize that God has blessed us because we have tried to do His will. We are the greatest missionary nation, the greatest colonizing nation, the nation that stands up most for the oppressed. We have made mistakes, but the man who never made a mistake never made anything.

"There is a great work for the Sons of England to do in fostering these ideals and helping keep Canada within the Empire."

A selection by the orchestra was the next number, followed by a solo by Mrs. Custance.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave was the next speaker. He deemed it a great privilege to share in the celebration with the Sons of England and with Rev. Canon Baynes-Reed. April 23 is the day when Englishmen everywhere feel that thy want to celebrate that for which St. George stands. Wherever they have scattered, and Englishmen are pioneers to be found wherever men can go, their thoughts go back to what they always call the Motherland.

It is fortunate that there are such societies as the S.O.E. to foster such sentiments and traditions and to arrange for such celebrations as this, he continued. These sentiments unite Englishmen wherever they may be, and there are not many parts of the world where there is not some part which is "for ever England."

Englishmen are not supposed to be sentimental. They are not easily stirred, but when stirred something has to move. There is a difference between sentiment and sentimentality. Sentiment is deeper than this, and Englishmen have a good share of it. Englishmen are not inclined to boastfulness; they shrink from showing off their feelings and become self-critical. Consequently they accomplish great things in a simple way, without ostentation. That sentiment is deep-rooted in tradition. It has been beaten out on the anvil of experience and gives restraint and moderation, which produce strength.

"It is well for us to realize that all the experiences and traditions of English life have come down in our blood," declared the speaker.

English Ideals High.

These traditions bring ideals, of which Englishmen will admit that they fall far short, but history will show that England has been always far in advance of any other people. He cited the liberation of slaves, brought about because of English love of freedom. Many refugees also found shelter under the flag of England.

With all her self-criticism, England has cherished her ideals and has came closer to them all than any other nation. England has a peculiar culture, which is shown by her great statesmen who gave their services freely to the state. In England it is not so much what a man has, but what a man is that denotes his worth. No land has had such a galaxy of great men as England, with such as Gladstone, Asquith, Balfour, and Baldwin. As long as a nation can keep in the forefront such men, it is a sign of its culture.

Another realm in which England is great is that of letters. Other nations have had all their great poets and writers at or about the same time, but England has had her writers in continuity for centuries. England has been famous for her great contributions to the literature of the world. Her language, too leads the world in use.

The Sons of England make a great contribution when they give the people an opportunity to regard the traditions of their mother land and maintain those peculiar bonds which hold the Empire together. This is another great accomplishment of English people, for no other Empire has been held together in such a way.

"To-day we pledge ourselves to preserve the crown and the flag of Great Britain and to preserve the crown and the flag of Great Britain for the Empire."

Bert Cutmore then contributed a solo and was encored.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., admitted that he was not of English descent, being of Irish and French extraction, but the strains of "Rule Britannia" and "God Save the King" make his blood tingle.

Mr. Bradburn dealt for a few minutes with the glories of Ontario, stressing particularly the great resources being opened up in New Ontario. On one river nearly three times as much power is being developed as on the Trent system. Great work is being done in other parts of New Ontario such as at Fort Frances and Kenora. He mentioned the work being performed by the air service patrolling the forests for fire prevention. In 1922 fire destroyed 348,000 acres of timber, and in 1923 over two million acres, but in 1928 only 82,000 acres were burned off. Six more planes are being put on for patrol this year.

There is great mineral wealth in the north country ,parts of which have been barely scraped over.

At Kapuskasing a great paper plant is being built to manufacture the pulp as its export has been stopped. This plant will produce a trainload of paper a day.

Mr. Bradburn gave credit to the development of the north country for preventing real hard times in Old Ontario a few years ago.

After a cornet solo had been played by J. Constance, H. L. Beal moved a hearty vote of thanks to all who had helped make the evening a success. Then the National Anthem, sung as only Englishmen can sing it, brought the evening to a close.

OLD TYME QUARTETTE

(By Jeanette.)

Once again the Old Tyme Quartette of singers from Toronto delighted local audiences, when they made their appearance last night in St. Paul's church, and gave a very enthusiastic audience a splendid program of music, in solo and quartette numbers, that were interspersed with readings by Miss Margaret Smuck, who also received a large meed of appreciation from her listeners. Encores, doubled and tripled, were the order of the entertainment, the listeners, numbering about seven hundred, evidently being extremely pleased with the quality of the program offered by the visiting artists. The Quartette, which appeared, as on the occasion of the last visit, in old-time costumes, the ladies wearing crinoline and ruffles, off-the-shoulder gowns little 'pan-cake" hats and old-fashioned nosegays, and the two men in Pickwickian dress of tight breeches, long coats and high stocks, includes a soprano singer, Miss Marjorie Waters, a contralto Miss Steethel Walton,a tenor, A. C. Chapman, and a bass, W. H. Norris. Mrs. Chapman plays piano accompaniments for the group.

A pleasing feature of the entertainment was the presence in the front seats of the old people from the Protestant Home, who were brought down in cars by members of the congregation. They were manifestly delighted with the program.

A very interesting introduction was given by the fine organ recital by M. B. Chenhall, played for half an hour preceding the opening of the program.

Rev. Mr. Allan spoke briefly at the beginning, thanking the members of the Ladies' Aid Society and the Amos Bible Class and Mr. Chenhall. He also thanked the performers at the conclusion, and asked for a further expression of appreciation, which met with a resounding and lengthy burst of applause.

It is almost impossible to choose any number as outstanding, as every single item, whether of a solo or quartette type, was so very good. The soprano voice of Miss Waters is quite notable. It has a quality of sympathetic feeling and expression that is not always present in the clear-cut soprano tones. Its possessor sings like a bird with a golden, warm, very high voice, singing out its heart in the sunshine of a spring day. It has a sweetness and resonance which thrill the hearer.

The characteristic of the radio singer is present in all the work and words of these musicians. They sing with the most perfect enunciation, every word having its full, fine value. And they sing with ease and perfect self-confidence. The harmony of the four fine voices is a glorious example of quartette singing, whether demonstrated in accompanied or unaccompanied numbers.

Miss Walton, the contralto, has a very deep, rich voice of soft timbre, the tenor voice of Mr. Chapman is filled with sweet expression and silver melody, and Mr. Norris' bass is one of those extraordinarily deep, warm, cello-like voices that are thoroughly satisfying. The elocution of Miss Smuck rounded out a very enjoyable program, the young reader possessing a great deal of dramatic ability in her presentation of various types of readings, with a musical voice and a charming stage presence.

The program included quartette numbers as follows: "Down Where the Lilies Bloom," with its unaccompanied encore, "Sweet and Low," and a little bit of nonsense in "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son"; "Eileen Alannah," with bass solo, "Rose of My Heart," a lovely bit of sentiment with a glorious finale by the soaring soprano; "The Lost Chord," the "Largo" or "Massa Dear" number from Dvorak's "New World Symphony"; with the call of the slave to his dead master melodiously interpreted by the four splendid voices; and two request numbers, in the quartette arrangement of the "Sextette" from "Lucia di Lammermoor," and an old English laughing song which set the audience into mirthful spasms.

In turn, the bass sang a verse of "Old Black Joe," the contralto, "My Old Kentucky Home," the soprano, "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny," and the tenor, "Silver Threads Among the Gold." In a medley of old favorites, in which the audience was asked to join, they gave some of the wonderful old-time music, "Long, Long Ago," Swanee River," "Juanita," "Jingle Bells," and "Good Night Ladies." A little bit of hilarious fun that was superbly executed was the dramatic recital in song of the story of "Old King Cole," and a fitting close, after Miss Smuck had recited the verses of the fascinating "Wild White Rose," was the singing by the quartette of "Abide With Me."

Miss Smuck's readings, which received the same enthusiastic applause that greeted the vocal numbers, included "Norah and the Twins," "How to Manage a Husband," with a little encore about a baby sister, and a story of a thrilling race that proved the pre-eminence of the reader's ability and brought another encore.

Mr. Norris sang "Asleep in the Deep," as a bass solo, Miss Walton's contralto numbers were "Calm as the Night" and "In Time of Roses," Mr. Chapman's tenor was heard in the pathetic expressiveness of the Scotch favorite, "Will Ye No Come Back Again?" and Miss Water's glorious soprano soared out in the sweetness of "Annie Laurie" and the thrill of "The Standard on the Braes o' Mar," sung by request, with the singer in Scotch costume.

Mr. Chapman also gave a brief recital of some of the experiences of a quartette, in concert and radio work.

Care-free and Happy!

This is the great heritage of childhood—and nothing is more lovely.

A mother's care and a father's love complete the picture of the happy family.

It may be suddenly broken as is the case so often—the newspapers daily tell the story—but mother's care and father's love live on where there is life insurance.

It's a wonderful privilege to be able thus to extend yourself into the future to the benefit of loved ones and under London Life "reduced premium" plans, it becomes surprisingly easy.

Call one of our representatives today if your family is not fully protected.

When this protection is provided, you can enjoy life far better.

The Lament of a Little Girl Whose Daddy Didn't Insure

Daddy, if you know we're hungry,
Know that we are very poor,
It must break your heart in heaven
'Cause you never did insure!
'Twasn't that you didn't love us,
I recall how dear you were;
But your little girl must suffer
'Cause you failed to save for her!

Mary's Daddy left insurance,
And their home will still be theirs.
They're not hungry an' sometimes Mary
Gives me cast-off clothes she wears.
They don't have to take in sewing,
Mary's mamma doesn't cry,
For her daddy left insurance;
But you didn't, Daddy—why?

Ruth One Up On Gehrig In Home Run Race

PENNOCK HOLDS SENATORS 4-0

Ruth Smashes Two Homers Into the Right Field Bleachers.

SOX WIN 5-4.

NEW YORK, April 25 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth got his big war-club into action here yesterday as Herbert Pennock held the Washington Senators to three hits, and the Yankees won, four to nothing. Ruth's contribution consisted of two home runs into the right field bleachers, giving him a total of three this season and putting him one up on Lou Gehrig. The bases were empty for each of the drives. Tony Lazzeri accounted for the two remaining Yankee runs in the first when he singled. Ruth drew two passes.

The Tigers were defeated by the Chicago White Sox, five to four, in the third game of the Detroit series yesterday in a see-saw affair which went ten innings. The Tigers slugged Thomas for 15 hits including six double, but succumbed in the tenth after Metzler scored on Falk's sacrifice.

Bob Fothergill, pinch-hitting for Gibson in the eighth, singled to start a rally which gave Detroit a tally to tie the score. Jack Tavener, Tiger shortstop, had a bad day, contributing three errors and went hitless in five times at bat.

The Browns hit timely and took advantage of five Cleveland errors to win yesterday at St. Louis 6 to 2. The Browns bunched hits in the early innings. In the third, Blue hit a homer, scoring behind Kress, who had singled. Ogden allowed the visitors eight hits but kept them scattered, except in the ninth when two singles and a double netted Cleveland one run.

The Philadelphia Athletics hammered the Boston Red Sox for their first home victory of the season by a score of 11 to 6.

Starting on Pitcher Herbert Bradley, a recruit right hander, and wading through his successors, the Athletics scored in five successive innings.

RACE MEET AT LINDSAY

Cream of Ontario Runners to Take Part in Field Meet.

GOOD PROGRAM.

The Monarch Athletic Club of Lindsay has the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada to stage a track and field meet on May 24th. They have already secured the support of the Monarch Athletic Club of Toronto, the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A., and the local Y.M.C.A. harriers, and will have the pick of runners of Ontario in all events. It is expected that other clubs such as Hamilton Olympic club, Galt "Y", West End "Y" and the Gladstone A.C. of Toronto will be well represented and thus the citizens of Lindsay and visitors to town on that day will have the opportunity of seeing Ontario's running stars perform in their favorite events.

There will be softball game both in the morning and afternoon and the rules of the A.A.U. will govern all events, the entries to close on May 19th.

Events are as follows:

Morning

100 yards, 17 years and under, scratch, Victoria and Haliburton.
1 mile, 14 years and under, scratch, Victoria and Haliburton.
2½ miles, 17 years and under, Victoria and Haliburton.
4 mile relay, 18 years and under, Victoria, Haliburton, and Peterborough.
100 yards, senior, scratch, Victoria, Haliburton, and Peterborough.
½ mile, senior, handicap, Victoria, Haliburton, and Peterborough.
1 mile, senior, handicap, Victoria, Haliburton, and Peterborough.
2 mile, industrial (any firm).

Afternoon

15 mile run, open.
5 mile walk, handicap, open.
5 mile run, handicap, open.
4 mile relay, four men, open.

MONTREAL BREAKS ORIOLES' STREAK

Defeat Baltimore 9-8 in Game Marked By Strenuous Hitting.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 25 (Canadian Press). — Montreal upset the Baltimore Orioles' winning streak yesterday by defeating the local club 9 to 8 in a game marked by strenuous hitting. Earnshaw's wildness coupled with the showing of Smith, Montreal southpaw, in the pinches brought about the score. Earnshaw's seven bases on balls told heavily, four of them being turned into tallies. The Orioles outhit the Canadians, but were unable to produce blows that would have brought in winning runs.

Buffalo piled up a big lead early in the game yesterday to trounce Reading 10 to 4 in the first of the series. The Bisons pounded Eddie Lautenbacher for nine hits and as many runs in the first five innings to sew up the decision.

Newark Bears defeated the Rochester Redwings here yesterday in a hectic game 4 to 3. Pitcher McCracken, who was sent in to pitch the final round for the Redwings, weakened after Carlyle began with a double. He issued three passes in a row, sending Fitzgerald, who ran for Carlyle, home with the deciding tally. Mamaux allowed but six hits, and two were triples.

Likely Starters In Big Handicap

LONDON, April 25.—(Canadian Press.) — Probable starters and their jockeys in the city and suburban spring handicap, which will be run to-night, are as follows:

Abbott Speed (Wells), Fohanaun (Winter), Banstair (Elliott), Priory Park (Carslake), Knight of Grial (Beary), Chateau Fort (Jellies), Votla's Pride (Perryman), Sliedmere (R. Jones), Saturn (Smirke), Themohawk (H. Wragg), Caporal (Steve Donoghue, Hossan (P. Beasley), Autocrat (Kirby), Royal Falcon (Nolan), Talup (Sirrett), Rathnally (Gordon Richards), Parole (Weston), Gifted (Cordell).

The City and Suburban is a popular spring handicap at Epsom and the distance is a mile and a quarter. The race was established in 1851. It was won last year by Embargo, owned by the Maharaja Rajpipla and ridden by Steve Donoghue.

PETTY GETS FIRST VICTORY

Robins Give Hurler Good Support to Defeat Philadelphia 12-7.

HENDRICK LEADS ATTACK.

NEW YORK, April 25 (Canadian Press).—Supported by a batting attack which gave him a dozen runs, Jess Petty turned in his first victory of the season yesterday, defeating Philadelphia by 12 to 7. Petty got off to a bad start in the first when three runs were scored, but the Robins overcame this deficit for him in their own half of the first. The veteran Southpaw, winning his first easy game in two years, let up at the finish, and permitted Philadelphia to collect four runs in the ninth on five hits.

Harvey Hendrick, with two triples and a single and four runs, batted in, led the Brooklyn atttack, which made itself felt against three Philadelphia pitchers.

Sheriff Blake won his third victory of the season for the Cubs when he came through with a 7 to 2 win over Pittsburgh at Chicago. The Cubs now have a 2 to 1 edge on the series.

Blake was not scored on until the eighth. Previous to that he had gone 17 consecutive innings without allowing a run. Hartnett and Stephenson bagged home runs, both off Dawson. Five fast double plays cut short rallies by both teams.

FUTURE STARS OF THE TURF

The Hasting's stable last fall secured 14 thoroughbred yearlings from Mrs. L. A. Livingston of the Pontiac Stock Farm at Cobourg, all of them eligible for the King's Plate. The horses wintered at Thorncliffe and have developed into fine looking two-year-olds. Some future stars of the turf are in the string. Picture shows five of them at the barrier being schooled for the races by "Mickie" Courtney ON THE RIGHT and Arthur Brent ON THE LEFT. From LEFT to RIGHT the horses are: Crystal Vapor, Wee Baloo, Mastery, Gallant Spark and Son of Harmony.

VIEWS ON SPORT

BASEBALL MEETING

Let's see all the Junior baseball enthusiasts at the meeting to-night. Junior baseball is essential if we are to have good senior ball a couple of years from now.

Much enthusiasm has been displayed by those interested in Junior baseball over the prospects of re-organization of a city league this year, and the chances are that the meeting, to be held in the Holy Name rooms, Simcoe street, at 8 o'clock to-night, will be well attended by a large number of players and others interested in the Juniors. Even the wet grounds and the threatening weather over the week-end failed to discourage the Royals, who gathered at King Edward Park and put in some snappy practise work. Such players as Hatton, Holmes, Hollingsworth and that "dark-horse" Kitchen, were there and they certainly put over their stuff in grand style. There are many Junior players in Peterborough and they have all expressed a desire to play ball again this season. If those who have displayed enthusiasm in the Juniors in the past turn out at the meeting to-night there is no reason why a strong city league should not be formed.

The Monarch Athletic club of Lindsay have drawn up a splendid card for the track and field meet scheduled for May 24th. This athletic club was organized last year and the railroad boys got away to a flying start by sending three teams to compete in the 10-mile relay race on Thanksgiving day here. Many of Ontario's crack running stars will compete, while Peterborough will be represented by both the "Y" Harriers and the Canadian General runners. The Cosmos club of Millbrook must not be overlooked, especially Jim Larmer, who has featured prominently in events here before. On the whole, it promises to be one of the largest meets held in Eastern Ontario and it will do a great deal to promote this brand of sport in our own town.

Next Monday evening, the executive will be present at the Home and School Association meeting for the purpose of presenting Eversharp pencils to the Prince of Wales teams as a souvenir of their winning the public school soccer championship. This arrangement will result in the regular meeting being held the following evening, Tuesday, May 1.

• • • • • •

A great many of the local soccer fans are of the opinion that the De Laval eleven will make the other teams battle all the way to gain any decision; in fact, if they play as they did last Saturday, the Separator boys will be amongst the silverware.

• • • • • •

A benefit game will be played on Saturday afternoon, May 5th, on King Edward Park, on behalf of one of the most popular players that kicked the ball in the city. The two teams will be chosen from the four elevens.

DEMPSEY COULD PICK OWN JUDGES

Messages Between Jack and Rickard Introduced as Evidence.

NEW YORK, April 25 — Canadian Press. — Jack Dempsey could have picked the judges and referee himself to ensure "absolute protection" if he had been willing to fight Gene Tunney in New York for the heavyweight title in 1926, Tex Rickard, the grand mogul of fistic promotion, admitted yesterday on the witness stand as the suit of Jack Kearns against the former champion for over $500,000, neared its close in the United States District Court.

The "headaches" that often afflict promoters appeared to be explained as Rickard, under cross-examination by attorneys for Dempsey's former manager, identified a stack of telegrams he sent the ex-champion in an effort to bring the fight here. In one message in particular, Rickard poured out his heart to Dempsey, who feared he would be "jobbed" in New York, Tunney's home state.

"The best I can do on Tunney," Rickard wired Dempsey in Los Angeles on March 29, 1926, "is a guarantee of $450,000 with privilege of 45 per cent. (of the gate receipts). The show would draw more in New York at the New York Stadium or a place to be built by me in Jersey. You would have no trouble in choosing your own referee and judges in New York to insure you against any favoritism. You must come to a decision right away as it takes six months to work up a big show."

Dempsey, still fearful of the bout that ultimately cost him his title in Philadelphia, where the match was taken after the New York State Athletic Commission refused him a boxing license, sent Rickard the following reply also admitted in evidence: "Must have 50 per cent. of everything with privilege of four fifty guarantee, understand, Tex., you must guarantee me full protection with everything as you have stated in your wires. Must have my end of guarantee before the fight, also advance of $50,000."

Earlier in the day, Dempsey made his sixth appearance on the stand to discuss his financial relations with Kearns who seeks to recover one-third of the former title holder's earnings under a three year contract drawn up in 1923.

Dempsey said that he kept no books ;that "sometimes I owed him and sometimes he owed me," and no receipts or vouchers ever were exchanged. Jack identified the joint income tax return, filed by Kearns in 1923 and 1924, in which their relations were termed "a partnership on a fifty-fifty basis."

Dempsey also told again of the signing of his contract with Kearns at Saratoga Springs, N.Y., in August of 1923, shortly before his match with Louis Firpo, of Argentine. Two other witnesses, Bertly Olson, a Utah mining man, who then was Dempsey's secretary, and Jerry, the Greek Jack's loyal little trainer, corroborated the story Dempsey told on the witness stand Monday for the first time.

ROCCO WILL MEET KID VICK

Flashy Flyweights to Box in Preliminary to Belanger-Durand Headliner.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN.

TORONTO, April 25.—Frenchy Belanger's bout with Clovis Durand is apparently causing almost as much interest as his battles with Frankie Genaro, and there will be few vacant pews at the Arena Gardens when the former champion clashes with his Montreal rival for Canadian flyweight supremacy at the Arena for coveted positions at the ringside yesterday indicates that all his followers will be on hand to see his attempted comeback, and also to discover if the reports regarding his great all-round improvement are not part of the regular ballyhoo. Promoter Playfair Brown is more than pleased with conditions generally. It would be surprising if he wasn't with all the fans breaking their necks and incidentally putting substantial dents in their pocketbooks trying to get "ducats" for the bout. He predicts a fine battle with Belanger having all that he can do to win over the Montrealer. "Frenchy" in his opinion, will have to fight back to his contest with Newsboy Brown to beat Durand. There will be another flyweight battle on the card that also promises plenty of action. It will bring together Steve Rocco and Kid Vick of Buffalo, the boy who stopped Willie Davies here several years ago. Vick fought Durand in Montreal a week ago, and although beaten put up a most courageous scrap. He was down in the first round and again in the second and third, but each time got up and carried the fight to the Montrealer. Vick is a clever boxer and a hard hitter, and the aggressive Rocco will have his hands full in their six-rounder.

The complete card has been arranged with Dug Lewis boxing Ruby Cedar of Pittsburg, a most capable welter as his record shows. He drew with Jack Civic some weeks ago, and has boxed among others "Heavy" Andrews, Young Sailor and Floyd Hybert. Harry Henning will meet Jack Golden in another six-rounder, and the former amateur champion is determined to avenge the defeat of his brother, who lost to the former at the last Shamrock club show. George Barber and Ozzy Bodkin come together in the six-round curtain-raiser. The latter hails from Detroit, and is a battler of the Rocco type.

NEED OF FOREST POLICY.

Few people realize the urgent need which exists for a forest policy in Canada. The economic facts are that the forest is second only to agriculture in production of commodity values, and it contributes to-day one-quarter of Canada's total export trade. Therefore, continued depletion of raw materials essential to the well-being of the forest industries is a direct menace to our national prosperity.

PRO HOCKEY DONE ON THE PRAIRIE

Amateurs Have Call in Regina —New League at the Coast.

REGINA, April 25.—That Regina is temporarily "through" with professional hockey, and that the amateur game will flourish next winter on a bigger scale than ever before in this city, is the opinion shared by three men who for many years have followed the fortunes of the puck-propellers in this city—namely, Al Ritchie, Wes Champ and Fred Ufland. The severe financial losses suffered by the Caps, coupled with the recent death of their president and chief owner, Jack Webster, have just about eliminated any possibility of the salaried men plying their trade here next winter, while the simon-pure game has been hoisted into a warm place in the hearts of the fans through the conquest of Howie Milne's Monarchs in the east; for with Regina defending the Canadian junior championship, the stage is all set for a bumper season of amateur hockey commending in the middle of next December.

Like the inoculation that failed to work, salaried hockey never "took" in Regina from the time that Wes Champ disposed of his Western Canada League franchise and team to Portland for the sum of $25,000 two and a half years ago. Raised on the best kind of professional hockey, the fans didn't take very kindly to the brand of puck-chasing served up in the new prairie loop by less polished and experienced pastimers—especially when no reduction was made for admission—and on one occasion last winter in the neighborhood of 80 fans sat in on a local match, setting perhaps a new lowwater mark for salaried hockey anywhere. But Jack Webster and his partner, George Bell, who had agreed to "carry-on" after the rest of the original owners had called "enough" early in the second season, gamely finished out the schedule despite heavy losses. There was always the hope, they felt, that some of the reserve might be recouped by the sale of players, but unfortunately few, if any, of the 1927-28 Caps displayed sufficient hockey prowess to catch the eyes of visiting scouts.

Should Regina fail to muster a professional team next season the personnel of the Prairie League, originally five teams would drop to two providing both Saskatoon and Moose Jaw carried on. And in this event, it is most likely that the circuit would decide to suspend operations for the time being, likely disposing of the material on hand to the new league which Frank Patrick and Pete Muldoon are reported to be organizing at the coast.

AT THE REGENT.

"SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS."

"The Shepherd of the Hills" now playing at the Regent Theatre: is a powerfully human and faithful film version of Harold Bell Wright's famous novel, produced by First National Pictures. An all 'star cast of great merit, beautiful photography and skillful production make this offering outstanding among film versions of great novels.

"ONE ROUND HOGAN."

Comes to Regent Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

From actual prize ring history comes the opening incident of Warner Bros.' production of "One Round Hogan," starring Monte Blue and directed by Howard Bretherton and arrives at the Regent Theatre Thursday for a run of three days.

Monte is seen in the title role as an aspiring young heavyweight who has acquired the habit of knocking his opponents out in the first round. The opening scene shows hi mas a beginner knocked out by him as a beginner knocked out by ing him all the tricks that brought him fame and fortune.

James J. Jeffries appears in this role and vouches for the fact that the same thing happened in the case of Bob Fitzsimmons and his son, Bob, Jr., now prominent in Eastern boxing circes. Fitzsimmons, champion in his time, trained his son to follow in his foosteps. In "One Round Hogan" Monte wins the championship. Shortly after his successful fight he lunches with a young aspirant for the crown and meets his sister who asks him to persuade her brother to quit boxing.

An unscrupulous manager gets rid of Monte's opponent on the eve of a championship bout and substitutes the brother. Monte makes him promise to quit if he knocks him out in one round. Monte does, but the young fellow's manager hits him a blow when they are alone in his dressing room that cause heart failure. Monte, blamed for the death, loses his nerve. He tries to square himself with the girl, but finds the manager makes love to her, and attacking him is worsted. This decides the manegr to enter the ring against Monte himself. Leila Hyams, James J. Jeffries, Tom Gallery, Frank Hagney, Texas Kid and Abdul, the Turk are in the cast.

SHE SEEKS FATHER'S OFFICE.

Miss Margaret Kidd, who consented to be a candidate from Scotland for a seat in Parliament to succeed her father, James Kidd, following his tragic death, is Scotland's first woman advocate. She recently achieved the added distinction of being the first woman to be permitted to appear before the Bar of the House of Lords. She graduated M. A. LL. B. from Edinburgh University and was called to the Bar in the Court of Sessions three years later. In the following month she had her first case, the defense of a woman charged with the murder of her two children. Her special plea of insanity was successful.

INDIANS HONOR KARL MAY.

As a token of thanks for a similar honor conferred by Karl May on an Indian chief at Buffalo, N. How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 20

How many players realize the importance of sizing up a hand carefully before they play to the first trick? Many a game and rubber that now is lost would result very differently if more thought were devoted to the play of the first one or two tricks. Here is a good example of the importance of figuring out the proper play at the first trick:

Hearts — 9, 3, 2
Clubs — K, J, 9
Diamonds — A, J, 9, 6, 2
Spades — 9, 4

Y
A B
Z

Hearts — A, J, 4
Clubs — A, 10, 8, 6, 5
Diamonds — Q, 10, 4
Spades — K, 8

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one no-trump and all passed. A opened the five of hearts, B played the king and Z won the trick with the ace. At this point Z should stop and think over carefully what plan of play he should adopt. He has two five-card suits to play for, clubs and diamonds, so must decide which one to select. If he plays for the diamond suit and finds the king of diamonds in B's hand, B will play hearts through his jack, or spades through his king, and thus prevent Z from going game. On the other hand, if Z decides to play for the club suit, he can do so by winning the first club trick in Y's hand with the king, then finessing the jack through B's hand. If A should win this trick he is thus obliged to lead up to Z's jack of hearts or king of spades.

In either event Z must make his contract and he still has the same opportunity to finesse diamonds. This hand is a fine illustration of the value of sizing up your hand at the first trick. Here is another hand, of the same type. Think it over and compare your analysis of the proper play of the hand with that which will be given in the next article.

Problem No. 21

Hearts — 8, 3
Clubs — K, 7, 3
Diamonds — A, J, 9, 5, 2
Spades — Q, 5, 3

A B
Z

Hearts — A, J, 10
Clubs — A, 6, 4
Diamonds — Q, 10, 3
Spades — K, J, 9, 6

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one no-trump and all passed. A opened the six of hearts, B played the king and Z won the trick with the ace. How should Z plan the play of the hand?

Answer to Problem No. 20

Y
A B
Z

Hearts — Q
Clubs — Q, J, 7, 6, 4
Diamonds — 7
Spades — Q, 10, 8, 5, 4, 2

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed. A passed, Y bid one diamond and B bid one no-trump. Z bid two spades, A passed, Y bid three diamonds and B doubled. Z now bid three spades (a very bad bid by the way), A passed Y bid four hearts and B doubled. What should Z do now?

In view of Y's bid and rebid of the diamonds, Z should bid five diamonds. The heart suit looks like one of four cards, while the diamond suit should be one of seven or more. A bid of four spades or five clubs, of course, is out of the question. It is a case of taking a loss on either a four heart or five diamond bid, but the latter will undoubtedly be the lesser of two evils. In the actual hand, the contract was defeated 600 points at four hearts, while at five diamonds Y-Z would have lost only 300 points — quite a difference.

Problem No. 22

Hearts — 5
Clubs — A, 10, 5, 3
Diamonds — none
Spades — 5, 4

Hearts — 4
Clubs — J, 8
Diamonds — 5, 4
Spades — J, 9

A B
Z

Hearts — 6
Clubs — Q, 9, 7, 6
Diamonds — 10, 8
Spades — none

Hearts — Q, 3
Clubs — K
Diamonds — K, Q
Spades — 10, 8

Hearts are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y-Z win six of the seven tricks against any defense? Solution in the next article.

Heavier tougher longer-lived

the NEW Veedol Motor Oils

THE entire line of Veedol Motor Oils has been re-formulated to solve the difficult problem of lubricating the new high-compression motors. They are better oils for any motor. Heavier, tougher, longer-lived than ever.

These new Veedol oils give:

1. Greater motor protection (heavier body and added heat resistance).
2. Greater mileage (being heavier, they last longer).
3. Greater economy (they cut operating costs and reduce wear, tear and repair on the engine).

Match Veedol's performance against the oil you now use. To-day, stop at the first orange and black Veedol sign you see. Have your crankcase drained and refilled with the new Veedol. Then watch results.

What CAN a Man Believe?

By BRUCE BARTON

Author of "The Book Nobody Knows," "The Man Nobody Knows"

XXXIII—The Four Great Religions Compared

ALL four of the great religions agree that the universe is ruled by One Supreme Being, who revealed Himself through the founder of the religion and is further represented by certain sacred scriptures which set forth the way of right living.

Mohammed and Confucius wrought no miracles. Indeed Mohammed definitely disclaimed miraculous power when challenged to prove his role of prophet by exhibiting it. Some of the miracles of Jesus and of Buddha bear a certain resemblance.

Thus Jesus walked on the Sea of Galilee and Buddha crossed the River Ganges without a boat.

Jesus by a word or the touch of His hand healed the sick; Buddha healed a sick woman by a single look.

Jesus fed five thousand on five loaves and two small fishes; Buddha fed five hundred with no previous supplies.

Jesus, alone of all the great teachers, is reported to have risen from the dead.

Three of the four great faiths contain the principle of the Golden Rule. Thus Buddha says:

"Is there a deed, Rahula, thou dost wish to do? Then bethink thee thus: 'Is this deed conducive to my own harm, or to others' harm or to that of both?' Then is this a bad deed, entailing suffering. Such a deed must thou surely not do."

The Silver Rule of Confucius has already been quoted, but since it occurs in six different places in the sacred scriptures of his religion it deserves to be given again:

"The Master replied . . . 'What you do not want done to yourself, do not do unto others.'"

Mohammed, whose doctrine was death to all unbelievers, obviously had no use for such a precept, and both Buddha and Confucius fall far short of the moral majesty of Jesus:

"All things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye unto them."

And Jesus went even further. He alone of all the great teachers acted uniformly in the spirit of His own precept, even in respect to His enemies, claiming that in so doing He was properly interpreting the character of God:

"I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you . . . That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust."

In what they tell us about the future life the four great religions are widely dissimilar.

Mohammed was very specific. His heaven is a garden filled with beautiful women and every sensual delight.

To Buddha existence was a sad mixture of sorrow and illusion which no one would wish to have continued, yet most must continue through successive eras of penance until final release comes by the blotting out of individual personality.

No Paradise

Confucius pictured a shadowy future life, devoid equally of hope or fear and having no relation to the actions or results of the present—a ghostly affair, damp and depressing.

The teachings of Jesus were very definite but not detailed. "Where I go," He said, "there ye shall go also." In His Father's house, He said, were many mansions; but He left the picture to be filled in by men's own imaginations, based on the assurance that God is Father and will use His omnipotent power to provide eternal good things for His children.

"—Shall He Reap"

Thus in the degree and quality of hope and inspiration which they hold out for the future, the four religions are far apart. And each has fixed upon its people the stamp of its own character. The Chinese neither hoping nor fearing, but patiently enduring; the Buddhist renouncing all active effort as useless; the Mohammedan showing no mercy to his foes, already condemned to eternal punishment, but gladly incurring any risk in exchange for the delights of a fleshly heaven; Christianity teaching that every thought and act has eternal significance, that "God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he reap."

MISSIONARIES SHOT IN CHINA

Presbyterian and Methodist Slain By Soldiers in Shantung Province.

ONE HID ENEMIES.

SHANGHAI, April 25 (Canadian Press).—Dr. Walter Seymour, superintendent of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions at Tsining, South-Eastern Shantung, was shot to death by a Chinese soldier on April 16, according to news reaching here today. Whether the soldier was a Northerner or a Nationalist was not known. Tsining was believed to have been captured by the Nationalists on either April 16 or 17.

For Hiding Soldiers.

TOKIO, April 25 (Canadian Press).—A Peking despatch says that an American Methodist missionary is reported to have been executed by the Nationalists at Yenchowfu on a charge of hiding wounded Northern soldiers. The despatch says the Southerners have been capturing numerous towns in Shantung, but have not harmed foreigners, except at Yenchowfu.

VOCAL RECITAL VERY PLEASING

ENCORES DEMANDED.

The song recital given in St. Andrew's Church Hall last evening by Charlotte Hanson Doig, soprano soloist of St. Andrew's Church, assisted by Miss Bertha Hill, contralto, from the studio of Dorothy Allan Park, proved an entertainment of exceptional merit for it comprised a series of songs so well grouped as to avoid even a suspicion of monotony, all handled in most capable manner. At the piano was Miss Agnes Best, whose contribution to the success of the evening was not a small one. She was assisted by Dorothy Allan Park.

Mrs. Doig's known talent as a soloist was pleasingly emphasized by her singing last night. Best of all were her numbers "Seaward" (Meta Schumann), a gloriously challenging composition in which soloist and pianist triumphed ;"Moon Marketing" (Powell Weaver), which had to be repeated at the will of the audience; and the concluding group of Irish folk songs so odd, yet so pleasing.

Miss Bertha Hill was heard in two groups of songs of which "The Shepherd's Wooing" of the first group and the three of the final set were her best. The appeal of "The Blind Ploughman" was indeed far from lost in Miss Hill's rendition of it. Together with Mrs. Doig she also sang "In Springtime" and "As I Went a-Roaming."

The program was as follows:

"God Save the King."

"Hark! How All Things in One Sound" (Purcell); "O del mio dolce ardor," Aria from Paride Ed Elena (Gluck); "I Will Extol Thee," Eli (Costa)—Charlotte Hanson Doig.

"Give Back the Heart" (Rossi); "The Shepherd's Wooing" (Sparrow); "How Changed the Vision" (Handel) —Bertha Hill.

"Night" (Strauss); "Sunday" (Brahms); "A Thought Like Music" (Brahms); "Seaward" (Meat Schumann)—Charlotte Hanson Doig.

"In Springtime" (Newton)—Charlotte Hanson Doig and Bertha Hill.

"A Green Cornfield" (Michael Head); "The Palanquin Bearers" (Martin Shaw); "Moon Marketing" (Powell Weaver); "Krishna" (Gena Branscombe) — Charlotte Hanson Doig.

"The Blind Ploughman" (Clarke); "O Flower Divine" (Wood); "Daddy's Sweetheart" (Lehmann) — Bertha Hill.

Group of Irish Folk Songs (arr. by Herbert Hughes): "Reynardine" (Donegal). Reynardine is known as the name of a fairy that changes into the shape of a fox. "I Know My Love" (West Irish); "An Island Spinning Song" (Inniswurry); "A Ballynure Ballad" (Antrim) — Charlotte Hanson Doig.

"As I Went a-Roaming" (Braha)—Charlotte Hanson Doig and Bertha Hill.

Mrs. Doig, Miss Hill, Miss Best, and Mrs. Park were recipients of numerous beautiful bouquets during the evening.

HEADACHES

Modern science has proved that headaches don't "just happen." They have a cause. The ache is but an effect, and treating effects will do no real good. TO ADJUST THE CAUSE IS THE ONLY SOLUTION. Chiropractic has further proved that the cause is interference with the nerves that carry vital force or mental impulse, which is the source of all life within the body. The only place where such interference by bony structure can exist is where the nerves leave the spinal column through openings between the vertebrae. Headaches may be

DIRECT OR ADAPTATIVE

That is, they may be due directly to pressure upon nerve fibres which supply the tissues of the head and brain, or they may be adaptative to abnormalities in other organs of the body. In either case the Chiropractor determines the location of the nerve pressure which is responsible for the headache. He releases this pressure and the ache disappears. This is not theory or a fanciful idea, but actual fact, a grand reality which has brought and is NOW bringing relief to numerous sufferers.

PLENTY OF SERUM IN QUEBEC SAYS PROVINCIAL SECRETARY CALLING FLIGHT VULGAR BLUFF

Hon. Athanase Davis Reproves Those Who Send Lindbergh On Useless Errand.

SERUM NOT USED.

"Profit-taking From Tragedy Under Guise of Charity"—"Time to Make Country Known."

MONTREAL, April 25. — Canadian Press. — "Why this bluff?" asked the Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary, in the course of a speech last night dealing with the rushing of anti-pneumonia serum from New York to Quebec in the case of Floyd Bennett, who died at Quebec yesterday of pneumonia. Premier Taschereau announced there was plenty of anti-pneumonia serum in the province.

"As for Col. Lindbergh," said Mr. David, "I have the utmost respect and admiration. He reflects the bravery of youth. I am his greatest admirer. But why this bluff? And especially this bluff perpetrated by means of an American, a world celebrity?

Profit from Tragedy.

"I wish to make it quite clear that I am not anti-American, but I cannot stomach this way of taking profit of a tragic situation under the mask of charity. Here we have everything that is necessary, and we do not need to have them come from the United States to bring us serum. We can get along without American doctors be they the most accomplished specialists of that great country.

"The serum! Why they did not even try it. It was not a good one. We pass for a country of snows. I salute the heroes who flew from Ireland to Greenely Island. They have not been able to get away from that remote part of our province.

"That," said the minister, "is bad enough without calling us a land of ignorants. We have scientists—we have serums. True we have not all the laboratories needed, but if we could have that I hope we could be safeguarded from such a piece of stupidity as an airplane being flown from New York up here with a serum that we already possess in more than sufficient quantities.

Vulgar Publicity Stunt.

"I must bitterly reprove," concluded Mr. David, "Those who have gone so far as to send a great hero like Col. Lindbergh on such a futile mission—to let him risk his life on a vulgar, if spectacular publicity stunt."

Mr. Taschereau said: "In Quebec we saw American aviators yesterday, who ostensibly had come to save the life of a hero. But we had all that was needed here. We have serum we have oxygen, maybe even too much of the latter. One of those aviators asked if there was an hospital in Quebec, and he asked if there was a hotel in Quebec where an aviator could find room!

"Gentlemen," he exclaimed, "it seems to be time that we made our country known."

Comedy Drama "Now Fawncy That" Draws Large Attendance at Lyceum.

The comedy drama entitled "Now Fawncy That," in three acts and seven scenes which was such a popular offering last week in St. Alphonsus Lyceum, where it was presented for two nights by a clever cast recruited from the Dramatic Club of the Immaculate Conception parish, was repeated with great success on Tuesday evening at the Lyceum, before a large and enthusiastic audience.

Each actor did excellent work in his or her part. The cast had an additional member in the person of J. A. LeBlanc, who enacted the role of Henri Lafayette in two of the seven scenes which comprise the formation of the three acts. The musical numbers by Miss Anna Gallagher and Mr. Joseph Clancy were loudly applauded. Altogether the presentation under the capable direction of J. H. Primeau, with Miss Margaret McCabe as Musical directress, was exceptionally well presented.

Big Detective To Guard Hagen

LONDON April 26.—(Canadian Press.)—The manager of Walter Hagen has hired the biggest private detective he could find in London, six feet four inches tall to take charge of the United States' golfer and see that he gets to Moor Park golf course on time to-morrow and Saturday for his special match with Archie Compston.

Farmers Working Land In Alberta

CALGARY, Alta., April 26. Canadian Press. — The farmers are rapidly getting on the land in southern Alberta, also in the central and eastern sections of the province. The land is stated everywhere to be in the most excellent condition from a moisture point of view, which will ensure rapid germination once the seed is in the ground. A considerable quantity of grain from the 1927 crop still remains to be threshed, but this in the majority of centres is now being rapidly proceeded with.

Owing to the sustained good prices it is generally expected there will be an increased acreage put under cultivation this spring but this will largely depend on the weather. Doubtless in cases where the farmers have much threshing to do a certain percentage of the wheat will be stubbled in.

Farmers' farm organizations, and grain men state that taking everything into consideration, that although the season is advancing, that prospects in Alberta this year were never better.

YOUNG PEOPLE ASK FOR HELP

Swing Seen in English Unemployment Relief to 20-30 Group.

MORE MEN THAN WOMEN

LONDON, April 26.—(By the Canadian Press).—An important contribution to the statistical study of unemployment is made by the Ministry of Labor in a report on an investigation into the personal circumstances and industrial history of a one percent sample of the claimants to unemployment benefit in the first week of April, 1927. The inquiry, which included a personal interview with 9,748 individuals, was made at the 400 employment exchanges. This is the fourth time that the Ministry has carried out a sample investigation on these lines, and it has been proved that the method can be relied upon to yield results representative of the whole field from which the sample is taken. Two of the former investigations had the same purpose as that now reported upon, viz., to ascertain the composition and characteristics of the various classes of claimant to benefit.

In the first place the report shows in age groups the proportion of unemployment among the young, the middle-aged, and the old, and also the proportion of the unemployed in these age categories. If comparison be made with the investigations of 1924 and 1923 it will be seen that the proportion of men aged 25 to 29 among the claimants has increased, while the proportion of women of those ages has decreased. The proportion of men of 60 years of age and over has fallen. Nearly 30 per cent. of the male claimants and over 47 per cent. of the female claimants are included in a ten-year age group 20 to 29.

NOTED CHURCHMAN READER OF NOVELS

LONDON, April 26.—(By the Canadian Press).—Dr. Arthur Samuel Peake, Rylands Professor of Biblical Exegesis, Victoria University, Manchester, who presided over the recent annual assembly of the National Free Church Council at Bridlington, is one of the foremost theologians in Great Britain. Dr. Peake was born in Staffordshire 62 years ago, the son of a Primitive Methodist minister, and, soon after going up to St. John's College, Oxford, began to receive the honors due to his learning and industry. He was a Fellow of Merton for seven years as well as a lecturer at Mansfield College.

Going to Manchester when Hartley College accommodated 24 students, says a writer in the Daily News and Westminster Gazette, Dr. Peake became the first Rylands Professor of Biblical Exegesis in Manchester University in 1904, and has held that position ever since. For his theological writings and pioneer work in Bible study, Dr. Peake is well enough known but the influence he has exerted on more than one generation of students can be fully comprehanded only by one who has come into contract with his teachings, and his sympathetic mind.

His recreation is usually given as "chess" but very often the greater part of his luggage consists of detective novels.

Sends Condolences To Flier's Widow

QUEBEC, April 26. Canadian Press. — Hon. L. A. Tachereau, Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec, has sent a message of sympathy to Mrs. Floyd Bennett, expressing his own regrets and those of his fellow members of the Cabinet, on the occasion of the death of her husband.

Hon. Mr. Taschereau was presiding at a meeting of the executive when he was informed that the American ace had died in Jeffery Hale's hospital. He at once instructed his private secretary R. A. Benoit to forward a message of condolence to Mrs. Bennett.

BENNETT'S BODY LEAVES QUEBEC

Impressive Military and Civil Honors Paid Famous Flier.

THOUSANDS ATTEND.

QUEBEC, April 26 (Canadian Press).—The body of Floyd Bennett, who died here yesterday of pneumonia, was placed aboard the train for New York to-day, amid one of the most impressive scenes Quebec has ever witnessed. Following a service at the hospital chapel, the casket was placed on a gun carriage and drawn through the streets to the station, while thousands of people marched with bowed heads and with every outward manifestation of sorrow behind it.

Commander Byrd and the officers of local military units followed close behind, and Mrs. Bennett, accompanied by the American Consul and his wife, was in a closed carriage. At the station, a detail of the Royal 22nd Regiment fired a last salute over the casket, as airplanes droned overhead in a farewell gesture to the famous flier.

MEN ENTERTAIN LADIES.

George Street Club Hold Successful Social in Hall.

The Men's club of the George street United church held a ladies' night on Monday evening and a very enjoyable time was spent in contests and music.

As the guests entered each received a number by which patrons were matched up for the evening.

A guessing contest was first on the program and the prizes went to E. Ingall and Mrs. Fowler. A singing contest was won by A. V. Lillow and company.

An oratorical contest by five picked orators was won by Col. Miller by a unanimous vote of the audience.

The evening came to a close with refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake, sandwiches and coffee served by Chef S. A. Oke and his colleagues.

After singing Auld Lang Syne all dispersed at 11 o'clock, voting the Men's Club capital entertainers.

CALEDONIAN CHOIR CLOSES ITS SEASON

Report Presented Shows Successful and Enjoyable Winter.

The Caledonian Club Choir held its last regular meeting of the season in the W.O.W. Hall last evening.

The secretary, W. Grieve, gave a very satisfactory report of the season's work, and also reported that inquiries were being made for the choir's services in the near future. At 8.30 visitors were introduced to the Club from the Sons of Scotland, Pipe Band and Eastern Star Lodge L.O.B.A. and a pleasant social evening was spent in games and dancing.

The following excellent program was given:

Vocal solo—Mrs. G. Jackson.

Vocal solo—Mr. W. Grieve.

Duet—Mrs. R. French and Alex. Clark.

Vocal solo—Mrs. G. Nimmons.

A trio by Messrs. Grieve, Hyslop, and Clark concluded the program.

Miss Mary Hemphill played the accompaniments, and Mr. A. Begg played for the dancing.

Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies, and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought a pleasant evening to a close.

CALLING OF ANOTHER LAWYER TO CONDUCT CASE THREATENED IF CHARGES ARE CONTINUED

Mr. Regan's Remarks On Dunham House Military College Arouse Ire.

DENIED BY WITNESSES.

Staff Officer of British Brigade Next Canadians Says They Advanced Until Eleven.

(By Staff Reporters)

COBOURG, April 26 (Canadian Press).—Charges that the Dunham Hotel, where Sir Arthur Currie is staying, had virtually been turned into a Canadian Corps headquarters and was being used as a school for the coaching of witnesses were made by Frank Regan yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Regan continuously referred to the Dunham Hotel as the military college, but his remarks seemed to fall on deaf ears. Then he tried a different line of attack and asked His Lordship for a ruling as to whether the Dunham Hotel could be used to school and coach witnesses as to what they are to say when put in the witness box.

His Lordship appeared to be annoyed at the question and sharply turning to Mr. Regan told him that no evidence had been shown in court to make him believe that such a things was the case, and if he, Mr. Regan, could not conduct his case in a more judicial manner, he would have to ask one of the other counsels for the defendant to conduct it for him.

From that point on in the trial, Mr. Tilley and Mr. Parmenter asked their witnesses if they had received any such coaching as charged by Mr. Regan, and they all answered they had only discussed their evidence with Mr. Tilley, which previously His Lordship had considered as being most likely.

The reply of the plaintiff still continues. Officers and privates are telling what they know of the entry into Mons, and when they heard of the armistice. Mr. Regan is putting every man under a very rigid cross examination, and for the most part he is stirring up a most antagonistic sentiment among the witnesses.

One star witness for the plaintiff yesterday afternoon was Captain Harwood A. Steele, M.C., of the 188th English Brigade of the First Army, and son of late Major-General Sir Sam Steele, former head of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Captain Steele was a member of the headquarters staff of his brigade and had a great amount of information about the movement of the troops on his section of the First Army during Nov. 9, 10 and 11.

This English brigade was immediately south of the 2nd Canadian Division, which was next to the fourth which entereded Mons on November 11. Captain Steele heard of the armistice about 8 oclock in the morning and he declared their troops continued until eleven. The defence has stressed that the other Allied troops did not do so and that it was only the Canadians under the command of General Sir Arthur Currie who did not cease when they heard of the armistice.

Lieut. F. Gregg, V.C., of the R.C.R., as adjutant of that battalion, supplied the court with the detailed movements of the companies making up that unit Nov. 10 and 11.

Richard Symons, who fought under Byng in the Boer War and was a member of the Princess Pats, gave the Court evidence that held the attention of everyone and the sheriff and officers had to call for order several times. Mr. Symons described the fighting and the desire of the men to keep the Boche on the run. He told of an armistice in 1916, when Germans and Canadians stopped fighting for one hour on Christmas Day, and went out into No Man's Land to meet each other. A soldier of the old type, his references were most interesting, and the little stories he told gave the Court a glance at the less morbid side of the soldier's life on the battlefield.

The Court room was crowded from morning until night. Messengers had great difficulty in moving around, and many of the leaders and outside lawyers are taking up seats in front of the pressmen.

Witness after witness declared that Canadians had no particular incentive to capture Mons, no matter what the First Army report says in the matter, and none of them claimed to have heard any soldier swearing that he would be in Mons before the war closed.

Each witness yesterday who told some phase of the Mons operation, declared that no opposition was met by the Canadian Corps in Mons, and there was no firing on November 11. When they heard the Armistice was signed, for the most part they were glad to cease hostilities.

When Mr. Tilley will close his reply is not even being prophesied. Many officers still remain on the benches waiting to be called, and from all appearances it will last at least another day.

Long Trial Proves Hard On Jurors' Pants

(Special By Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, April 26. — What effect the evidence now being being heard in the $50,000 libel suit brought by Sir Arthur Currie against W. T. R. Preston and the Port Hope Guide is having on the members of the jury will be known when they bring in their verdict at the end of the case. But the effect of the trial on the clothing of two jurors has been drastic. The long hours of wear and tear on trousers by the seats of the jury benches has forced two jurors to purchase another pair each since those worn during the session so far have broken out in the rear.

The only casualty so far reported in the present operations in the Mons sector is one constable wounded. Constable MacGuire, in an affair with a spectator at the hearing yesterday afternoon sustained a black eye. He appeared for duty to-day with the injured organ protected by a surgical dressing.

ALMONTE PASTOR CALLED TO OMEMEE

Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard Invited To Become Pastor of United Church.

OMEMEE, April 26. — At a special meeting of the stewards and elders of the Omemee and Bethel United Churches on Wednesday evening, by a unanimous vote an invitation was extended to the Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard, of Almonte, to become pastor of this circuit.

Mr. Blanchard conducted morning and evening services in the church a few weeks ago, and pleased the congregation by his splendid discourses. The call will take effect on July 1.

IBN SAUD WON LAND IN BATTLE

Tribe Was Downtrodden When His Father Abdicated Rule in 1900.

POWERFUL PRINCE

LONDON, April 26.—(By the Canadian Press).—Ibn Saud, the King of the Hejaz and Nejd, who was much in the public eye recently in connection with threatened Arabian "Holy War", has had one of the most romantic careers of anyone in the history of the Near East. He is now the most powerful prince in Arabia, having carved out an empire with the sword and without aid from foreign powers. Left at the head of the down-trodden Wahabis by the abdication of his father in 1900, he surprised Riadh with a score of followers and was declared its rightful ruler. Having driven the Turks out of El Hasa in 1914 and annexed more territory during the war, he was kept quiet for some years by a British subsidy. But in 1924 he drove Passein out of Mecca and became master of Central and Northern Arabia.

Ibn Saud's remarkably acute mind and tireless physique, which has given rise to countless stories of his bravery, are undoubtedly responsible for the return to power of the puritanical Wahabis whose most glorious days ended at the beginning of the last century. Ibn Saud is an autocrat and an aristocrat but, at the same time, a popular hero among the nomad tribesmen.

THE WEATHER

The temperature was again below the freezing point last night, and thick ice was visible this morning. Yesterday I mentioned something about late snowstorms. Here are snowfalls that have occurred in the merry month of May during the last 35 years: In 1923, three inches of snow fell on May 9th, and on May 1st, 1909, one inch fell. The heaviest snowfall in May that ever fell here, was on May 4, 1907, when all of six inches came down during the early hours of the morning. Yesterday I was in error in saying it was four inches. This heavy fall will be remembered by many though it occurred 21 years ago. The shade trees were partly in leaf and spring was farther advanced than usual.—W. P.

Schools Closed At Fort William

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press).—As the result of a mild outbreak of influenza, all public schools in Fort William have been closed, by a joint order issued by the Department of Health and the Board of Education. When the general precautionary measure was taken, attendance in the schools had been reduced by 1,100. The epidemic is not regarded as serious, and no deaths have been reported.

THREE ROBBERS STEAL $29,000

Hold Up Staff of Standard Bank Branch in Toronto To-day.

ESCAPE IN CAR.

TORONTO, April 26 (Canadian Press). — One of the largest bank hold-ups in the history of Toronto was carried out by three armed bandits to-day at the Standard Bank of Canada branch, McCaul and Elm Streets, when cash and securities totalling about $29,000 were secured and carried off.

Three bandits drove up to the bank, the only person, with the exception of the staff, in the bank at the time was Miss Mildred Stein, a customer. At the point of revolvers the men forced the staff of three male employees and the woman customer into the vault, scooped up $15,000 in negotiable securities, $9,000 in cash, and $5,000 in non-negotiable securities, dropped the loot into a bag, and escaped.

As the motor car made away with the bandits and their loot, the manager and teller secured their revolvers and fired several shots after them without apparent effect.

There will also be two honorary Doctor of Divinity degrees awarded, one to a Queen's graduate, Rev. J. R. Fraser of Dunbarton, the other to Rev. T. E. Holling of Lindsay.

Judge Dennistoun is a former Peterboough man. He was a member of the law firm of Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr and Stevenson while here.

Gen. Currie Absent First Time To-Day

(Special by Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, April 26.—General Sir Arthur Currie, the plaintiff in the $50,000 libel action against F. W. Wilson, proprietor of The Port Hope Guide, and W. T. R. Preston, was absent at the morning session for the first time since the trial commenced eleven days ago.

General Currie has always sat beside his lawyers and paid strict attention to the evidence given by all the witnesses. He has followed all the reports of operations and war diaries very closely, often consulting with his lawyers, explaining points of interest.

COMMANDER OF 7TH BRIGADE SAYS OPPOSITION STRONGEST ALONG FRONT NORTH OF MONS

Flank Movement Advocated By Defence Would Have Met Heavy Resistance.

LOST NO MEN ON 11TH.

Defence Counsel Apologizes For Remarks Made About Victoria Cross Winner.

(By Staff Reporters.)

COBOURG, April 26. — Brig.-General John Arthur Clark, M.P., D.S.O., C.M.G., was the chief witness for the plaintiff at the Sir Arthur Currie-Preston-Wilson $50,000 libel suit this morning, before Hon. Mr. Justice Rose.

General Clark was commander of the Seventh Canadian Infantry Brigade which entered Mons on the night of November 10, in the early morning of the last day of the Great War.

Witness declared that the casualties in his brigade were greater in the units north of Mons than in the units that entered the city, and it was to the north of the city where the troops encountered the strongest opposition thus answering the defence idea of an enflanking movement to take the city.

"Hostilities will cease at eleven, and defensive precautions will be maintained," was the order General Clark received about the armistice. He took this to mean that offensive fighting would cease but a defence must be obtained.

General Clark after receiving the message established a line and ordered the Fifth Lancers take it. This action of his was severely criticised by Mr. Regan and compared to Col. Ewing's action in ceasing hostilities. General Clarke replied that the 42nd had reached its objective but that the 7th Brigade had not.

"If I had stopped I would not be obeying my order and would have been guilty of treason, as the order was one that could be carried out. It was also my duty to protect the people of Mons and create a line whereby these people's lives would not be endangered if hostilities began again."

Other witnesses called were members of the R.C.R., Captain Thompson, Sergt.-Major Clark and Private Russell.

W. T. R. Preston, one of the defendants, cross-examined General Clark after Mr. Regan had finished. It was the first time since the trial commenced that Mr. Preston has taken advantage of questioning a witness to any extent.

Regan Apologizes

At the opening of court this morning Frank Regan, counsel for F. W. Wilson, arose and apologised to the court for making the untimely remark that he did at the close of his cross-examination of Lieut. Gregg, V.C., last night.

Mr. Regan said he did not know that the gallant soldier was the holder of the Victoria Cross, the Empire's highest gift to her soldier sons.

Mr. Regan read an apology and said, "Had I known he was such a gallant soldier I would be the first to pay homage to him rather than criticism. I can assure him that I was under a misapprehension and I hope that he will accept this heartfelt apology." Mr. Tilley said he had noticed when Lieut. Gregg was called that Mr. Regan had failed to notice the honor witness had.

One Officer Wounded

The first witness called was Captain C. J. Burton Thompson, commander of D Company of the R.C.R. Arriving in Jemappes late on the afternoon of the 9th, Captain Thompson with his men proceeded in a northerly direction towards Nimy, which was north of Mons. During the 10th his company was under fire but he had only one officer wounded. Late that day they reached their objective.

Q.: When did you hear of the armistice?

A.: At 8.30 on the morning of the 11th.

Q.: When did you enter Mons?

A.: Late in the afternoon of the 11th.

William Henry Clark, of Montreal, a member of the Royal Canadian Regiment, who was with that unit as Sergeant-Major during the war was called. Witness said he left Jamappes on the 10th and proceeded with B Company in a direction which would take them north of Mons, but on the afternoon of the 10th, while near that city the unit changed its directions of march and went in a southeast direction towards Mons. They took cover in the houses northwest of Mons and there remained until darkness. After darkness four bombers and four riflemen entered the city to find no opposition. They then returned and reported everything clear and the company went into the city early in the morning and heard of the armistice between 9 and 9 o'clock.

Q.: What casualties did you have?

Wounded Disobeyed Orders

A.: Two men and one sergeant

QUEBEC, April 26 (Canadian Press). — The Ford relief plane took off from Greenely Island at 7.45 this morning with the Bremen crew for Lake Ste. Agnes. The Bremen was left on the island. The departure of the crew was announced by Government wireless.

Hull Farmer Faces Manslaughter Charge

HULL, Quebec, April 26. — Canadian Press. — Charles Trempe, crippled Wakefield farmer charged with manslaughter, following the death of his 18-year-old daughter's baby, allegedly because of the lack of medical care, was committed to the assizes by Judge Marchildon, sitting in the Hull court yesterday. The mother of the infant testified that her father had refused medical care, but Trempe maintained that he had been unaware of his daughter's condition.

New York's Day Of Welcome To Be Turned Into Day of Mourning For Floyd Bennett

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 26 (A.P.)—New York's day of welcome to the crew of the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen will be turned into a day of mourning for Floyd Bennett.

The city's plans for elaborate welcoming ceremonies to the Bremen crew were ordered cancelled yesterday when news of Bennett's death in Quebec arrived. Mayor Walker ordered city flags set at half staff as one of the initial tributes to the hero pilot.

The harbor pageant, parade and ceremonies at the "Eternal Light" Memorial were deferred until Monday, and the city dinner was postponed until Tuesday evening. Should the German and the Irish aviators arrive before Sunday, they would have an opportunity to attend the funeral services of the man who died on his way to their aid.

Mayor Walker, Governor Smith, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who sent anti-pneumonia serum to Quebec in an effort to prolong the fliers' life, and men prominent in aviation voiced their sorrow over the passing of Bennett—hailed everywhere as one of the greatest heroes of the air.
